'DID RIGHT,' JURY TELLS DAY

FILM STAR, REAL AMERICAN GIRL, WORLD BEAUTY

She Is Katherine MacDonald.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

(Pictures in Rotogravure Section.)

Los Angeles, Cal., April 8.—[Special.]—Miss Katherine MacDonald is the most beautiful woman in the world. An extravagant remark, you say? Well, she is an extravagant beauty.

For weeks I have been sitting in daily conference with the League of Beauty in this western Mecca toward which all beautiful women turn their faces.

Face to face with representatives from almost every part of the globe, I have been given ample opportunity to study, to analyze, and to compare the manifold types of beauty, and I say unqualifiedly, with every due respect to the fine delineation of feminine loveliness in minor rôles, Miss MacDonald is the central figure, the most beautiful of all.

The Aristocrat of Beauties.

Not only has she great physical beauty, but she has undisputed individuality; is splendidly equipped with that indefinable something called personality. She has exquisite poise, fine mentality, infinite charm, and unusual distinction. She is the aristocrat of beauties of the present era.

Miss MacDonald is the finest example of a pure American type of beauty, which type is indisputably the most perfect in the world. A direct descendant of a famous colonial beauty of Philadelphia, Mary Ann Saylor, who married Capt. John Wednel Agnew of Washington's staff, she is as truly American as can be found in the entire country. In her possession she cherishes an heirloom—a bit of lace from the dress worn by her ancestor at Washington's inaugural.

She stands today as preëminently an international figure of beauty as did Lillian Russell, Lillian Langtry, and Maxine Elliott of yesterday. Fashion of beauty alters as in all the arts. She is the modern woman de luxe.

Her Points of Beauty.

She has perfectly formed features, a beautiful symmetry of form, lovely contour of cheek and chin, head beautifully poised on a slender neck, small, full mouth, marvelously beautiful eyes of purple blue, finely arched brows, and long, sweeping lashes. Her skin is faultless. A splendid composite of the best virtues of the Christy girl, the Gibson girl, the Penrhyn Stanlaws, the J. Knowlton Hare, Coles Phillips, Harrison Fisher, Neysa McMein, and other famous illustrator productions.

Unlike many of her competitors, it is not one or several outstanding features that force recognition, as, say, a magnificent pair of eyes, or perfect Venus measurements, or gorgeous hair. It is the blending into one perfect whole of many, many beauty qualities that sets her apart and above the rest. And, as it was said of an eclipsing brunette in "Diana of the Crossways," "The splendid creature can talk."

Miss MacDonald is the athletic girl with every fine saving grace of the purely feminine to balance.

Won Thirty Beauty Contests.

Not on my word alone need she be accepted as the most beautiful of girls. She has won in thirty beauty contests where judges were well equipped by profession and vocation to pick and choose. She has been accepted abroad as the pure American type, the selection having fallen on her because she has the qualities of beauty associated with the drawings of the high priced and popular illustrators of the country.

Too, she was selected from among all the girls in the land to represent the most beautiful woman in America at the annual art exhibit held at the Swarmer galleries, Kansas City, recently, her picture to be hung alongside the old world beauties.

Again, she was the favorite photoplay star of President Wilson, one of the most intellectual men that have ever lived, so reports his secretary of his White House days, Joseph Tumulty.

Toast of Harvard and Yale.

She was the toast of Harvard and Yale, and where might one look for a more critical test than into the unbiased, intolerant, and brutally frank and ofttimes cruel eyes of male youth? Everywhere I asked an opinion. From the layman every time the answer came, Katherine MacDonald, although frequently there would follow a heart reservation for a favorite whose last picture had carried appeal. I asked Miss Ina Claire, familiar with the beauties of the professional stage. She said Katherine MacDonald was the most beautiful.

I asked Miss Mae Tinée, who has seen every possible phase of screening

AUTO VEHICLES KILL 1 CHILD AND INJURE ANOTHER

Five year old Bernard Harding, 5652 South May street, ran in the path of a truck driven by George Gay, 3850 West 13th street, yesterday afternoon and was killed. Gay was held, pending the inquest.

MARY HARDUCK.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Another child victim was Mary Harduck, 7 years old, 849 North Winchester avenue, struck by a car driven by Felix Fralkowski, 1959 Howard street. At the county hospital it was feared that the girl had received internal injuries. The driver was not held.

BOMB CARPENTER WORKING UNDER LANDIS DECREE

Another employing carpenter working under the terms of the Landis award was bombed last night.

The explosion occurred at the shop of Anthony Kalamatilmos, 6308 St. Lawrence avenue. For several weeks he has been installing fixtures at the restaurant of George Kuslan, 1378 East 63d street. Two weeks ago a bomb was hurled at the restaurant; Kalamatilmos, undaunted, continued at his work.

The bomb last night blew the rear door from his shop, caused perhaps $200 damages to the interior, and wrecked windows in a radius of two blocks.

ZANDT FREED AS GIRL ADMITS FIB

Confesses Being with Him Night of Tragedy.

Louis Zandt, 1133 Ainslie street, district manager for the Wales Adding Machine company, who was detained for forty-eight hours by the police in connection with the murder of William Parlon, 4943 South Michigan avenue, last Tuesday night, was last night exonerated by the police and released.

An alibi which Zandt had presented, but which was at first doubted, was substantiated when Miss Anna Schutz, 2255 Cortez street, admitted she had been with Zandt on the night of the crime. Miss Schutz had previously denied that to the police, but later confessed to her attorney, Robert T. Mack, 208 South La Salle street.

Romance and Pathos.

Romance and pathos are strangely entangled in the aftermath of the Parlon murder. Zandt was estranged from his wife, Miss Vaughn Long. He was living in bachelor apartments on Ainslie street. She, under her maiden name, was rooming with the family of H. H. Hardinge at 908 Buena terrace.

She met Parlon. He had an engagement to take her to dinner on Tuesday night. As he parked his flivver in front of the Buena terrace address two men approached. There were a few words; then a shot. Parlon dropped, a bullet through his heart.

Lieut. Axel Jensen heard that Parlon was married and had a family in California. Then he heard that Miss Long, too, was married, and that she and her husband formerly lived with a physician on the south side. He went to the physician's home and there found Miss Long and Zandt.

Lieut. Jensen took them both to the detective bureau; he questioned Zandt as to his whereabouts on the night of the killing.

Zandt told of eating dinner at his apartment, then of taking a crosstown surface car to the west side, of meeting Miss Schutz at an elevated station and of an hour's taxi ride after that, and, finally, of his returning home with the girl at 10 o'clock.

Girl Denies His Story.

Police were sent for Miss Schutz. She went down to the detective bureau and there flatly denied she had been out with Zandt on the night in question.

"Tell the truth—why don't you tell the truth?" he pleaded with her. "Don't you know you are swearing my life away—that you hold my life in your hands?" Again she denied seeing him.

Zandt was questioned all night. Yesterday Miss Schutz went to her attorney and told him that she had been out with Zandt that night, but that police questions had frightened her and that she didn't want to get tangled up in a murder case.

"There's another man, too," she said. "I didn't want him to know I'd been out with Zandt. What shall I do?"

Attorney Mack advised her to tell the police the truth. And so came the reversal of her story.

As Zandt was waiting at the detective bureau his wife came in. Twice estranged, their common trouble brought about a reconciliation.

After they had kissed each other and agreed to forget their differences—the police took them to a restaurant at Garfield boulevard and Halsted street, where a little celebration supper was served. The Zandts then departed for the home of Mrs. John Wilson, 5520 South Marshfield avenue, an aunt of Mrs. Zandt, where they will live.

"It wasn't a nice thing to be mixed up in," Zandt said. "But as long as all my friends know I'm not guilty—that I didn't have a thing to do with it, it's all right. It's brought me back my wife again—and, believe me, I'm a happy man tonight."

DE VALERA REPLIES TO CHICAGO CABLE, BLAMES PRESS

DUBLIN, April 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—Speaking today with reference to a cablegram from Chicago stating that the impression was spreading there that present conditions in Ireland were prompted by "reds" and irresponsible persons, Eamon de Valera said this was not the first time that Ireland and the Irish race had to face the "misrepresentations and slanders of the British controlled press."

"Standing on justice and on our right, we bade that press defiance," he added, "and we will do it again. O, ye of little faith, hold up your heads."

Mr. de Valera today issued an appeal for £50,000 ($220,000) for the purpose of running candidates for the forthcoming elections. The pro-treaty party also has issued an appeal for funds.

The cable from Chicago to which Mr. de Valera referred was as follows:

Chicago Irishmen, becoming worried over the rumors and reports of growing unrest in Ireland, yesterday sent the following telegram to Michael Collins and Eamon de Valera:

"Impression rapidly spreading here that present distressful conditions in Ireland are promoted by 'Reds' and irresponsibles, who are fomenting civil war, riot, and ruin, which is humiliating to lovers of liberty everywhere, and particularly to lovers of old Ireland. It is our considered judgment that if these conditions are not remedied immediately they will not only ruin Ireland but the Irish race movement throughout the world."

It was signed by: Edward F. Dunne, D. F. Kelly, P. H. O'Donnell, P. T. Barry, the Rev. W. J. McNamee, Dr. John M. Murphy, Mary T. Mahony, and M. J. Faherty.

PRIMARY FIGHTS BITTER TO END; ALL CONFIDENT

Woman G. O. P. Club Rescinds O. K.'s.

BY PARKE BROWN AND E. O. PHILLIPS.

Party candidates for county and sanitary district offices, for the municipal bench, for state treasurer, and state superintendent of public instruction, for the state legislature, for the state central committee, and for congress are to be nominated at the primaries next Tuesday—day after tomorrow. Polls will be open in Chicago from 6 a. m. until 5 p. m.

From the beginning the chief battles have been for the legislature and for the county and sanitary district offices with the state central committee fight running a good third. But as zero hour approaches, the principal interest in Chicago and its suburbs centers around the county contests.

And this interest is so acute that the lull that usually settles down the Saturday night before an election day is noticeably missing. This year, largely because of the many-angled factional contest in Chicago, it appears that the hostilities will continue right up to the hour the polls open.

Dramatic Move by Women.

This is especially true on the Republican side of the fence which last night was shaken up considerably by a dramatic stroke from its feminine contingent. After a session lasting several hours during which some of the affected candidates are said to have pleaded vainly for clemency, the directors of the Woman's Roosevelt Republican club issued a statement striking from its list of indorsements four candidates believed to be backed by the Lundin-Thompson machine.

Three of the candidates were put up by the Deneen group. They were H. C. W. Laubenheimer, for sheriff, John F. Devine, for probate clerk, and Edward R. Litsinger, for board of review. The fourth was Jerome J. Crowley who entered the race for probate judge as an independent and later obtained the indorsements of the Brundage and Crowe groups.

The Roosevelt Club.

The Woman's Roosevelt club consists of the following officers and directors:

President—Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns.

First vice president—Mrs. Lyman A. Walton.

Second vice president—Mrs. B. F. Langworthy.

Secretary—Mrs. Charles Joseph Swan.

Treasurer—Mrs. George A. Soden.

Directors—Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. Charles S. Clark, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. George R. Dean, Mrs. James W. Morrison, Mrs. Robert L. McCall, Miss Emily Napieralski, Mrs. Howard L. Ray, Mrs. Raymond Robins, Mrs. Julius Rosenwald, Miss Amelia Sears, Mrs. Frank Schaedler, Mrs. Russell Tyson, Miss Harriet E. Vittum, Mrs. Ira Couch Wood.

Their Position Stated.

The statement issued following their meeting follows:

"The board of directors of the Woman's Roosevelt Republican club finds that the Thompson machine is sending ballots to the voters of Cook county marked for the service men's slate for the county board, and in addition for certain candidates indorsed by the Woman's Roosevelt Republican club for the major county offices—namely: H. C. W. Laubenheimer, John F. Devine, Edward R. Litsinger, and Jerome J. Crowley.

"This ballot, sent out at an estimated cost of $50,000, is accompanied by a folder bearing a picture of William Hale Thompson and his indorsement of the slate, also a statement that every man indorsed on it for the legislature is pledged to the Thompson traction plan.

Main Issue: Thompson-Small.

"The Woman's Roosevelt Republican club is unalterably opposed to Thompson and his organization. The board feels that the main issue at stake in this election is opposition to Thompson and Small, that there is grave danger in accepting any candidate indorsed by the Thompson machine.

"Feeling that any candidate acceptable to the Thompson-Small machine will not be acceptable to the men and women of Cook county who are fighting it, we therefore withdraw our indorsement of the candidates mentioned above and urge our members and the public not to vote for any candidate for the county offices, state central committee, state legislature, or Municipal bench, who are indorsed on this ballot by the Thompson-Small machine."

That Picture of Thompson.

The fac-simile ballots, which caused the women's organization to act, showed crosses opposite the names of

YOUR TAXES!

The Illinois Commerce commission, selected by the Small-Thompson-Lundin crowd, announced officially under seal of the commission that the cost of living in Chicago last December was only 72.3 per cent higher than in December, 1914. Chicago's tax bill for all governmental bodies this year is 142 per cent above that of 1915, when Mayor Thompson was inaugurated. Contrast the city, sanitary, school, park and state taxes in Chicago now and then, as follows:

Year.	Taxes.
Increase	$75,318,626

This all has nothing to do with the national government. Mayor Thompson in campaign speeches denies he is responsible. However, he is running the municipal government and Lundin is running the state government, and the rent payers and property owners filed no request for the enormous boost in taxes. The following little table shows what the total CITY taxes were when his honor was inaugurated and what they are today:

Year.	Taxes.
1915	17,016,238
Increase	$30,631,873
Per Cent	180

At the last session of the legislature the Small-Thompson-Lundin combination worked openly for tax increases. They succeeded in boosting the taxes on Chicagoans from $90,617,586 to $128,030,678. That is a jump in one year of $37,413,092, or 41.28 per cent. Regardless of any explanations which may be offered these few figures show correctly how much taxes have been increased in Chicago.

Everything else but rents—partly dependent on taxes—has shrunk in prices in the last year.

ELK HOME BURNS AT NEW ORLEANS; TWO MEN BURIED

New Orleans, La., April 8.—Two men were buried in the ruins of the auditorium and gymnasium of the Elks home, which was wrecked by fire tonight. Seventeen injured firemen were taken to hospitals. The men under the wreckage were pinned by rafters and efforts were being made late tonight to rescue them. It was not known whether they were dead. Both are firemen. Early estimates placed the property loss at $250,000.

Intoxication Has Doubled in N. Y. Since First of Year

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—Intoxication has doubled in New York since the first of the year. Figures made public today by Dr. James A. Hamilton, commissioner of correction, show the number of persons sentenced to the workhouse for intoxication during the first quarter of 1922 to be an increase of nearly 100 per cent over the number sentenced during the first quarter of last year.

FREED BY JURY WHEN HE TELLS HOW BECK DIED

Wife Also Testifies Upon Tragedy.

BY ORVILLE DWYER.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 8.—[Special.]—Jean P. Day, former member of the Oklahoma Supreme court commission, wealthy oil man and Democratic politician, was exonerated tonight by a coroner's jury of the killing of Lieut. Col. Paul Ward Beck, U. S. army aviation officer.

Day shot and killed Beck when he found Mrs. Day struggling, according to the testimony of both the wife and husband, in Col. Beck's arms early last Tuesday morning. The coroner's jury delivered its verdict after deliberating just fifty-eight minutes.

"We find," the verdict said, "that Paul Ward Beck came to his death at the hands of Jean P. Day and, from the evidence, we conclude that said Jean P. Day was justified in the defense of his wife and his home, even though the unfortunate affair resulted in the death of Paul Ward Beck, and we recommend and advise that no charges be filed nor prosecution be instituted against Jean P. Day."

Both Volunteer Testimony.

The stories of the tragedies told by Mr. and Mrs. Day were dramatic. The stories were told not only to the coroner's jury but to an army court of inquiry, composed of eight members of Col. Beck's flying squadron, and more than 1,000 men and women.

Neither the former judge nor Mrs. Day was asked to take the stand. After the state had presented evidence from a dozen or more witnesses and apparently built up a case against Day, both volunteered to tell their stories.

"Mr. and Mrs. Day will waive all immunity," Moman Pruitt, their counsel said. "They wish to tell their stories."

Verdict Stirs Officers.

Lieut. Paul Ward Beck, son of Col. Beck, and the other army men apparently were bitter over the verdict.

"This thing has just started," said Lieut. Beck. "They may think they can whitewash this man, but they can't. We're going through with this thing."

Col. Beck's body will be shipped to Washington, where an army court of inquiry will be officially held.

Day, who is tall and spare, told his story with a simplicity and earnestness that lent it extreme dramatic quality. He is the "typical southern gentleman" and Mrs. Day is the epitome of Dixie womanhood. At times during the long ordeal of the inquest she appeared almost on the verge of collapse, but when she took the stand she was calm and spoke slowly, firmly, albeit softly.

Story by Accused Man.

Mr. Day started his story with easy directness and worked, apparently unconsciously, toward a dramatic climax which held the room full of men, women, and girls breathless. He himself, as he came to describe the scene of the killing, seemed to lose himself.

"Gentlemen of the jury," Mr. Day said, "I have known Col. Beck since early last fall. One day Lieut. Kenneth Walker called at our home and said that Col. Beck, their commander, was with him and he wanted me to meet him. That was the beginning of our acquaintance. After that, he, as well as other officers down at the field, visited my home frequently. I gave him the free run of my home.

"I thought he was a gentleman beyond reproach. In truth, I learned to love him like a brother. I told him time and again that my home was his home, and he availed himself of that hospitality many times.

Tells of Last Day.

"Last Monday evening Mrs. Day called me by phone and said that we wouldn't have dinner at home, but would go down to the hotel, as we frequently did.

"I drove on to my house, and sitting in the wicker seat on my porch was Col. Beck. He was reading the evening paper. I walked up and shook hands with him. It was a cordial greeting. I said to the colonel, 'We will go on and get Mrs. Day and go down to the hotel to dinner,' and we went over to Sam Woods' home on 22d street, and Mrs. Day came out and got in the car with us.

"We lingered at dinner there quiet a while, just the colonel and Mrs. Day and I sat at the table together and visiting over a thousand things. Just a very fine pleasant evening we were having."

Day then told how Col. Beck and his wife later met some friends, how he joined them, how the party finally went to his home. He told how he took

TELL OF TRAGEDY

Mrs. Jean P. Day, wife of former Judge Day of Oklahoma City, who testified before coroner's jury to incidents leading to the killing of Lieut. Col. Paul Ward Beck by her husband.

Former Judge Jean P. Day told coroner's jury yesterday how he killed Lieut. Col. Beck for attacking his wife. He was exonerated.

other members of the party home, leaving Col. Beck in Mrs. Day's company, and of his return to the home.

Saw Struggle on Divan.

"Through the window I saw Col. Beck grasping Mrs. Day," he said. "Mrs. Day was on the divan. The colonel had his left arm around her waist and his right arm around her knees. Her dress was disarranged. She had her hands down, fighting and shoving. The poor soul was struggling for her very life and he was just hanging on and pushing and shoving.

"I went immediately to the door and opened it. That front door is a door with a latchkey. I shoved that latchkey in and turned it and twisted it and opened it as quickly as I could.

"As I shoved the door back Col. Beck jumped, arose quickly from the divan, walked north into the dining room. There were some portieres that hung there in the entrance.

Went to Get Revolver.

"He walked back quickly and disappeared behind the left portiere and Mrs. Day remained sitting on the couch, so far as I noticed. I immediately went, as quickly as I could, upstairs. I didn't know what he had gone back for there, gentlemen. I knew he was there and was a strong and powerful man. I went upstairs as quickly as I could and got this gun that has been exhibited here.

"I came back down to the landing there and looked into the living room. Mrs. Day was standing back there. She said, 'O, daddy, don't, don't!' That is all she said.

"I saw he wasn't there. I turned and went back through the kitchen, through the breakfast room, and back into the dining room. There Col. Beck stood. He was behind the portiere. As I came through the door I was walking right straight toward him.

Ordered the Officer Out.

"I had this pistol in my hand, down this way, as I walked toward him. I said, 'You get out of my house,' and I called him a name. I was advancing all the time, and as I came toward him he sprang out. As he jumped out he put his hands back as if he was going to fight me.

"I didn't know what he was going to do. I sprang back with the gun in my hand, and I struck at him with all the force that I had. As I struck he sought to dodge my blow. The gun hit him here and exploded. He went down. He fell on to the floor there. I saw that he was dangerously injured.

"Then Mrs. Day said, 'My God, Daddy, my God, what have you done!'

Did Not Intend Death.

"I said, 'I will swear to God I didn't intend to kill him.' That is the truth. I didn't intend to kill him. I intended to drive him immediately from my home, as he should have been driven.

"Mrs. Day was moaning and hysterical. I never saw anybody suffer as much in my life as the poor woman suffered. The next thing I recall having said was: 'There isn't but one thing to do. That is to call the police.' I stepped over to the phone and called the police station and told them to come to 411 W. 19th street at once.

"I began then to suffer more and more, naturally would begin to think of the terrible suffering it would bring on my little daughter, who is the idol of my heart.

"At one time I went to my room before the officers came and put the gun to my own head—but I was too brave to do it."

Unshaken During Examination.

Mr. Day was examined by Prosecutor Hughes, an old friend whom Day repeatedly called by his given name "Forest" during the examination.

"Why didn't you call out when you looked through the window?" Hughes asked.

"I knew I would get there in time to protect her, and I did," Day replied.

Day said Beck was a strong man.

"I know of three different occasions in my home when he carried a gun," he said. "I was going to get in a position where I could make a man of that kind leave my house. I got the gun to drive him out of my house. I don't think it ever entered my head to shoot him."

Day said he didn't see any handkerchief in Beck's hand.

"I suppose he was using it to mop his brow," he said. "He had been struggling."

"I don't know whether I had my finger on the trigger of the gun," he said. "It all happened in a flicker—you know how those things are."

Mr. Day at one point rebuked the prosecutor.

"Good God, boy," he said, "don't cast reflections on a pure woman as you have. The statement you sent out yesterday was not true."

Mrs. Day's Testimony.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 8.—[United Press.]—Immediately after husband ended his testimony, Mrs. Day, looking like a marble statue—white, rigid, beautiful—took the stand. She followed her husband's statements of the events of the evening, but she testified only a few minutes.

A black veil partly hid her face. She wore a brown tailored suit and black sailor hat.

She said she took off the shoes which she wore as soon as her guests left because her feet were tired.

"'Girl, girl, you have swept me off my feet,' Col. Beck said as he seized me, unawares," Mrs. Day testified.

"'Col. Beck, you don't know what you are doing,' I told him.

"He seized me about the waist with one arm and with the other he grabbed my knee.

"I struggled. Then I saw Mr. Day. His face was white and haggard.

"I cried, 'O, daddy, daddy, don't.'

"After that I became delirious."

Evidence by Police.

Joe Campbell, policeman, was the first witness called at the inquest.

Campbell testified he was among police answering the call to the Day home. Two officers were with him. He described the Day house. Hughes conducted a detailed examination as to driveways and position of windows.

"We were met at the door by Mrs. Day," Campbell said. "The shades were up at the Day home when we arrived."

"Mrs. Day walked to Policeman Miller and cried, 'Why did they leave me?'

"Beck lay with his legs and one arm outstretched near the dining room and living room connecting doors. He was lying three feet from the sofa—his body lying half way down the length of the couch. He was flat on his back.

Blood Stains on Belt.

"Bloodstains were down to his Sam Brown belt from the wound on his head. He held a handkerchief in his left hand."

Campbell identified the handkerchief with initials "P. W. B."

The handkerchief was exhibit one.

"We found a piece of skull and hair on the piano eight or ten feet away.

"When I took hold of Beck to see if he was dead, I saw Day coming down the stairs. He walked up to us. He said, 'Boys, I did it. I struck him and the gun went off accidentally.'

"He showed us the window where he said he saw Beck and Mrs. Day fighting. He gave us to understand Beck was trying to make Mrs. Day submit to his wishes.

Goes After His Gun.

"He said he went upstairs and got his gun and then came back down and struck Beck. He said Beck was behind a portiere when he came down stairs. He didn't say what he said to Col. Beck.

"Beck was standing between the drawing room and the dining room when Day hit him, Day said. Day said he did not have his finger on the trigger."

Campbell told of seeing some bottles in the fireplace in answer to a question of Hughes as to whether any liquor was evident.

"Some glasses contained sliced oranges," Campbell replied. "I didn't taste it.

"When we first went in," he added, "Mrs. Day was very hysterical and two officers took turns keeping her quiet. She said, 'I want to die.' She mentioned her honor.

"Judge Day took the gun back upstairs after the shooting. He later brought it down and showed it to us."

Effect of a Shot.

County Attorney Forest Hughes then questioned him about his knowledge of firearms.

"A body struck by a bullet falls toward the blow," Campbell said, answering a leading question from the county attorney.

He had previously said that Beck lay on his back.

"Mrs. Day had her shoes off when we went in," Campbell continued. "She had blood on her left arm, on her face and some on the front of her dress. An officer washed her arms."

The gun—a .38-40 single action revolver of the old west type—was next introduced.

"If the gun was loaded all round it could have been fired by a jar kicking the trigger off without the finger being on the trigger," Campbell said. "The jar would have to be in front of the trigger guard and not on the muzzle."

Campbell was then again asked about Mrs. Day.

"Mrs. Day was at one time down on her knees beside the body of Beck," he said.

"'Oh, why don't you talk?' she said. She begged him.

"We had told her he wasn't dead."

Miller Corroborated Campbell.

Henry Miller, policeman, was the next witness.

Miller reiterated much of Campbell's testimony.

Miller told of the position of Beck's body. He said his left arm was thrown out and his right was at his side. In his left hand he grasped a handkerchief.

Miller also stated that the back and the outside doors were open. There was another door between the refrigerating room and the dining room, he said, but he could not state whether this was locked.

It was believed at this point that County Attorney Hughes was aiming to show that Judge Day came in through the back door.

Campbell was recalled and testified that the back door was unlocked.

Testimony of Oil Man.

The next witness was H. L. Prichard, oil man, member of the card and dance party that preceded the slaying. He said he first met Mrs. Day with Col. Beck at a theater the night of the party.

"I had known Beck," Prichard said. "After the show we met in the lobby, and we went to my home about 11 o'clock. Mrs. Prichard was there. Judge Day came to my home about fifteen minutes later.

"We had music, danced, played a phonograph and piano. Then at midnight we went to Judge Day's home at his invitation. We were dancing. We all went in Judge Day's automobile."

No one other than the list Day gave as his guests—Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Prichard, Col. Beck, and Maj. Paddock—were there, Prichard declared.

"Did you have any beverage there that night?" was asked.

"Yes, sir," Prichard replied.

"What?"

"I don't know. It tasted like beer. It was white and in a fruit jar. There were six or eight pints.

"Day and Beck were perfectly friendly during the party. Beck was a perfect gentleman. Beck and Mrs. Day were perfectly agreeable. They danced together.

"Beck was in the living room or kitchen when we left. Mrs. Day was in the living room.

"Day didn't say how long he would be gone when he left to take us home. We went to Anderson's first. We all got out and Mrs. Anderson sang us a song or two.

"We left Mr. and Mrs. Anderson there and went back to Day's. Maj. Paddock wanted to talk to Beck. Then Day took us to my home. Day drove off immediately alone and Maj. Paddock stayed all night at my home."

Prichard said some of the bottles on the Day mantel were there when the party first arrived.

P. H. Anderson Testifies.

Paul H. Anderson, oil man, another member of the Day party, said the Prichards and Maj. Paddock took Mrs. Anderson to the show. He joined the party after the show at the Prichard home.

He corroborated Prichard's testimony.

Anderson said some home brew beer was served at the Day party. He denied corn whisky was imbibed.

Maj. R. B. Paddock, U. S. A., called to the stand, said he had known Beck for eighteen years. Beck came to Oklahoma City the fatal night to visit the Days, he asserted.

"Relations between Day and Beck were most cordial."

Paddock said he came to Oklahoma City by plane with Beck. He told of Col. Beck and Mrs. Day joining the Prichard-Paddock theater party at the theater.

He said a brew called beer, apologized for by the host, was served at Day's.

He declared that he did not notice anything out of the ordinary when he returned to the Day home from Anderson's to talk to Beck about oil for the airplane.

Paddock said no one was under the influence of liquor.

After Paddock's testimony was completed County Attorney Hughes announced that his evidence was completed.

PRAYER CENSORSHIP TALK DRAWS SHARP RETORT FROM HUGHES

Washington, D. C., April 8.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Hughes retorted sharply today to charges that a religious censorship was set up at the Washington conference which resulted in the deletion of the name of Jesus Christ from the opening prayer.

In a letter to Representative Fess, Ohio, Republican, on the subject Mr. Hughes said:

"The narrowness and bigotry exhibited in the criticism to which your correspondence refers are in my judgment so utterly despicable that I do not intend to notice the matter in any way. I shall not say anything in reply to the statements that are made. The best thing is to ignore the matter altogether. Dr. Abernathy's prayer was admirable in every respect."

Representative Fess had previously forwarded to Secretary Hughes a letter from an Ohio constituent who said that "a few of our religious friends say that in the Washington peace conference the name of Christ was censored in prayers made before that body in order to please the Japanese delegates."

MISS BAKER ON HER WAY TODAY TO JOIN ALLISTER

Mary Landon Baker's "renaissance" wedding gown is getting ready for its renaissance.

The slinky robe of ivory white, Salome velvet, trimmed with princess lace from Mrs. Alfred Landon Baker's wedding dress, was made for the elaborate wedding ceremony of Miss Baker and Allister McCormick which was to have taken place Jan. 2, at the Fourth Presbyterian church, but which was postponed by the sudden illness of the bride.

The gown was packed away in a trunk last night and departs this morning for New York on the Century with Miss Baker, her mother, and maid. In New York, Miss Baker's cousin, Miss Louise Kimball of St. Louis, will join the party who sail for France Tuesday on the Aquitania.

Sleepless for 54 Years, War Veteran Sleeps at Last

Pittsfield, Mass., April 8.—[Special.]—William Warner, 82, bachelor, civil war veteran, who has not slept a wink in fifty-four years, died here today. In 1878 he met with an accident that destroyed sleep. He rested in a rocker at night with his clothes on, but never lost consciousness. He was carefully observed by scientific and medical men, who said his insomnia was a fact. Two years ago his sight failed.

REBELS CAPTURE IRISH GARRISON; COLLINS TO WAR

Free State Chief Organizes Strong Loyal Army.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, April 8.—It has been learned from Ireland that the outlook there is brighter for the last few days.

Michael Collins is busy organizing a military force, and will soon be ready to strike, if a coup d'etat is attempted. Steps to restore order will be taken immediately.

The Free State army is well equipped, having plenty of rifles and ammunition, modern artillery, transports, and tanks, while the De Valeraistas are limited to a number of rifles and revolvers and few machine guns. Mr. Collins also has the almost solid backing of the Irish people, whose sympathy and active help were the only factors enabling the revolutionaries to maintain themselves before the truce.

Seize Collins' Army Office.

DUBLIN, April 8.—[United Press.]—Irish rebels stormed and captured the eastern headquarters of the Free State army today at Dunboyne, in what is believed to be the opening move of an intended coup d'etat against the provisional government. All the loyal garrison was made prisoner.

DE VALERA TELLS VIEWS

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DUBLIN, April 8.—Eamon de Valera today granted an exclusive interview to THE TRIBUNE correspondent. His request for an interview took the form of questions and answers. The first question was:

"The leaders of the majority party of the Dail, having made it clear that the present peace arrangements would not last and that they accept Parnell's dictum that no one has the right to set a limit to Ireland's march as a nation, what is your objection to allowing them, seeing that they have the approval of the majority in the Dail, to proceed with the government of the country until the people's voices have been ascertained at a general election?"

Rejects Majority Dictum.

"It is not what the leaders of the majority party think or say that matters," Mr. de Valera replied, "but what the explicit terms of the agreement involve. We will be held to that agreement once it is completed as to a building contract, and our position before the world will be misrepresented if we attempt to depart from it.

"As to the objection, had the majority party in the Dail continued legally to function as the government of the republic there would have been no objection. It was when the ministers proceeded to abdicate their functions as executives of the republic in favor of the so-called provisional government, operating under British laws, and were allowing the departments of the Dail to lapse into a mere nominal existence, that objection was made. The army of the republic was naturally the first to object.

"It has now been reverted definitely to its former independent status."

The Second Query.

Question No. 2 was:

"You object to the register whereon the election is to be taken as being stale. Doesn't that affect the protreaty party quite as much as the antitreaty party?"

"I object to the registers as being unjust because many tens of thousands of men and women entitled on every ground to a voice in the decision about to be made are precluded by the register from having that voice. This objection holds, irrespective of whether or not our side would gain more on a complete register. It is, however, not true that inaccuracy in the present register would tell as much against the other side as it would against us. Those who are 'newly qualified,' whose names are omitted, would be, for the most part, young soldiers who have become of age in the last three or four years and who, because of war conditions, have not taken steps to have their names put on the lists. These would undoubtedly vote overwhelmingly for a republic."

The Third Question.

"On Thursday you stated that the provisional government would not be obeyed. What is your alternative in that case for the government of the country in the immediate future for the preservation of civil order and the restraint of the criminal element, seeing that the police are disbanded and the British military forces greatly depleted?"

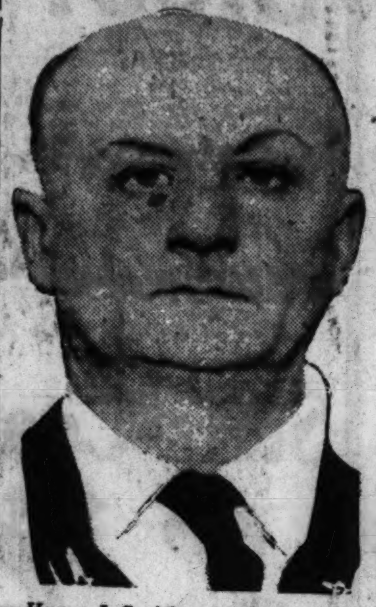
"My alternative is that the Dail, as the government of the republic and the legitimate government of the country, should continue these functions until the votes have been taken. In the interim an executive that would command universal respect could easily be selected and made responsible to the Dail. The army and republican police could without difficulty maintain order and afford adequate protection in all sections of the community.

"Supplementary local forces, under the control of local authorities, could gradually be set up. These latter forces should be raised with a view to making them ultimately the sole police force. I am definitely opposed to any centralized national police force which might be made the instrument of a tyrannical executive and used for political purposes. We should go to systems that obtain in free countries for a model, and not take the old royal Irish constabulary, which was instituted by England as an imperial guard for Ireland with a military and not a civil objective."

"There appears to be imminent danger of sanguinary conflict between opposing sections of the Irish republican army. Will you use your influence to prevent bloodshed?"

"The danger, in my opinion, could be avoided at once. The army was originally a voluntary army, the units elected their own officers, and a convention chose the controlling executive and headquarters staff. There is no reason why that system should not continue. It could be arranged so that the army executive could work in harmony with the executive of the Dail."

IN THE O'DONNELL JURY BRIBING



Henry J. Smith, who confessed he accepted $1,000 for voting to acquit labor leaders.

Michael J. Stack, who is accused of jury bribing in the trial of Simon O'Donnell and other labor leaders.

Bert L. Snyder, taken into custody for questioning as to the payment of the bribe to the O'Donnell juror.

Joseph Sweeney, accused with Stack by Smith of having paid him to hold out for acquittal or hung jury.

JUROR ADMITS $1,000 BRIBE TO AID O'DONNELL

Two Men He Names as Fixers Held.

Receipt of a $1,000 bribe for holding out for the acquittal of Simon O'Donnell and his aids has been confessed by Henry J. Smith, 8037 South Robey street, a juror in the trial of the labor leader, according to an announcement made yesterday by the state's attorney's office.

Michael Stack, 7915 South Emerald avenue, and Joseph Sweeney, 6520 South Marshfield avenue, named by Smith as the "fixers" who negotiated the bribe, were arrested in the morning by Lieut. Michael Grady of the detective bureau, indictments charging them with conspiracy having been voted by the special grand jury.

Late in the day Bert L. Snyder, bartender in a saloon at 79th street and Normal avenue, was arrested and taken to the state's attorney's office and questioned regarding the activities of Stack and Sweeney. He is believed to know something about an automobile trip on which Smith said he was paid the bribe money.

That this evidence, the most important so far obtained, will lead to apprehension of "men higher up," is confidently expected by Assistant State's Attorneys Thomas Peden and William McLaughlin, who are in charge of the investigation of labor trials.

Shows Corruption, Crowe Says.

"The progress we are making in our investigation demonstrates that miscarriages of justice in the three labor trials—the Quesse, O'Donnell, and Walsh cases—were due entirely to corruption," declared State's Attorney Crowe.

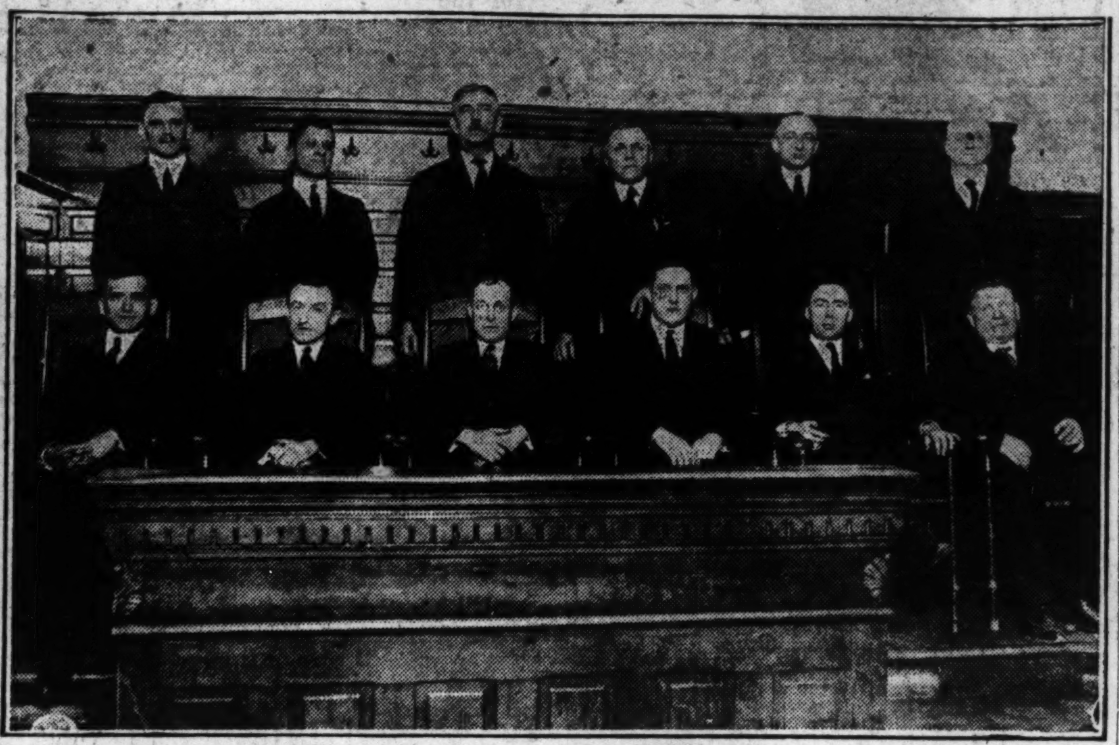
All four men involved are being held in close custody. First intimation of the confession came when Attorney W. W. O'Brien obtained a writ of habeas corpus for Stack before Judge Kickham Scanlan yesterday morning. On getting an explanation of the situation, the jurist continued the hearing until tomorrow afternoon.

According to the prosecutors, Stack was indicted about two years ago for the murder of Joseph Kane. Records of the Criminal court show that he was acquitted of the charge on Jan. 22, 1920.

Sweeney is said to be a brother-in-law of Michael J. Doolan, who was indicted a few days ago on charges of attempted jury fixing in connection with the O'Donnell trial. Both Stack and Sweeney are said to be employés of the forest preserve. Though confronted with Smith's confession, the two men have so far made no admission of guilt, it is said.

Statement by Smith.

Smith's statement to the prosecutors in substance is as follows:



Here are the men who voted on the first ballot that Simon O'Donnell and other labor leaders were not guilty of graft in the building industry: Left to right, standing—Henry A. Reents, Jerome C. Keller, William Piehl, Theodore Heitmann, Horace L. Carter, and Henry J. Smith (who confessed taking $1,000 bribe). Seated—Herman Abel, Joseph P. Franz, Sidney J. Marble, John B. Collins, John B. O'Connell, and John Collman.

Soon after Smith had received his subpœna to appear for service on the O'Donnell jury, he was called on the telephone by Stack, who said he wished to talk the matter over with him. Smith told Stack he wanted to be excused from service.

Stack is then reported as saying:

"Don't do anything about it until you see me."

Stack then called on Smith in his home and said he would see whether some inducement could not be offered him if he would serve on the jury.

Sweeney, according to the confession, then visited Smith and offered him $1,000 if he would qualify for the jury and vote for acquittal. Smith said his house was mortgaged for $2,300 and he was anxious to pay it off.

Offer of $5,000.

Sweeney is then said to have told Smith:

"If only two or three men hold out for acquittal your mortgage will be paid. If you are the only man to vote 'not guilty' we will pay you $5,000."

Smith agreed to the proposition. Sweeney said $1,000 would be paid to Smith's wife as soon as he qualified, but Smith did not wish his wife involved and said he would trust Sweeney to pay the money after the trial. Sweeney visited Smith in his place of business and assured him that the money would be paid.

Smith qualified to serve on the jury which tried O'Donnell and other labor leaders on charges of graft in connection with the building industry. The jury, according to announcement by its members, voted an unanimous verdict of "not guilty" on the first ballot.

On the Friday after the jury's discharge Smith received a telephone call to be at 39th street and Vincennes avenue the next day to receive his money. He went there and was taken into an automobile with several men. He was driven to Garfield boulevard where he was paid $1,000.

Quesse Juror Denies Charges.

Theodore G. Lodin, indicted recently for perjury in connection with his service on the jury in the Quesse trial, in answer to an interrogatory prepared by the state, filed yesterday before Judge John A. Swanson, denied the charges contained in the indictment.

Lodin denied the perjury charge, the allegation that he is a professional gambler, and the charge of conspiracy with Fred C. Schmidt, the policeman accused of having given Lodin $1,000 to find Quesse and his co-defendants not guilty.

TEACHERS ASK BOARD TO TELL WHAT IT SPENDS

The Chicago Teachers' Federation yesterday requested the board of education to publish its expenditures for 1921. Officials of the federation claim the publication will prove that not all the appropriation available for teachers' salaries is being expended for that purpose. It is claimed there have been needless expenditures from the salary funds.

William A. Bither, attorney for the board, contends that 75 per cent of the total appropriation for salaries was spent for that purpose during 1921. The other 25 per cent, he asserts, was expended for incidentals.

Hotel Guests Flee Rooms After Restaurant Fire Starts

Fire caused damage estimated at $500 yesterday in the Home restaurant, 235 North Clark street. The cause was said to be an overheated chimney.

SIX CENT FARE ORDERED INTO EFFECT MAY 1

Company's Earnings Cut to 5 Per Cent.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Illinois commerce commission ordered a cut yesterday in the surface lines' car fare from 8 to 6 cents. The order is "tentative, temporary, and experimental," and is to become effective May 1.

Whether the 2,000,000 daily car riders will really get a 6 cent fare on May day remains to be seen. Attorney James M. Sheean said the companies will not announce their plans before next Wednesday; but he has previously told the commission publicly there is nothing in the evidence presented to warrant a reduction in the 8 cent fare. It is, therefore, almost certain the companies will fight.

Basis of Order.

The 6 cent fare order is based upon the following plan of the commission: The maintenance and renewal funds of the companies are to be combined and reduced with a saving of $4,759,187 this year. The fund for damage claims, from which personal injuries are paid, is so large that the commission proposes to save therefrom this year $1,001,224. A saving on materials of $700,000 is figured because of the lower price level. The city is to be required to sweep, clean, and sprinkle the pavements between the car tracks, making a saving of $607,000. The joint expense account of the companies, of which a large part is used to pay income taxes, is to be completely eliminated and absorbed. This saving is reckoned at $419,000.

These savings total $7,079,411 on expenses alone. The expenses of the companies last year are figured by the commission at $46,965,151. The proposed savings will cut this figure to $39,885,740.

Cut Dividend Rate.

When the 8 cent fare was established the companies were allowed a dividend rate of 7½ per cent. The commission yesterday said that 5 per cent is sufficient. This proposal contemplates that no 55 per cent of the net receipts shall be given the city.

Last year the companies earned 6½ per cent and gave the city 1.83 per cent, a total of 8.33 per cent, according to the reckoning of the commission. In cash that means the companies received $10,433,619, the city $2,944,963—a total of $13,378,582. By eliminating the city and reducing the return of the companies to 5 per cent the commission figures another saving of $5,348,094.

This added to the $7,079,411 in operating expenses gives a total saving of $12,427,505.

Accordingly the companies' income last year of $60,343,733 is reduced by the commissioners to $47,916,228, who estimate that the company will collect 800,000,000 fares this year. At 6 cents they assert the total will be a trifle over the amount required to meet the proposed plan.

Pay Cut Not Considered.

This plan, of course, contemplates the discard of several provisions of the franchise ordinances of the companies, but the commission reasons that it has authority to make these eliminations. Nowhere in the reckoning does the commission contemplate a wage cut. It says, however:

"Wages of trainmen employed on the surface lines were 32 cents per hour in 1914. The present rate is 80 cents an hour—except for men in service less than one year and certain special classes—which is 150 per cent above the 1914 scale."

The order goes on to assert that the average 1920 wage in forty cities was 61.1 cents an hour, while the present wages in these cities is an indicated average of 54.9 cents. The commission asserts that "the Chicago wage is 44.7 per cent above the average of the forty cities included in the comparison."

The intimation is clear that the commission believes wages should be reduced or the companies required to bear the cost from what otherwise would be earnings.

The commission says this 6 cent "order is tentative, temporary, and experimental," and that the 5 cent fare order "is rescinded and annulled." Thereby the nickel fare makes its exit. But the 8 cent fare is still here on the surface lines.

Of course the 10 cent cash fare on the elevated has not been disturbed.

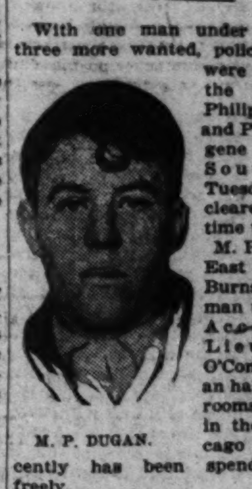
Bobbed Her Hair 2,300 Years Ago; She's a Mummy

Philadelphia, Pa., April 8.—[Special.]—An examination of "Maud," latest acquisition of the Philadelphia Commercial museum, discloses that bobbed hair was in style—at least among the elite—in Thebes 2,300 years ago, for "Maud" is a white faced mummy and is believed to have been a priestess of the temple. In spite of her more than 2,000 years' sleep her hair has lost none of its curl.

POLICE CLOSE TO DOUBLE SLAYERS IN $8,900 HOLDUP

Predict Arrests, Clearing of Mystery Today.

With one man under arrest and three more wanted, police last night were stating that the murder of Philip J. Sommers and Policeman Eugene Cassidy in South Chicago Tuesday would be cleared up some time today.



M. P. DUGAN.

M. P. Dugan, 656 East 93d street, Burnside, is the man under arrest. According to Lieut. William O'Connor, Dugan, an habitué of poolrooms and saloons in the South Chicago district, recently has been spending money freely.

Partly Identified as Slayer.

Lieut. O'Connor is also authority for the statement that Dugan has been partly identified as one of the members of the gang which killed Sommers and Cassidy. The three men sought, whose identities are being withheld until their arrests, are said to be Dugan's closest friends.

But even with this information the police are not overlooking other possible clews. Detectives yesterday were assigned to the courtroom of Judge Harry Fisher on the chance that valuable information might be gained by questioning friends of two convicted safe blowers who were sentenced there.

Other detectives were sent to New Orleans following the finding of a revolver by children playing in an alley between Baltimore and Houston avenues. The revolvers—which the police believe to have been used in the South Chicago affair—have been traced to the Louisiana city.

Dozen Suspects Held.

Otto Bowers, one of two saloonkeepers arrested in connection with the crime, has been released. John De Hon of Burnside, another saloonkeeper, is being held temporarily, together with a dozen other suspects.

Sommers, treasurer of the Royal Home Building and Loan association, and Policeman Cassidy were killed while en route to the Calumet National bank from Sommers' office. The bandits escaped with $8,900—the collections for the day.

PRIMARY FIGHTS BITTER TO LAST; ALL CONFIDENT

Women's Roosevelt Club Rescinds Deneen O.K.'s.

the candidates mentioned and opposite the names of the candidates on the "ex-service men's ticket," headed by Berger Loman, a former city hall employé, who is a candidate for county clerk. Inclosed with each ballot was a lithographed sheet showing a photograph of Mayor Thompson shaking hands with Loman. On the reverse side of the sheet was reading matter, which included a statement that all legislative candidates indorsed on the ballot were pledged to vote for the Thompson traction scheme.

This statement was sufficient to convince the club directors that the ballot was a genuine city hall maneuver, which prohibited the organization from aiding any candidate marked on it. The club was organized to fight spoils politics at any time or place it appeared, and the directors are said to be convinced that the city hall does not give an indorsement without a "quid pro quo"—that the machine does not lend its support for nothing.

Lundin in the Background.

And the same "ex-service men's" mail campaign was further shown up strikingly by Attorney General Brundage in the evening during a speech at the Hyde Park Masonic temple. He charged that Lundin is trying to conceal his operations "under a soldier's mask."

He pointed out that although with one exception the ex-service men listed as candidates are running for the minor places, an immense amount of money is being spent in their names. He said that 1,000,000 letters containing the marked ballots and lithographic sheets were mailed from the Severinghaus printing plant and estimated they cost 5 cents each.

"Is there any one so obtuse," he asked, "as to believe that $50,000 would be spent to nominate ten county commissioners? Who doubts that many times that sum would be invested in the selection of a 'stand by the governor' legislature? Under the screen of loyal affection to the soldier Thompson and Lundin are trying to operate unseen."

The attorney general urged that all voters follow the example of the Roosevelt club and smite any candidate that is supported by the machine.

"The question now," he said, "is not who WAS with Thompson but who is with him NOW."

As to the results of the Republican primary—or the Democratic, for that matter—no faction has demonstrated that it knows exactly where it is "at."

And possibly the clearest line on the situation may be gained from the predictions sent out from the various headquarters last night. Without exception each leader predicted that his side would win by 50,000.

This is considered the sure proof that the results in both parties are uncertain. It has been said that any bet on the result is good because it may win, but the best one on the Republican side is a wager that there will be a general bustup all around and that no group ticket will win out in its entirety.

On this side of the fence it is admitted that three mystery factors will play a big part. The first one is the big anti-machine vote which licked the city hall last June. Will it go to the Brundage-Crowe group, or to Deneen, or be split? The second problem is how much of the old city hall vote turned against it when State's Attorney Crowe and his big group of committeemen became anti-machine. How much of it will follow Crowe in support of the Brundage-Crowe ticket?

Question of "Deals."

The third question deals with the amount of secret machine support that Lundin will throw to the Deneen candidates. In addition to the marked ballots sent out with the ex-service men's literature, it is said that the machine is sending 800 similar ballots to each of its precinct committeemen. And in several wards city hall leaders have received orders to oppose every Brundage candidate and "go along" with the Deneen slate.

On the other hand, it has been charged by Deneen leaders that there are "deals" in some wards whereby the machine is supporting the Brundage-Crowe candidates. As a rule, they have not supported their charges with evidence, but a Deneen leader last night displayed what he said was proof that the city hall organization in the Second ward is backing the opposition ticket.

He showed a Republican ballot with crosses marked before the names of the B.-C. candidates and a letter signed by Ald. R. R. Jackson, one of the colored representatives in the ward in the city council, directing precinct captains to work for the candidates marked.

Heads I Win; Tails You Lose.

The big inside stuff from the city hall headquarters is that Mr. Lundin is playing the game in such a way that he can't lose and he may make a well worth while winning in the primary even though that is not his big game.

His main purpose in life for the present so far as local politics is concerned is said to be extremely simple. He hopes, it is said, to put one big Republican group out of business in the primary and then to take the winner and trim him soundly in the November election by throwing his machine vote to the Democrats. In that way, if he were successful, the city hall organization, since it kept out of the fight so far as open appearance is concerned, would be the only one unscathed and uncrippled.

Lundin also is said to be trying to take a hand in the Democratic primary. His purpose here is chiefly to carry out his reported agreement to deliver the Cook county delegation in the general assembly to Gov. Small. Having no ticket of their own in the Republican primary, it is not unimaginable that trusted groups of city hall supporters might try to vote in the Democratic fight in some districts where there is a "good" candidate needing support or a "bad" one requiring attention of the opposite character.

Two Elements of Democrats.

By itself the Democratic local primary will be a showdown between the regular organization, backing a ticket named by the elected managing committee, and the recently started "citizens' Democratic organization," which is being supported by the Hearst interests, although they deny they had any part in launching the movement.

Expert Democratic politicians foresee a bristling finish between Ald. A. J. Cermak and Daniel Ryan for the post of president of the county board, which the latter now holds for the remainder of the unexpired term of the late Peter Reinberg. And there is a "big time" fight between John E. Traeger, backed by the "citizens'" forces, and James M. Dailey, the regular selection, for the sheriff's office. Local and nationalistic issues becloud other candidacies.

CANDIDATES AND THEIR BACKERS IN PRIMARIES

THIS is an effort to "untangle the tangle" that exists in the county primaries of next Tuesday—to tabulate the slates of the major groups in both parties, and to indicate not only the sources of their candidacies, but also the nature of their factional backing.

On the Democratic side this is comparatively a simple matter, as there are only two slates, and few candidates on the regular ticket have been indorsed by the citizens' Democratic organization, as the independent group calls itself.

But on the Republican side there are three slates and the cross-indorsements are numerous. The best record of these is found in the marked sample ballots sent out by the various groups, and it is from these that this list is compiled. The name of the faction which originally backed the candidate is given first and the order in which the names appear on the ballot is followed.

BRUNDAGE WARNS DENEEN TO LET GO HIS COATTAILS

Won't Be Held Back in Fight on City Hall.

BRUNDAGE TO DENEEN.

"If you will not fight with me in the open against the common enemy of decent Republicanism, let go of my coat tails. You cannot hold me back."

In the third of a series of speeches hammering at the Lundin-Thompson-Small machine, Attorney General Brundage last night also hit at former Gov. Charles S. Deneen for failing to join in the attack on what is popularly supposed to be their common enemy.

"There emanates from his headquarters only attacks upon Mr. Crowe and myself. I do not propose to waste time replying to those petty pin pricks. The issue at this juncture is too big to waste time in idle controversy.

"All I can say to Gov. Deneen is: 'If you will not fight with me in the open against the common enemy of decent Republicanism, let go of my coat tails. You cannot hold me back. I am determined to direct my attention to Thompsonism and to Smallism, and I again urge the voters not to forget the vital thing in this campaign is to prevent Lundin, Thompson, and Small from getting another strangle hold on the Republican party."

The major part of the attorney general's speech was devoted to the tactics used by Lundin and Thompson in the campaign up to this point.

Uses Soldiers as Mask.

"When Lundin placed Mayor Thompson on the stump again," he said, "he was too resourceful to rely solely upon the frayed appeals to wartime prejudice.

"He devised a most audacious scheme—months in the brewing. It was to utilize the soldier boys. Think of the monumental nerve of employing service boys in doing Lundin-Thompson politics!

"It began by placing some of the soldiers on the city hall pay roll to act as bellwethers to attract the rank and file of overseas men into unconscious political service for the machine. Bill began to weep for the soldier boys. Some thought it remorse. But it was all a part of the Lundin plan.

"Enough soldiers were gathered for the nucleus of a ticket. For what offices were they entered? With the exception of a candidate for county clerk, these soldier boys were all bunched as candidates for county commissioners. A splendid scheme for an adept. It left Lundin free to make deals for every one of the big offices in return for a general assembly subservient to Len Small and guaranteed not to impeach him."

1,000,000 Letters Sent Out.

Then he told of 1,000,000 letters being sent out in the names of the ex-service men to aid Lundin's secret purposes.

"Lundin knows," he continued, "that thousands of patriotic Chicagoans sympathize with the difficulties experienced by the soldiers upon reëntering civil life—the hard times and scarcity of employment. He knows that proper consideration had not been shown by the government to the maimed and crippled and that, under the screen of loyal affection to the soldier, Lundin and Thompson might operate unseen.

"The shouts for the soldiers' bonus was another blast from the big horn. Every newspaper reading person knows that congress will pass the bonus bill for the soldiers' aid. Senator McCormick is for it and so is Senator McKinley. But by din and noise the city hall attempts to usurp parentage for the entire bonus program.

"I have confidence in the discerning and discriminating ability of the soldier. He certainly will not knowingly lend his help to the perpetuation of a political institution that refused him aid in his time of need."

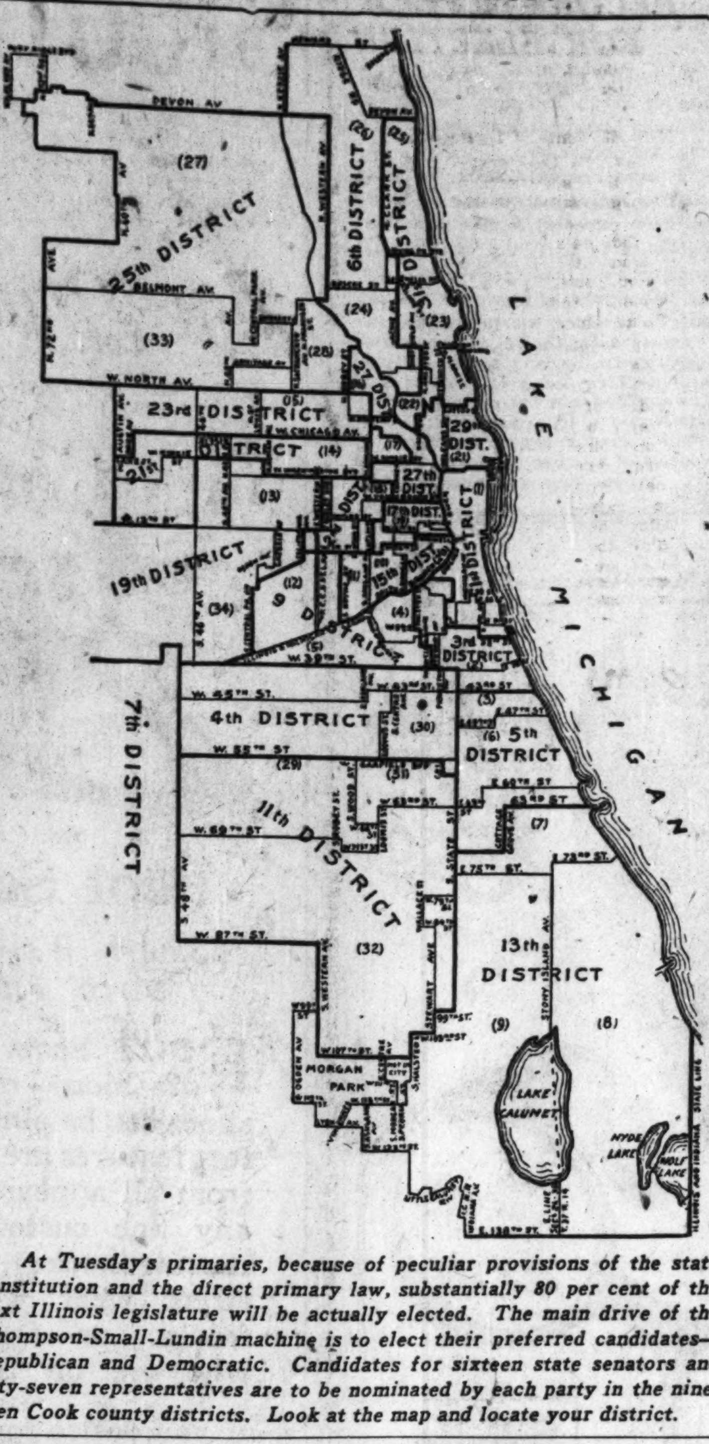
LOCATE YOUR DISTRICT!



At Tuesday's primaries, because of peculiar provisions of the state constitution and the direct primary law, substantially 80 per cent of the next Illinois legislature will be actually elected. The main drive of the Thompson-Small-Lundin machine is to elect their preferred candidates—Republican and Democratic. Candidates for sixteen state senators and fifty-seven representatives are to be nominated by each party in the nineteen Cook county districts. Look at the map and locate your district.

IMPROVED ROADS IN COUNTY URGED

Better highways throughout Cook county, opening of the forest preserves as camping sites for poor people, and a canvass of conditions in the county hospital for possible improvements are features of the platform on which Melchior Schneller is making his race for a Republican nomination for county commissioner.

MELCHIOR SCHNELLER.

Mr. Schneller was born 35 years ago in Chicago. He is engaged in the real estate business on the near north side.

VOTERS!

Before you vote for a Lundin-Thompson-Small candidate remember that your tax bill was:

In 1915........ $52,712,052
NOW 128,030,052

An increase of 142 per cent!

Lundin-Thompson-Small now control practically all local and state taxation.

$75,000 SPENT IN FIFTH BY FOES OF MACMURRAY

City Hall Fights for Scalp of Its Bitter Foe.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

Seventy-five thousand dollars, on a low estimate, is being spent in the Fifth senatorial district—the Hyde Park territory that includes the University of Chicago—to defeat the renomination of State Senator James E. MacMurray.

Senator MacMurray is against Small-Lundin-Thompson as a political firm. He demonstrated as much in the last session at Springfield when he offered a resolution demanding an investigation of Chicago's financial books before the legislature should be called upon to vote on the city tax rate increase that went through finally.

George F. Harding, city controller, is "out" to get Senator MacMurray and everybody from Kenwood on south knows it. The city hall candidate against Senator MacMurray is James S. Hopkins, son of former United States Senator Albert J. Hopkins.

Three-Cornered Lake View Battle.

Hyde Park classes up with the three-cornered primary contest in the Lake View district. The city hall has its own candidate and rides easily while two senatorial candidates are battling between themselves.

What claims to be the Brundage organization in the Twenty-fifth ward has indorsed Senator Cornwell. The elected committeemen in the district, both Brundage and Deneen, indorsed Roy Juul, president of the Twenty-fifth ward Deneen organization, along with Carl Mueller and James A. Steven, for representatives.

Mr. Brundage has issued a letter saying without reservation that he stands with Juul, through the agreement of the Republican spokesmen for the four wards involved in the district. The city hall banks upon a sure pro-Small-Thompson-Lundin senator, through the split, by putting through the nomination of H. J. Haenisch, the city hall candidate.

Hot Fight in Englewood.

In the Englewood district there is a bitter primary fight that involves all the factions. Fred L. Steers gets the Brundage-Crowe support. William H. Cruden, member of the house and also of the Constitutional convention, has the Deneen organization backing. Former Senator Percival G. Baldwin runs independently. The Anti-Saloon league wouldn't make an indorsement and lets all three run wild, from the league's angle.

Cruden "went wrong" on the league in the Con-Con when he sat tight, voted with all the rest of the Chicago delegates in the Constitutional convention and declined to be recorded for restriction of Cook county's representation as demanded by the Anti-Saloon league.

Oak Park gets to a test between Lowell B. Mason, supported by the Brundage-Crowe elements in the district, and Leslie F. Bushonville, backed by the city hall in the city precincts. Frederic A. Rowe, former president of the Hamilton club, is credited with the active Deneen support in the district. Rowe comes from Oak Park.

ALL SURE OF VICTORY

Following are statements issued last night by primary campaign managers of the various "groups" of Republicans and the two Democratic camps. Each claims easy victory for his slate:

REPUBLICAN.

BY WILLIS O. NANCE.

Chairman Campaign Committee, Brundage-Crowe Republican Group.

Republican voters of Cook county have been greatly aroused by the primary campaign just ending. Developments of the last week plainly indicate that it is now a two-sided battle. On one side are the Brundage-Crowe candidates, who stand for regeneration of the Republican party in Illinois.

On the other side are the candidates presented by the Deneen faction, who are now openly receiving the support of the Thompson-Lundin-Small machine. I believe the Republicans of the county, at the primary next Tuesday, will express their approval of the efforts of the Brundage-Crowe group to wipe out Smallism, Thompsonism, and Lundinism with a huge vote; that they will decide to restore the Republican party to the high plane it occupied before these elements came into control of its affairs.

From reports received at this headquarters we believe that the Brundage-Crowe candidates will be nominated by pluralities averaging 50,000 votes.

BY GUY GUERNSEY.

Chairman Deneen Group Campaign Committee.

Republicans seem to understand that there is one complete ticket offered for the primary next Tuesday by a group which has been consistent in its position on matters of good government and worthy candidates ever since the time when its leader, Charles S. Deneen, was state's attorney of Cook county.

Voters must base their preference upon an acquaintance with the candidate, upon his well known character and reputation, his past affiliations, his former public service, or upon the character of the men who stand as his sponsors.

By any of the foregoing tests the slate of the Deneen group is willing to be measured to a man and from data in my hands I am confident that we will carry Cook county by between 45,000 and 60,000 majority over the combined ticket of the other groups. I feel just as confident that we will carry at least twenty-seven of the thirty-five wards and five of the six country districts.

DEMOCRATIC.

BY MARTIN J. O'BRIEN.

Chairman of the Regular Democratic Committee.

We will elect any candidate on our ticket. This means the candidates for the office of judge of the municipal court as well as all of our candidates for county offices. The Democratic organization never was in fitter form for obtaining primary results than it is at the present. We will carry every ward and at least 90 per cent of the 2,000 and odd precincts in Chicago. Our candidates will be elected by majorities ranging from 40,000 to 75,000.

While we never have conceded that there has been real contest in this campaign we nevertheless have taken nothing for granted and have conducted our fight for the regular ticket with as much industry as if we were in battle.

BY JAMES T. IGOE AND HENRY STUCKART.

For the Citizens' Democratic Organization.

The Democrats of Chicago and Cook county will repudiate Brennanism in Tuesday's primaries with such an overwhelming vote that the taint will be forever removed from the party's name. The Citizens' ticket will be nominated from top to bottom. Careful canvasses have shown that close to 200,000 votes will be cast in the party primaries. Candidates on the back room slate cannot hope in their wildest dreams for more than 60,000. Every vote cast above that controlled vote will go to our clean, independent candidates.

In addition to County Clerk Sweitzer and County Treasurer Carr, candidates for renomination without opposition, we will win on the county offices and sanitary district places with majorities ranging from 50,000 to 80,000. Our sixteen candidates for Municipal judge nominations will stand out from 20,000 to 50,000 ahead of all opposition.

George H. Jones New Head of Oak Park High Board

George H. Jones was elected president, and William Pedigrew, the retiring president, and J. Kibben Ingalls were elected trustees of the Oak Park and River Forest Township High school board last night. The grammar school board of Oak Park elected W. A. Niles president.

VOTERS TO FIX 35 ALDERMEN'S FATE TUESDAY

Question Is on Approval of Extended Term.

Voters of Chicago will decide next Tuesday whether its city council will consist of sixty-one or thirty-five aldermen during the next council year.

The thirty-one "holdover" aldermen believe they have waged a "quiet but effective" campaign to have their terms extended. "No publicity" was the watchword of the campaign and members of the city council even went to the extreme of refusing to order a bond issue question on the little ballot, fearing that the voters opposed to high taxes would "snow it under," defeating the term extension proposition along with it.

Result of Fifty Ward Law.

The necessity for the vote on extensions arises because the fifty ward law, under which the city will operate with fifty aldermen, after April, 1923, provided for no election of aldermen in 1922. The legislature voted to extend the terms of the holdovers but eminent lawyers have held the voters must approve this act if it is to stand the test in the courts.

Attorneys for City Treasurer Smith have advised him not to pay the salaries of the holdovers unless the voters approve the extensions.

Real Proposal Is on Salary.

The real question which the voters will decide by their votes on the little ballot next Tuesday is whether they want to spend $155,000 for the salaries of the thirty-one holdovers for the next year, or whether they prefer to save the $155,000 and do without the services of the aldermen.

Some of the most useful members of the council, among them Ald. John A. Richert, chairman of the council flanance committee, are affected by the little ballot proposition. As aldermen of all political factions are involved, political organizations are a unit in supporting the proposition.

LAWYERS VOTE ON CHOICE FOR FEDERAL JUDGE

Cook county lawyers numbering 1,441 yesterday took a straw vote to express their opinions on who should be named to succeed former Judge Landis on the federal bench. There were nearly as many opinions as there were lawyers, judging from the vote.

Of the 1,441 votes cast, Justus Chancellor received 190, the most recorded for any one man. He has offices in the Tower building and is president of the Lawyers' association of Chicago.

F. J. Houlihan was next with 77 votes; Judge Edward Shurtleff of Marengo, Ill., received 62; Judge Howard Hays, 55; William A. Doyle, 45; Judge Kickham Scanlan, 44. Florence King, woman attorney, received 18 votes.

POLICEMAN WAS "FENCE."

Kansas City, Mo., April 8.—Harry Raymond, a policeman, was suspended today following a confession that he had received stolen property from operatives of the Midwest Secret Service, a private detective agency.

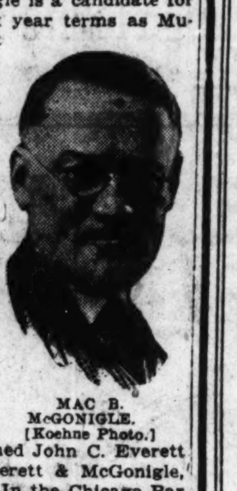
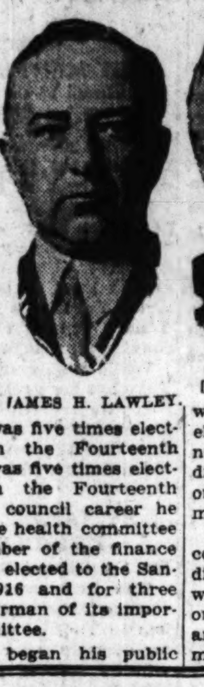
M'GONIGLE WINS BAR ASSOCIATION O. K. FOR JUDGE



MAC B. McGONIGLE.
[Koehne Photo.]

Mac B. McGonigle is a candidate for one of the old six year terms as Municipal court judge. He was indorsed for that position by the report of the Chicago Bar association and at its recent primary stood eighth among the ten successful candidates on the Democratic ticket, polling 715 votes. He is 51 years old, was born in Iowa, and resides at 1530 Juneway terrace. He was admitted to the bar in 1905 and in 1906 he joined John C. Everett in the firm of Everett & McGonigle, which still exists. In the Chicago Bar association's report on him it said: "Reports indicate that this candidate is patient, courteous, courageous in his convictions and an industrious, careful lawyer. We consider him qualified for the office."

RUNNING ON THEIR RECORDS



JAMES H. LAWLEY.

MATT A. MUELLER.

ALD. T. O. WALLACE

Three Republican candidates for sanitary district trustees are asking recognition by the voters of long years of public service. They are Sanitary Trustees James H. Lawley and Matt A. Mueller, seeking renomination, and Ald. Thomas O. Wallace, who has to his credit seven years as alderman from the Twenty-Third ward. The three are backed by both the Brundage and Crowe organizations.

Trustee Lawley was five times elected alderman from the Fourteenth Trustee Lawley was five times elected alderman from the Fourteenth ward. During his council career he was chairman of the health committee and an active member of the finance committee. He was elected to the Sanitary district in 1916 and for three years has been chairman of its important finance committee.

Trustee Mueller began his public service in the county in 1902 as real estate deputy for the board of review, which position he held until he was elected alderman from the Twenty-ninth ward. He went to the sanitary district in 1916, where he has served on some of the most important committees.

Ald. Wallace has been one of the consistent foes of the Thompson-Lundin machine since 1915. It was he whose charges turned the searchlight on enormous fees paid to real estate and building experts by the city administration.

REGULARS WIN SCHOOL BOARD AT WILMETTE

East may be east, and west west, but they get together in Wilmette.

Rallying 'round the Regular ticket against the Insurgents, at the most hotly contested school board election the north shore town has seen in years, th' embattled citizenry upheld their old system of three members from the east, and three from the west side of the tracks.

Had the Insurgents won the day, the lineup would have been five west siders with a lone east side representative. William M. Burns, Herbert Mulford, of the east side, and Mrs. Edith Whitehill of the west were elected to fill vacancies, while John L. Huebner and Walter Schuler, west side insurgent candidates, went down in defeat. The vote was about five to one in favor of the Regulars.

CLARK POINTS TO RECORD IN PLEA FOR ELECTION

Wallace G. Clark, Republican candidate for county treasurer, speaking at a noonday massmeeting at the Cort theater yesterday, said:

"I have conducted this campaign solely and only by discussing the issues and have refrained from making personal attacks upon my opponent. I stand upon my public record made during fifteen years of service as sanitary district trustee, which service was commended by the city's great civic bodies and editorially by the Chicago press. I refer to an editorial in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE when I was a candidate for reëlection, which said:

"'If reëlection is ever the fitting recognition of a public trust well fulfilled it should be assured to Commissioner Clark.'"

HARDING'S NAVY PLEA TO HOUSE BODY UNHEEDED

Reported Bill Allows for Only 67,000 Men.

BY GRAFTON WILCOX.

Washington, D. C., April 8.—[Special.]—Ignoring the advice of President Harding and the recommendations of the navy department, the house appropriations committee reported its bill reducing the enlisted strength of the navy to 67,000 men.

Of this number the bill provides that the enlisted personnel for manning the navy afloat shall be limited to approximately 50,000; for shore service, 10,000; apprentice seamen and unassigned men, approximately 7,000.

The administration wants 90,000. The house naval affairs committee, after careful study of the navy's needs, recommended 86,000 men. The fight to reject the appropriation committee's recommendations and substitute figures which will nearly conform to the navy department's figures will begin early next week.

Navy Officials Disappointed.

To the navy the bill is a great disappointment. The report had no sooner been presented than Secretary Denby denounced it in vigorous terms.

"Should the bill just reported become law, it would be a blow to the navy and to the prestige of the United States," the secretary said. "Whatever appropriations of men and money are allowed, the navy will be administered by the department in earnest and cheerful endeavor to keep it as effective as possible. I feel that I should be recreant to a plain duty, however, if I did not solemnly warn thhe American people the proposed reduction negatives the results of the recent conference, is dangerous to the country's security, and in my opinion, to the welfare of the world.

Makes Conference a Mockery.

"If this bill becomes a law, it will mean that five battleships of the eighteen provided for in the treaty must be put in ordinary, with caretakers. It will mean that, having gathered the nations together, and having conducted to a successful conclusion negotiations intended to establish the relative defensive sea armaments of different powers, we, from the earnestly insisted upon position of equality with any nation in the world, drop to second or third place. I do not believe in making a mockery of the conference. I do not believe in throwing away our sea power.

"We called the conference. We made the proposals. We should abide by the conclusions. Eighteen battleships with their necessary auxiliaries and shore bases were adopted for our defense. With the pasage of this bill our international plan goes by the board.

Navy Belongs to the People.

"The navy does not belong to the navy department. It does not belong to congress. It belongs to the American people. My duty to warn against undue reduction in our defensive armament is as sacred a trust as any man can hold.

"If the bill passes, and we slip from the position of equality in sea power, we shall not again be able to secure support at home or abroad for another conference for world adjustments. If we would sit at the first table in the councils of the nations we must have sea power."

The bill carries a total of $233,224,008 for the navy for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1922. These figures contrast strikingly with the navy expenditures for the present fiscal year for which the appropriations were $413,239,949, or nearly double the proposed outlay for the next fiscal year. Still more striking is the contrast with the budget bureau's estimates of $425,000,000, prepared before the armament conference, for the next fiscal year. The saving proposed by the committee is nearly $200,00,000 under what the nation probably would have paid out if the Washington conference had not been held.

Assertions that the appropriations committee's program would jeopardize America's standing in the 5-5-3 naval agreement were vigorously repudiated by Chairman Madden [Illinois] and Representative Kelley [Michigan], chairman of the naval subcommittee, which drafted the bill.

Congressmen Defend Reduction.

Both congressmen issued statements insisting that the measure was designed to be helpful to the navy in carrying out the terms of the naval reduction agreement. They furnished charts showing that 67,000 enlisted personnel would enable the navy to fully man every vessel that can be efficiently kept afloat under the 5-5-3 agreement.

The committee, in its report, bluntly declared it would grant no money to keep in commission 254 vessels "of a nondescript character, including Eagle boats, sub chasers, tugs, yachts, motor boats and various miscellaneous craft."

The report gives the types of ships and the personnel of Feb. 1, 1922, which will represent the new navy undes the treaty. This includes 18 battleships, with 18,259 men; 11 cruisers, 4,248 men; 103 destroyers, 9,579 men; 84 submarines, 2,520 men; 6 destroyer tenders, 2,551 men; 7 submarine tenders, 1,833 men; 1 aircraft carrier, 216 men; 1 aircraft tender, 386 men; 2 mine layers, 615 men; 10 light mine layers, 959 men; 10 mine sweepers, 498 men; 2 repair ships, 727 men; 3 store ships, 612 men; 14 fuel ships, 1,568 men; 2 ammunition ships, 354 men, and 2 hospital ships, 629 men. This makes a total of 276 vessels for the fleet and necessary auxiliaries, carrying 45,454 men. In addition to this there are 51 patrol and other vessels, carrying 4,038 men, or a total of 327 ships and other craft, carrying 49,492 men.

Department's List of Vessels.

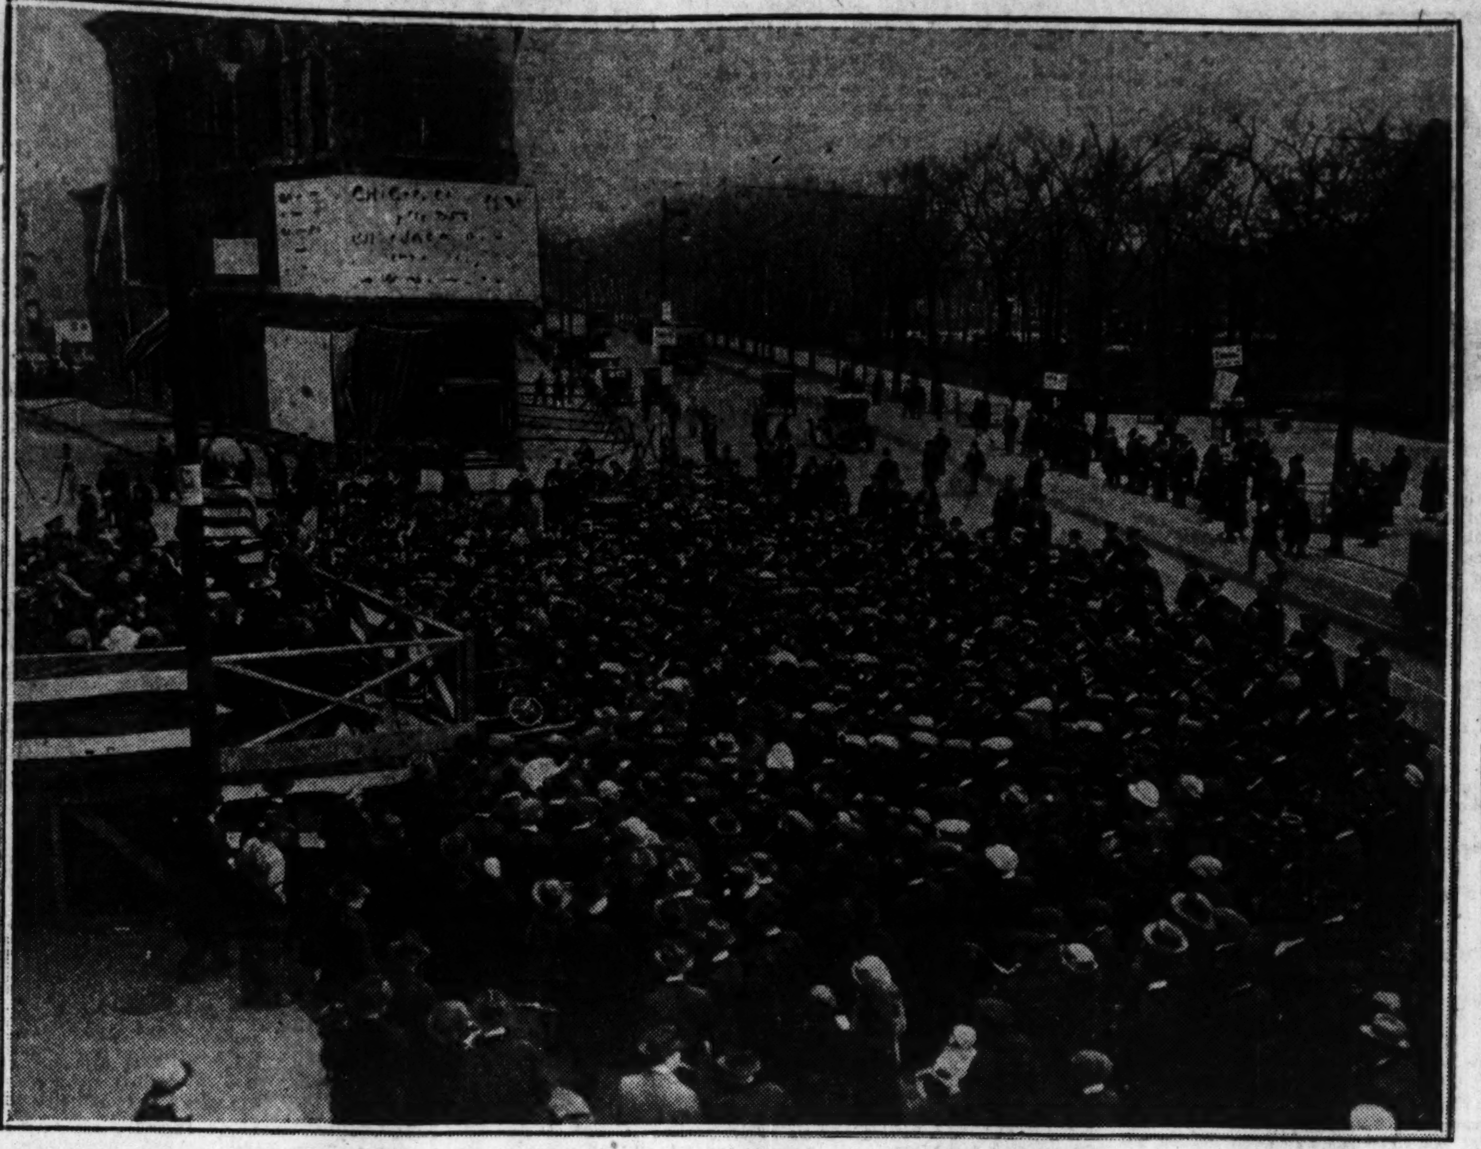
"The foregoing constitute, with the exceptions hereinafter noted, the number of vessels which the department itself indicated to the committee it desired to operate next year without any suggestion from the committee as to the number of enlisted men that might be appropriated for," the report adds. "They call for a total of 49,492 men, to which should be added 632 men serving in aviation ratings afloat on Feb. 1, 1922, and 700 additional men for flagship duty, swelling the total to 50,824. In this total of 50,824 men, over 1,300 men have been allowed for different vessels over and above the number actually on board on Feb. 1, 1922, and 93 men have been allowed for each of 103 destroyers, while destroyers in full commission on Feb. 1, 1922, had an average of 87 men on board, which number, if applied to the 103 destroyers, would permit reducing the total of 50,824 by 618 men."

Representative Kelley, explaining the chief reductions and provisions of the bill, said:

"The bill reported to the house today carries an appropriation for the coming fiscal year of $233,224,000. This amount is $193,000,000 less than the naval estimates and $181,000,000 less than the sum carried in last year's bill. It has been possible to make these heavy reductions without disturbing the 5-5-3 ratio established by the treaty.

"It will be interesting to the country to know that Great Britain has provided in her estimates for the coming year for but 98,500 officers, enlisted men, marines, and students in training schools and naval academies. This number also includes about 3,000 men in the coast guard service, while our coast guard is under the treasury department. It does not, however, include personnel for aviation, while the bill reported makes provision for 2,700 men for aviation. It ought also to be said that the British figures do not include about 7,000 officers, men, and boys maintained by the dominion governments, principally Australia."

A DREAM OF 50 YEARS COMING TRUE



Throng gathered at Clark and Center streets yesterday for ceremon marking start of actual work on the Ogden avenue widening and extension project, which has been urged for the last half century. The first building to be razed for the improvement is shown.

WORK IS STARTED ON OGDEN AVENUE AFTER 50 YEARS

Extension of Ogden avenue from Union to Lincoln park, an issue in aldermanic campaigns as early as 1880, was officially begun yesterday when a part of the west wall of a brick building at Clark and Center streets was pulled over amid ceremonies celebrating the end of forty years of agitation in favor of the improvement.

"Since the days of our grandparents Ogden avenue—the old Southwest Plank road—has been an important diagonal, but its importance has always been limited by its stub end at Union park," Charles H. Wacker told the crowd which gathered to witness the razing of the first building.

500,000 to be Benefited.

"This 108 foot street will give the crowded multitudes of the west and southwest sides a quick and easy way of getting to Lincoln park, the Municipal pier and the lake shore. The improvement will benefit nearly 500,000 people directly and the entire city indirectly."

Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, and in charge of the project, said that in 1880, a few months after he came to Chicago, he listened to two candidates, aspiring for seats in the city council, promise their constituents that their election would bring the extension of Ogden avenue to Lincoln park.

Helps Fire Department.

Business Manager John F. Cullerton of the fire department declared that in doing away with fire-breeding conditions in the Goose Island and adjacent districts the improvement will be equal to an addition of 500 men to the fire department.

Some of the city-wide benefits which will accrue from the improvement, according to Mr. Wacker, are:

1. Easing of loop traffic congestion.
2. Facilitation of traffic between the north and west sides by shortening the route between Lincoln and Union parks by one mile.
3. Creation of a new commercial artery, two and six-tenths miles in length.

THE TRIBUNE PROGRAM FOR MIDDLE WEST DEVELOPMENT

1. A Square Deal in Congress for the Middle West.

STATE AND LOCAL PRIMARIES.

The primary campaign, now coming to a vote, has had one outstanding feature in downstate counties and another in Cook county.

Small has made the state issue notable by offering hard roads for a legislature he can control. He has made his speech in about as many counties as he could reach during the time granted him by the Lake County court to let road contracts.

Two paragraphs in his speech outline and illumine his offer to the Illinois voters:

"Of course every one realizes that even at $25,000 or $30,000 per mile it will be impossible to build the 4,800 mile system with the $60,000,000 bond issue, but I believe the people of Illinois want the roads, and with the reduced prices we are justified in going ahead and building as many miles as we can with the funds available.

"I promise you that on the night of the election, when the returns are flashed over the wires and from the counties in your districts, I shall look at the votes cast and I will know that if you have voted for men for the legislature who will stand with your governor that you approve of my program and that you want roads and honest and economical government, and having expressed yourself in favor of roads at a reasonable price, if you have sent to the legislature men who stand for these principles and with the governor I will see to it that roads are built in your county and in your district."

Mr. Small says that there is not money enough to go around. He will know that a county wants roads if it votes for candidates who will keep him from being impeached. If it votes for independent candidates he will know it does not want roads. If it is not interested in roads it will not get any.

This is the rawest proposal ever made to a body of voters and it and the consequences which should flow from it constitute the present issue in state politics. If Small can get away with that Illinois has no further use for any laws regulating the conduct of elections.

In Cook county Thompson is not trying to get votes by using a $60,000,000 fund, but is working with all the political resources at his command to control the Cook county delegation to the legislature for Small and for city hall purposes.

His intensity in this purpose has left the campaign for county offices to his real or fancied opposition and the opposition has revealed the cohesiveness of an exploding egg. The primary law, which has demonstrated its impracticality, invites the voters to wade in blindly, and in considerable numbers they will.

It may be, and this is the hope, that the primary contest will produce between the two parties tickets offering the voters later in the election a chance to make fair selections for the offices. We'd feel surer of that if the tickets were to be nominated in conventions rather than in a primary election concerning which the voters have not enough information to know what they are doing when they vote.

JAZZ LITERATURE.

The spirit of reform lives by conquest. Obstacles are only paving blocks on the road of its progress, something to give footing for the advance. That being the case, recent more or less successful attacks upon jazz music as a menace to good morals and an influence demoralizing to good taste may be expected to lead, if they have not already led, to a campaign against what might be termed jazz literature.

If so, we may well look over our book shelves to see what will be hurled into the furnace, and why.

The first shot in Chicago was fired recently by Dr. Philip Yarrow of the Illinois Vigilance association, who presented to the Rev. Mr. Williamson, the mayor's law enforcement substitute, several publications which he sought to have suppressed as immoral, obscene, and degrading. Granted they were all of that, and should be suppressed. What next?

The old "yellow back" is largely a thing of the past already. "Nick Carter" and "Diamond Dick" and their ilk now are feeble gunmen and will not put up much of a battle. Probably there are modern boys who never heard of them. Perhaps the movies are to be thanked or condemned for that. Perhaps they merely drifted down the stream of time and change as the physical leaves of the "thrillers" once drifted down a river in the Adirondacks from the hand of a man of our acquaintance, who read them delightedly, tore off each page as he finished it, and consigned it to the current. That man is now a leading exponent of a new school of thrillers, with a new book semi-annually, described most frequently as "a romance of adventure and love and of manly and womanly heroism."

Outside of the cheap and frequently stupid all-fiction magazines, that probably is the most popular type of jazz literature today. But because in it virtue always triumphs and vice is always punished, it will be safe from attack by moralists. Such books may be light, and even silly, but they are seldom dull, and never offensive. Their chief fault is that their precipitate action may dull the appetite of their readers for better writing.

And then there are, of course, the problem novels, dealing with phases of modern life, marriage, business, sociology, and what not. Probably the worst than can be said of them as a class is that many are dull. Few are evil. They deceive light readers into the belief that they are getting deep views into life's problems, and by gently stirring minds without effort flatter such readers into the belief that they are developing original thoughts on the important issues of life. There is nothing bad about that unless it means the start of a kind of intellectual drug habit.

The mystery and detective tale we have always with us. Unquestionably it is a form of jazz. It entertains. It is not conducive to either moral or intellectual decay. Its subject usually is entirely outside the prospect of the reader's life. Therefore, it prompts no emulation. It is detached—the jazz music without the accompanying dance.

Also we find frequently among the best sellers books of travel, popularly written history, biography, and even essays. There is nothing of jazz in these. They are safe.

So much for present day writing. We need an additional word on present day reading. A valuable contribution to this subject is contained in letters from leading publishers, appearing in a recent issue of the Independent and the Weekly Review. John Macrae, vice president of E. P. Dutton & Co., says "Tom Jones," Aristotle's "Ethics," Epictetus' "Moral Discourses," Plato's "Republic," Franklin's "Autobiography," Dante's "Divine Comedy," Boswell's "Life of Johnson," "Jane Eyre," "Les Miserables," "Lorna Doone," "Leaves of Grass," and dozens of others of similar quality, in the aggregate sell more largely than new books of the hour which are creating a furore. That is significant evidence of the soundness of American taste in literature. There is no jazz there.

Horace B. Liveright of Boni & Liveright gives similar testimony. George P. Brett, president of the Macmillan company, and George Haven Putnam add to the weight of evidence that Americans appreciate the good things in literature.

Stupidity, the worst possible fault in any writing, has already weakened the possible resistance of any dangerous elements in jazz literature. It forms a natural ally to any who might wish to complete the slaughter. Does it not also furnish the best test for what should be first attacked?

A POLICY FOR MEXICO AND THE CARIBBEAN.

The foreign policies of nations that have anything to be dignified by the name of policy are founded upon national interests. But policies are not established firmly until there is a pretty clear perception of interest. This is illustrated in the case of that rather rudimentary affair we call our foreign policy. It has, in fact, only one established feature, the Monroe Doctrine, which was evolved a century ago under pressure of events clearly threatening, and has been preserved by a general sense of the dangers of encroachment retained by the American people through a century without abatement.

But the United States has interests in the development of our neighbors of Latin America hardly less weighty than our interest in their protection from political encroachment by Europe. We have nothing which could be called a policy covering these interests, because they are not yet generally discerned. Compared to other interests, they seem secondary and remote, so they are left with little protection. The most conspicuous example of neglect took place under Mr. Bryan, when the American public, preoccupied with what seemed and perhaps were more important matters, and fixed upon the gigantic destruction of the European war, permitted the persecution of American nationals in Mexico. The moral effect of Bryan's conduct of our Mexican affairs still complicates our relations with Mexico, but it is possible to hope that American thought may be directed to our interests in the conditions of that country and of all the countries of the Caribbean region. Of course, Mexico is to us the most important and the most difficult to deal with. But the basic problem, politically speaking, is the same throughout. It may be stated as the problem of inducing in these countries a sense of international responsibility. The issue raised by retroactive legislation and of confiscation, now acute in Mexico, is decisive of the whole problem of peace and progress in Mexico and the countries of the Caribbean littoral. It is critical in Mexico, as Mr. Kinsley discloses in his illuminating articles from Mexico. It is troublesome in Panama and elsewhere. There are no factors of material progress in either country, save those supplied by foreign capital, energy, and enterprise. Without them all of these countries would remain in a state of primitive culture, their people semi-barbarous and enslaved by a small ruling class, itself unprogressive and firmly set against change.

Our idealogues and sentimentalists, who do not trouble themselves with facts, are opposed to the enforcement of rights established under Mexican laws. But until these rights are respected there will be no progress for the people of Mexico, and apparently rights will be no more respected in that country than in ours, if they are not enforced.

The betterment of the conditions of life of the 80 per cent of the Mexican people, with whose welfare Mr. Wilson professed to be concerned, depends upon foreign investment and enterprise in that country, and there can be neither unless a Mexican government appears which is strong enough to protect them. Mexico, like soviet Russia, is in chaos because it has no foreign credit, and it can have none so long as it confiscates property and repudiates obligations. If the radical fallacies, which have exploded in Russia, have any decisive influence over Mexican policy, as they now seem to have, Mexico will sink steadily back to the medieval state, its people agrarian serfs.

No modern state was developed by any Latin American people, unaided, during the centuries since discovery. All Latin America's political ideas and all its material improvements were imported. These are platitudes of history, but they carry little weight with the politicians, the generals, and the feudal privilege classes of Latin America. We do not think these forces will continue to prevail. They cannot stand, at least in Mexico and the isthmus, before the forces of modern progress, but they can retard these forces. Mexico is certain to be penetrated and developed, because its resources are rich and the modern world needs them. Our policy should be founded on a sensible recognition of this controlling and unescapable fact. It should not be weakened and diverted by false sentiment and doctrines evolved without regard to actualities. We need a firm and definite policy respecting the development of Mexico and the Caribbean countries, insular and of the mainland, for our interest in their peace and modern development is substantial. But we shall have no such policy until the American people are informed and spend some thought upon that interest. Mr. Kinsley's articles are a valuable contribution to that end, and we trust will have the attention they deserve.

Editorial of the Day

GENEROUS.

[Aurora Beacon News.]

The Red Cross figures that Americans have given $256,375,000 to relieve war distress in fifteen European countries. Cynics with acid temperaments comment that this is only $2.50 for each of us.

However, it is equivalent to 500,000 men donating the entire fruits of their labor for a whole year.

That isn't bad, considering the libels about Americans being selfish. It'd be a very cold day in August before other nations would do as much for us.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

GAT GUSSIE'S ADVICE.

Quit broodin' about this place, kid,— you gotta good chanst to git out in a coupla years;
Naw, don't try to saw out—
that's old stuff;
They'd git you anyhow, or you'd hafta live in Roosha;
And don't try to be hard-boiled in here,—
the guards can beat you at it;
But git meek, kid, and sweet-like,
smirk, salute, and say,
"Yes, sir, yer honor."
The chaplain 'll notice it first and tell 'em the spirit 's at work;
The guards 'll notice it next and want to be on good terms with a bad, bad man;
Then the deputy—on the lookout for a stool—will notice it and pick you for his lumper;
And the warden—
needin' a swell Ritz chef—
will put you in his house;
Then the parole board will docket you for a hearin';
The sob sisters and prison reformers will unlimber, and then it's time to get religion;
Get religion, kid—
do you follow me?
Wow! Whot an advert—
"Gat Gussie 's got religion and will preach the gospill."
Then the church folks 'll bombard the governor, and the parole board will hold a special session;
Two more years and you 'll be in th' evangelistic field, hollerin' like Billy Sunday;
Then the shetalkwees 'll offer you a hundred a week to tell the hayseeds how you came back.
Gawd, whot a pipe
for a gat artist whot 's young like you.
ABORIGINE.

WE HAVE OPENED A BOOK.

Dear R. H. L.: Why not have a race between Mary and Len as to which succeeds in putting it off the longest? ANN CROSS.

Great! We opened the book right away. We will hang up a prize of 25,000 rubles in soviet money, or $1.35 in United States currency as the prize in this race for win, show, or place. The betting started at noon yesterday at even money, no favorite.

12:15 p. m.: Afternoon papers said Len was buying a road scraper. Odds, 3 to 1 on Len.

12:45 p. m.: Mary reported lunching with Barry Baxter. Odds jump 10 to 4 on Mary.

2 p. m.: Discovered Len did not buy road scraper. It was another man that looked like him. Odds, 5 to 1 on Mary.

3 p. m.: Mary's family reported to have said "Mary will marry Allister." Odds go to 35 to 1 on Mary.

4 p. m.: Telegram from southern Illinois says surveyors have discovered 400 miles of roads never before put on map. Len now favorite, 60 to 5.

5 p. m.: Mary seen to hurl something into lake, said to have been small circle of platinum with diamond solitaire in center. Odds on Mary go to 95 to 1.

5:30 p. m.: It wasn't Mary. Betting now stands 50-50, with plenty of Baker money in sight.

WE HAVEN'T been invited to the birthday party the McCormicks are giving Mathilde at Hot Springs, but we're not superstitious, we'll go. We guarantee to blow out all the candles on little Mathilde's cake with one blast. But when they bring in Max's birthday cake, as Harvey would say, Help! Help!

THE ATAVISTIC MAID.

Listen, Sweetheart, to my plea,
  Cut this highly cultured game,
All this fine gentility
  Grows to be exceeding tame.
What I want is low brow love,
  Heavy knock-down cave man stuff,
I'm no cooing turtle dove,
  Treat me rough, kid, treat me rough!

Can the soft and weepy sighs,
  Chop the meek and humble pose,
I'm no cut glass raffle prize,
  I'm no fragile little rose.
Grab me with a python grip;
  If I struggle, call the bluff,
Want my love? Then take the tip,
  Treat me rough, kid, treat me rough!

I don't want my cheek caressed,
  With a nice respectful peck,
Yank me wildly to your chest—
  If I fight you, break my neck.
Please don't be a gentle dub,
  Spilling lah-dah-dah-ish stuff,
Woo and win me with a club,
  Treat me rough, kid, treat me rough!
M. T. O'G.

A NEW SHIFTERS' VOCABULARY.

Publication in the W. G. N. yesterday of the Shifters' Dictionary startled the public. The Shifters' society is the Flappers' Ku Klux Klan, but both sexes are enrolled in its ranks. From the Shifters' Dictionary we found out that a Smoke Eater was a girl cigaret user; Tomato, a girl who dances well but nobody home; Dewdropper, sleek haired boy who sleeps all day and plays around all night; Gcof, a flapper's sweetheart; Neckers, dancers who park on their partners' necks; et cet., et cet. We wish to add to the Shifters' dictionary these strange, new words:

HAIRBRUSH: A small instrument in which stiff bristles are firmly fixed in wood or rubber. Useful in combing the hair but much more so when wielded by mothers of Shifters.

BOOT: A covering of leather for the foot. Should be propelled with considerable force against the Shifters.

WORK: To exert one's self for a purpose or act, esp. for gain or improvements, etc., labor. Splendid for Shifters, Flappers, Cake Eaters, Goofs, et cet.

CLUB: A heavy staff of wood, cudgel. Might be advantageously employed by parents of He-Shifters, Gcofs, and such. A nail driven in business end increases its efficiency.

O VITA MINE!

I was an old man yesterday;
  I could not touch my gin;
But Eros is my middle name
  Since taking vitamin.

I strut the gleaming avenue
  And note each silk shod queen;
My eyes are full of youth again
  Since taking vitamine.

My conversation's pepping up,
  I run to racy lines;
I'll out-volt Voltaire any day
  Since taking vitamines.

I have the manliness of Thor,
  The dash of Spanish dons,
The wit of Bernard Shaw at least,
  Since taking vitamons.

I eat a plate of yeast at dawn,
  At midnight black as Lethe,
Before each meal, and after that—
  I rub it on my teeth.

I chew it at the theater;
  I sip it with my tea;
It may be hell for other folks
  But it's vitameen to me. VANALIS.

THEY'RE back from the training camps. Whang! away goes the ball over the left field fence. Boys, we're glad to see you back. This week is the week we've been waiting for all through the sad, cold months. 'Attaboy! put 'em where they hain't! R. H. L.

HER PRIMA DONNA BABY.

"MY BABY is 15 months old," writes Mrs. H. "She was breast fed until she was 3 months old; then she was put on diluted cow's milk till she was 9½ months old, when I began to give her cereals and eggs and, gradually, vegetables. She ate very little, and at 11 months I put her under a doctor who is generally conceded to be the best baby doctor here.

"He gave her an iron tonic for six weeks, allowed her cereals, egg (1), finely mashed vegetables, spinach, potatoes, carrots, asparagus tips, peas, stewed celery, cooked peaches and the like, a tablespoon of meat. She got along very well, but she still won't eat a thing.

"She drinks ten or twelve ounces of milk daily, takes an egg and two or three bites of vegetables usually at each of the two vegetable meals. She doesn't seem to be really fond of anything and wouldn't eat a bite if I didn't coax her. She is not sick, is very active (overactive, no doubt), playful, good natured and has twelve teeth, says lots of words and has been walking since she was a year old. She sleeps poorly at night, and wakes at the slightest sound during the day. She gets from thirteen to fifteen hours' sleep in twenty-four.

"She is my only child. I am 24 years old, and always try to do things as they should be done. She is a well trained child, minds splendidly, seems to understand everything I say to her, but she just won't eat, and she just won't get fat. She weighs only 19½ pounds net, and is 30½ inches tall. She has gained only six ounces in the last six weeks. Then, last week, she had an attack of tonsillitis and lost three of them.

"What on earth can I do? It seems a shame that I know not what to do, and work hours cooking her nice things to eat, and then she turns her head away without eating a bite. Sometimes she takes six or eight little bites, and once in a great while she eats a pretty good meal—about twenty bites.

"I'm actually at the jumping off place, I'm so discouraged. Please tell me what to do to make her fat, and if it works I'll make you a pretty handkerchief. I'd like to see her get so fat that her eyes would almost shut.

"She looks nice and fat when she is undressed, but her little arms and legs are so small.

"She likes orange juice and her bowels have always been in good condition. She has never been sick except with tonsillitis recently. She has tasted candy enough to know what it is, and would eat it (or anything else she shouldn't have) all day. She is fond of bananas or raw apples. She won't eat white potatoes, and likes to eat meat, but she chews it only for a few seconds—then spits it out.

"I read in your column of a lady who had a 14 months' old baby similarly afflicted, only her baby was normal in weight. You advised her to read books on nervous children—that a finicky appetite is due to nervousness.

"Now that I have stated the facts in the case, I wish to ask you a number of questions:

"1. What are some enlightening books on nervousness in children 1 year of age? Most books are for children from 2 years on up.

"2. Is there any change in diet that you can suggest? She eats four times a day. Is there anything I can give her to create an appetite?

"3A. What should she weigh? 3B. Where can I get a chart of the proper weight for height and age?

"4A. Do you answer all questions for your newspapers personally? Some of the answers are very witty, and I just wondered if any one could really be so full of knowledge and, in addition, have a sense of humor.

"4B. If so, how do you maintain it with so many pests, such as I, bothering you all the time? But then, of course, perhaps you aren't married. Or perhaps, you may have gained the proper perspective that mature years and wisdom give, and maybe your helpmeet really helps.

"5. Have you read the book 'The Itinerary of a Breakfast,' and, if so, what do you think of it? I can't believe that no meat and six-minute oatmeal is really good for grownups.

"6. Is it not a better plan, in reducing, to eat fruit for breakfast, and at noon eat a moderate amount of everything—meats, sweets and everything; and then at night eat just fruits?"

REPLY.

Of course, what your child needs is a little brother. About six of them would cure her completely. With entire respect, she has too much "mother," or rather, mother care. Name her Topsy and let her "jes' grow" for a while. She is doing fine, but will do better when she gets out of the spotlight. I expect she eats enough, and she is far safer than she would be were she as fat as a mole.

1. Clark's "Character Training of Children" tells you what to do with the youngest. You will have to try the second hand book stores, as the first edition is exhausted and the second is not ready.

2. Continue your present plan. Five meals a day at her age is better. Have you a copy of "The Right Food for the Growing Child?"

3A. Average weight, girls 15 months, 21⅞ pounds; average height, 30⅛ inches.

B. Write your state board of health.

4A. Yes.

B. I am muchly married. I am sorry to say I have accumulated "them mature years."

5. Yes, it is good.

6. The plan is all right provided you do not take liberties with the noon meal.

BAD FOR MANY DIABETICS.

X. Y. Z. writes: "Are any of the following foods injurious to a diabetic?

"Shredded wheat biscuit, peanuts, raisins."

REPLY.

Each is too high in carbohydrates for many diabetics.

RINSE OUT THE SOAPSUDS.

Mrs. E. C. J. writes: "In reference to that 'Chicago itch.'

"I suffered for several days. When I put on other underwear I found that the ones I had taken off had not been washed free of soapsuds. Another party had the same trouble."

KEEP THE CITY CLEAN.

Chicago, April 3.—[Friend of the People.]—The people living on Hamilton avenue near us persist in dumping all kinds of rubbish on to the avenue. Also the sweepers who clean the boulevard dump the rubbish on to Hamilton. We should like to have this street cleaned and kept clean. M. A.

The sweeper on Marquette boulevard has been notified to stop dumping sweepings at the point complained of. The residents have also been requested to stop throwing refuse and cans in the street, which is unimproved.

It is most difficult for us to maintain a semblance of order unless we have the helpful coöperation of surrounding residents.

THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

TIT FOR TAT.

Chicago, April 2.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Can the landlord force tenant to move if upon his giving tenant notice of raise in rent, tenant agrees to move within sixty days? Then after the sixty days elapse and tenant cannot find a place to move to, agrees to pay raise in the rent.

2. Can a landlord with an income of $2,400 a year whose wife makes over $1,000 a year, and with no children, claim total exemption from an income tax? If they claim exemption what authorities should look into the matter? A. R.

1. When there has been no agreement for a longer term, either party can terminate the tenancy, or the landlord can increase the rent at the end of any month upon sixty days notice. There is no legal obligation to assign a reason for such action. The law is not clearly settled as to whether the notice must be in writing. Under recent legislation if tenant holds over and landlord sues for possession a judge would have discretionary power to grant a tenant six months' stay of execution, upon tenant's giving bond to pay rent at a figure fixed by the judge. If lessor demands notice of lessee's intention as to applying for stay, lessee must notify or no stay will be granted.

2. Report to collector of internal revenue, federal building.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WILL IS VALID.

Chicago, April 3.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Is a will legal if not signed by an attorney if three other signatures are attached besides that of the notary? J. C.

Absence of such signatures would not invalidate a will that was otherwise valid, but we strongly advise employing an attorney on such a matter.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DILATORY TENANTS.

Berwyn, Ill., April 2.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I have given my tenants notice to move, in fact, notified them on March 8. Their rent has not been paid since Jan. 1. Are they entitled to a sixty day notice plus the other fifteen days for court action? J. A.

A five day notice is sufficient.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MEMORY TESTS Can You Answer These?

Answers to these questions will be published tomorrow.

1. Where does Blasco Ibanez, author of "The Four Horsemen" and other novels, live?

2. What is an appraisal?

3. When and by whom was the Great Alexandrian library founded?

4. What are five synonyms for the word adorn?

5. Why was Portland cement so named?

6. What Stuart, son of a king, rose to the highest rank in the French service?

7. What great war of modern times ended without a treaty?

8. In what republic of Russia is a Turkish dialect spoken?

9. What disease is influenza related to?

10. What two streets are known as the base line of Chicago, and to what purpose are these base lines?

Answers to Yesterday's Questions.

1. Where was William Jennings Bryan born? Salem, Ill., on March 19, 1860.

2. Who is president of China? Hsu-Shih Chang.

3. What are five synonyms for the word adulation? Flattery, compliment, sycophancy, courtship, and praise.

4. From what poem was the following extract taken?

"Mingled their odorous breath with the balm of the pine and the fir tree,
Wild and sweet as the clusters that grew in the valley of Eschol."

The Courtship of Miles Standish, by Longfellow.

5. When were trials by ordeal formally abolished in England? In 1218.

6. What marshals of Napoleon met tragic deaths? Murat was executed after attempting to recover the throne of Naples. Ney was executed by the Bourbons for joining Napoleon during the hundred days after he had been detailed to capture him. Berthier fell or jumped out of an apartment window and was killed. Bessieres was killed at the battle of Lutzen and Bautzen. Lannes was killed at Aspern and Essling, before Vienna in the Wagram campaign. Brune was killed and his body found in the Rhone. Poniatowski was drowned in the retreat from Leipsic.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

THE DIRECT PRIMARY.

Chicago, April 3.—Your editorial "For Repeal of the Direct Primary Law," which appears in THE TRIBUNE of March 31, is probably the most important idea that has been advocated by THE TRIBUNE or by any other newspaper in this section for years. It is impossible to present conditions in a more forcible and clearer manner than you have done.

Every one has said that the old convention system was ruled by the machines of the different parties, overlooking the fact they were elected by soap box methods and that at times certificates of election of delegates were often given before the elections were held. They did not take into consideration that under the Australian method delegates were elected by wards, where every voter could, if he desired, know all about the candidates he was voting for, and that if they were not qualified for the position of delegates it would be the fault of the voter. Under those conditions delegates would fairly represent the body of voters of the party involved.

A very important phase of the question you struck in regard to racial names—Bohemians for Bohemians—Germans for Germans—Irish for Irish—Italians for Italians. All for names of their own race.

The writer chanced a few years ago to be at a certain gathering of politicians, Roger Sullivan and John P. Hopkins being present; the Democratic party then being in power. The direct primary was being discussed. A very prominent Democratic leader declared the idea which was advocated in your editorial was the proper method. He also said that under the direct primary law there were five Irishmen at the head of the government of Illinois and incidentally mentioned the fact that they were five lightweights at that. That if they had been nominated by the convention system and we were in the saddle, we might have claimed two Irish candidates but would have dared go no farther. The writer has been placed for nearly fifty years where he has come in close contact with election methods. In the beginning it was rotten and later it was worse; after that it was a farce. Then came the Australian ballot, which perhaps is not perfect, but has done away with the rougher part of the work. The convention system protected by a law on the same lines will do more to remedy the election evils of the present time than the Australian law did when passed. You have started something—don't stop. JERRY WALSH.

SECRECY IN THE SCHOOL BUDGET.

Chicago, April 2.—How long is the budget of the Chicago board of education to be prepared in secret and adopted without discussion in the open? Why is it kept under cover until many months of the fiscal year have come and gone? Why is it not presented for consideration in the month of January? Why, with $22,000 of the taxpayers' money being expended for business managers, $5,000 for controller, $5,000 for auditor, $5,000 for an efficiency man, and so on and on? When will the public assert itself and demand of this Mayor Thompson's board of education that it have public hearings and discussion of the school budget, a budget which this year totals over $1[illegible]000,000—public hearings to which all shall be welcome and especially representatives of clubs and civic organizations authorized to speak for their respective bodies?

The city council, through its finance committee, has open meetings in the preparation of the city's budget. Why not the board of education, with a budget larger than the city's by some $13,[illegible]? Public hearings on the school budget are due the people of this city. Taxpayers have the right to know how their millions are to be expended and how they have been spent. Now is the time to act.

LULU M. SNODGRASS,
Ex-School Trustee.

TRY "THE CHEAPER CUTS."

Chicago, April 1.—I noticed with interest in THE TRIBUNE of March 28 an editorial article, reprinted from the Galveston Daily News, entitled "Eating Less Meat," which referred to the passing of the so-called "dime steak."

It is true that the dime steak said to have been existent in 1900 is no longer available at that price. But it is equally true that the suit of clothes which was then available for $15 is also extinct, as are 2 cent railroad fares, $20 rents, 15 cent gasoline, nickel movies, and 15 cent hair cuts.

Although these so-called "dime steaks" are extinct, good meat, suitable for boiling or stews, is obtainable in many Chicago markets as low as 7 to 10 cents a pound. Meats, especially beef and veal, are selling very reasonably at present, and the housewife who markets carefully and who understands how to prepare stews, pot roasts, and similar tasty dishes now finds herself in position to take advantage of unusual bargains in many retail shops.

Plate beef of good quality, for example, suitable for soups, stews, Hamburg steak, and casserole dishes, is obtainable for 7 to 10 cents a pound.

Choice forequarter meat, which will make excellent pot roasts, is available as low as 12½ cents a pound.

J. T. RUSSELL.

"POEMS IN FLIGHT."

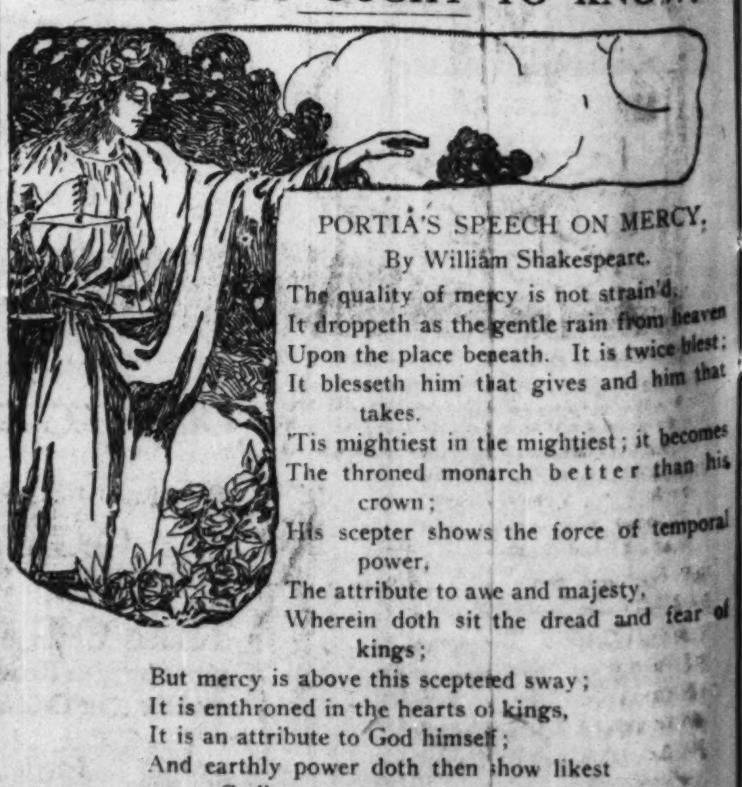
Chicago, April 3.—My feathered friends in Jackson park were holding a springtime jubilee in honor of the advent of several large families of tiny recruits today.

From far and wide friends and relatives had gathered on the pond to inspect, admire, and fuss over the baby gulls who stirred up a veritable flutter of excitement wherever they paddled in battleship formation, with proud parents acting as convoys.

Now and then an adventurous fledgling would spread its miniature wings and, with a chirp of glee, dart away through the air on some madcap errand, to be promptly corralled before venturing too far and conducted back to the fold, where a vigorous scolding put an effective damper on future escapades.

It is infinitely affecting, the trust these noble birds place in their human friends; all they ask is to live their lives unmolested, and how richly they repay this consideration in the exquisite pictures they paint for us in the sky—poems in flight! Symphonies in the blue vault of heaven! M."

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW.



PORTIA'S SPEECH ON MERCY.

By William Shakespeare.

The quality of mercy is not strain'd,
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath. It is twice blest;
It blesseth him that gives and him that takes.
'Tis mightiest in the mightiest; it becomes
The throned monarch better than his crown;
His scepter shows the force of temporal power,
The attribute to awe and majesty,
Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings;
But mercy is above this sceptered sway;
It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,
It is an attribute to God himself;
And earthly power doth then show likest
  God's
When mercy seasons justice.

SHOT STOPPED PULL OF TRIGGER ON BANDIT'S GUN

Police Sergeant Tapscott Gets Hero Award.

Because he came within one-sixteenth of an inch of death March 25th when he shot a pistol from the hand of an escaped convict, THE TRIBUNE'S $100 hero prize for March is awarded to Detective Sergt. Fred Tapscott of the detective bureau.

The sixteenth of an inch was the distance between the hammer point of the convict's gun and the detonator of the shell reposing beneath it. According to Chief of Detectives Hughes and others who examined the gun, the hammer was in the act of descending on the shell when Tapscott's bullet knocked the gun from the bandit's hand.

Made Lucky Shot.

The bullet from the policeman's pistol drove squarely into one of the cylinder chambers of the bandit's gun, proving, according to Chief Hughes, that the convict's bullet was headed straight for Tapscott's brain.

The shot, described by Chief of Police Fitzmorris as "the most miraculous in police history," not only saved Tapscott's life, but probably also saved the life of Sergt. J. A. McCarthy, who was struggling with the bandit.

Tapscott, McCarthy and Sergt. Michael McFadden had entered the saloon of Dan Morrison at 31st street and Cottage Grove avenue, when a colored man hurried out the rear door. McFadden started after him while McCarthy directed his attention to another colored man standing at the bar. Tapscott stepped into a side room to search a third man. McCarthy recognized the man at the bar as "Willie" Webb, sentenced to Pontiac for robbery, who was paroled, returned for violation of parole and who finally escaped Feb. 8.

Struggle Starts.

McCarthy and Webb grappled. Webb drew a gun. At this point Tapscott rushed in from the side room on hearing the sound of the struggle. Webb pointed his gun at Tapscott, but the policeman fired as the colored man's finger pressed the trigger, causing Webb's gun to "jam."

McFadden then rushed in and the three policemen subdued Webb without more shooting. But the work of the three policemen went for nothing, for Webb was turned over to a state parole officer and escaped from a Rock Island train on his way back to Pontiac.

Another Brave Act.

An act of almost equal bravery, but one which was not considered for THE TRIBUNE award because the recommendation of Capt. John B. Enright did not reach Chief Fitzmorris until two days after the hour set by the chief for the recommendations to be in his hands, was that of Patrolman Raymond C. Green, colored, who shot and killed a colored holdup man who was in the act of robbing Jacob Pollack, a grocer, and his wife, Lena, at the point of a gun on the night of March 27.

"Though less miraculous, Green's act was perhaps of even greater benefit to society than was Tapscott's, because the thief that Green shot will never commit another crime, while Webb, through no fault of Tapscott's, is now at liberty," Chief Fitzmorris said.

Killed Burglar.

Another act of bravery for which THE TRIBUNE gives honorable mention to Patrolman Michael F. Rasher of the Cottage Grove station, was performed the night of March 19, when Rasher surprised two burglars in the basement of the home of John Melcher, 5538 South Winchester avenue. Rasher ran to the rear of the house, where he met one of the men, who fired a shot at him. The policeman returned the shot, and the would-be burglar, later identified as Rudolph Lazar, was found dead a few minutes later in an alley nearby. The other housebreaker escaped.

The $100 award to Tapscott is the twenty-seventh of THE TRIBUNE'S monthly bravery awards.

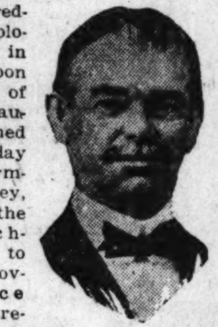
WM. B. CAUSEY OF CHICAGO GOES TO GENOA FOR U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, April 8.—America's unofficial observer at the Genoa conference may be a Chicago man. This possibility gained credence in diplomatic circles in Paris today upon the arrival of William B. Causey, who reached France yesterday aboard the Olympic. Mr. Causey, who has been the American technical adviser to the Austrian government since the armistice, returned to Europe after a visit to Washington, during which he obtained a twenty year extension on the Austrian debts to the United States. Instead of proceeding immediately to Vienna to assume his old post, Mr. Causey will go to Genoa.



WM. B. CAUSEY.

Before the war Mr. Causey was chief engineer of the Chicago and Alton railroad, and he commanded the 17th United States engineers during the fighting.

Herbert Hoover appointed him to the Vienna post after the armistice, and in Europe he has gained a well earned reputation, being one of the most trusted American representatives abroad.

LAWYERS SELECT PALLBEARERS FOR OWENS SERVICES

The Lawyers' Association of Illinois yesterday selected twenty-one members to serve as honorary pallbearers Monday morning at the funeral services of former County Judge John Edward Owens, late Democratic political leader, who died Friday.

The members, announced yesterday by Frank N. Moore, chairman of the association, are:

Capt. Edward Maher,	Harry Brown,
Judge Geo. F. Rush,	Mark MacNamara,
Judge Joseph Sabath,	Robert E. Turney,
Judge David M. Brothers,	Frank N. Moore,
	E. L. Richter,
Judge George Kersten,	Hugh O'Neill,
Judge Denis W. Sullivan,	John Courtney,
	William McCabe,
Judge C.A. MacDonald	Frank J. Hogan,
Judge Harry Olson,	Michael B. Morris,
Judge Saml. H. Trude,	Harry A. Riley.
Judge John J. Rooney,

County Judge Frank S. Righeimer announced that his court will be closed all day tomorrow out of respect for the former holder of the office.

The funeral services will take place at the Owens home, 3335 Warren avenue, at 9:30 a. m., to Our Lady of Sorrows church. Interment will be made in Calvary cemetery.

Martin Carey, Standard Oil Vice President, Dies

St. Augustine, Fla., April 8.—Martin Carey, vice president of the Standard Oil Company of New York, died at a hospital here today as a result of a third stroke of paralysis, which occurred on March 23.

TROOPS POUR IN TO PROTECT RED ENVOYS IN GENOA

Russia to Accept De Facto Recognition, Report.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

GENOA, April 8.—All the delegates to the Genoa conference have now arrived, except the German and French, which are expected tomorrow. There will be a meeting of the allied supreme council tomorrow to arrange for solidarity of the allied front.

Italy Has Agenda.

Italy proposes the following points as a basis for discussion at the opening on Monday:

1. All the participants will consider negotiating commercial treaties with Russia.
2. Reorganization of European finances and the restriction of the issue of paper money.
3. Removal of obstacles to export and import trade.
4. Equal distribution of the world's raw materials.
5. The resumption of unrestricted railroad and river transportation.

Reject Italy Demand.

At the peace conference and the league assembly Italy demanded the international policing of raw materials, but this was rejected. The control of printing paper money was aimed to prevent Germany from reducing its currency to worthlessness, threatening bankruptcy to the nation and thereby endangering the world's economic stability.

The soviets have signified their willingness to accept de facto recognition and will not insist on de jure recognition, but if the French insist upon referring the decisions reached to Premier Poincare at Paris, Foreign Minister Tchitcherin will demand that he be allowed to refer them to Moscow.

About 2,000 persons have been arrested and deported for fear of anti bolshevist demonstrations, and troops are pouring in.

Champion Knitter Dies at Age of 78

Mrs. Sara P. Clare, 78 years old, winner of the Eastern Star state prize for making the greatest number of socks and helmets for American soldiers during the war, died early yesterday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Wing, 6207 Greenwood avenue. She was a member of Normal Park chapter, Order of Eastern Star. Five sons and four daughters survive. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from Oakwood chapel.

Mrs. William Winter, Noted Author and Actress, Dies

Los Angeles, Cal., April 8.—Mrs. William Winter, author and former actress, 81, widow of William Winter of New York, who was widely known as a dramatic critic, died here late yesterday, following an operation, after a long period of failing health.

Elizabeth Campbell Winter made her first appearance on the stage before the civil war as a singer, having studied under Elizabeth Jefferson, a noted actress of the early '50s.

ROBBER SHOOTS DETROIT CHIEF OF DETECTIVES

Detroit, Mich., April 8.—Edward H. Fox, chief of detectives, and Burt Reno, clerk in a meat shop here, were shot late today in a fight with three bandits who held up the shop where Fox, accompanied by his wife and 3 year old daughter, were making a purchase. The robbers obtained $218, then escaped in an automobile, when Fox, giving chase in another car, collapsed from loss of blood.

Fox was struck in the chest by one bullet which pierced the lung and another grazed the abdomen, inflicting a flesh wound. At the receiving hospital it was said his condition is "very serious." Reno was struck in the foot.

The store, in the west side manufacturing district, was crowded with customers when the bandits entered with drawn revolvers. Seeing them, Fox fired. Fox went down with the first fusillade, and Reno was shot as he went to the chief's aid.

One of the bandits ran to the cash register during the shooting and obtained the money, and the three then rushed outside and into their car, Fox struggling to his feet and following. He pursued the car for two blocks before he was forced to give up the chase.

LEBAUDY WIDOW AND DAUGHTER HAVE VANISHED

PARIS, April 8.—Mme. Jacques Lebaudy and her daughter, Jacqueline, have been missing from a sanitarium at St. Cloud since last Monday and friends fear they have come to grief. Jacqueline, who some months ago was married to Roy Harris, the son of Henri Sudreau Harris, head of a large detective agency, left the home of her husband, accompanied by her mother, a few weeks ago, and took up her residence in the sanitarium.

Harris, on learning the address of his wife, is reported to have called at the institution and asked the authorities that his wife return home. He was informed that both women had left the sanitarium for an unknown destination. A search, lasting throughout the week, has failed to discover any trace of the missing woman.

Mme. Lebaudy was the wife of the multi-millionaire self-styled emperor of the Sahara. She was accused of murdering him, but was acquitted.

Citizen Subdues Bandit; Gives Him to Police

Commanded to throw up his hands last night, E. Martin, 4826 St. Lawrence avenue, grappled with a colored bandit in the hallway of the apartment house he lives in, took the man's pistol away, and subdued him. Police from the Wabash avenue station arrived and arrested the robber, who gave his name as William Young, 4826 Evans avenue.

FLOOD NIBBLES AT BEARDSTOWN LEVEE; IT HOLDS

Beardstown, Ill., April 8.—[Special.]—Although south winds flung waves over Beardstown's west end levee, with a thick rain encouraging the swollen Illinois river, the embankment continued to hold its own against the flood of water late tonight.

The crisis in the flood situation will come Sunday night or Monday, when the river is expected to climb to the 22.5 foot stage. Gangs of men under Commissioner Broecker, working to keep the levee intact, were forced to abandon their fight during tonight's storm, when a bit of the buttress at 12th street crumbled.

Fifty families in the lower districts have been taken to temporary quarters and a few blocks are under two feet of water, but trains are still running into the city and the authorities doubt if the flood will grow to serious proportions.

NEW EMIGRATION LICENSE.

LONDON, April 8.—The German government has granted an emigrant license to the White Star line permitting it to carry emigrants from Germany to the United States.

Mrs. Stillman's Witnesses Rounded Up by Beauvais

Montreal, Que., April 8.—[Special.]—Fred Beauvais, Indian guide named as co-respondent in James A. Stillman's divorce suit, returned to Montreal last night from a four days' roundup of the witnesses who will testify for Mrs. Anne Urquhart Stillman, his former employer. He has the affidavits of more than forty French-Canadians who will testify in the hearing beginning Monday. Most of the witnesses are expected to testify to alleged attempts at bribery.

Another reduction Whole Baby Lobster—65c

A week ago we cut the price of Lobsters to 75 cents. Now we cut the price again—to 65 cents. Think of it. A whole Baby Lobster, either hot or cold with melted butter or Chili sauce, for only 65 cents. We figured as low as possible in making the first reduction—now a further increase in our lobster sales makes possible this further cut.

Based on what other high-class dining places charge for Lobsters (usually $1.25 and up) we could get far more than the price we ask. But our prices are figured from our actual food costs—never on what we could get in comparison with the charges of other restaurants and hotels. No wonder we sell more lobsters than any other two hotels and restaurants combined—and that the North American is the most distinctive sea-food restaurant since Rector's (which was under the same ownership and management).

All of our prices are equally low. Because of our tremendous volume—the biggest ever achieved by any Chicago dining place—and our Common Sense plan whereby you serve yourself and pay only for food, you get big portions (often ample for two) of the highest quality food at the low prices of ten, fifteen and even twenty years ago.

Individual Apple, Prune or Raisin Pie A big, delicious individual pie, baked in our own kitchen 10c
Bacon and Eggs—(for breakfast) 2 fresh eggs fried in butter and 4 strips of bacon 30c
Roast Beef—A big cut of the very finest roast beef—elsewhere you will pay from 75 cents to $1.25—here only 40c
Halibut and Peas—Pay twice as much elsewhere and you won't get a more delicious piece of fish—nor a bigger portion. Here it costs only 35c
Fried Chicken—with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce, dark meat 55c breast, all white meat 65c

Bring the children—they are always welcome

ONLY SOFT COAL MINED IN FIRST WEEK OF STRIKE

This Reaches Low Mark of 3,500,000 Tons.

BULLETIN.

Charleston, W. Va., April 8.—An injunction restraining the United Mine Workers of America from further activities in the Winding Gulf coal field of southern West Virginia was issued here tonight by Federal Judge George W. McClintock. The injunction was asked by fifty-eight coal companies of that region.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 8.—[Special.]—The total production of all coal—anthracite and bituminous—in the first week of the strike was the lowest in modern coal history, according to the weekly report of the Geological survey. The output of bituminous coal dropped to approximately 3,500,000 tons, and in the anthracite region work ceased entirely. During the 1919 strike the anthracite mines operated at capacity.

Some Mines in Operation.

As April 1 is a union holiday, loadings on Saturday did not reveal the extent of the strike. The first test came on Monday, April 3. On that day 11,445 cars were loaded, against 38,-056 cars on the preceding Monday.

The week's output falls short of what the mines not affected by the strike can produce if the demand is active. From mines in many nonunion districts reports of "dull market" and "no orders" have been received, and there are a large number of loaded cars unbilled on the sidings, some of which are in fields closed by the strike.

U. S. Refuses Troops.

The federal government received and rejected today the first request for troops to maintain order as a result of the coal strike.

The request came from Gov. Merritt C. Mechem of New Mexico, who asked Secretary of War Weeks for a detail of army troops in the region around Gallup, where some disorders and shootings have occurred since the mines were abandoned by the workers.

Secretary Weeks, after a brief conference with the President, refused to send the troops and said that this would be a general policy. States must demonstrate their own inability to preserve order before the federal government will consider sending troops.

In replying to Gov. Mechem, Secretary Weeks telegraphed:

"Unless disorder develops to a point where the state authorities are unable to preserve order within the limits of New Mexico, federal troops cannot be used in connection with the coal strike."

Red propaganda has made coal miners undependable and their contracts worthless, P. H. Penna of Terra Haute, Ind., secretary of the Indiana Coal Operators' association, and more than twenty-five years ago president of the United Mine Workers of America, declared today before the house committee on labor.

WEDDING ABROAD

MATHILDE McCORMICK.
[Keystone Photo.]

Staunton, Va., April 8.—The marriage of Miss Mathilde McCormick, granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, and Max Oser, Swiss riding master, will take place abroad at a date to be determined later, and Oser will not come to America, according to a statement today by Howard A. Colby, a friend of Miss McCormick's father, Harold F. McCormick of Chicago.

Colby, with several members of the McCormick family, including Miss Mathilde, stopped in Staunton en route from the McCormick homestead, near here, to Hot Springs, Va.

TRIO DISCHARGED.

Mr. and Mrs. Josepn Nozinski, 671 West 14th place, and Bruno Andonitis, 4014 South Rockwell street, were discharged yesterday in Maxwell street court after they had been arraigned on a charge of robbing Walter Keltach, Grand Rapids resident.

STRIKERS CENTER THEIR BATTLE ON NONUNION MINES

This Week to Give Line on Duration of Walkout.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The second week of the coal strike sees the United Mine Workers of America centralizing their activities on the nonunion fields of Pennsylvania and West Virginia. Three more mines of the H. C. Frick Coke company in the Connellsville coke region of Fayette county, were closed yesterday, where the men walked out after union organizers had made appeals. One independent pit was also shut down and at four other mines operations were reduced.

In West Virginia reports from Charleston are that today union miners will begin a march into the open shop Winding Gulf field. The march will not be one of armed miners and no conflict is looked for.

Fight to Close Up Field.

Seven union locals have been formed in this field during the last week, and the next seven days will see a concentrated effort by the organized miners to close this nonunion field up tight. The struggle is settling down into a tug of war and operators in both Pennsylvania and West Virginia say the coming week will afford a much better index to how far nonunion production has been curtailed than did the first week of the strike.

At Momechen, W. Va., Mayor Morris yesterday asked Gov. Morgan to withdraw the fifteen troopers on strike duty in the town. The mayor said he had ordered a trooper arrested because "without provocation he hit a foreigner with a blackjack." Otherwise all was quiet in the West Virginia fields.

Get $30,000,000 Pay.

This week will see the distribution of $30,000,000 to the idle miners in wages for the last two weeks of March. The estimate is that of the international officers of the union. The estimated pay roll for Illinois is $4,000,000; Indiana, $1,500,000; Ohio, $2,450,000; Iowa, $750,000.

UNCLE SAM NEW FORD RIVAL FOR MUSCLE SHOALS

Washington, D. C., April 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—A government owned and operated corporation, to be conducted under the supervision of three directors appointed by the President, for development of the nitrate and water power projects at Muscle Shoals, Ala., was proposed in a congressional resolution made public tonight by Senator Norris of Nebraska, chairman of the senate agricultural committee.

The resolution will be introduced in the senate Monday and referred to the agricultural committee for consideration in connection with hearings beginning then on the four private proposals for Muscle Shoals submitted by Henry Ford, the Alabama Power company, Frederick Engstrum, and Charles Parsons.

While no appropriation is asked for the development of the projects, congressional authority is requested for the creation of a "federal chemical corporation," and for the secretary of war to "complete the construction of dams Nos. 2 and 3 in the Tennesseee river," as well as the making of surveys in the river and its tributaries for the location of storage reservoirs, and, if necessary, the construction of additional dams there.

Obregon Will Force Rebels to Pay for Their Trials

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Mexico City, April 8.—President Obregon struck another blow at the rebels today by issuing orders to take over their property to pay the expenses of military campaigns against them and for their trials, when captured.

"Garter pump," style number 5979—a patent pump whose popularity has marked it as the season's favorite origination.

THE season finds one's fancy turning, not lightly, to thoughts of a Spring-time wardrobe—and of prime importance is the problem of where to select footwear that will properly complete the attire, and at the same time render a full measure of long and comfortable wear.

OVER a period of 48 years Walk-Over have built shoes on which they have been proud to place their trade-mark. And today when you buy Walk-Overs, whether you pay $6.50 or $10.00, your interests are protected by the sincerity of an institution which has repeatedly refused to be stampeded by a fancied demand for shoes cheaply priced at a sacrifice of style and quality.

BILLION IN RUM, AT BOOTLEG COST, MAY COME BACK

Law Lets Down Bars on Reimportation.

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—Liquors having a value in the legitimate market of more than $300,000,000 and worth in bootlegger channels more than $1,000,000,000, shipped from the United States to foreign countries just before the Volstead act went into effect on Jan. 16, 1920, will eventually find their way back to this country, under the provisions of the Willis-Campbell act passed by congress last November to supplement the national prohibition law, according to John D. Appleby, general prohibition agent in charge of New York and New Jersey.

Willis-Campbell Law "Joke."

The passage of the Willis-Campbell law, which ostensibly was principally for the purpose of killing medicinal beer, has made it possible for the thirsty to be supplied with good liquors for a much longer period than appeared likely before the measure was adopted, prohibition officials here say. In some quarters the provision for the reimport of liquors is considered as a "joker" in the law.

The law stopped the importations of liquors, and also the manufacture of spirituous liquor in this country save alcohol "until the amount of such liquor now in distilleries or other bonded warehouses shall have been reduced to a quantity that in the opinion of the commissioner will, with liquor that may hereafter be manufactured and imported, be sufficient to supply the current need thereafter for oil nonbeverage uses."

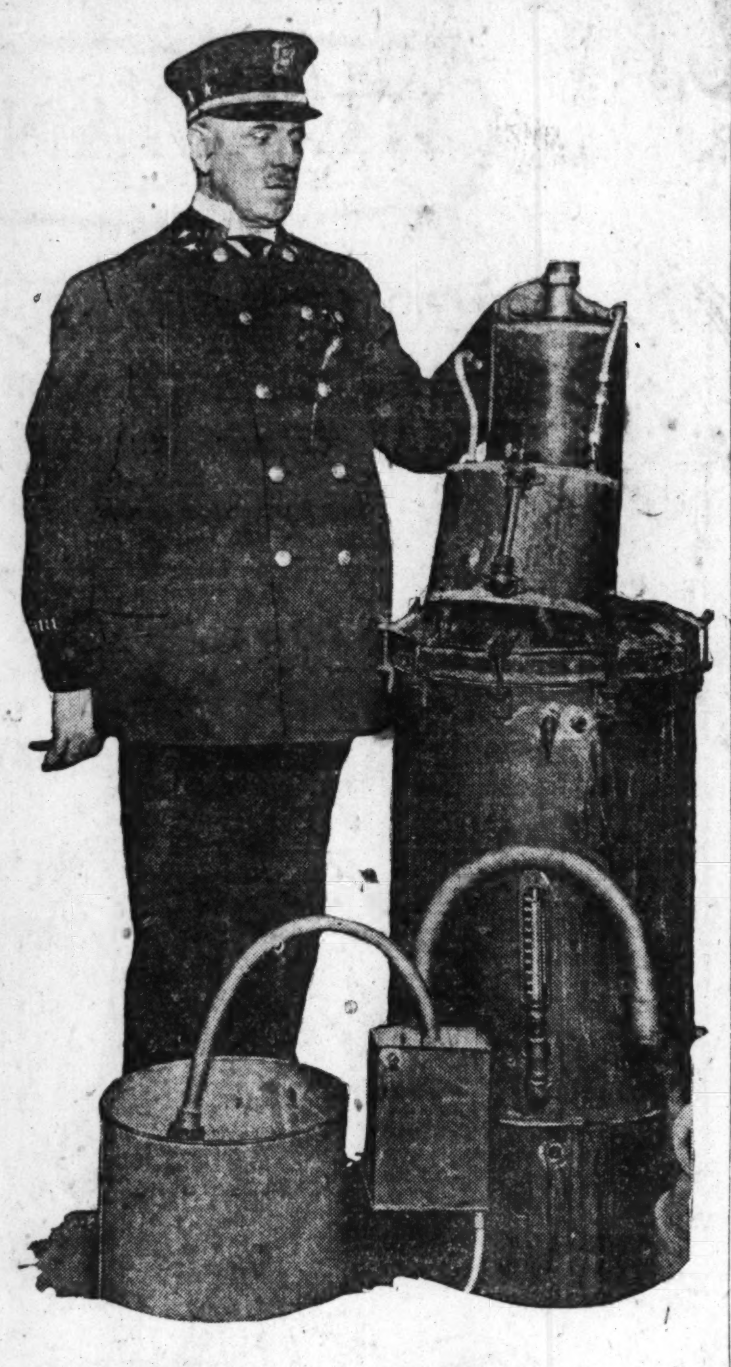
Provides Return to U. S.

But it is provided "that the commissioner may authorize the return to the United States under such regulations and conditions as he may prescribe any distilled spirits of American produce exported free of tax, and reimported in original packages in which exported and consigned for redeposit in the distillery bonded warehouses from which originally removed."

ANOTHER EXPLOSION.

A bomb shattered the windows in the barber shop owned by Edward Boon and William Lowe, 1947 Cleveland avenue, yesterday morning. The police say the bomb was thrown by labor men.

STILL WILL BE STILL



Capt. I. J. McDowell of the West North avenue station is shown standing beside one of the best equipped stills ever captured in a raid on a flat here. The still was seized yesterday at 2116 Austin avenue. The police arrested Frank Miller, 1853 South Sawyer avenue, and Herman Holtzman, who conducts a grocery store at 311 North Ashland avenue.

MRS. BROWN SUES THE ZIEGFELDS; WANTS $25,000

Showman Says He'll Start Trouble.

Billie Burke Ziegfeld and Florenz Ziegfeld, her husband, were made defendants in a $25,000 damage suit filed in the Superior court yesterday by Mrs. Harriet Marshall Brown, at present living in the Blackstone hotel.

Attorney Marshall E. Gallion, Mrs. Brown's counsel, said the suit was based on slanderous and defamatory remarks alleged to have been made by the Ziegfelds about Mrs. Brown and her twenty-two room residence at 426 Surf street, which was leased by the actress during her stay in Chicago.

Mrs. Brown objects to Mr. Ziegfeld's reference to her as "that Brown woman"; she denies the statement that her house was "filthy," and she brands as slander the charge that the Ziegfelds were besieged by her creditors.

"There were, and there are creditors," said Mr. Ziegfeld, in his office at the Colonial theater yesterday afternoon. "I sent the chauffeur down to have a mirror mended. He found a bill of $100. The maid went to the grocery store, another bill. Another maid went to the butcher shop. Again unpaid bills.

"My wife leaves for St. Louis tonight, but I'm going to stay here for a while and give Mrs. Brown just as much annoyance as she gave Miss Burke. I'll buy up all the claims of the creditors and give my landlady all the fight she wants."

Registration Frauds Found in 21st Ward

Evidence of wholesale false registrations in several precincts of the Twenty-first ward has been uncovered, according to a statement issued yesterday by County Judge Frank S. Righeimer. The election judge in the Twenty-second precinct was dismissed. Judge Righeimer would not disclose the man's name, but said he is a county employé.

ROME "DE LUXE" QUALITY

"DE LUXE" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

The Vicious Circle

When a person is run down nervously, his or her digestion often fails and grave functional disorders arise, which still further complicate the nervous trouble. Physicians say that a person in this condition is in a "Vicious Circle." The relieving of this condition is a matter of grave concern to physicians.

Many of them start the cure by prescribing absolute rest, and this search for complete rest has revealed that complete relaxation is not possible on the average bedspring.

The ordinary coil, woven wire or national bedspring is not only uncomfortable but wastes energy. It even causes serious illness by distorting the spine and causing nerve pressure. It sags into great hollows; presses prominent parts of the anatomy and totally fails to support other parts. Sleep on such a bedspring is restless, broken by constant shifting in an attempt to release cramped muscles. So doctors insist that the bedspring must be designed to mold itself to every physical curve of the body, supporting every part equally and gently.

Only such a bedspring allows complete relaxation. In strict agreement with the doctors' standard the Rome De Luxe Bedspring was designed. It cannot sag—it gently supports the relaxed body without strain or twist. The body naturally falls into the most restful position on the gently yielding De Luxe.

See the De Luxe at your dealer's. Comparisons will prove that it gives a world more of luxurious comfort than any other bedspring at any price. The De Luxe does not wear or tear the mattress. Know the Rome De Luxe by the Rome Quality Trade-mark on the side rail. It is the identification and quality certification of all Rome products. The Rome De Luxe is interchangeable—fits either wood or metal beds.

MELLON CLOSES PORTION OF U. S. ENGRAVING SHOP

For Inventory—No Bonds Fraud, He Says.

Washington, D. C., April 8.—Part of the bureau of engraving and printing, which was reorganized last week under an executive order by President Harding removing James L. Wilmeth, its director, and other high officials, was ordered closed tonight by Secretary Mellon for an inventory of the stock, valued at many millions of dollars.

Mr. Mellon's order applied only to the divisions of the bureau which handle the paper used in making bank notes, stamps and government securities, it being explained that a quicker and more accurate checking could be made by a temporary shutdown of all paper work.

Vacation for Some.

About 1,500 employés of the bureau force of 6,000 would ordinarily be affected by the order, officials said, but about six hundred will be used as counters and all others having annual leave to their credit will be given the benefit of it.

According to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Wadsworth, in charge of the bureau, the inventory is to be taken as a check of the stock on hand in the plant against the books in much the same fashion that stock is taken by a manufacturer for the year.

Mellon Denies Rumors.

Announcement of the closing brought into prominence again rumors among some department employés that investigation of the engraving bureau would disclose serious shortages in the stock and widespread duplications of Liberty bonds and other government securities.

Secretary Mellon in a formal statement tonight said:

"The statements to the effect that a vast volume of duplicate bonds and other securities have been fraudulently issued and are in circulation are wholly without foundation. There has been no evidence developed of any such situation either in the bureau of engraving and printing or elsewhere in the treasury department."

BEG YOUR PARDON

Mrs. George Brandes and Mrs. Harry Bosworth, who are at the bedside of their mother, Mrs. Anna Rogers, at 515 East 60th street, left Paris on March 25 and arrived in Chicago a week later, instead of leaving France on April 1, as stated in Saturday's TRIBUNE. A picture recently appearing in THE TRIBUNE under the caption of Mrs. Townsend Netcher was one of Mrs. Bosworth.

Through a typographical error, THE TRIBUNE yesterday credited Municipal Court Judge Hosea W. Wells with receiving only 584 votes at the Chicago Bar association primary. He really received 1,584.

"Teatime in Tibet" will be presented by the Student Opera company of the University of Illinois at Aryan Grotto on Saturday, April 15, according to John Hackley of the Illini club of Chicago, chairman of the affair, instead of the 17th, as stated in yesterday's TRIBUNE.

TWO HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE.

Edward Klina, 27, of 2245 Washington boulevard, and Clark Crawley, 28, 4237 Park avenue, were held to the grand jury yesterday after Miss Ida Feldman, a former salesgirl, told Judge Fetzer they had attacked her.

TRANS-ATLANTIC AIRMEN TELL OF FIRST TWO HOPS

Fought Gale; Had to Use Sun as Guide.

PORTO PRAI, Santiago, Cape Verde Isles, April 8.—[United Press.]—The thrilling story of their long flight through clouds and fog, at over ninety miles an hour, which they hope to continue until they have crossed the Atlantic and landed in Brazil, was told for the first time by the Portuguese flyers here today.

Capt. Coutinho, an aged, weather-beaten pilot, with long experience both at sea and in the air, was reticent to talk of the flights which have brought them to St. Vincent, in this little island group, from far off Portugal.

"Wait until we have completed our flight," was the attitude both he and Capt. Sacadura took towards interviews.

Make Start in Gale.

Nevertheless, in the little cabin of the cruiser Republic, which brought them here from St. Vincent to inspect this port as a possible starting place for the third and most perilous leg of their journey—the real "hop" of more than 1,390 miles across the Atlantic to islands just off the South American coast—Capt. Coutinho consented to tell of their flight from the island of Gran Canaria.

"We left the bay of Ghando (Portuguese for Cando bay) about half past seven Wednesday morning," Coutinho said. "After taxiing some distance we rose into the wind, which was blowing a mild gale of about 25 or 30 knots an hour.

"For over half the distance of our long flight we were buffeted by this gale. Then the wind fell, shifted to the northwest and was lightest for the rest of the journey.

Take Bearings by Sun.

"Our first journey, from Lisbon to the Canaries, had taught us the difficulties of the flight, but immediately after starting on this second leg we encountered most unexpected trouble.

"The terrific vibrations of our engine affected the compass so it was useless. Capt. Sacadura had to get his bearings entirely by sun and wind.

"Over the sea, heading south and west for the Cape Verde islands, we flew, sometimes at an altitude of 400 meters (about 1,300 feet), sometimes reaching up higher to ride above flying clouds in an overcast sky.

"We were entirely alone. Only one steamer did I see on the whole journey and that was but a smudge of smoke on the gray sea far off to the southward. We had food with us, but were too busy with our machine and with anxiety to keep our proper bearings, to bother with it.

Finally Sight Land.

"About 400 miles out from the Bay of Ghando, we first sighted land. We pounded each other and motioned. Our second leg of the flight had been a success. It was St. Nicalau island, fifty miles away. Then we sighted Stantao, and at last, our objective, the larger island of St. Vincent.

"I took many observations and we made a good landing. Our speed at first had been over ninety miles an hour, but we slowed to seventy as we drew near land.

"We go to Santiago to study the advisability of starting off from there for Brazil. We could fly there and save ninety miles on the long flight."

36 Apartments—36 Frigidaires

The modern apartment building is designed to give the utmost in comfort, convenience, and refinement, at the same time making the utmost use of every square foot of space.

Maximum service to tenants at minimum operating cost and lowest depreciation are points first considered by the modern apartment builder. It is for these reasons the Denifer Apartment Building, corner Balmoral and Kenmore Aves., is being equipped with 36 FRIGIDAIRES, one for each of its 36 kitchens.

Each tenant will have his individually complete refrigerating plant, protecting health by keeping foods under perfect conditions, and eliminating the inconvenience and troubles of an outside ice supply. A home is no longer modern without FRIGIDAIRE.

Let us demonstrate to you the construction and operation of FRIGIDAIRE. Let us show you the wonderful engineering that has made it entirely automatic and more economical to operate than an ice box.

JUDGE ORDERS SMALL'S BANK BOOKS OPENED

Must Be Unsealed Pronto for Court Officer.

BY WALTER RODERICK.

Waukegan, Ill., April 8.—[Special.]—At the request of attorneys of the state, Judge Claire C. Edwards today ordered that all records brought to Waukegan from Gov. Len Small's bank, the First Trust and Savings of Kankakee, and sealed by the bank's attorneys, are to be returned to that institution by Monday morning and unsealed for the inspection of the court's accountant, H. C. Burnett, vice president of the Waukegan National bank.

The order was issued over the protests of Attorney E. M. Runyard, representing the bank. At the same time, the court emphatically stated that unless the records are back in the Kankakee institution and in shape for inspection by Monday morning his representative, Mr. Burnett, will be directed to return immediately and he will listen to proof in support of a motion that an attachment be issued for all the records.

Attorney Ralph J. Dady, former state's attorney of Lake county, suggested that the books be unsealed and returned to the bank.

"I suggest that the seals be taken off these papers and books," he said, "and that they be returned so that they will be there when Mr. Burnett gets there."

Runyard Offers Objections.

Attorney Runyard objected on the grounds that no officials of the bank were present in court and he was under obligations to see personally that the papers were returned sealed. The court suggested that he take the records back to the bank. Mr. Runyard intimated that the package was too bulky.

"What do the records consist of?" inquired the court.

"There are two books and some fifteen ledger sheets," said Attorney Garfield Charles, who is to assist D. E. Currier, the state's accountant, in checking up various transactions through which Small, Vernon S. Curtis, and Fred E. Sterling are said to have conspired to pocket some $2,000,000 interest on public funds.

"I'm not going to send Mr. Burnett to Kankakee and have his hands tied," Judge Edwards remarked. "I don't want to spend any more time on this matter than necessary. We have spent considerable as it is."

Sees Delay in Unsealing.

Attorney Runyard protested that it had taken some time to seal the records, and that another delay might be necessary in unsealing them.

"It might take all afternoon," he said, "and then I'll express the package, but there is no certainty that it will reach Kankakee by Monday morning."

The court suggested that Mr. Burnett be given the books to take with him tomorrow night. Attorney Runyard further objected to this arrangement, saying that while he placed implicit confidence in the integrity of the court's representative, he didn't feel the books should be unsealed here.

"I think the bank would rather take the seals off," said the judge.

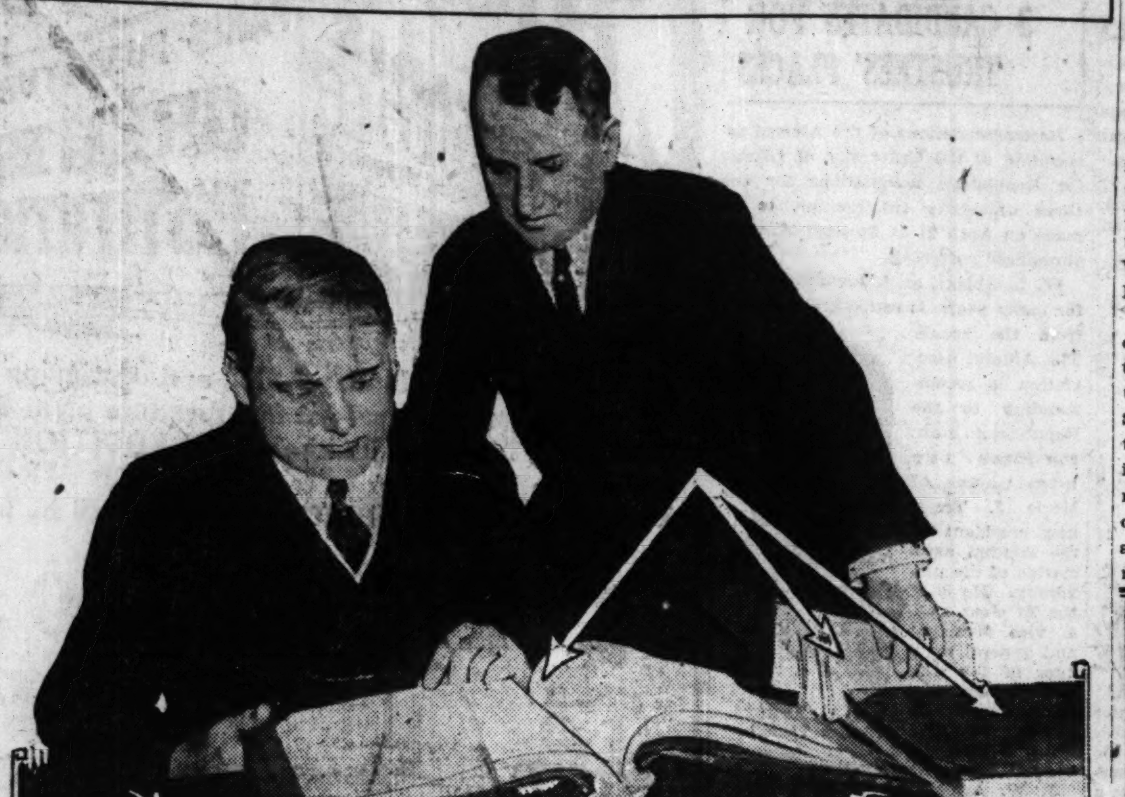
It was finally agreed that the books were to be sent to Kankakee sealed.

"If the books are not there Monday morning," said Judge Edwards, "Mr. Burnett will come back and we will proceed with proof and I will order an attachment."

The records of the Grant Park Trust and Savings bank that escaped the furnace fire will be kept here at least until Mr. Burnett is ready to look into the other records now in that institution. The destruction of the records by a janitor while the bank was installing a burglar alarm system the better to protect them probably will shorten the prosecution considerably.

The committee appointed by the court to draw up a new jury list from the county poll lists completed its work.

THIS BIT OF EVIDENCE NOT BURNED



D. E. Currier, accountant for the state in the trial of Gov. Small, and Attorney Garfield Charles, representing Attorney General Brundage, inspecting the few records produced by the Grant Park Trust and Savings bank and the First Trust and Savings Bank of Kankakee as all that could be found bearing on transactions involved in the trial. In the Grant Park case the cashier testified all other records were burned by a janitor in the basement of the bank. The three arrows indicate the scant exhibit.

ARBUCKLE GRAND JURY WILL HEAR CHICAGO WOMEN

San Francisco, Cal., April 8.—Mrs. Virginia Warren and Mrs. Helen Madelyne Whitehurst of Chicago, defense witnesses in the third Roscoe Arbuckle manslaughter trial, were subpoenaed today to appear before the grand jury Monday night in connection with the testimony they gave in the trial. Mrs. Warren testified she attended Virginia Rappe at the birth of a child.

Gavin McNab, chief counsel for the defense, as a prosecution witness, testified regarding the obtaining of certain defense depositions by Albert Sabath, Chicago attorney, the prosecution desiring to know how they came into his possession. He said the whole matter was handled by eastern agents of the defense. Charles H. Brennan, associate defense counsel, also testified regarding the depositions.

MAJ. GEN. ALLEN DUPE OF GERMAN, BRUSSELS STORY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, April 8.—The semi-official Temps publishes a Brussels dispatch tonight to the effect that a German prisoner of war, posing as a Belgian army major, duped the American army on the Rhine to the extent of inspecting the troops at a special review, pinning an unauthorized medaille militaire on the breast of Maj. Gen. Allen, and then borrowing various sums of money from the members of the general's staff and disappearing.

No confirmation has been received from Coblenz.

The Temps, which quotes the Brussels newspaper Nation Belge, alleges that the German crook after effecting his release from the prison camp donned the uniform of a Belgian army major, assumed the name Otto De Beney, and presented forged credentials at Coblenz, where he was royally received by the American army.

Tobey Rugs

GENERATION after generation of inspired rug designers have made Saruk, a small village in northern Persia, famous.

Their rugs have rich dark reds and blues that are used in medium sized patterns, surrounded by artistically distinctive Oriental rug borders.

These beautiful designs are everlastingly recorded in the woof and weft of Royal Saruk rugs by weavers who have always been famous for their ability to weave one of the closest and finest rugs made in all Persia.

In addition to our fine collection of Royal Saruks we have many Persian, Chinese and Turcoman rugs in large and small sizes that were carefully chosen by our native buyers.

Sending home one of our rugs in order to see the effect in your own rooms does not obligate you to buy unless you are satisfied. For their quality and merit Tobey rugs are low priced.

AMBITIOUS CHICAGO WOMEN never let a morning pass without a careful reading of THE TRIBUNE. They know they can't afford to.

FILM STAR, REAL AMERICAN GIRL, WORLD BEAUTY

She Is Katherine MacDonald.

of beauty in her widely known work as movie critic for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Unhesitatingly she replied, "Miss Katherine MacDonald." Comparing her with Elsie Ferguson's possible right to the title, Miss MacDonald, in Miss Tinée's able opinion, represented buoyancy, health, modernity, as compared with Miss Ferguson's fraility, the clinging, lavender and old lace appeal.

Not in Flapper Class.

Miss MacDonald is the modern girl at her highest state of physical perfection. Her 5 feet 7 affords her a fine distinction and removes her from the overpopulated flapper class, whom a London merchant, a recent visitor here, pronounced appalling in their alikeness, and whom one finds equally appalling among the candidates for screen beauty.

The uniformity of type is so marked in many of the noted beauties that, in spite of what individual appeal there may be, it carries a disturbing note of commonness. They are young and short in stature, brown of eyes, and dark of hair. Many of the girls I have talked to have no more than twenty birthdays to admit by either appearance or frank numerals. Miss MacDonald admits the later twenties in numerals, but I admit, for the charm of youthfulness plus the poise of a mature woman, the flower unfolded to full bloom rather than a bud with more or less doubtful promise.

I talked with Miss Elinor Glyn in her very Three Weeksy atmosphered hotel room. I asked her opinion because she has dealt in beautiful heroines and traveled much and far. Her vote, too, went to Miss MacDonald for first place from the standpoint of sheer physical beauty.

Mary Pickford Says So, Too.

Mary Pickford, perhaps the most loved by the world outside and her own screen world, answered me with spontaneity: Katherine MacDonald. "If I were an artist she would be my ideal model," she said.

Madge Bellamy, an exquisite little beauty herself—in fact, to my mind the most beautiful of the very young girls—agreed, too, that Miss MacDonald was the most beautiful woman she ever saw. And she just adores Mary Pickford, whom she has never met, and we imagine all these movies folk playing together in one big back yard. I find it is here as in New York, one's back yard is not communal. Some of the stars are less familiar by sight and by handshake to other stars than they are to you and to me.

Betty Compson, also qualified to pass judgment by reason of her own corraling of a goodly number of nature's prettiest outputs, contributed Miss MacDonald's name in answer to my query as to who was the most beautiful.

Florence Vidor, extremely pleasing to the eye and whom I would rank in a trio with Miss Bellamy and Miss Compson as running close to the winner, agreed to the beauty of the lovely Katherine's face.

They Know Natural Beauty.

These decisions I give much weight to, for being professional, they know what in screen beauty to attribute to lighting and to shade and what to natural endowment.

From a number of others of the profession, producers, managers, publicity representatives, and fair competitors, came the same word of agreement on the one most beautiful of all.

And as such I present her to you, and in a series of stories to follow I shall tell you what she knows about the business of being beautiful, the one business in the world every woman wants to enter and make a great success of.

I will guarantee it not to be hokum, but good common sense; for that, I am convinced, has played no small part in Miss MacDonald's present glorified position. She will disclose what she does for her hair, for her skin, her eyes, hands, teeth; what she eats and what foods she avoids; about her clothes, exercise, and every little detail that may have any bearing whatsoever on her arrival at the pinnacle of perfection.

As I have said before, Miss MacDonald is American. Her father and her mother were born in this country, her mother at Wheeling, W. Va., her father on the site of the present Aliquippa park, show place south of Pittsburgh. Both their fathers and mothers were American born, too. You have to go back a way for the Irish strain in her contributed by Agnew, and for the Scotch MacDonald.

Miss Katherine was born in Pittsburgh and received her early education at the Ursulina convent there. To the nuns she gives credit for whatever claims to nicety and refinement people may attach to her. Then she attended Blairsville college with a literary course as her hope and guide for future use. She studied French, German, and Italian and later took a vocal and instrumental course at Pittsburgh Institute of Music.

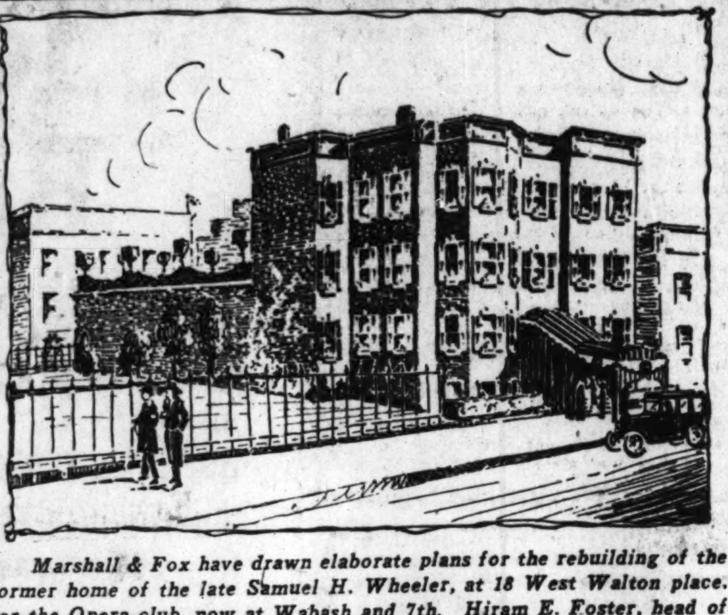
Home in California.

For the last four years Miss MacDonald has made her home in California with her mother and her two young sisters, Mary, whose "nom de cinema" is Mary MacLaren, and Miriam, who was married about a year ago to Clyde Balsley, former member of the Lafayette escadrille.

In spite of the fact that her two year contract with the Preferred Pictures, Inc., provides $50,000 a picture and includes at least three pictures a year, Miss MacDonald's home is not one of the showplaces of these parts. It is simplicity itself, tucked away on quiet, unpretentious Manhattan avenue, but somehow a most impressively becoming background for an American girl of a high order of intelligence and a great deal of refinement.

Beginning with next Sunday's issue of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, I shall reveal to you the "secrets" of this remarkably beautiful girl.

New Home of the Opera Club



Marshall & Fox have drawn elaborate plans for the rebuilding of the former home of the late Samuel H. Wheeler, at 18 West Walton place, for the Opera club, now at Wabash and 7th. Hiram E. Foster, head of the club, says it will open the fall season Halloween eve, on the north side. The new club home was bought through Harold Bradley & Co. for $40,000. The colonial garden ballroom will be the feature of the remodeled building. There also will be an elaborate grill, bridge rooms, and open fireplaces throughout the building.

SEVENTEEN DIE IN WINDSTORM IN NORTH TEXAS

Dallas, Tex., April 8.—Seventeen persons are reported dead and more than eighty injured as a result of tornadoes and rainstorms which swept from west Texas east into Oklahoma toward Arkansas early today. Tonight's tally of the dead and injured may be increased, as reports from some of the stricken towns are meager, officials said.

The list of casualties reported tonight showed:

ARCHDUKE DROPS REPUBLIC MASK, PAYS $54 FINE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

VIENNA, April 8.—Archduke Renier Salvator, a cousin of the late Emperor Charles, and who swore fidelity to the republic for permission to live in Austria, was fined 4,000 kronen ($54) in a police court for taking part in a monarchist demonstration. After the mass in honor of the late emperor bands of monarchists interrupted street traffic and shouted "Down with the republic!" Twenty-one persons were arrested, among them the archduke. At Innsbruck a former guards officer, named Pickl, ended his life through grief over Charles' death.

U. OF I. ALUMNI NAME 3 CANDIDATES FOR TRUSTEES' PLACES

Recommendations of the Alumni association of the University of Illinois for Republican nominations for the three university trusteeships, to be made on April 21 at Springfield, were announced yesterday.

W. L. Abbott, an influential trustee for many years, is retiring voluntarily from the board.

MEILE J. TREES.
[Beidler Photo.]

The Alumni association is recommending to the Republican state convention the nomination of Merle J. Trees, now president of the Alumni association of the university. He is of the '07 class and is vice president and general manager of the Chicago Bridge and Iron works. He lives at 9921 South Winchester avenue, in the Beverly Hills territory.

J. W. Armstrong of Rock Island, one of the conspicuous business men of Rock Island, and a former Illini football star, is named by the alumni to succeed Trustee Otis W. Hoit of Geneseo, who is not to be a candidate again, and Mrs. Mary E. Busey of Urbana is suggested as a candidate to succeed herself. The Democratic recommendations, on behalf of the alumni, have not been announced.

NEW SECT FIGHTS 'FOREIGN DEVIL'; MENACES CHINA

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

TSINGTAO, April 8.—China is still unready to assume the policing of the Shantung railway, but Peking promises to supply guards from Tsinan to Changtien, a third of the distance, by next Monday, and five days afterward the Japanese are to evacuate Tsingtao and leave caretakers at the Tsinan barracks.

The middle section is to be evacuated under like conditions by the 20th, and the third section by the 30th, bringing the withdrawal to the border of the Kiaochow leased territory, where the Japanese are to remain in control.

China agrees to accept responsibility for life and property in the evacuated area, but grave apprehension is felt. Conditions are so chaotic in Peking that the commission arranging the details of the withdrawal has been detained. It hopes to reach Shantung shortly.

Banditry Shows Big Increase.

Banditry is increasing nightly throughout the province and numerous cities are closing their gates at 5 o'clock. Many smaller bands kidnap village elders and hold them for ransoms even as small as $300. Murders and tortures occur continually.

The Chinese troops are not willing and not able to suppress these outlaws, and it is feared that as a result the Shantung railway soon may be overrun, so Japan is prepared to protect its 24,000 nationals at Tsingtao and the 10,000 more settled along the railway. There are about 400 Americans in Shantung, mostly missionaries.

Additional apprehension is caused by the rapid spread in Shantung, northern Kiangsi, and eastern Honan of a society known as the Titou Chaio, or the big sword sect. It has seventeen leaders preaching in as many counties. They say great disturbances will occur on April 5.

To Drive Out "Foreign Devils."

The chiefs promise the people they will suppress robbery, drive out the foreign devils, and protect the republic. These fanatics are in many ways similar to the Boxers, but more apprehension is felt now because of the political chaos and also the concentration of troops for the expected clash between Gens. Chang Tso-ling and Wu Pei Fu.

Representatives of the British-American Tobacco company and various oil companies returning from tours of the country district express fear for the safety of foreigners, even along the railways, after the Japanese withdraw. The cruiser Albany, bearing Dr. Jacob G. Schurman, the new American minister to China, and two Japanese warships are expected here today.

JAPANESE GIVES INNER WORKINGS OF ARMS PARLEY

Washington, D. C., April 8.—[Special.]—Interesting light is thrown not only upon some of the inner workings of arms conference hitherto not made public, but also upon the future naval policy of Japan, by the text of an official review of the work at Washington which was received here today. The statement was made by Admiral Baron Kato, minister of the navy, and head of the Japanese delegation at Washington.

The original proposal by Japan that she should be allowed a 70 per cent ratio in lieu of the 60 per cent strength proposed by Secretary Hughes, came from the Japanese delegation itself, and not from the Tokio government, as previously reported, Baron Kato said.

Held Secret Conferences.

The American plan of a 5—5—3 ratio was at first not clear to him, Kato said, because ships still under construction were included, while ships already completed were excluded. To clear up these and other disputed points raised the American, British, and Japanese delegates held many secret conferences, during the course of which the Japanese proposal was made that an agreement upon fortifications in the Pacific be included if the 5—5—3 ratio should prevail.

The American delegation had not made up its mind to include an agreement on Pacific fortifications, Kato asserted, and only did so under pressure.

U. S. Proposals Satisfactory.

"The United States offered concrete proposals on the basis of my suggestion at the next meeting, which resulted in the conclusion of the agreement between Japan, America, and Britain on Dec. 15."

Baron Kato said he consented to the agreement regarding the inclusion of the Japanese mainland in the scope of the treaty with the understanding that the Bonin islands and Oshima were included. "In the original draft the word 'mainland' was employed in describing Japanese territory," he said, "but that was changed to 'Japan proper.'"

Mary McCormic to Milan to Study New Opera Roles

New York, April 8.—Miss Mary McCormic, "baby star" of the Chicago Opera company, who was "discovered" by Director Mary Garden, sailed for Milan on the steamship Adriatic today to prepare herself for rôles in "The Girl from the Golden West" and other operas. She will later go to Paris to study for the title rôle in "Louise." Miss Garden is paying the "baby star's" expenses.

CHURCHILL PAYS TRIBUTE TO U. S. FOR NAVY TREATY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, April 8.—Winston Churchill, speaking this afternoon to his own constituency in Dundee, said the Washington conference has now taken its place among the greatest and most beneficent events in history. The United States and Great Britain joined hands in a pact designed to prevent sudden dangerous competition in naval armaments and without any injustice to the British ally, Japan, arrived at a quadruple arrangement.

"We owe a great deal to the courage of the statesmen in America, who without hesitation proposed to order a large number of their new ships sunk or broken in pieces. The keynote of our foreign policy in Europe is to bring about good understanding between France and Germany by giving France the assurance that it will not be left unaided if it is again the victim of unprovoked aggression by Germany," Mr. Churchill said.

SIBERIAN REDS AND JAPS AGREE, TOKIO REPORTS

TOKIO, April 8.—[By United Press.]—Agreement has been reached between the Chita government in eastern Siberia and Japan, according to advices reaching here today.

Chita was reported to have agreed not to spread communist propaganda and will open Siberian forestry and mining concessions to foreigners on an equal basis and that hereafter laws passed by the Chita government affecting foreigners must be approved by the governments of the countries affected.

The agreement was reached after Japan had sent a virtual ultimatum to the Chita government.

HIGHER PAID JOBS RESPONSIBLE TO PRESIDENT, PLAN

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 8.—[Special.]—Following President Harding's declaration yesterday that the administration is conducting no drive on the civil service but is driving for greater government efficiency through the civil service, it was learned today that some influential administration leaders plan to take many of the higher paid positions out of the ironclad jurisdiction of civil service regulations.

President Harding, it is understood, has not approved the plan, but it has been proposed to him with a view of giving the executive necessary authority to control the administrative offices without coming into open conflict with the civil service.

Protested Inefficiency.

In the light of this, what the President said yesterday is made clear. The President's friends declare that there is some inefficiency even under civil service and that much of it is protected, not deliberately, of course, by civil service regulations. This, they point out, the President insists should not be so.

The plan proposed would divide the civil service employés into two groups. All positions paying $3,000 or $4,000 or over, positions of an administrative nature, would be placed in one group. Employés below the higher figures go in another group.

Protection for Able Men.

Those below the minimum would be in the same position they occupy today —that is, protected in government service and reasonably sure of life tenure of office as long as they are efficient and abide by the laws and regulations.

BANK OF KINDNESS

Draw a Check on It for the Unfortunate.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

MRS. MAX A. SCHWARTZ. [Sykes' Photo.]

An Easter charity which will bring good cheer to many poor families, afford them an Easter dinner and food for several succeeding meals is planned by the Lady Elks of Illinois, of which Mrs. Max A. Schwartz is president and Mrs. Samuel Edelstein chairman of philanthropic work. As the Jewish Passover and the Christians' Easter both occur at this season, baskets will be distributed to Jewish families today in preparation for the Passover festival which begins next Wednesday evening.

On Thursday the distribution will be made to families who are not Jews in preparation for Easter. A recent theater party by the Lady Elks brought in $3,000. The baskets which will be distributed will contain food valued at $5 wholesale.

Tickets will be distributed giving an order of $1 in meat so that the needy may have a choice and be saved from the necessity of immediate consumption because of any lack of ice in the home.

The officers of the Lady Elks, in addition to the president and the chairman of the committee on philanthropy, are: Vice presidents, Mrs. J. J. Schwartz, Mrs. Arthur C. Smith; treasurer, Miss Rose Cohn; financial secretary, Mrs. Ella Mae Troost; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Lillie Flower, and recording secretary, Mrs. William Simon.

LANDIS AWARD MAN IS SHOT WHILE AT WORK

Ray Skidmore, 35, a foreman employed by John Griffiths & Sons Co., contractors, 112 West Adams street, was shot in the arm and shoulder yesterday morning while on the ninth floor of the Burlington office building. Three young men, thought to be labor sluggers, are being sought in connection with the affair.

Skidmore was working under the Landis award. He was employed as foreman of the carpenters repairing the building, damaged in a recent fire.

Three men approached him on the ninth floor.

After a few short words one of them pulled his revolver and fired several times.

One bullet struck Skidmore. The men fled.

"POODLES" OPENS CIRCUS SEASON AT THE COLISEUM

Clowns may come and clowns may go, but "Poodles" Hanneford goes on forever. The perennial mime, who has been tumbling on the sawdust for decades, welcomed the first crowd at the Sells-Floto circus engagement at the Coliseum yesterday with a smile on his red and white face.

Elephants in trappings similar to those worn by girls in the revues, the Flying Wards and the Flying Nelsons, Herberta Beeson, a man tight rope artist masquerading as a woman, and a colorful spectacle entitled "A Night in Cairo" are among the attraction the big show had to offer.

The circus will give afternoon and evening performances daily through April 23.

DRY AID TO JAIL FOR BRIBE.

Washington, D. C., April 8.—William P. Egan, former law clerk to Prohibition Commissioner Kramer, was sentenced today to two years in the penitentiary for accepting a $500 bribe from a Milwaukee wine firm.

PAJAMA PARTY AND LETTERS WIN HER SUIT

A tale of a pajama party indulged in by Howard A. Cleaver, formerly prominent in local financial circles, yesterday caused Judge Thomas Lynch to indicate he would grant Mrs. Frances Cleaver a divorce and monthly alimony of $150.

In answer to questions asked by her attorney, Barrie Blumenthal, Mrs. Cleaver, who lives at 1216 Astor street, said that she was married on September 12, 1911. Ten years later, according to her testimony, Cleaver left her to become cashier of the American Trust company in New Orleans.

"By mistake, I opened a letter I found addressed to Mr. Cleaver," said Mrs. Cleaver, "and discovered it to be full of endearing terms, written by Miss Mildred Emerson. I asked my husband to explain. His only answer was 'means absolutely nothing, my dear, merely a letter from an old friend, who feels that long acquaintance justifies the familiarity she displays'."

"On July 22, 1921, I went to meet Cleaver at the Fort Dearborn hotel to dscuss some business," said Clayton G. Scheary, 547 Arlington place, a friend of the Cleavers, "and I found Cleaver in his room with Miss Emerson. Both were in pajamas and bathrobes and had been drinking."

In addition to monthly alimony Mrs. Cleaver, under the terms of an agreement effected out of court, will receive one-half of Cleaver's yearly income.

CHILDREN SPURN MOTHER IN FAVOR OF GRANDMOTHER

Declaring they never wished to see their mother again, and resisting the efforts of Judge Joseph B. David to effect a reconciliation between a mother and her children, Eunice and Jewel McElroy, 12 and 14 years old, respectively, tearfully pleaded yesterday to be allowed to remain with their grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Wieland, 3131 South Michigan avenue.

The children appeared before Judge David in response to a petition for a writ of habeas corpus by which Mrs. Bessie McElroy, 1909 Lincoln avenue, hoped to regain the custody of the children. Mrs. McElroy, when divorced eight years ago in Rock Island, allowed the court to appoint her mother, Mrs. Wieland, as the legal guardian.

In answer to questions by Judge David, Eunice testified that her mother had threatened to have her and the younger sister placed in a "home without windows where we would have to scrub floors all of our life."

"We love our grandmother," Eunice said. "She is the only mother we have ever known, and our own, who has never been a mother to us, we never want to see again. We are afraid of her."

Judge David dismissed the writ and remanded the children to the grandmother.

GREECE APPLIES FIRST CURRENCY LOAN IN HISTORY

Bills Cut in Two, 20 Year Bonds Getting Half.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ATHENS, April 8.—Like the hero of "Ten Nights in a Barroom," the holders of drachma notes (a drachma is worth about 5 cents) awoke this morning with only half the legal tender they went to bed with last night. The decrease in their fortunes is due to the application of a forced loan effective today, which automatically converts half the drachma notes into twenty year government bonds drawing 7 per cent interest.

The exact status of foreigners is still undefined. Under a treaty British subjects are exempted from "forced loans in time of war," and the French and American legations are assuming that their nations are also unaffected.

Cut Notes in Two.

Shops, hotels, and business houses refused to accept whole drachma notes today, cutting them in two and taking only the half denoted as legal tender. On the other hand several speculators, anticipating a demand for bonds among drachma savers not only because of the high interest, but because 25 per cent is convertible into cash, bought up bond halfs at 2 per cent discount.

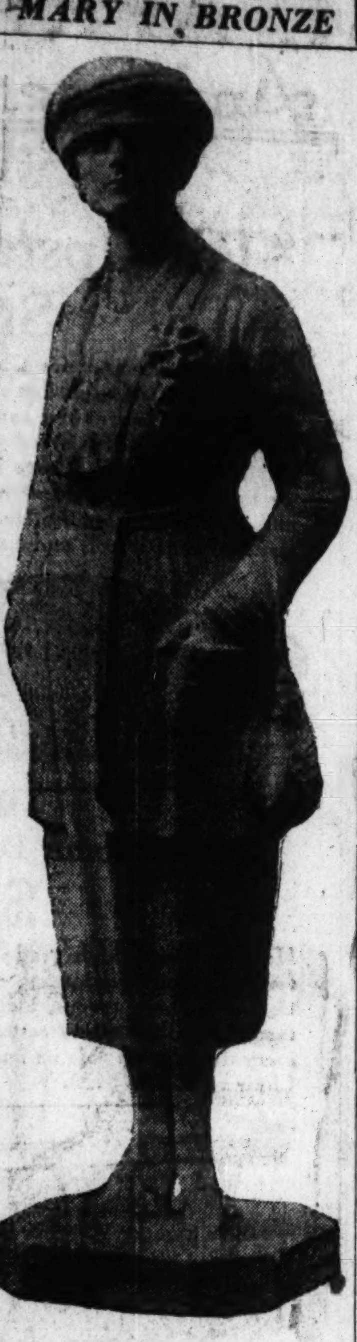
It is expected transients and others exempt will be able to exchange the bond halfs for exchangeable halfs at the bank.

First in History.

The currency loan is an absolute departure from government procedures in raising funds. In the history of finance, practically every form of security has been seized by various governments, but never before has currency been seized by its own country. For this reason financiers, bankers, and business interests are generally confused, some praising the method and others criticizing it. The currency method has obvious advantages of expediency in apllication and also raises money without the usual deflation.

While the loan does not tax wealth in proportion to the ability of persons to pay, it is pointed out that the high rate of interest and the partial reconvertibility of the bonds into cash prevents hardships on any one.

MARY IN BRONZE



MARY GARDEN.

YOU may see Mary Garden in bronze this week if you are strolling down Michigan avenue. The statue will be displayed in a shop window. Permission was telegraphed to Michael Minerva, the Chicago sculptor, yesterday by Miss Garden. She sat for the work in her Lake Shore drive residence during the last opera season.

HARD TIMES DUE TO KEEPING OUT OF LEAGUE—COX

Ex-Governor Pessimistic on Prosperity.

New York, April 8.—[By Associated Press.]—Directly attributing our present day "business adversity" to the failure of the United States to join the league of nations, former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, in an address here tonight, urged a continuation of the campaign to have this country join the league.

His address was made before the National Democratic club and was one of his few public utterances since his campaign as a Democratic candidate for the presidency in 1920.

Asserting that "as one surveys conditions at Washington, he finds little ground for hope of a stable prosperity," Mr. Cox declared "the average person of the average community believes there is something radically wrong in Washington and that it consists chiefly of a lack of leadership. There is no captain of the ship."

Says Harding Keeps Promises.

Gov. Cox told his audience that "while there is much regret throughout the country over the aimless way in which things are drifting, it is not fair to criticize the President of the United States.

"He is simply keeping his contract with the people," Mr. Cox said. "He was open and frank in expressing his opinion as to what the function of the executive is. The campaign waged by his party was largely directed against the alleged autocratic policies of Mr. Wilson. In marking the distinction which both he and his party made, as between what had been and what was to be in this regard, the Republican candidate specifically promised what he would do. He has kept his faith. He doubtless believes his performance is in precise harmony with what he accepted as a mandate adopted by seven million plurality."

Dollar Sign Over Senate Door.

"The dollar sign still hangs over the senate door, as the password to those who are willing to join Newberry in doing emergency jobs about the place. Nothing has been evolved to ascertain what is the matter with the railroads. Industry advances in method and efficiency; the railroads have not moved a peg forward in twenty years. If the railroads could buy what they need, business would improve. Every day they drift nearer to the danger of public acceptance of the idea that government ownership is the only panacea."

Message from Woodrow Wilson.

The following telegram from former President Wilson was read at the dinner:

"Say to the Democrats of New York that I am ready to support any man who stands for the salvation of America, and the salvation of America is justice to all classes."

CHINA TRADERS EYE RUSSIA FOR NEW BUSINESS

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1922: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SHANGHAI, April 8.—Trade with the United States for the quarter ended March 31 totaled $10,124,573, as compared with $8,600,117 last year, according to the report of the American consul general. This does not include gold bar shipments, which were less than last year.

The following products showed gains: Cotton, camphor, walnuts, hair nets, wood oil, silk, skins, and furs.

Others $3.85 Others $4.85

WHEN style, quality and value are combined in feminine footwear the appeal is indeed universal. This thought is interestingly illustrated in the Grossman's stores, where the alert value-seeker, the demure debutante, the dainty sorority maiden and the brilliant social leader are wont to assemble daily in search of fashionable foot-dress—at amazingly low prices. You will be charmed with the Easter displays at Grossman's, and delighted with the high-powered efficiency of the Grossman's store service.

"SHINING THROUGH"

The clouds are lifting. We have already seen cuts in hotel rates and some reduction in the price of theater tickets. Both show indications of further lowering.

Newspapers in various large cities are full of "Rooms to Rent" advertisements. The latter indicates easier housing conditions. This tendency will more strongly develop in the near future.

A large percentage of manufacturers are still in the fog. Those who are endeavoring to do business on the basis of lowest possible overhead costs, aside from any profit, are wise.

Retail prices in some lines and in many localities have come down materially; in other localities not as fast as they should.

Consumers should discriminate carefully, selecting those firms to do business with who, on the whole, always consider the interest of the consumer.

Carelessness in buying wastes many a dollar. Care will furnish many a dollar for other needs.

WILL TENANTS MOVE OR FIGHT? MOVING DAY NEAR

Between 2,500 and 3,000 tenants will pack the lares and penates about May 1 this year, bound for quarters less expensive, less than one-tenth of the number who will remain where they are and defy the landlord to put 'em out.

M. S. Walsh, secretary of the Tenants' League of Chicago, made this prediction yesterday, after emerging from a deluge of complaints from victims of rent increases.

"There will be between 40,000 and 50,000 tenants who will refuse to sign leases this year and stay where they are," said Mr. Walsh. "Six thousand moved last year. The number will be cut in half in 1922. Warehouse men will be busier on June 1 than on the first of May."

A canvass of representative moving concerns on the three sides of the city had a curious result. A south sider agreed that there would be less moving. A west sider believed there would be more this year, while a north side concern saw a condition about like last year..

Open Special Hospital for Wounded Prisoners

Beginning tomorrow, all prisoners suffering from gunshot or knife wounds, or otherwise requiring medical attention, will be taken to a special police hospital at the House of Correction. Chief Fitzmorris said this will do away with the necessity of assigning patrolmen as guards over prisoners in other places.

STARTS MOVEMENT TO RETURN CAPTURED CONFEDERATE FLAGS

GAYLORD DAVIDSON.

As a memorial of the union of the north and the south in the world war and a tribute to the sentiment, "Let us have peace," spoken by Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, whose one hundredth birthday anniversary will be celebrated in Washington on April 27 by the dedication of a monument to him, a movement has been started by Gaylord Davidson of Roanoke, Va., to bring about the return to the south of the confederate war flags now in possession of the various posts of the Grand Army of the Republic.

"The idea came to me," Mr. Davidson said, "when I read the story of the return of one confederate war flag to a camp in Virginia by a member of a northern G. A. R. post as a token of appreciation of a northerner whose son had been rescued while fighting in France by the son of a former confederate veteran."

S. W. Powell, department commander of the G. A. R. in Minnesota, has ordered the return to the south of all captured confederate flags held in the state, according to a message to THE TRIBUNE last night from Mr. Davidson in Stillwater, Minn. Commander Powell and Mr. Davidson, through THE TRIBUNE, appealed to other northern states to follow suit.

Martial Law in Batum; Reds and Moderates Clash

WOMEN VOTERS PLAN TO ATTEND LEAGUE MEETING

JANE ADDAMS.

MRS. E. R. McCORMICK.

Chicago will be well represented at the third annual convention of the National League of Women Voters, to be held in Baltimore April 20 to 29. Among the forty delegates allotted to the state of Illinois are the following ex-officio officers from Chicago: Mrs. Henry W. Cheney, Miss Mary E. McDowell, Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, Dr. Rachelle S. Yarros, Mrs. Ira Couch Wood, Miss Edith Rockwood, and Mrs. Florence Bennett Peterson.

Among the regular delegates from Chicago are Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, Miss Jane Addams, Mrs. George Bass, Miss Jessie Binford, Miss Mary Eileen Ahern, Mrs. Edward L. Murfey, Mrs. Raymond Robbins, Mrs. Watson Blair, and Mrs. Jacob Baur.

Among distinguished foreigners who are to speak during the convention are his excellency, Señor Don Beltran Mathieu, ambassador from Chile; the Rt Hon. Sir Auckland Geddes, K. C. B., ambassador from Great Britain, and Lady Nancy Astor, M. P. A number of prominent women from Hispanic America and Canada will also take part in the meeting. The convention slogan is to be "Co-operation and International Friendliness Through Women's Work."

Preceding the convention there will be a three day Pan-American conference of women, with delegates from North, South, and Central America, Cuba, Haiti, Dominican Republic, Porto Rico, Hawaii, and the Philippines taking part. Round table conferences will be held on child welfare, education, women in industry, prevention of traffic in women, and political status of women.

Might as Well Be Known; It's Difficult to Conceal

Attempting to avoid publicity, George Steinhaus, musical director at the Oak Park High school, and Helen Bryshaw, student at Valparaiso university, appended the notation, "Do not publish at all. Take notice!" on the marriage license record when they obtained a license at Valparaiso Friday. Dr. Joseph Bryshaw, the girl's father, lives at Homer, Ill.

VALUATION ON AMERICAN BASIS LOSES ON TARIFF

Washington, D. C., April 8.—[Special.]—American valuation was rejected by Republican members of the senate finance committee today by a vote of 7 to 3. In its place the so-called Smoot plan was approved.

This provides for the retention of the foreign valuation basis and giving authority to the President to increase or decrease duties and to direct that American valuation apply in the case of any commodities where the other basis fails to afford adequate protection.

The seven Republicans voting for the Smoot plan were Senators Smoot [Utah], Dillingham [Vt.], McLean [Conn.], Curtis [Kas.], Frelinghuysen [N. J.], Calder [N. Y.], and La Follette [Wis.].

$200,000 SUIT FILED AGAINST 2 LOCAL BROKERS

Ernest C. Devine and Henry J. Folts, La Salle street brokers, were charged with fraud and conspiracy in a suit filed yesterday in the United States District court here. The plaintiff is the Corn Belt Packing company of Dubuque, Ia., which seeks to recover more than $200,000 alleged to have been taken from the company's funds by the two brokers, while they were under a promotion contract with the firm.

The bill relates that Devine and Folts made a contract with the company in 1819 and agreed to take over and underwrite stock on a commission approximating 40 per cent. The promoters are then said to have become incorporated and to have later controlled the stock of the company.

Some time later, according to the bill, Devine caused all the company's records to be destroyed. This makes it impossible, according to the bill, to determine the extent of the alleged swindle.

MEXICO SEEN AS POOR WOMAN IN BLACK, HUNGRY

The eighth article by Mr. Kinsley on conditions in Mexico is printed below. Mr. Kinsley has just returned from a 4,500 mile trip through that country to learn if the propaganda now flooding the United States for recognition of the Obregon government by Washington is justified.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

"What is Mexico?"

I think, perhaps, it is a poor woman, in black, who is hungry.

She lives in a rude hut on an earthen floor, with no bed or table or chairs. There are wide chinks in the walls, through which the dust comes and the cold night winds. There are children and dogs and pigs and chickens roving about looking for food. A dim light in a wide desert of sharp cactus and sand.

Or it may be a soldier with a fierce black mustache who rides a prancing horse in Chapultapec park on a Sunday morning. Silver in the trappings. Silver and red in the uniform. Power and strength in horse and man. For this is the ruler and savior of the woman in the desert with her brood. The revolution is still on. Perhaps some day it will get the woman a loaf of bread and some joy in the stars.

Many Mexicos.

There are many Mexicos.

"Everything is fine here," says the prosperous looking man in the Pullman riding through the green valley of Jalisco. But he is thinking of his own business and this particular valley.

"I do not see your argument clearly," says the Mexican land official, after listening to the protest of a man who does not want his ranch taken away from him by the government.

The landowner whispers. There is a chink of gold on the desk.

"I think I can arrange it for you," says the land official.

Other Pictures.

But these two are only part of the picture.

A narrow, noisy street of laughter and music. Young men loiter before the barred windows of homes talking with girls who sit inside under the watchful eyes of fat mammas.

A glimpse through a door reveals comfortable patios with flowers and pictures and books. A middle class merchant home. The daughters are pretty and dress like American girls. But they have not produced a flapper class yet.

Sunday evening in the plaza of a large town. A lovely night, with music in the air. But no smart young couples here, and no family parties. The plaza is the milling ground for hundreds of peons with bright blankets cast rakishly over one shoulder, wide hats balanced, bare feet in sandals. They stroll in groups of four or five, laughing, realizing their power. A few years ago they would not have been seen here in this place for the gentry.

Old Mexico and the New.

It might do to begin the study of this question with the ruins near the City of Mexico. Evacuations reveal a city of a civilization before the Aztecs and the Toltecs, the story of an Indian race that lived in the valley before Christ came. Streets, cities, temples, pyramids have been uncovered.

The homes are better than the homes of the average Indian today. In the old days they had thick tight walls and smooth cement floors. True they worshiped a fat god with a serpent head and thought he controlled the production of the earth. Or the wind god controlled the wind, and the rain god the rain. But millions believed it and slaved to honor and propitiate these deities.

And today, in remoter Mexico, the natives pray to a new goddess for rain, and put new born babes under the spell of the moon. New gods, but worse houses. Less to eat in the same kind of cooking ware.

Serenaders and Juliet.

A night of stars and languor. Over the plaza a band of midnight serenaders, with guitar and well trained voices in some splendid old operative love song. Lattice windows open and Juliet appears.

A gang of workmen sitting against a sunny wall at noon time. Waiting for work? No. A dapper young gentleman in latest Stetson and patent leathers, swinging a stick, approaches and greets them affably. They crowd around him and press his hand. He is a "red" leader come to instruct his new material in Mexico. The "reds" are taking the trouble to do missionary work in Mexico.

AUTO THIEVES RESTING.

No automobiles were reported stolen during the twenty-four hours ending Saturday morning at 8 o'clock.

MIDDLE WEST'S TREELESS AREAS TO BE REPLANTED

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

A comprehensive plan to reforest middle western states will be considered at the Chicago forestry conference April 19-20. Hundreds of delegates representing every section of the United States will be present.

DAVID L. GOODWILLIE.
[Moffett Photo.]

A tentative scheme has already been evolved as the result of work of forestry men, public officials, representatives of farm groups, and leaders in industrial life. Governors of Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, and Missouri have sent word they will attend the conference.

The forestry committee of the Union League club is making arrangements for the conference.

William L. Hall, former assistant chief of the United States forestry department, said at the committee meeting that there were more than 90,000,000 acres of land in this country unsuitable for the growing of crops, and that much of it could be used in the growing of trees. He cited a recent soil survey in Illinois which showed that there are 6,000,000 acres of land in this state alone not suitable for growing crops.

David L. Goodwillie of Chicago, chairman of the committee on forestry of the United States chamber of commerce, is at the head of the Union League club committee.

Asks Quick Execution for Edith Cavell's Betrayer

BRUSSELS, April 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—Deputy Degeraion has demanded from the minister of justice the immediate execution at Mons of Armand Jeannes, who was convicted there Wednesday of treason and espionage. He had boasted that he was instrumental in bringing about the arrest and execution by the Germans of Edith Cavell, British war nurse. The authorities, however, have not yet set a date for the execution.

SOLDIER BONUS BILL'S PASSAGE SEEMS ASSURED

Fordney Says President Will Sign Measure.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 8.—[Special.]—Prospects for acceptance of the soldier bonus bill by the senate without material modification now seem to be practically assured, according to a canvass of the situation conducted by friends of the measure. That President Harding will sign the bill when it reaches him is also regarded as reasonably certain. Both these prospects are now being conceded by some of the bill's most vigorous opponents.

There are two developments which have blasted the hopes of the opposition.

One of these was a statement by Chairman Joseph W. Fordney in a letter to a constituent in Detroit that President Harding had told him he regarded the bill passed by the house as good and that he would sign it if it passed the senate without substantial modification.

Senate Body to Act Soon.

The other development was the practical assurance that the senate finance committee, which now has the bill, would report it in the near future, with just one change. This change is the elimination of the alternative proposition with regard to land reclamation. There has been considerable bitter opposition to this section of the bill as it passed the house, even among some of the most devoted friends of the bonus.

Hope in President Gone.

Their only hope had been in President Harding, and, according to Mr. Fordney's letter, this hope has now passed.

There is still much uncertainty as to the exact time in which the bonus bill can be passed by the senate. Senators opposed to it will fight to prevent the tariff from being sidetracked to give the bonus a clear road, but even on this question there is no doubt that advocates of the bonus have such a tremendous majority that they can do almost anything they wish.

HANGS HIMSELF.

The body of Rudolph Adamek, 48 years old, 1124 S. Lincoln street, a watchman, was found hanging by a rope in the Atlas Brewing company, 2107 Blue Island avenue, yesterday. It is believed he committed suicide.

HER QUEST ENDS

MISS AUDREY MUNSON.
[American Press Association Photo.]

Syracuse, N. Y., April 8.—[Special.]—Wooed by cowboys, athletes, butchers, bakers, and candlestick makers to the number of 200 since she announced her search for a "perfect father for her perfect children-to-be," Audrey Munson, world famous sculptor's model and film star of this city, will surrender to Dan Cupid early in the summer, according to an announcement today by her mother, Mrs. Katherine Munson. The lucky aspirant for Miss Munson's hand, her mother announces, is Joseph S. Stephenson of Ann Arbor, Mich., contractor and world war aviator.

MEXICO PARTNER IN OIL WELLS ON OWN PROPERTY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Mexico City, April 8.—A contract issued by the government to Señor Negri, former president of the National Lines, to exploit large tracts of oil lands in the state of Chiapas, is undoubtedly a model for other similar contracts. By the contract Señor Negri becomes a partner of the government, which holds in its name a fourth of the oil property.

Señor Negri is getting 25 per cent of the gross income, and the contract prevents foreigners from having any interest in the company, thus, in a sense, nationalizing the government oil properties.

BUREAU URGES EX-SOLDIERS TO KEEP INSURANCE

Drive on Lapsed Policies Starts in Chicago.

Every ex-service man or woman who has permitted his or her government insurance to lapse since the date of discharge is urged by the U. S. Veterans' bureau of the Chicago district to reinstate as soon as possible. To this end the bureau has opened a drive that will continue throughout April.

A circular letter sent broadcast over the district yesterday explains the drive.

"There is a general impression among ex-service men that they are no longer entitled to the privilege of carrying an insurance policy with the government," said the letter.

"That is wrong. Insurance can be reinstated at any time up to March 3, 1926, no matter when the lapse occurred.

"Although it is not necessary to reinstate this insurance until that time, there are many advantages in taking action now, and it is because of this that the government is now staging this campaign.

"A man who converts or reinstates his policy during this drive will pay a smaller premium than if he waits for several years. He will at the same time be building up a cash and loan value; and if he has a limited payment policy it will mature earlier. Then, too, many men who are in good health at the present time may not be able to reinstate a few years from now, due to some disability which they might contract in the meantime."

YOUTH TO PRISON FOR LIFE.

Covington, Ky., April 8.—George Sanders, 21, of Cincinnati, was found guilty today of complicity in the murder of Morris Lee, theater manager, and was sentenced to life imprisonment. Lee was killed by bandits.

Like a HOT WATER SPRING in your home

No fussing, waiting or saving some hot water for other folks. There is plenty for all.

WITH A PITTSBURG AUTOMATIC WATER HEATER in your home, unlimited hot water is ready instantly 24 hours a day. Piping hot water is as easy to draw as though you had a hot water geyser down in the cellar.

Turn on any hot water faucet and the PITTSBURG lights itself. Intense heat concentrates on the copper coils through which the water flows. Hot water flows immediately, as clear and free from rust or sediment as the cold.

It will heat just a few gallons, or deliver hot water steadily for hours if you wish. You pay for only what you use; when you stop drawing hot water the heating flame goes out.

Mister Baby Lobster is back on the scene again and will grace many a merry dinner table
—in—
BREVOORT HOTEL
This Sunday

His majesty, Baby Lobster, has been very scarce during the past few weeks, due to tremendous storms sweeping the coast and preventing the fishermen from harvesting the fruits of their lobster pots.

But most adversities have their compensations. The storms have abated and the Brevoort has just received a big shipment of the finest, freshest, live baby lobsters that have ever come to town. Why not have one with your dinner this noon, this afternoon or this evening?

But if, perchance, your preference does not run to shell fish, still there is no chance for regret while there are such toothsome dishes as

BREAST OF GUINEA HEN UNDER GLASS 75c

These two famous specialties are to be had not only on Sundays but also on every other day at luncheon, dinner and late supper time.

POLISH UNIONS NOT EVEN PINK—ROUSE MIT REDS

Back Government; Strike Economical.

BY EDWARD PREBIS.

The President Northwestern Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago.

[FOURTH ARTICLE.]

Labor in Poland is strongly organized. Even the lowest rank of manual workers on the farms have their special groups. One of the past complications has been the aloofness of the Jewish unions. Within the last few months an amalgamation of the Jewish and Christian organizations has been in process, marked by a distintegration of the distinctly Jewish sections. Under this plan, the Jewish and Christian organizations have exclusive control of their own internal affairs, but they will work on a common basis as union workmen.

Fortunately for Poland, the great majority of the labor bodies and leaders, the Socialist groups included, are intensely nationalistic, anti-communist, anti-bolshevik. When, for example, British and French railway and transport workers' unions held up munitions which the Poles needed to repel the Red invasion the strongest protest issued out of Poland was prepared and supported by the Polish Socialist labor unions.

Labor Backs Government.

Again, when last fall, after the ministry of labor had settled the agricultural workers' strike, a few labor leaders started to reopen the matter, the strongest demand for the punishment of those back of this move came from the Socialist labor side. In this case they argued that the nullification of the powers of the labor ministry was prejudicial to the national life of the country. In addition, I think I can say without fear of contradiction that Polish labor is strong in its desire to work.

I must not be understood as arguing or claiming Poland is a heaven born land of industrial peace. There are Polish strikes annoying and disturbing, but they are "economic," not "political." This is a vital distinction. An economic strike reflects the grievance of a workman against his wages, hours, or character of labor; the political reflects an assault upon the government. Economic strikes are genuine. Political strikes are really "walkouts."

Political Strike Failed.

Poland had political strikes at the beginning. Within the last year I have remembrance of only one, a walkout in protest to the inclusion of a senate in the Polish government scheme. It lasted one day, but, instead of "terrorizing" anybody, the members of parliament adopted the senate section by an overwhelming vote.

Certain of the economic strikes have been of considerable magnitude, having developed out of the fluctuations of the mark and the inability of even the best intentioned employers to shift wage scales daily to meet the gap between the falling mark and rising cost of living. At one time a large part of the textile industry of the country was tied up. I sat in a conference between the strike leaders and the mill owners at Lodz and was deeply impressed by the vision of the labor men. They were not asking for an increase in marks in wages, for they explained they were unable to determine what increase they needed to stabilize income as against living costs. They suggested, however, that, ignoring the mark, the manufacturers provide them with a food allowance of standard articles and a reduced mark wage, and they agreed, if that were provided, they could guarantee a stated period of peace. That arrangement was finally put in operation in certain plants with great success.

Self-Help Society Aids.

Economic strikes are singularly lacking in the strife which we associate with labor troubles in America. During a general strike in Warsaw of municipal activities when the street car, municipal water, sewerage, and lighting systems were tied up the government put soldiers to operating the plants. There was no disturbance. The briefness of these strikes can be credited largely to the activities of the Polish Self-Help society. This is a volunteer organization, composed of professors from universities, doctors, lawyers, clerks, merchants, and citizens in general, who are pledged to assist in operating public utilities during strikes.

Thus at no time has Warsaw ever had a complete tieup of its street car, lighting, water or sewage work, because the volunteers take hold. Curiously enough the strikers never offer violence to these amateur "strike breakers." Contrarywise during the last strike of this kind in Warsaw, I saw a striking motorman step from the street to the platform of a trolley car and actually assist the professor from the university, who was trying unsuccessfully to negotiate an electric switch, in accomplishing that purpose, leaving the car with a bow when the task was completed. In explanation of this happy relationship, I should say that the workers know these people really sympathize with them, are acting from a patriotic motive and accept no wage. Again, they also know these same men in many cases are sustaining their demands for readjustment of the wage scales.

Know What Nation Can Pay.

One satisfactory factor in dealing with Polish labor is that the men have a distinct idea of what they want and what the country can afford. They have supported at the polls the program for the maintenance of a labor bureau in Geneva under the league of nations, and they sustained the delegation which was sent to America to sit in the labor congress at Washington. They have advocated, supported and put in operation a child labor law, and are working with the government for the abolition of night work of women and special aid during maternity.

Poland already has three codes of laws, Russian, German and Austrian, regulating workmen's compensation and factory inspection. A group of labor men are working with the government committees on an amalgamated law for all of Poland. They are inclined to support the German workmen's compensation law and Austria's factory inspection law as the most satisfactory. These are facts worthy of consideration by American investors who may be considering Poland and Polish prospects.

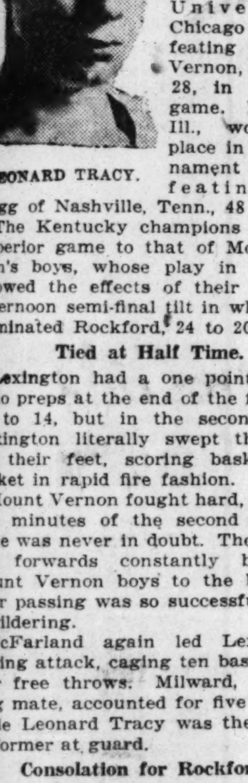
CUBS, SOX ENTER RACE MINUS FLAG HOPES

KENTUCKY SCHOOL BOYS TAKE BASKET TITLE

LEXINGTON BEATS MOUNT VERNON IN FINAL, 46 TO 28

Rockford Places Third in U. of Chicago Tourney.



LEONARD TRACY.

Displaying the same short passing attack and deadly basket shooting that characterized their play in the preliminary rounds, the Lexington, Ky., High school basketball team last night won the national interscholastic tournament at University of Chicago by defeating Mount Vernon, O., 46 to 28, in the final game. Rockford, Ill., won third place in the tournament by defeating Hume Fogg of Nashville, Tenn., 48 to 30.

The Kentucky champions played a superior game to that of Mount Vernon's boys, whose play in the final showed the effects of their gruelling afternoon semi-final tilt in which they eliminated Rockford, 24 to 20.

Tied at Half Time.

Lexington had a one point lead on Ohio preps at the end of the first half, 15 to 14, but in the second period Lexington literally swept the losers off their feet, scoring basket after basket in rapid fire fashion.

Mount Vernon fought hard, but after five minutes of the second half the issue was never in doubt. The Lexington forwards constantly beat the Mount Vernon boys to the ball, and their passing was so successful it was bewildering.

McFarland again led Lexington's scoring attack, caging ten baskets and four free throws. Milward, his running mate, accounted for five baskets, while Leonard Tracy was the feature performer at guard.

Consolation for Rockford.

The Rockford quintet had little trouble in defeating Hume Fogg in the battle for third place, 48 to 30. Rockford had the better of the contest throughout, leading the Nashville five by a fifteen point margin at half time. Gleichman led the Rockford attack with nine baskets, while Baker scored four ringers. Hume Fogg took fourth place in the tournament.

The semi-finals in the afternoon resulted in some great basketball. Mount Vernon had to stage an uphill fight and overcome a 10 point lead in the second half to beat Rockford, 24 to 20. Rockford had a 13 to 3 advantage at the end of the first period, but when Smith and Wright got the range in the second the Ohio lads set too hot a pace.

Lexington had a comparatively easy game in defeating Hume Fogg, 35 to 26. Lineups:

Penn Runs 2d To Cambridge In Relay Meet

LONDON, England, April 8.—[By the Associated Press.]—The University of Pennsylvania's quartet of diminutive mile runners finished second to Cambridge in the three-cornered international relay race between Oxford, Cambridge, and Penn in England's first relay carnival at the Queens club this afternoon. The last Penn runner finished only ten yards ahead of Milligan of Oxford. Stallard of Cambridge led Larry Brown of the American team by seventy-five yards at the finish.

H. B. STALLARD.
[Und. & Und. Photo.]

The long legged Cambridge runners made the four miles in 18:07 2-5, clipping four-fifths of a second from the former British record. The world's record, made by Boston A. A. and equaled by Cornell U., is 17:51 2-5. Pennsylvania's time was 18:20 and Oxford's 18:23 2-5 today.

Cambridge Takes Lead.

Mountain, the first Cambridge runner, took an early lead of ten yards with a wonderful sprint at the finish. He did his mile in 4:32, and Cambridge thereafter led at the end of every mile.

The order of the runners at the end of the first mile was: Mountain, Cambridge; Hewiston, Oxford; Herr, Pennsylvania. At the end of the second mile Kerr of Penn was second to Tatham of Cambridge, and at the end of the third mile the order was: Seagrave, Cambridge; McLane, Penn., and Bruxner, Oxford. Stallard's mile in 4:27 2-5 was the fastest of the race.

At the beginning of the third mile, McLane gave promise of overtaking Cambridge, but Seagrove's powerful strides were too much for him and his final sprint gave Cambridge's anchor man, Stallard, forty yards advantage over Brown.

Track Heavy After Rain.

The race was run on the quarter-mile track, which was heavy after the morning showers. But despite lowering skies, which threatened more rain, 5,000 spectators attended.

Scottish pipers and a drum corps in kilts greeted the appearance of the Pennsylvanians, who received great applause as they limbered up.

MILTON BARRED FROM AUTO RACES ON COAST TRACKS

Fresno, Cal., April 8.—Tommy Milton, national champion automobile driver, has been barred from all races on the Pacific coast, according to a telegram received by Manager H. E. Patterson of the Fresno Speedway association from William Schimpff, chairman of the national contest board of the A. A. A. in New York.

Schimpff's message said Milton had been disqualified because he demanded a bonus for entering a Fresno race and because of alleged false representations in advertising.

News a Surprise to Champ.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 8.—Tommy Milton, national champion automobile racer, said he was "tremendously surprised" when informed at his home here tonight of the action of William Schimpff, national contest board chairman of the A. A. A., in notifying Fresno race men that Milton had been barred from Pacific coast races.

WEISSMULLER LOWERS WORLD 220 SWIM MARK

Detroit, Mich., April 8.—John Weissmuller, Illinois A. C. star natator, clipped two-fifths of a second off his own world's record for the 220 yard free style in winning the national championship for that distance at the Detroit A. C. tonight. His time was 2:17 2-5.

Weissmuller won in easy fashion over Ehrlich, D. A. C., and Moore, Indiana. Norman Ross, expected to start in the event, failed to compete.

Mrs. Vonnie Malcomson, D. A. C., won the Central A. A. U. fancy diving championship.

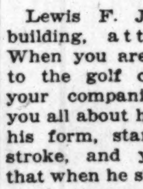
The Question.

Do you lose your temper when playing golf?

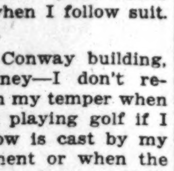
Where Asked.

Conway building, 111 West Washington street.

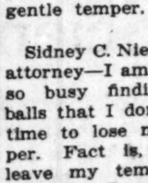
The Answers.



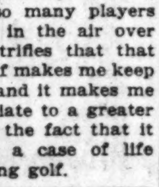
Jeoffrey Levinson, 1601 Conway building, attorney—It all depends upon what you mean by "temper." I just naturally have to cuss at every hole, but that doesn't mean that I lose my temper. Outside of that, I have a reputation for having a good disposition.



Lewis F. Jacobson, 1601 Conway building, attorney—When you are driving to the golf club and your companion tells you all about his game, his form, stance, and stroke, and you find that when he stands up at the tee and drives he tops the ball and makes an apology, wouldn't that jar you? What makes me madder still is when I follow suit.



Francis Sullivan, Conway building, attorney—I don't restrain my temper when I am playing golf if I shadow is cast by my opponent or when the gallery chatters while I am shooting. Others complain about me casting a shadow (I cast some shadow), and when it happens to me I feel justified in losing my gentle temper.



Sidney C. Nierman, Conway building, attorney—I am usually so busy finding lost balls that I don't have time to lose my temper. Fact is, I just leave my temper behind when I start playing golf. Golf is a sportsman's game, and a real sportsman keeps his temper.

Rolla R. Longenecker, Conway building, attorney—I have seen so many players go up in the air over petty trifles that that of itself makes me keep calm, and it makes me appreciate to a greater extent the fact that it is not a case of life and death when playing golf.

JAY GOULD WINS OVER MORGAN IN COURT NET FINAL

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—Jay Gould of Philadelphia easily retained his title as national amateur court tennis champion today by defeating Hewitt Morgan of New York, 6—2, 6—1, 6—0. Gould has never been beaten in this country since he acquired the championship in 1906.

UNIONS "KNIFE" BASEBALL WHILE LANDIS IS AT HEAD

BY THOMAS J. WREN.

Until the day comes when former Federal Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis ceases to be supreme arbiter in organized baseball, no click of the turnstile at a big league park will follow the entrance of a union man, according to announcement of local union leaders. Every union man attending a major league game is to be subject to fine.

EMMET T. FLOOD.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Charging that the former jurist had permitted himself to be used as a tool of "big business" in its efforts to disrupt building trade unions throughout the country by reducing wages and by his "standard agreement" in his wage award, Emmet T. Flood, Chicago representative of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday announced a complete boycott of professional baseball.

"Standard Agreement" Cause.

"His so-called standard agreement," declared Mr. Flood, "makes the union man as helpless as the professional ball player, who is bought and sold at the whim of the club owner. It makes the union man work with the non-union man, under almost any condition his employer wishes to impose."

The decision written by the judge in the Chicago building trades situation, Mr. Flood charged, has been responsible for more lockouts and strikes than any anti-union propaganda concocted in the last twenty-five years. Flood also asserted it had cost wage earners millions of dollars of pay in lost time, as well as being responsible for high rent in cities because of the building delay it has brought about.

Bitter Feeling Exists.

So bitter are union men and women at the Landis action, Mr. Flood said, that they wouldn't let him umpire a game of marbles. The decision has been used against them in every conference with their employers, he declared; they believe that the $50,000 salary turned his head.

"Most of the building trades unions have passed a rule that any member who attends a big league game will be fined," he went on. "Literature condemning the former judge has been distributed to all friends of organized labor, asking them to follow suit.

"It will be cheaper in the long run for the magnates of baseball to pay Landis his $50,000 a year for the six years remaining in his contract and dismiss him than thus to antagonize organized labor. We are intent on making club owners repudiate their commissioner—give him the gate."

Predict Big Deficit.

If, on the other hand, the baseball men stand by the contract, and the arbiter fulfills his term of office, Mr. Flood predicted that they will need assistance from "big business" to make up the deficit.

"Trade unionists, who as a whole are ardent fans," he concluded, "will patronize the semi-pro and amateur games, and may even throw the old pill around a bit themselves."

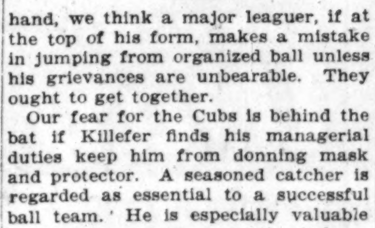
IN the WAKE of the NEWS

WHITE SOX AND CUBS.

WHITE SOX and Cubs open their seasons in the American and National leagues, respectively, this week. For these two teams, which in the past have brought league championships and world's titles to Chicago, critics who have studied them at their training camps hold out little hope of their being actually in the running for the flags. In fact, few accord either a place in the first division.

Thus fans know about the worst that can happen and are not keyed up to a high state of expectation. From merely a casual survey, there seems to The Wake one major weakness in each outfit.

The Sox, at best none too strong on the pitching mound, will miss sadly Dick Kerr if he adheres to his determination to join the semipros because of his salary differences with the south side management. We think the White Sox can ill afford to lose a tried pitcher by failing to pay any salary within reason. On the other hand, we think a major leaguer, if at the top of his form, makes a mistake in jumping from organized ball unless his grievances are unbearable. They ought to get together.



Our fear for the Cubs is behind the bat if Killefer finds his managerial duties keep him from donning mask and protector. A seasoned catcher is regarded as essential to a successful ball team. He is especially valuable in steadying young or erratic pitchers.

Since critics have not lead us to expect much in the championship standing from our two teams, fans are in a position to be agreeably surprised—and baseball is notoriously uncertain.

Perhaps I've set my mark too high;
At least there's something wrong, for I

There was a handicap at Hawthorne, eighteen horses, with McChesney favorite at 3 to 1. I told the copper to bet $2 on Big Mac parleyed on Nitrate. Of course you remember Big Mac—the longer the distance and the heavier the weight the better he ran.

For some reason, the copper didn't like McChesney and switched the bet to Lucien Appleby and Nitrate. McChesney won and also Nitrate at 10 to 1. Just figure what I lost and what it meant to a 14 year old kid. G. J.

KILLEFERS PICKED TO LAND 4TH; GLEASON JOB TO ESCAPE CELLAR

Weakness on Slab Will Prove Big Handicap.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—A team that lacks in pitching strength cannot make progress. Such is going to be the fix of Gleason's White Sox in the impending American league race. One man—Urban (Red) Faber—is all that separates the one time powerful white legged crew from an ironclad lease on the cellar position.

"KID" GLEASON.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

When Gleason sends his charges out for their first league effort next Wednesday he will start on a quest that is going to be the most discouraging undertaken by a Sox pilot in recent years. If he had the needed hurling he could have a lot of fun during the summer, but the hurling isn't obtainable and the few great athletes still on the team will have to suffer along with the mediocres who wouldn't be there if the 1919 series fiasco hadn't occurred.

Lack of Ability Offsets Sprit.

At times much stress is put upon the spirit of a team. Sometimes this is of importance and again it is not. In the Sox case it is not. The team is far from resigned to its fate. All spring the fellows have been displaying an aggressiveness that really is surprising. However, spirit and determination get one nowhere unless coupled with ability. There is not enough of the latter.

The hardest blow Gleason had to take was the defection of Dick Kerr, the wee southpaw. Kerr may not be a great pitcher, but next to Faber he is better than anything the team now boasts, and for that reason he is needed. Of course, there is a chance that he may yet get what he asks for. If he returns he will serve a double purpose. Not only will he win a few games, but the fact that he is back will have a healthy effect on the other men.

Same Team as in 1921.

Getting away from the pitching staff, Gleason is going to have about the same team as last season. The infield will be altered slightly with McClellan on third in place of Mulligan. The change probably will work a slight improvement, but not enough to be of any account. McClellan will field better than Mulligan and his hitting this spring has been so consistent that he may swat the pill as effectively as his predecessor.

The other infield occupants have their good and bad points. Eddie Collins, of course, requires no comment. He is still the same Eddie Collins. Earl Sheely, at first, has only one drawback. He is slow due to some one's bungled job in setting a fractured ankle. Had that mishap been handled properly Sheely, no doubt, would have been a second Hal Chase. Even as he is, he feels almost as well.

Johnson Needs Speed.

Ernie Johnson at short lacks many of the snappy features that go to make up a star. However, he is steady in the field, hits fairly well, and knows how to play the game. The fact that he uses his head adds to his value. It would help if he possessed a little more speed in his legs.

The outfield is going to be fair. in fact, the best part of the team. Harry Hooper in right leaves hardly anything to be desired. Strunk, if he plays center, is not as fast as of yore and doesn't throw as well as he once did, but still can go get 'em. If Mostil is used in center he will add speed and throwing ability, but he doesn't employ enough brain matter. It is the latter that is keping him from being a truly great.

In the spring games Gleason hasn't been employing Bib Falk to any extent and the case is somewhat puzzling. The ex-collegian is a fine prospect and deserves a place in the outfield. He reported late and it may be that Gleason is disciplining him.

New Players Lack Class.

New fellows are not going to figure very extensively at any time. Gleason brought little else than pitching prospects on the spring trip. From the latter he may get a couple of men, but nothing of a sensational nature. Of the few others on hand Roy Graham, a catcher, will survive. He looks good, but lacks experience. There is room for a second string backstop because Yam Yaryan is not of big league caliber. He can hit and that is all.

Of the new hurlers Jos Acosta probably will be a regular because of circumstance. He is a little fellow with much stuff. How he will act if worked hard is a question. Shovel Hodge, the tall Alabama lad, also is slated for regular toil. He is about the best bet that Gleason possesses right now. However, he needs experience, so it may be well along in the season before he shows what he really is worth.

Kid Hurlers Require Tutoring.

Anything can happen to the other pitchers. Some may stay because there is room for them, not because they are particularly good. However, whether they remain or go to the minors they will require tutoring.

In conclusion let it be said that while the Sox will have a poor team they will not want for company. Three other entries in the league aren't going to be much better off, and the team that finishes fifth will deserve no more mention than the tailender.

Gleason, of course, has his excuse He had a great team and they junked it. Another is not going to be built overnight.

Real Team with Plenty of Pep on North Side.

BY FRANK SMITH.

Kansas City, Mo., April 8.—[Special.]—Put the Cubs in fourth place in the coming National league pennant race, which opens on Wednesday. All this in spite of the recent poor showing of the team.

BILL KILLEFER.

This prediction is made after lengthy conversations with various members of the crew and particularly after hearing a long and careful diagnosis by Manager Bill Killefer of conditions on the team, and the ability of the different players.

Johnny Seys, who made a study of major league baseball for years as a scribe and latterly as secretary and business manager of the Cubs, and members of the press who have been with the aggregation since it first struck Catalina island, are of the opinion that there is the making of a championship team of the present crowd of veterans and youngsters.

Fans to See Real Team.

With the addition of three or four promising lads this season to what turned out to be more or less of a joke team last year, north side fans may look forward to seeing some real baseball during the 1922 race. This prediction is made, of course, under the impression that the team will go through the season without serious injuries and that its slab men will live up to advance notices.

The present Cub aggregation is full of pep. In recent seasons this has been lacking to a great extent. Winning or losing, these birds are on their toes. If this condition continues—there appears no reason at the present time why it should not—there won't be a lost game until the last man is out.

Killefer Instills Pep.

Why all this pep, one may ask, knowing conditions throughout last season. There is one answer—Bill Killefer. Bill always has had a lot of pep, but the Cub dish was seasoned with other spices that seemed to counteract the Killefer article. These are absent this year, and it is not necessary to mention them here.

From here it looks as if the Giants, in spite of their showing to date against the White Sox, would cop the gonfalon, with St. Louis giving them a hard tussle. The Cards' pitchers, however, must stand up under the strain to make this prediction good.

There are only two other teams in the league which seem to have a chance with the Cubs. Those are from Boston and Pittsburgh.

Strong Defensive Machine.

The present Cub lineup, as a defensive machine, looks to be one of the best in the National league. This has been demonstrated. Its offensive front is yet to be determined. On paper, the team boasts some corking good hitters, but to date, except spasmodically, it has failed to show anything worth very much praise. On the slab, the team seems better fortified than ever.

Grimes appears to have cinched the first base job, on account of his heavy hitting. Golvin will be retained, for he is an exceptionally clever fielder and more sensational than Grimes, but lacks the Grimes punch at the plate, and that is one thing the Cubs need.

New Face at Second Base.

At second base north side fans will see a new face. The injury to Terry, who probably will be unable to get back in the game for another month, made it necessary for Killefer to groom some one for his place. Krug is his choice.

Hollocher is a fixture at shortstop, with Kelliher in like position at third. In the event Hollocher is hurt, Kelliher will be moved over to short and either Friberg or Klugmann will be set in at third.

Hack Miller will open the season in left field. Miller came to the Cubs with a great reputation, but up to the present time has not shown the punch that made him famous on the coast. He will have to keep stepping to hold down the berth, for Killefer has two or three likely looking youngsters who are fighting for recognition.

Statz Cinches Berth.

Statz appears to have cinched the centerfield berth, but the right garden defender has not been decided on. It would not be surprising if Killefer started Callaghan there and kept Barber, Weiss, and Maisel on the side lines for eventualities.

The catching department is in great shape. Hartnett seems to be the find of the season. He is another Schalk, full of pep and gabby as a parrot. He is fighting for his pitcher all of the time and undoubtedly will do the brunt of the receiving during the season. O'Farrell will be second string man, with Wirts in the bull pen. Killefer will do little catching, unless it is to take care of one or two of the youngsters who need a veteran's coaching.

The fans will be glad to know that big Grover Alexander is in better shape than he has been in two years or more.

Fans can bank on Alex starting the season at Cincinnati and taking his regular turn on the slab. Next comes Aldrich. He is in tiptop shape and unless all signs fail he will be the second regular. Then comes Jones and Stueland.

Bill Killefer is satisfied that he has a good team and that a lot of speculators on the ultimate position of the Cubs are poor guessers.

GIANTS TAKE ANOTHER FROM WHITE SOX, 5-3

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

"RED" FABER.

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—What was planned as Red Faber's tapering off workout incidental to his appearance in the season's opener Wednesday wasn't exactly a success today. The big fellow showed he is ready, all right, but wasn't at his best, and after four rounds was rushed off the scene. Shovel Hodge succeeded him, and between what happened to the latter and to the former, the Giants scampered off with a 5 to 3 victory before about 7,500 fans.

Not only was Gleason's hurling a bit shy of the standard the Giants command when on their own hill, but the offense also was off color. Numerically the hits were sufficient and all were bunched in pairs, but just when things looked promising, the Giants either pulled a smart piece of fielding or the westerners foozled.

One Run Off Douglas.

McGraw employed Douglas and Virgil Barnes, and the former was by far the better. Only one run, which was the result of a double by Collins and triple by Hooper in the first inning, was produced off the veteran. When the younger Barnes took up the job in the sixth, he fell into a peck of trouble, but luck was with him.

The Giants got to Faber in a hurry, Bancroft starting the fun in the first with a single and scoring on a similar blow by Groh. This run evened up for what the Sox grabbed off in their opening. Then in the second George Kelly slapped Mr. Faber's first pitch into the left field seats for a homer.

Johnson's Double Evens Count.

The Sox knotted it in the sixth on a double by Johnson, a force out, and a hit by Hooper. The Giants immediately got one in their half on a double by Groh, his steal of third, and Young's fly. The last two Giant runs counted in the eighth on three singles and the Sox got their third counter in the ninth on hits by Strunk and Schalk. Score:

NO CUBS GAME; RAIN

BY FRANK SMITH.

Kansas City, Mo., April 8.—[Special.]—A sprinkle of rain which greeted the Cubs on their arrival here turned into a regular downpour by noon, forcing the Kansas City management to cancel today's game with the Cubs, and thus the day was utterly ruined. It was still raining tonight, and unless it stops before morning tomorrow's game will also be thrown into the discard. If there is a game it probably will be called at 2:30 o'clock in order that the Cubs can catch the 5:30 train for Indianapolis.

Alex the Great was scheduled to don the spangles today, and is in good enough shape to have gone the distance had it been necessary.

The layoff will have a bad effect on the Cubs. The boys moped about the hotel corridors, cursing their luck. They had hoped to unlimber every day before the opening of the season. George Maisel is about the only one who had derived much benefit since the Cubs hopped off the train at Hutchinson. He umpired the two games at Wichita and separated Frank Isbell from $20 for his work. This was almost as much as the Cub management got from the two exhibitions.

President Veeck was expected here this morning, but Manager Killefer recieved a telegram which announced that the prexy will not join the team until it reaches Cincinnati.

BROWNS DEFEAT CARDINALS IN OPENER, 3 TO 2

St. Louis, Mo., April 8.—[Special.]—The Browns defeated Cardinals today, 3 to 2, in the opening game of the St. Louis spring series before a crowd of 15,000. It rained throughout the morning, and up until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and the field was a sea of mud. Shocker held the Nationals, after the first inning, when two runs were scored on singles by Smith and Hornsby, a fumble by Gerber on Stock's grounder, and passed ball by Severeid.

The Browns tied it in the second on a double by Jacobson and drive over the left field fence by Severeid. In the ninth Jacobson, Williams, and Gerber bunched singles for the winning run. Score:

Cardinals ....200 000 000—2 9 1
Browns ....020 000 001—3 10 1

Batteries—Sherdel and Ainsmith; Shocker and Severeid.

REPORT OUTLAW CLUBS IN OFFER TO MILLER MEN

Minneapolis, Minn., April 8.—Reports that three members of the St. Joseph Western league team had jumped their club and that several members of the Minneapolis association club has been offered more lucrative salaries to play with outlaw associations threw consternation into the Miller camp here. The three who are said to have balked at going to St. Joseph are Pat Clarke, Morrissette, and Drew Rader, all pitchers.

REDS RELEASE A PAIR.

Cincinnati, O., April 8.—Cincinnati Nationals today announced that Kennett Hogan, outfield, and Pitcher Victor Johnson would be unconditionally released.

Always a Fighter, Champion Dempsey Finds His "Business" Real Pleasure

BY MAUDE MARTIN ELLIS.

"I'VE liked every guy I've fought," says Jack Dempsey. "There's never any personal feeling between us. Jess Willard was a fine lad. 'Carpenter' and I didn't have much time to get well acquainted but we played a game of golf together and had a lot of fun. They're all good scouts. I never hated any of 'em."

That is the way Jack Dempsey seems to think of the whole world, imperturbably good natured, cheerful, obliging and winningly courteous.

His smile is the kind that warms the cockles of your heart, spontaneous, ever ready, containing an Irish quality of humor and generosity revealing a row of white even teeth that contrast healthily in his tanned face.

The highest proof of his good disposition was shown by the manner in which he received an unexpected early morning caller. Roused by the telephone, he hurried through his toilette, rushed in to receive his unknown guest before his breakfast had been served with as bright and friendly an air as the early robin.

For one who holds the mighty championship of the world in that royal sport, the fighting arena, there might be expected some slight awareness of his position. But not Jack. He was boyishly frank and unassuming. He said that the publicity and adulation and admiring trailers are a part of the day's business. He never thinks about it. It is the natural course of events.

"Fighting is my business," announced Jack. "I never was crazy about anything else. I didn't like school, but I stuck through the grammar grades to please my mother. The minute I was out of my cradle, I wanted to be a scrapper. Born in me. My folks nor anybody else never tried to influence me either for or against the ring. My older brother was a boxer. He was twenty years older than me and he quit before I started. I made up my mind to lick the fellow who knocked my brother out, and I did."

Smiling his happiest, Jack admitted that his chief occupation in the place where he was born, Manassa, Colo., was scrapping. How often must his mother have wailed, "When will you learn to play like a nice little boy? Must you come home with a bloody nose every day?"

"At 13," says Jack, "my school days ended and I broke into fighting for good. I was big for my age, and anyhow I never told how old I was. When I was broke I left fighting and went to work; soon as I got some kale I went back to the ropes. You see, there wasn't much money in fights those days; sometimes I fought for $10 or $15, and sometimes less."

Jack allowed as how he was an ardent baseball fan, liked all outdoor sports, enjoyed musical comedies, and that his reading was confined for the greater part to newspapers and magazines. But, best of all in his business, is his keen pleasure and enthusiasm in testing his strength, skill, and speed against an opponent in a ring! "I like it best," he laughed, "when the other fellow hands me a good wallop; then I cut loose and show myself a good time!"

At that moment the champion's breakfast arrived. The waiter lifted the silvers with a flourish and disclosed buttered toast and half of a grapefruit and a glass of water.

Thinking that the sight of food would quell the savage breast and turn thoughts to gentler things, Jack's caller ventured a question, "Isn't there anything to the rumor of your engagement to Bebe Daniels?"

Jack risked strangling on a bit of grapefruit by a laugh. "Not a thing in the world," says he. The question seemed to tickle him so much that his caller looked doubtful.

"I'll cross my heart and swear it honest true!" he added.

He's tangled in no love affairs, he swears; his only sweetheart is his mother.

"I have never paid any attention to a special diet," said Jack as his caller reluctantly changed the subject, "except two weeks before a fight is on. A fellow instinctively gets to know what is good for him; no coffee or tea, of course, and few sweets."

Asked whether any fighting dates are arranged in France, whither Jack is bound, he replied, "Not yet," but he hoped there would be soon. "I am such a poor sailor," he mourned. "I'm taking along a case of limes."

Well, thought his caller, he's only a small boy for all his 26 years, who loves a scrap with another little boy. He has never grown up and never will. Rising, the caller bade the champ "goodby and good luck in France," offering an apology for intruding upon his slumbers.

"That's all right," said Jack with a smile, "glad to have metcha, hope you see me fight sometime!" Up towered his 6 feet and more of height and out came the mighty "haymaker" in a final handshake.

Yes, mused the caller on the way to the elevator, his fighting ought to be a grand sight, especially if, since he says he has liked all the pugilists he has laid out—what wouldn't he do if he met one he really could hate!

DICK KERR ABSENT, CITY HALLS LOSE, 6-2

The touted city hall all star baseball team, in its first appearance yesterday at De Paul field, lacked the services of Dick Kerr, former White Sox hurler, Charley Deal and Bobby Roth. With a patched lineup they were beaten 6 to 2 by the team from the fire department.

Kerr has not arrived in town yet, and Charley Deal has changed his mind about joining the semi-pros, instead being on his way to join the Los Angeles team of the Coast league. Bobby Roth is in town waiting orders to report to the Yankees.

Count Zwiefka worked three innings for the Fireos and did not allow the City Halls a hit. Long Tom Hughes did duty on the mound for three innings for the Halls and showed well.

SEMI-PRO NINES TO JOLT LID OFF BY GAMES TODAY

BILL NEISEN.

With the major leagues all set for their openings Wednesday, the local semi-pros will make an attempt to beat them by a few days by getting started this afternoon. Nearly all the parks will be open for regular ball games or for some kind of a practice stunt.

Bill Niesen, president of the Midwest association and owner of the Pyotts, has an honest to goodness contest billed for this afternoon. The Beloit club, winner of the pennant last season in the Midwest league, will stop off on their way from West Baden, where they have been training for the last two weeks and linger long enough for a tilt with the Pyotts.

Vaughn on Slab.

The visitors will have a big advantage over the local team, coming here in midseason form. Bim Jim Vaughn, former Cub hurler, will be sent to the mound for Beloit in the hopes of starting the season with a victory. Niesen will use both Buckeye and Baichley to foel the Beloit batsmen.

A couple of new faces may appear in the Beloit lineup, but the visitors will be the same as their last appearance in Chicago. Shortstop Daubert, who was with the Pyotts in 1920, will be back this year and Catcher Glocksin from the Three Eyes league will do the back stopping for the home club.

Squares Play Giants.

Johnny Callahan at Logan Square will send his boys out for practice against the Union Giants, one of the best traveling colored teams in the country. Rip Hagerman, the Square's new twirler, will work a couple of innings. Another new face in a home uniform, but a popular idol at the Square, George Halas, will be at second.

The Marquette Manors will open their gates for the first time this year to entertain the champion Belle Plaines of the Interstate league, where they were the cup winners last season. Lefty Sullivan, a south side favorite when with the White Sox, is billed for mound duty with Rudy Rehor back of the bat.

George Perring, the old Cleveland third sacker, is to captain the team and play first. Duth Winkler and Tommy Flynn are other members of the infield. The visitors will have Elmer, the sensational young twirler, and Jack Fleming as a battery.

INDUSTRIAL PIN TOURNEY OPENS AT RANDOLPH

The second annual championship industrial bowling tournament, held under auspices of the Association of Commerce and sanctioned by the American Bowling congress, opened at Randolph alleys last night. Three squads of ten men each faced the pins for the first night of the schedule, which will continue until May 3. The minor events will start tomorrow afternoon. It was Western Electric night.

Hawthorne club No. 17 shot 2,953 for the top mark. They had games of 921, 1,026, and 1,006, with Joe Smid setting the pace with 650. G. Esping was another double centurion on the same team with 621. The Hawthorne club No. 15 was second high with 2,693.

Following are last night's high scores:

Hawthorne club No. 17, 2,953; Hawthorne No. 15, 2,693; Hawthorne No. 4, 2,687; Hawthorne No. 19, 2,683; Peabody Coal Co., 2,678; Hawthorne No. 20, 2,660; Quaker Oats, 2,651; Hawthorne No. 16, 2,631; Hawthorne No. 18, 2,620.

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

by A. R. METCALFE

STRETCHING A BID BEYOND THE LIMITS OF COMMON SENSE.

"BIDDING to the score" is a much abused term. Players use it as an excuse for bidding on hands from which no score would justify a bid and for stretching a bid beyond the limits of common sense.

The following deal occurred during the last week. It was the rubber game and the dealer held: Hearts, ace, jack, ten, nine, six, four; spades, queen, seven, six; diamonds, ace, ten, four; clubs, seven. He bid two hearts, the next two players passed, and the fourth player bid three clubs.

Without hesitation, the dealer went to three hearts, which was the final bid. He was beaten one trick, or fifty points, but held thirty-two in honors, the king being in dummy, so that the loss was negligible. The serious loss lay in the fact that his partner would have doubled three clubs and won 300 points with simple honors.

One heart would have been a better original bid, as the dealer had good support for any declaration except clubs, and the bid of three hearts was inexcusable.

The usual defense, "My partner might have had so-and-so," is especially absurd. With the cards in question the partner would support the bid if given an opportunity, and a player should never bid on his partner's hand.

Some nice counting is shown in the deal which follows:

THE HANDS.

S—Q, 8, 6, 5, 3, 2.
H—7, 5, 3, 2.
C—Q, 6, 2.

12	8S	DJ	DQ	7S
13	QS	DA	DK	9S

West secured ten tricks.

There was nothing unusual in the play of the first nine tricks. There was no reason for the declarer to expect that south held the king, jack of hearts only, and that he could make the four small hearts held by dummy.

But the play of the last four tricks was very pretty. First, the declarer offered north a trick in the spade suit, which was declined. Then he led the singleton ten of diamonds and passed it in dummy. This trick south also declined, although he knew that in so doing he gave away the last chance of making a trick in the suit. But these two plays of north and south finally compelled the declarer to give north two spade tricks at the end.

Reëntry Problem.

The next deal illustrates a very common reëntry problem.

West secured eight tricks.

The real play was all in the south hand. Refusing the first round of diamonds was simple, but allowing the ten of spades to win at eight was first rate bridge.

South knew that he would lose his king of spades by this play, but by so doing he killed the diamond tricks in dummy and saved the game.

East easily could have made game had he played diamonds as trumps.

"CAP" ANSON, FAMOUS VETERAN OF DIAMOND, STRICKEN ON STREET

CAPT. ADRIAN C. ANSON, famous old time manager and captain of the Cubs ball club, well known in bowling, billiards, and golf, was stricken on the street yesterday and rushed to St. Luke's hospital, where he was operated on for glandular trouble. Reports from his bedside late last night were that the veteran athlete was resting well and in no serious condition.

Anson will be 70 years old April 17.

Interclub Bowling Meet at C. A. A., I. A. C., April 25

The sixth tournament of the Interclub Bowling association will be held at the Chicago A. A. and the Illinois A. C. April 25 to 28. The tournament will be limited to two five man teams, five doubles pairs, and ten individuals from each club.

The five man teams will bowl at the C. A. A. and the doubles and individuals at the I. A. C.

BICYCLE BODIES FORM WORKING AGREEMENT

The Bicycle League of America has formed a working agreement with the National Cycling association for the control of amateur bicycle road racing and flat floor racing in the country, Julian T. Fitzgerald, western representative of the A. B. L., has announced. This agreement also will include any racing on dirt tracks, or in connection with A. A. U. events.

The American Bicycle league was formed in 1920, is affiliated with the A. A. U., and hopes to take over control of all amateur bike activities. The National association has controlled the sport for a number of years, but has turned aside from the amateur sport to cater to the professionals. The A. B. L. has been organized to promote the amateur side of the game.

The Arrow Cycle club has applied for a sanction for a ten mile race for May 10, while the Opal A. A. has applied for a sanction for a series of Douglas park May 21. The Cycle Dealers' association of Chicago is arranging a 100 mile marathon race from Milwaukee to Chicago, to be held on Decoration day.

"Big Salaries for First-Class Salesmen"

Let "America's Best-Known Sales Manager" Make You Eligible

Mr. Maxwell's materials are drawn out of the abundance of his own personal experience. All the steps of salesmanship from approach of your prospect to closing the sale [illegible] New York Commerce & Finance.

WILLIAM MAXWELL—esteemed the country over as "America's best-known sales manager"—knows that whether you are selling merchandise to customers, ideas to clients, or service to your superiors, the thing you must do first, foremost and all the time is to sell yourself. The man who sells himself successfully—and he alone—holds down the positions that pay $25,000, $50,000 and more.

That is the basic idea behind the remarkable course of home study Mr. Maxwell has prepared for men with a real ambition to get ahead.

William Maxwell Orientation System of Scientific Salesmanship

THIS is a brass-tacks course on how to sell, written by a man who has actually marketed, personally, about two hundred million dollars worth of goods. It tells, specifically, how to acquire self-confidence—how to handle the approach—the control of the interview—how to close—solutions for the thousand and one problems the salesman and the sales manager meet every day.

William Maxwell's Estimate of Your Ability FREE

But in order to give you the individual supervision that Mr. Maxwell accords all his students, it is necessary that he know something about you personally.

To that end, he has devised a Personal Analysis Sheet—a list of fascinating questions which will give him and you a clear opportunity to take stock of your selling personality. At your request, he will send you a copy of this chart to fill in. You fill it—if you wish, answer the questions and send them back to Mr. Maxwell. He will study your answers carefully and will send you his opinion of your chances of future success in the work.

Mr. Maxwell's expert opinion on such matters is of incalculable value to any man who needs to sell himself. Many a man, indeed, would have given much to have had just that opinion, had he had the chance, before he started on his career.

It is the opportunity of a lifetime for you. It will cost you nothing and it will put you under no obligation whatever. With Mr. Maxwell's Personal Analysis Sheet will come a free copy of the brochure, "How to Sell Yourself for $25,000 a Year." This, too, is priceless information for the man who would learn how to fill the big jobs.

This is a golden opportunity that may show you new vistas, to a future of undreamed wealth and happiness. It may keep you from serious failure. It will cost you nothing. Send the coupon today. Even an hour's delay means lost opportunity.

Act now — at once — and get an opinion that may be worth every thing to you and won't cost you a cent.

CANUCK AXMAN LATEST TO SEEK DEMPSEY'S TITLE

BY HARRY NEWMAN.

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—Add another candidate to the galaxy of heavyweight youngsters who are crowding the rail these days trying for the lead position among the prospects who would knock Jack Dempsey flatter than a pint of Volstead brew. The latest is Elziar Rioux, discovered in a Canadian lumber camp, and what a whale of a kid is Elziar! Twenty-three years old, standing 6 feet 4¼ inches in his well known sox, and weighing about 240 pounds, the young Canadian lumberman is a sure enough giant.

Dr. J. P. Gadbois of Montreal, who for thirty years has been looking for a physically perfect Canadian, is sponsor for the young Canadian, and this time the learned physician believes that his long search will be rewarded in this monster lumberjack.

Discovered in Lumber Camp.

The discovery of this mighty man leads back to a lumber camp located on a certain stream at a place called Three Rivers, in the province of Quebec. "Big Swede" was the bully of the whole outfit. He was a powerful axman, but a coward at heart, and, like all men of his type, he had a horde of cowardly followers. He was cruel in his treatment of his associates and frequently beat up the inoffensive workmen just to provide amusement for himself and measly gang.

One day Elziar Rioux, a young man from Trois Pistoles, County of Tomisconata, made his appearance at the camp looking for work and was immediately accepted. "Big Swede" scowled a greeting at the young giant, but it was not until several days later that the bully challenged Elziar to a test of strength. To the surprise of the entire camp, "Big Swede" was worsted by the stranger.

Attacked by Bully.

Smarting under defeat before his followers, the bully leaped at our hero before the latter had a chance to defend himself and with a powerful blow to the face cut a deep gash under Rioux's left eye. That cowardly blow proved to be the undoing of "Big Swede."

Rioux was in a half sitting position when the blow landed, but before the bully could get out of the way Elziar drew back his right foot and planted it with all his might on the chest of "Big Swede." The force of the kick sent the coward fully ten feet before he pulled up behind a small table at the end of the room. He was unconscious and together with other bruises he had three broken ribs and a dislocated shoulder.

Licks Flock of Rowdies.

That was the signal for those cowardly followers to take a hand in the mêlée. Straightaway they made for Rioux with the evident intention of killing him. What a fight ensued! What did it matter that one of those skulking fellows reached for an ax handle and brought it down with awful force on the head of young Elziar. It only served to make him fight the harder, and when those followers of the big bully tried to close in on him he tossed them about like nine pins.

Although almost blinded with blood, Rioux continued his attack against that gang with tremendous fury and in less than twenty minutes he had cleared the room of the bully's gang and wound up by throwing "Big Swede" through an open door into a snow heap.

Picked Up by Dr. Gadbois.

News of that awful battle at the lumber camp reached the ears of Dr. Gadbois in Montreal, and the man who for thirty long years has been looking for the physically perfect Canadian who might be developed into a heavyweight ring champion of the world immediately got in touch with the big lumberjack. Right now he has him undergoing a system of training which will last six months. Singularly enough, this course of training which Dr. Gadbois has mapped out for Rioux does not include boxing. As a matter of fact Rioux has never had a boxing glove on his hands.

Dr. Gadbois believes that at last he has discovered a perfect specimen. At least he has decided, after a scientific examination, that it is worth while to work on Rioux for six months to determine if he can be groomed into the best possible candidate to take away Dempsey's crown.

Foe for Jack Dempsey?

At the end of six months, if Dr. Gadbois is satisfied with the results, he will have him schooled in boxing and then send his charge against Jack Dempsey. For the present the doctor is entertaining fond hopes that his big boy will some day be heavyweight boxer of the world.

In the meanwhile, the field of candidates is getting bigger every day. Looks as though Dempsey will be pretty well occupied for some time. Poor Jack!

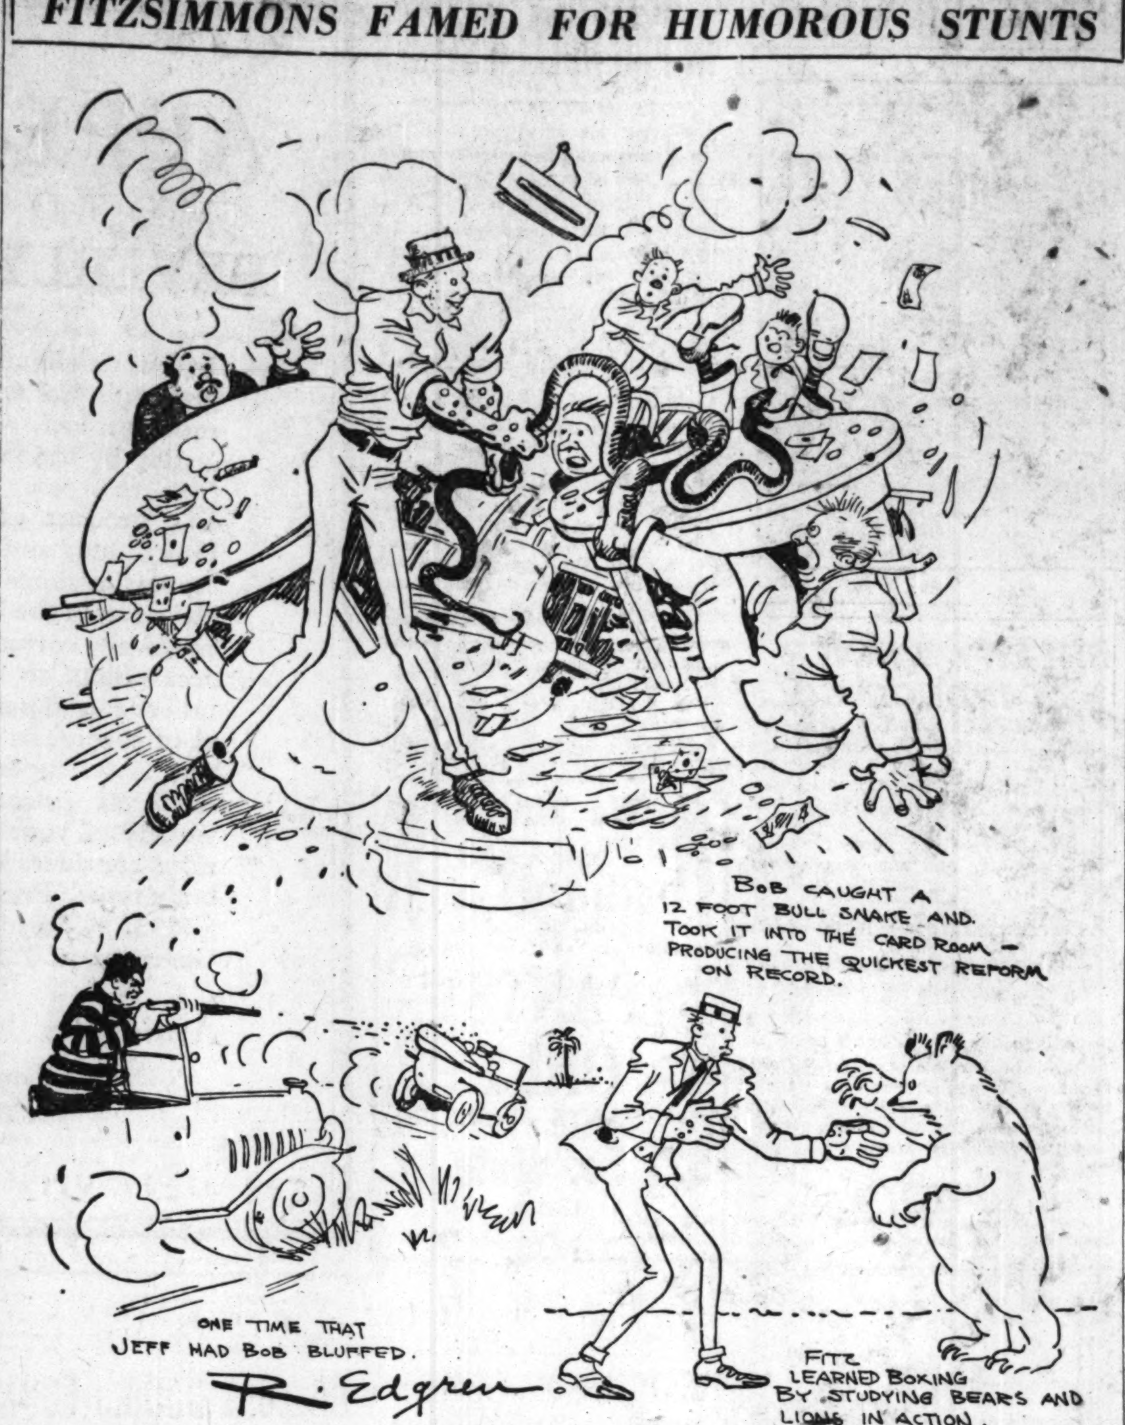
FITZSIMMONS FAMED FOR HUMOROUS STUNTS



BOB CAUGHT A 12 FOOT BULL SNAKE AND TOOK IT INTO THE CARD ROOM—PRODUCING THE QUICKEST REFORM ON RECORD.
ONE TIME THAT JEFF HAD BOB BLUFFED.
FITZ LEARNED BOXING BY STUDYING BEARS AND LIONS IN ACTION.
R. Edgren

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

JACK JEFFRIES was in a reminiscent mood the other evening, and Bob Fitzsimmons was his subject.

"Jim and I surely liked old Bob," said Jack. "He was the greatest fighter of his weight that ever lived, and he was full of jokes. One afternoon when Bob was helping Jim train up at Harbin Springs for his second fight with Corbett Bob and Jim started off on a deer hunt. A couple of hours later Bob came back alone. I met him as he was hiking into camp and asked him what he was back for, and if he got a deer.

"'No,' said Bob. 'But look 'ere.'

Captures Big Bull Snake.

"I noticed that Bob looked fat around the middle. He pulled back his coat and stuck his hand into the opening of his shirt and felt around, and in a minute pulled it out again with a grip around the neck of the biggest bull snake I ever saw. He pulled the snake out yard by yard. It must have been twelve feet long. Anyway, it looked that long. He had it wrapped around his waist.

"'Won't hurt you,' said Bob. ''E don't bite. I was 'iking along behind Jim when I saw this snake scoot across the trail into the brush and I dived in after 'im and got 'im. Come on. I'm going to 'ave some fun.'

Panic of Gamblers.

"Bob pushed the snake inside his shirt again and started for the hotel. I followed. There was a cardroom where the guests had card games going. It was always crowded. A lot of people were playing when Bob came in. Money and chips were all over the place.

"Bob strolled around to the middle of the room and all of a sudden pulled the snake out and waved it across the tables.

"There were wild yells and shrieks and people tumbled over each other to get out through the door. In half a minute the place was emptied, the tables and chairs were upset, and chips and money were scattered around on the floor.

"All those games were scrambled. I don't know how they ever straightened out their accounts.

Bob's Fish Trick.

"Bob had a favorite trick. In the hotel yard was a pool and a fountain. Bob would get down on his knees and stare into the pool, and then move around a little and stare some more. Some new arrival who didn't know Bob's tricks would come over to see what he was looking at.

"Pretty soon he'd ask Bob what he was looking at, and Bob would get up and say: 'Why, there's the funniest little goldfish down there I ever saw.'

"Then the stranger would get down on his hands and knees and look in where Bob pointed, and Bob would give him a little shove so he'd take a header into the pool. Bob would run like a kid and stay out of camp for an hour or so, and come in looking innocent and not knowing anything about it.

"Bob had a shotgun experience. He, Jim Jeffries, Mayor Harper, and Eddie Maier went quail hunting up the valley. While they were fooling around camp Eddie saw Jim's legs under a tree about a hundred yards away. Jim was standing there with his back turned. Just for fun Eddie picked up a shotgun and blazed away. Jim got half a dozen shot in the back of his calves. They're in him still. Jim jumped about twenty feet right up in the air, came down and started for Eddie on the run.

Jeff Gets Revenge.

"Eddie and the mayor and Fitzsimmons dashed for Eddie's car and lit out across the desert. Jim got his shotgun and piled into his big car and went after them. Eddie's engine was missing and he couldn't make quite speed enough to get away, and every time Jim got within long range he'd let go the steering wheel and stand up for a moment and bang away with a load of quail shot. Eddie'd duck, but he had to sit at the wheel. Bob and the mayor got down behind the seat and stayed out of range. The back of Eddie's car was so full of dents it looked like a pepper can. After a while Eddie got four or five shot in the back of his neck and stopped the car and Jim came up and called it quits.

"Mad? No, of course not. Those fellows were always kidding each other. Kind of rough, maybe, but they never got sore. They thought it was a great joke. It was a big laugh to them when it was over. They kind of had Bob scared, though. He thought it was a real gun fight."

REMATCH BOXERS IN BOUTS ENDED HASTILY

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Unsatisfactory termination of two recent boxing contests by the foul route has led to the rematching of principals in one contest and tentative closing of the other match.

Sam Langford, known as a great fighter in his heyday, lost to Tug Jackson on a foul at Dayton, O., last Thursday night. According to Jim Mullen, manager of Langford, the referee erred in his judgment, as he disqualified the local colored fighter for hitting with one arm free in the clinches.

Rematch Langford-Jackson.

Boxing fans in Dayton, although friendly to Jackson, asserted Langford was given a raw deal and that the contest never should have been stopped. As a result of the sudden ending of what gave promise of being a great battle the pair have been rematched for twelve rounds to a referee's decision on a winner take all basis. The Dayton promoters have offered 50 per cent of the receipts. The tentative date is April 17.

Last Friday night Georgie Spencer of Buffalo lost on a foul to Sammy Mandell of Rockford on the U. S. S. Commodore. The low blow was delivered in the fifth round and spoiled a lively evening for a capacity crowd. Although the referee was justified in his decision, followers of both fighters asked for a return match.

Mandell Ready for Rematch.

Phil Collins, matchmaker and referee for Naval post of the American Legion, which staged the show, will consider a return match for his next show. Eddie Kane and Eddie Long, joint managers of Mandell, are willing to agree to a return match on a winner take all basis, the decision to be left to a board of judges. The bout will be closed as soon as the proposition is put up to Spencer and his manager, Larney Lichtenstein.

Sam Langford will resume training tomorrow for his ten round bout with Jack Leslie at Indianapolis Saturday.

Eddie Kane, manager of Tom Gibbons, St. Paul heavyweight, stated his fighter will start training tomorrow for pending matches. Among a number of offers under consideration is a return bout with Harry Greb.

Pal Moore, local bantam, will settle down to hard work at the Arcade tomorrow for his ten round clash with Eddie Anderson of Moline at Davenport on April 20.

In a local gymnasium, boxers in all classes are training daily for bouts to be staged by suburban clubs in the near future.

MEYERS TO MEET ENGEL AGAIN

Jim Mullen, local promoter, who staged the championship wrestling match between Johnny Meyers and Ralph Parcaut at the Coliseum, will conduct a mat show at the Ashland boulevard auditorium the latter part of the month, with Meyers one of the principals.

The promoter will match Paul Prehn, wrestling coach at University of Illinois, and Ben Ruben, local middleweight, for the semi-windup. Mullen is figuring seriously on pitting Heine Engel of Dubuque, Ia., against Meyers if Johnny will make the weight for the Hawkeye.

MASON CITY BOWLERS WIN.

Mason City, Ia., April 8.—Mason City's woman bowling team, led by Miss Ella Woisnak, national champion in 1916, defeated a woman's team from Austin, Minn., in a special game here last night, 1,865 to 1,640. Miss Woisnak copped high average with 155.

BIG TEN COACHES CHAFE AT BAN ON INTERSECTIONALS

FIELDING H. YOST. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 8.—Professionalism, intersectional contests, and a comparison of east and west football effectiveness were discussed by coaches of the Western conference during a get-together meeting here last night given by the Big Ten Alumnus association.

Ward Lambert, coach of the Purdue university basketball team, said all coaches of the conference knew their athletes were playing summer baseball and were winking at the transgressions of college rules. He recited an instance where he met a number of football players playing on a South Dakota baseball team and mentioned two others who played salaried baseball in the Virginia league.

Yost Raps "Pros."

Fielding H. Yost of Michigan outlined the recent five day conference of school presidents, faculty representatives, and directors of athletics in Chicago, and said all had taken an unequivocal stand against the "pro" in all phases.

"Either I'll stop this business or get out of coaching," he declared. "The college athletic field is a place where men are made, and we place honor above honors and the goal above the prize."

The conference would not call a man a professional, Yost said, but instead would only determine whether or not the man was eligible for athletic competition, and neither will the conference define amateur athletics, he included.

Professionalism to Go.

A motion to support the faculty plan to purge the conference of professionalism was adopted during the meeting, together with a motion to send resolutions to presidents and directors of the Western conference schools condemning the action of the presidents in barring intersectional football games.

Howard Jones, former Yale player and coach, who tutored the champion University of Iowa football team last year, maintained that modern football is on a higher plane in the west than in the east. Jones maintained that football originated in the west and was being taken over completely in the eastern schools.

Coach Jack Wilce of Ohio State advocated education of the alumni in college sports so as to prevent any one or group of schools from dominating in a certain sport. This would mean the rotation of championships to other colleges in the conference, he added.

Centre's Last "Great" Team.

Charlie Moran, Centre college coach, said that, due to the one year rule adopted at that school, no more teams would be produced fit to cope with big schools as in the past.

Branch Rickey, St. Louis Nationals' baseball manager and University of Michigan graduate, was toastmaster. Dr. Fred Merrifield of Chicago was a speaker.

RAY TO RUN MILE AGAINST WATSON

Des Moines, Ia., April 8.—Joie Ray of the Illinois A. C., holder of several American track records, will meet Ray Watson, formerly of Kansas State Agricultural college, in a special one mile race at the Drake relay meet here on April 29, it was announced tonight by Athletic Director Kenneth L. Wilson.

Woods and Waters by BOB BECKER

ALMOST SPAWNING TIME FOR BLACK BASS.

IT is rather difficult to associate nests with fishes about this time of the year, or at any time as far as that goes, because the average person doesn't think of a fish making a nest. Yet in a few weeks the black bass will be making nests in preparation for the spawning season, which varies in different sections of the country.

The nest (built by the male fish) is rather interesting, and many fishermen have seen them in lakes and streams inhabited by the two species of black bass. The small mouth usually chooses a sandy or gravelly bottom as its nesting site, which is natural, as this fish prefers this sort of bottom the year round. The male fish roots into the sand, fanning away the silt until it forms a sort of ridge several inches high around a shallow depression.

This stunt will take anywhere from four hours to two days, and during this work Mrs. Bass is nowhere to be seen. After the female has deposited her eggs in the nest and they have been fertilized she apparently has no more interest in the family, and so it is up to the male to guard the nest and look after the big family. He hovers over the precious eggs, fans them with his fins and tail, and does his best to keep them safe and free from sediment. During this time he sure is a scrapper. Let any fish come within sight and Mr. Bass charges like mad and drives away the intruder. After the eggs are hatched the male is even busier looking after the youngsters, as their mother doesn't seem to care anything about them.

In the middle west the small mouth bass spawns from late April until the end of June, depending upon the season and latitude of the waters. According to the dope handed out by the fish experts nest building usually begins when the temperature of the water is about 60 degrees, but eggs are not laid until the water has reached a temperature of 62 or 65 degrees.

The breeding habits of the big mouth are very much the same as those of the small mouth. However, the big mouth chooses for its nest site a place among fallen leaves, fibrous rootlets, or on muddy bottoms, in contrast to the sandy or gravelly bottom selected by the small mouth. The spawning season is about the same time—late April on through June, depending upon the season and locality. The big mouth grows very rapidly in warm water, and if food is plentiful they have been known to reach a length of six inches in the first year after hatching.

The government discovered this rapid growth some years ago in one of their rearing ponds. Seven months after fifteen adult large mouth bass, seven of which were females, were placed in the pond there were taken out by actual count 37,000 young bass three to four inches long and 500 each weighing a half pound. Of course, all these youngsters had received abundant food, and without doubt those half pounders had gobbled up some of their smaller brothers and sisters.

VARSITY CAPTAINS ARE MEMBERS OF HARVARD BALL NINE

Boston Mass., April 7.—Four varsity captains are members of the Harvard baseball nine. Arthur Conlon is leader of the team. George Owen, hockey champion and football star, plays second base. Louis Gordon, captain of the basketball five, is in right field. Charley Buell, captain-elect of the football team, is the utility infielder.

RICHARDS GIVES HIS ANSWER TO TENNIS PROTEST

New York, April 8.—Vincent Richards, youthful tennis star, commenting today on the protest filed with the United States Lawn Tennis association relative to his default last week in the national indoor tennis tournament, declared that his entry in the national was made only tentatively.

The protest was filed when Richards, after his default in the national was stated to be because of illness, entered the middle states tournament at Philadelphia and played with marked success, defeating R. Lindley Murray and William T. Tilden.

Richards said today: "There never was a definite arrangement for me to enter the national. I did not sanction my entry in the singles, and the suggestion that I might compete in the doubles was purely tentative. I had not fully recovered my strength last week after an attack of the grip, and that I did not feel equal to a long, hard week on the courts in the national. Yet Tilden had advised me that a three day tournament would not tax my strength too much.

"I agreed with him and consented to play at Philadelphia. As long as I had made no absolute agreement to enter the national I see no reason why I should be criticized."

NEBRASKA GOLF TOURNEY.

Omaha, Neb., April 8.—The 1922 Nebraska State Golf association championship tournament will be played over the Omaha Field club course Aug. 28 to Sept. 3.

MOLLA AND SUZANNE MAY MEET IN EUROPE

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, women's national tennis champion, will sail for England May 16 and will once more compete in the British championships for women at Wimbledon. It is altogether possible that she will meet Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, holder of the British title, as Mlle. Lenglen yesterday returned to competition in singles, playing in the Cannes tournament, and has announced she will go to Wimbledon.

According to a report from Boston, Miss Eleonora Sears, who is in southern France, has written to friends that Mlle. Lenglen appears to be in excellent physical condition at present and the French girl has stated that, if physically fit, she would defend her title at Wimbledon. Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston probably will accompany Mrs. Mallory as she did last season.

TILDEN ENTERS NATIONAL CLAY COURT NET MEET

Indianapolis, Ind., April 8.—William T. Tilden, world champion tennis player, has notified the Associated Tennis Clubs of Indianapolis that he will participate in the national clay court tourney at the Woodstock Country club here early in June.

Tilden said that he would bring Sandy Weiner, his new "kid" protégé, and Donald Strong for the boys' events, and that Vincent Richards also expects to play. Weiner, Tilden said, will play in the doubles with him.

STATE BALK LINE FINALISTS OFF FOR TITLE ROUND

ALBERT FLEIG. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Three Chicago players who survived the various rounds in the third annual amateur balk line championship of Illinois will compete in the final round at the Elks' club, Lawrenceville, Ill., tomorrow. Edwin D. Martin of Chicago, the present title holder, did not have to qualify. The championship prize is a diamond medal and silver cup.

Bob Campbell, the veteran Mussey player; James J. Peabody, the southpaw player from Hub Hart's room; J. Fleig of the Singer & Spokes room, and Champion Martin will leave tonight in company with T. B. Wadleigh, secretary of the Illinois Billiard association.

Large Turnout Assured.

It will be the first time Lawrenceville has been host to four amateur balkline players of such skill, and, as they are going at the invitation of the Chamber of Commerce and the Elks' club, a large turnout is assured.

The next title match of importance in the billiard world is the meeting of John Layton, the three cushion champion, and Charley McCourt of Pittsburgh, who will play 180 points at Sedalia, Mo., April 24, 25, and 26.

Kieckhefer Safe in Lead.

With only four games left to play Augie Kieckhefer is still in front in the race for the William J. Blake trophy in the Chicago Billiard league and only an upset in the stretch can oust him from the title. Following is the standing:

	W.	L.	H.R.	B.G.

THE NEW THREE PASSENGER
HAYNES 55
COUPELET
As a welcome departure from the accustomed type of a three-passenger car, comes the newest and most recently designed Haynes 55 Coupelet. By giving this uniquely desirable Haynes a comfortable leather seat with the roomy width of fifty-two inches, Haynes designers have enabled the three occupants to sit side by side. Thus the one at the wheel is freed from the feeling of being merely the driver, and the whole interior assumes a decidedly companionable atmosphere through this happy arrangement.
The distinctiveness of this car is enhanced by such Haynes refinements of design and equipment as the individual fenders and steps, the famed Haynes light six motor, cord tires, roof and cowl ventilation, soft interior lighting, the finger-touch starting lever, and generous luggage and package space. WESTERN G. A. UNAFFECTED BY STEEL CLUB BAN

BY JOE DAVIS.

The action of the United States Golf association in barring the use of steel shafted clubs for the reason that the steel shafted club is supposed to act better in some lies, does not appear to be sound.

A. R. GATES.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

A well known player who has tried the steel shafted clubs advances the theory that it is possible to make the steel shafts almost perfect, whereas the matter of getting a perfect wooden shaft is something of a gamble. This is borne out by the fact that it takes a high class player some time to gather a set of clubs that suit him, and once he gets them they are almost priceless.

Trouble Keeping Weight.

It has yet to be proved that the steel shafted club is more of a mechanical assistant than the deep ribbed clubs on which the national body has made no ruling. So far the difficulty with the steel shafted club has been keeping its weight equal to that of the wooden club.

As the Western Golf association has made no ruling aganist the steel shafted club, it will be given a further chance in this section despite that President A. R. Gates, who has been bending efforts to harmonize divergences of the western and national bodies, has made no pronouncement on the point.

Hutchison Returns from Tour.

Jock Hutchison has returned from his long tour through the west and south and will resume his duties at Glen View shortly. Jock has taken on a little weight and looks the picture of health.

TOPPING TAKES GOLF HONORS BY BRILLIANT RALLY

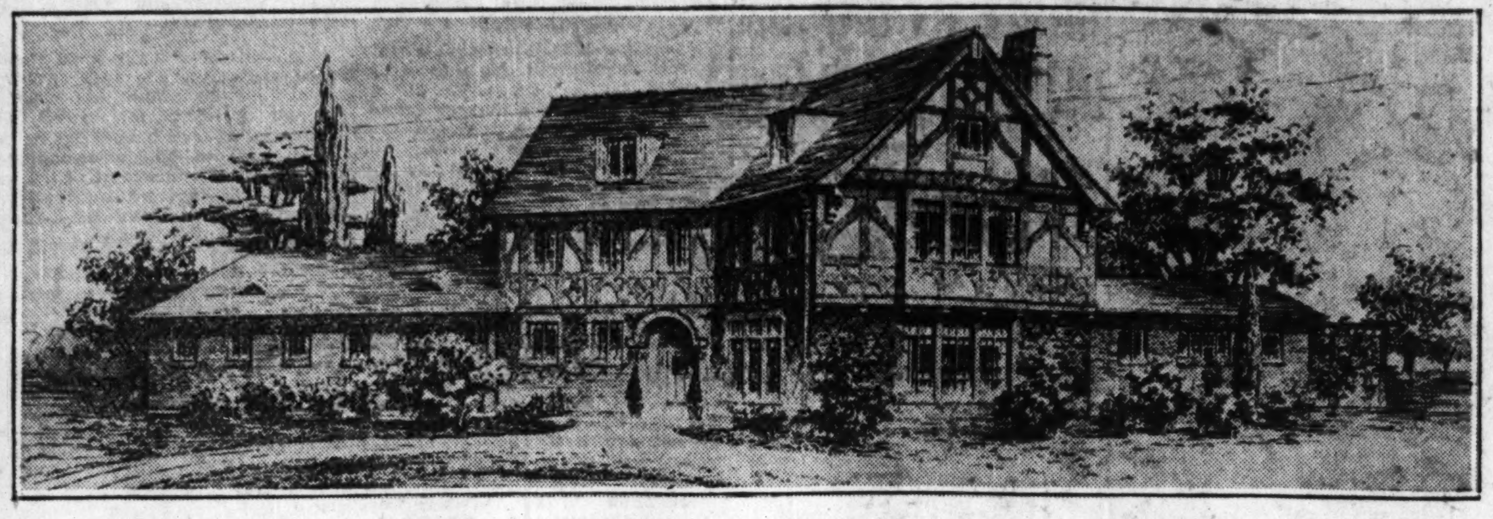
Pinehurst, N. C., April 8.—[United Press.]—By a sensational rally starting at the twenty-fourth hole, when 3 down, Henry J. Topping, Greenwich, defeated Fillmore K. Robeson, Rochester, 3 and 2, in the final match for the north and south amateur golf championship.

Robeson led 3 up at the eighteenth hole of the morning round, and had the same advantage at the sixth hole in the afternoon. Beginning at the sixth, Topping took four holes in a row, overtook Robeson on the eighth, and put himself 1 up on the ninth.

SCOTCH SOCCER TEAM WINS.

BIRMINGHAM, England, April 8.—Scotland defeated England, 1 to 0, in an International soccer match here this afternoon.

NEW BUTTERFIELD COUNTRY CLUB



THE clubhouse of the new Butterfield Country club, located near Elmhurst, will be of Tudor style, in well balanced combination of the old and modern. The idea of the architect has been to create a clubhouse atmosphere on the outside as well as on the inside. Only the supply rooms and heating plants are below ground. The building is constructed on a permanent center foundation, from which the wings radiate, making it possible to expand from one complete unit without having to rebuild any part of the original unit.

BOY SCOUTS

CHICAGO BOYS' WEEK.

DURING Chicago Boys' week an effort will be made to interest Chicago in her boys. Beginning May 19 with Boys' day parade and continuing through to May 25, the week will be crammed with boy activities ranging from Boys' Athletic day to Church day, School day, and the Entertainment day.

Of course, the parade on Friday will be the big event. School will be dismissed and every boy in Chicago will come to the loop for the parade. All Scouts will be allowed to march in a body by themselves and with their own floats. Mr. Stephenson, the Scout executive, says he wants fifty floats for the Scout section. Several troops have already made application to enter a float.

This week for boys and boys only is backed by the boys' work committee of the Rotary club and city and school officials. All boys' organizations are taking part.

C. H. Dodge, commissioner of the south shore district, has just sent out a letter to Scout leaders asking that at least twenty more men be interested as Scout commissioners. Forty-eight new troops are to be developed in this district alone. This work swamps the present staff. South shore district is not alone in this shortage of men to act as commissioners and in other capacities.

A complete course in boy leadership will be given at Bartlett gymnasium of the University of Chicago beginning tomorrow evening and continuing until May 29. The course is divided into three sections—A, B, and C. Graduates of sections A and B will receive the leadership training certificate of the national council, Boy Scouts of America; graduates of course C will receive the emblem and badge of membership in the life saving corps of the American Red Cross.

Four hundred and forty-nine new boys were registered as Scouts during the month of March.

Troop 1, northwest district, made 256 paper knives for the national convention members.

WALTER HAGEN VICTOR IN OPEN GOLF MEET

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 8.—[Special.]—Playing fine golf throughout, Walter Hagen won the second open golf tournament here today with a total of 284 for the seventy-two holes. For the first three rounds it resolved itself into a race between Hagen and Johnny Farrell, the young Quaker Ridge pro, but eventually Hagen won out with a margin of six strokes. The best round of the tournament was a 69 on the last lap by Joe Kirkwood, the young Australian trick shot artist. Kirkwood played the last six holes in 19 strokes.

Leading cards were:

Walter Hagen, New York	72	70	70	72—284
J. Farrell, Quaker Ridge	72	72	71	75—290
Joe Kirkwood, Australia	74	73	75	69—291

Kirkwood's low round was:

Out	5	5	3	5	4	4	4	3	4—37	par 35
In	4	4	5	4	3	3	4	3	2—32	par 37

Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Ontwentsia, Chicago, won the finals of the first flight, amateur event, by defeating J. W. Gilbert, Detroit, 3 and 2. Dr. Ryerson, Onwentsia, defeated his clubmate, Ben Carpenter, after a hard fight, 1 up. George Meyercord, Edgewater, was defeated in the finals by A. W. Kaffenburgh, Boston, by 1 up.

MISS LEITCH TO COME HERE FOR U. S. GOLF MEET

New York, April 8.—Miss Marion Hollins, national woman golf champion, who returned yesterday from a six weeks' sojourn in England and Scotland to gather ideas for the new Women's National Golf and Tennis club's course at Glen Head, L. I., brought word from Miss Cecil Leitch, British, French, and Canadian women's champion, that she would come to America this year for the Canadian and United States championship tournaments and that her sister, Miss Edith Leitch, would accompany her.

Roger Wethered, star British amateur, and his sister, Joyce, also intend to visit America this year, Miss Hollins said.

TRIBUNE DECISIONS

Decisions of The Tribune boxing representatives are:

At St. Paul—Mike Gibbons knocked out Batling Ortega [1]. Andre Anderson and Farmer Lodge, draw [6].

At New York—Joe Lynch beat Harry Martin [12]. Johnny Murray beat "Red Cap" Wilson [12].

At Philadelphia—Phil Salvatore beat Archie Walker [8]; Pete Boban beat Young Joe Borrell [8].

SHEEHY WINNER IN INDOOR GOLF

Finishing with a margin of 3 and 2 against J. P. Dunne, J. F. Sheehy won the final in the second indoor tournament at the South Shore Country club. The match was thirty-six holes and was closely contested until the last eighteen, where Mr. Sheehy gained the advantage and held it until the finish.

LaGrange High School Wins Track Meet from Austin

On a muddy field amid showers of rain La Grange's well balanced track team defeated Austin, 59 1-3 to 34 2-3, at the suburban school yesterday. La Grange placed first in eight of the eleven events, with Miller of the winners garnering individual honors. Kerr and Ferbend were Austin's best performers.

IRELAND BEATS FRANCE.

DUBLIN, Ireland, April 8.—Ireland won from France here this afternoon in an International rugby match.

CIONI WINS 6TH RACE IN PRO ROLLER SERIES

Capturing his sixth event of the world's title series in as many nights, Roland Cioni of Akron, O., present pro champion roller skater, won the three mile event at Riverview last night. He won by less than a foot from Rollie Birkheimer, Columbus; Joe Laurey of Chicago was third; Harry Palmer of Chicago was fourth; Al Krueger of Chicago was fifth, and Jackie Clark of Newark, sixth. Cioni's winning time was 9:10.

Cioni holds an unbeatable lead in points, with 50, as the meet ends tonight with the ten mile event. Next to the Akron flyer in the point summary is Rodney Peters of St. Louis with 26. Laurey has 21 points and Birkheimer 19. Peters fell in last night's event.

Dan Nack won the three mile amateur race last night in 9:12 3-5, Bill Skrivan placing second and Jones third.

Five Passenger

Essex Coach $1345
Just Try It
F. O. B. Detroit

Costing but little more than the open models, the Essex Coach gives the luxury, comforts and distinction of the fine enclosed car.

Hitherto such quality in closed cars has cost more than most buyers wanted to pay.

The Coach is a family car. But its lightness, economy and nimbleness also make it ideal for business or professional use. It is a delight to drive. Controls operate with unusual ease. Operating cost is low. It is beautiful, reliable and enduring. See it. Ride in it. You will surely want it.

Why He Bought 6 More Essex

Ralph Cerf, Los Angeles wholesale grocer bought six new Essex cars because of his experience with the first five used by his salesmen. This is the record of the first five:

In service 16 months. Highest mileage 27,000; lowest, 13,000. Average repair expense of all five cars was $43.85. City driven cars averaged 14 to 16 miles on gasoline. Country driven cars averaged 18 to 20 miles on gasoline.

New
CHANDLER SIX
Marvel Prices
$1595 (TOURING) $2395 (SEDAN)
Set New Pace For Motor Car Industry

TO a public that has become keenly discriminating, low prices are appealing only when allied to high quality.

This fact explains the interest in Chandler prices. These prove that resources, manufacturing skill and high ideals can build the exclusive, powerful, long lived car at a figure little above those for admittedly cheap cars. This is the most significant automobile development of 1922.

The Chandler Six is the lowest priced car of its style, size and power. There are bigger automobiles of larger bore and stroke, but they cost more in original investment, and their greater weight involves larger maintenance outlay.

The extraordinary success of the Chandler line has not been lost on competing manufacturers. They have been forced to a belated acceptance of the policy of lowest possible prices, adopted by Chandler and other foremost makers at the beginning of 1922.

Whether in the snappy touring types or in the luxurious closed models the Chandler Motor Car Company is now building the closest priced car it ever produced. It will continue to build for quality.

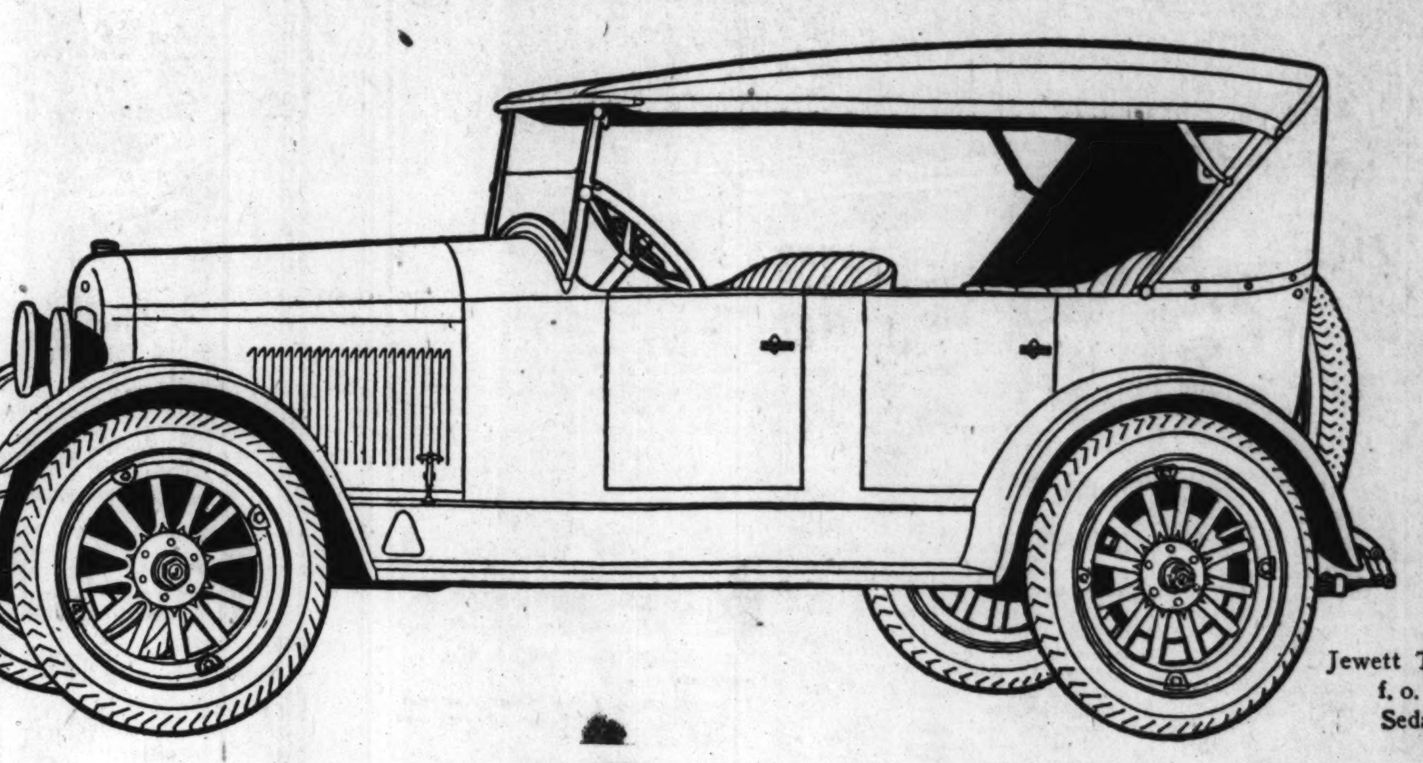
JEWETT

A Thrifty Six Built by Paige

$1065



Jewett Touring, $1,065
f. o. b. factory.
Sedan, $1,395.

See the New Jewett Six Today

Today, for the first time, we and our nine associated dealers have on display the new Jewett Six—designed and built by Paige. All our stores are open to welcome you. See this amazing Six at $1065.

This Jewett is the first amply powered small Six. Its 50 horse-power motor, designed and built in the Paige shops, gives it 20% more power than any car of its size or price.

Think how this car will pick up and climb hills. You can put five passengers in it and, from a standing start in high gear at the bottom of Hubbard Hill, put your foot on the throttle and be traveling faster than the law allows before you reach the top.

You can be traveling along at 5 miles an hour, put your foot on the throttle, and in 7 seconds be going 25 miles an hour. Try this with your own car. You will realize what a remarkable performer the Jewett is by comparison.

You can drive the Jewett at 35 miles an hour and drop into second speed without the flicker of an eyelash—so smooth and easy are gears and clutch. Try this with your own car at 20 miles an hour, and you will realize the superiority of the Jewett.

Does it ride comfortably? Our engineers tell us it has longer springs than any other car of its size. It is hung very low. We do not have to tell you that such a car will ride with luxurious comfort.

How will it stand up? In answer, we want to emphasize that this is a sturdily built Six, not a light Six. It has an exceptionally stout pressed steel frame 6 inches deep, with special stiff cross members. It has Timken axles, front and rear. Its motor has been tested and proved as no motor in a new car was ever proved before.

The Jewett Six has met instant appreciation everywhere. In a few days we shall probably sell our entire allotment for April and May. If you want the best car $1065 ever bought, see the Jewett today.

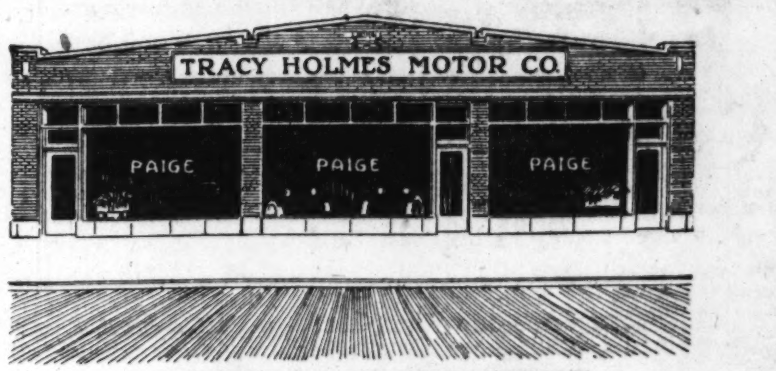
We and our nine associated Chicago dealers stand back of the Jewett the same as the Paige—render the same service to Jewett owners as to Paige owners. We have $1,500,000 invested in our businesses, maintaining ten service stations. All conveniently located. All completely equipped and expertly manned.

Of this huge investment $150,000 maintains a complete assortment of parts. We have nearly every part for every Paige car ever manufactured. No Paige owner has to wait until a new part comes from the factory. This foresightedness has given Chicago Paige owners hundreds of extra running hours—instead of being laid up for days through some unfortunate accident due to others' careless driving. Our stock of Jewett parts, our service to Jewett owners, will be the same.

Paige service men work with the swift skill that saves you money—gives you a sweet running car without delay. Most Paige owners seldom need to take advantage of our perfect service. Jewett owners will have the same experience, we know. But isn't it fine to have such a strong, friendly organization behind the car you own? You'll have not only a wonderfully dependable car, but a comfortable feeling of security because of what's back of it, if you buy a Jewett.



ON THE NORTH SHORE

The Tracy Holmes Motor Co. maintains this well-equipped Sales and Service Station. It is located at 1512 Sherman Avenue, Evanston, and is convenient for Paige and Jewett owners on the North Shore.

Wherever you live in Chicago, Paige and Jewett Service is always near. Look below for the station nearest your home. No need to drive through heavy downtown traffic with a crippled car. Every Paige and Jewett station has repairmen who work with the skillful touch of professionals.

Repairs and adjustments do not require one's time away from business. The women and young people of the household can deal with the nearest Paige and Jewett station with confidence.

REAL ESTATE NEWS.

PROMISES HOUSE FOR $1,995 BUILT IN THIRTY DAYS

Gen. Kniskern Has Plan for Home Simple.

BY AL CHASE.

A house for $1,995!

GEN. A. D. KNISKERN.

That's the main punch in this story and now the details. But first let's explain that this $1,995 house hasn't tiled bath rooms; it hasn't even a basement; it hasn't a closet in it; the woods are of the cheapest kind; in fact, everything is of the absolutely cheapest construction commensurate with good workmanship and durability.

BUT—it isn't intended for you if you're planning anything but a simple home as a starter. It's intended for the family which can afford only $1,995 for a home and it's for that family this story is written.

Figures on Quantity Construction.

Gen. Albert D. Kniskern, who received a distinguished service medal for his conduct of the quartermaster's depot in the Chicago district and who was a brigadier general during the war, is head of the Kniskern company and is responsible for the statement that he can build a 20x20 brick one story house for $1,995. Of course it is its simplicity and quantity production which he figures can make this possible.

Briefly the requirements are that you own a completely paid for lot in either Chicago or suburbs. On this the Kniskern company will build you this simple, plain little home as soon as you've made an initial payment of $299.25. Monthly payments will be $30 and it'll take six and a half years to get it all paid for.

To Be Built in Thirty Days.

Architect H. A. Mulder has drawn plans for a stove heated house, with a combination living room and dining room and kitchenette, a bedroom and a bathroom, to be built in thirty days. It is so arranged that in case a larger house is wanted another unit 10x10 costing $700, or a larger unit 10x20 costing $1,000 can be added. The house will have both electricity and gas, the price including the fixtures.

Ordinary white Milwaukee brick will be used, but the owner will have the choice of having the brick stained any color he wants or of having colored mortar joints used.

And if you want to see what this house actually looks like you can do it by visiting the Building Material exhibit on the sixth floor of the Leiter Stores building, State and Van Buren, where General Manager Henry A. Guthrie is having a replica built. The Common Brick Association of America is helping finance the model, which will be completed May 1.

Yellow Cab Head Leases Top Flat at 3400 Sheridan

John Hertz, president of the Yellow Cab company, has leased the top floor sixteen apartment of Hugo L. Goetz's nine story, 3400 Sheridan road, building for five years. Mr. Goetz doesn't give the rental. Harold Bradley & Co., who made the lease, also rented an apartment on the Roscoe street side to Arthur Katzinger. All of the ten room flats are now rented and only two of the sixteens are vacant. James P. Connery, John F. Jelke, George Rasmussen, Frederick H. Bartlett, and W. J. Carney occupy the five now rented. Mr. Goetz lives in the aerovilla atop the building.

NEW RADIO FIRM LEASES STORE.

Norman A. Russ and Ward J. Murray have leased through Robert White & Co. the store and basement at 202 West Randolph, from W. H. Hatton. The new firm will handle radio and electrical supplies.

Market and financial news will be found on pages 29, 30, 31, and 32 of the Classified section.

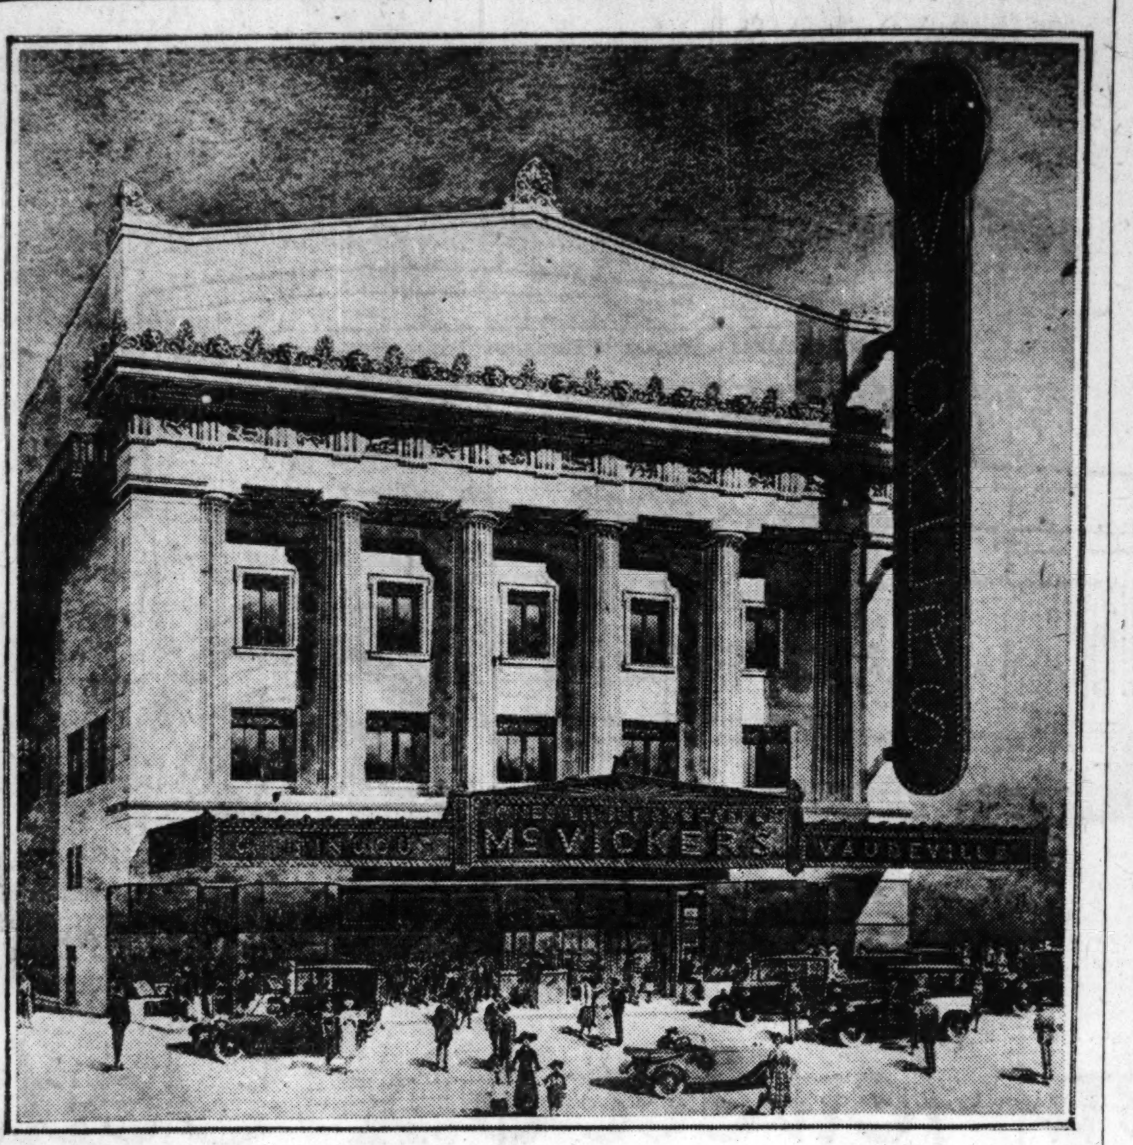
Chicago's Fourth McVicker's Theater



Wreckers will start razing the present McVicker's theater in Madison street, between State and Dearborn, on May 1. It will make way for the fourth playhouse of that name, a $1,500,000 structure to be erected by Jones, Linick & Schaefer for opening early next autumn. There will be approximately 3,000 seats, which is much larger than the present theater. Additional space is gained by using the entire site for theater purposes. There will be two first floor shops, one on each side of the entrance. The largest electric sign in the city will catch the eye of the State street shoppers. The interior color scheme will be mulberry and gold. Smoking will be permitted on the mezzanine floor and the present policy of 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. vaudeville will be continued by J., L. & S. Thomas W. Lamb of New York City is architect, with Henry L. Newhouse and F. M. Bernham of Chicago associated. Mr. Newhouse will have personal charge of construction.

"There must be something in it for us!"

"YOU and I have been buying securities for a long while, John, and we think we know all about them—but you can bet your bottom dollar we're wrong!" declared an experienced investor.

"I know the passing of dividends last year—on top of declining values of all our securities after the war—just about wrecked us, but everybody was in the same boat," replied his partner.

"That's where you're wrong—dead wrong!" emphasized the first investor. "Everybody was not in the same boat! Thousands of investors right here in Chicago never lost a dollar, got every penny of their investment incomes and are getting every cent due them now just the same as if prosperity were beaming its brightest!"

"Who were they—who are they?" queried the partner.

"Holders of good First Mortgage Real Estate Serial Gold Bonds secured by Chicago ground and buildings—the customers of H. O. Stone & Co.," was the answer. "No investor in their bonds ever lost a dollar—ever had to wait a day for his money when due."

"Yes, but their bonds yield 6, 6½ and 7 per cent. We can get more."

"You mean we think we can," said the first. "That's where we're wrong again. At the Lockwood investigation figures were produced showing that the investments of insurance companies in real estate mortgages over a period of fifteen years paid 20 PER CENT MORE—net—than their investments in listed securities. Our own records show the same thing—high yields are dangerous—losses of principal more than offset the high income of securities such as we have bought—and we've bought what we considered the best."

"For years I have read the advertisements of H. O. Stone & Co.," he added, "but I never seemed to get this fact—*there actually are bonds that pay a good income, but never cause a loss. I always thought their message was for the other fellow—the little fellow. But I know better now. There must be something in it for us!"

There's something in our message for YOU. We can show you that our bonds are the most profitable safe investment you can buy, whether you are a big investor or a man with savings on which you want a better income.

Four Buildings, 352 Apartments, to be Security for New $2,000,000 7% Bond Issue

With security appraised at twice the amount of the offering and with the estimated net annual income over three times the heaviest interest charge, a new $2,000,000 bond issue yielding 7% is being offered by the American Bond and Mortgage Co., Inc. The security is to include four fireproof buildings having a total of 352 furnished apartments to be located in Detroit, a city with almost a million population, leading in the manufacture of automobiles, and in many other essential lines of industry.

Surrounded by beautiful estates of well known millionaires in "Indian Village"—one of Detroit's most exclusive sections, this property has a frontage of 151 feet on the Detroit River. By reason of the gradual slope toward the river these four apartment buildings will be terraced one below the other, giving each a commanding view of the water.

The buildings will be eight stories high, and each will include 88 apartments. Each apartment will comprise four rooms and sun parlor, the living rooms being exceptionally large. These apartments are to be known as the "Alden Park Manor."

An immediate and constant demand for these new apartments is assured, because of the scarcity of high class furnished apartments in Detroit and the higher rentals asked in buildings less desirable.

Additional attractive features are:

Land alone is valued at almost 25% of the entire issue. Over 40% of the issue is to be paid off before final maturity. The borrower is owner of one of the largest apartment houses in Detroit and is a successful building contractor.

The guarantor is a Chicago man of financial ability and wide real estate experience.

Fire insurance to the amount of the bond issue, and rental insurance to the full insurable value, will be carried.

Serial monthly principal payments of bonds will offer a wide diversification of maturities and will permit immediate application of the income from the property to retiring the bonds.

The information contained in this advertisement, although not guaranteed, has been obtained from sources, which we believe insure its accuracy. The bonds are offered subject to prior sale, and when, as, and if issued and received by us.

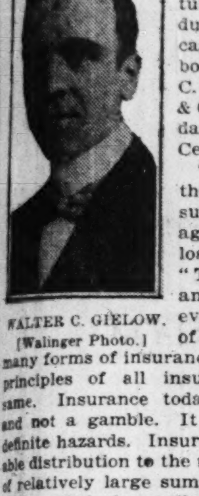
REAL ESTATE NEWS

SAYS INSURANCE NOW IS SCIENCE, NOT A GAMBLE

Expert Tells Students All About Risks.



WALTER C. GIELOW.

Scope and value of property insurance were outlined to students at the Y. M. C. A. School of Commerce real estate course lecture series conducted by the Chicago Real Estate board by Walter C. Gielow of Cloyt & Gielow, on Tuesday evening at the Central Y. M. C. A.

"Insurance is the only known sure protection against individual loss," he said. "There is insurance for almost every known kind of loss; there are many forms of insurance, but the basic principles of all insurance are the same. Insurance today is a science and not a gamble. It covers against definite hazards. Insurance is an equitable distribution to the unfortunate few of relatively large sums of money out of the relatively small contributions of the many.

Fire Losses Terrific.

"The need for fire insurance is at once apparent when we consider the enormous value each year destroyed by fire in this country alone. From 1916 to 1920, inclusive, the total losses were approximately $1,675,000,000, showing a yearly average of $335,000,000. The National Board of Underwriters, through whom these figures were issued, point out that 67 per cent of these losses are from preventable causes. These figures are as nearly authentic as it is possible to compute them and are appalling to say the least. The amount thus destroyed each year must be absolutely subtracted from our country's wealth for fire insurance doesn't make good these losses, its province is merely to distribute them.

"Fire insurance has been likened to the balance wheel of an engine, which creates no power, operates no part of the machinery, but nevertheless insures its regular rythmic motion under varying steams and takes up the shock occasioned by the breaking of any part which otherwise might result in shattering the entire engine.

Fire Insurance Not Productive.

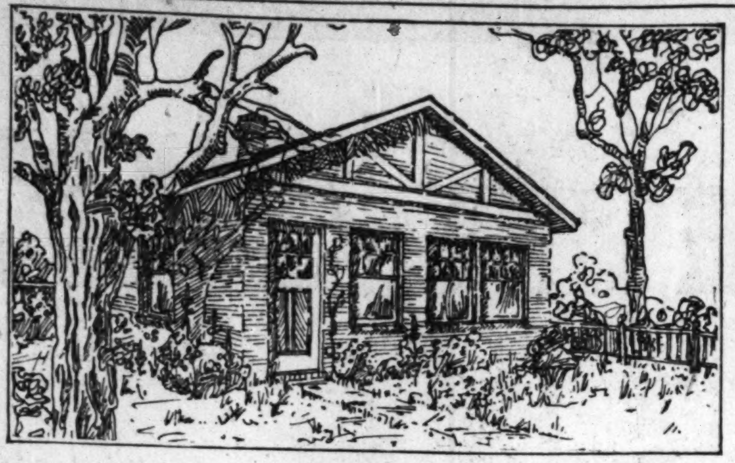
"It will be seen, of course, that fire insurance is not productive; it creates nothing and its beneficiaries are all indirect. One marked difference to be noted between fire and life insurance is this, that while the premiums paid to life insurance companies are some day returned to the policy holder or his beneficiaries, the holder of a fire insurance policy parts absolutely with his premium for the sake of protection against a possible but by no means inevitable or even ordinary misfortune.

"And yet fire insurance is indirectly a great aid to business and enterprise of every description; a necessary conservator, one of the principal bases of credit and a very great factor in the widely extended use of capital which characterizes the mercantile and manufacturing operations of our day."

John J. Ready Jr. of W. K. Young & Bro. will discuss "Salesmanship" at next Tuesday's realty lecture at Central Y. M. C. A.

Market and financial news will be found on pages 29, 30, 31, and 32 of the Classified section.

The House Economical



Above is the $1,995 house told about in another column. There will be a 9x9 bedroom, a combination living and dining room, 9x18½, and a kitchenette, a bathroom, and one closet. Herman A. Mulder is architect. It will be built by the Kniskern company and a replica of it will be shown at the Building Material exhibit on May 1.

Realty Jottings

This week's timetable at the Chicago Real Estate board:

Monday—noon, publicity committee.

Tuesday—1 p. m., Frisco convention committee.

Wednesday—1:30 p. m., reference and arbitration committee.

Thursday—2 p. m., meeting of all members of industrial division. Charles M. Nichols to talk on effect of zoning on industrial property.

Friday—1 p. m., Frank Bacon, star in "Lightnin'," to speak.

Paul A. Westburg, president of the Westburg Engineering company, and vice president of the Rotary club, will speak on "Idealism in Business" at 2:30 p. m. on Tuesday in the rooms of the Cook County Real Estate board, at the close of the real estate market of Chicago. The members' regular monthly meeting will be held at 3:30.

The Economist supplement containing valuations of central business property and tables of various realty transactions during the last few years, compiled by H. A. Winters, assistant editor of the Economist, is now on sale. It's invaluable for both realtor and property owner.

Ad Firm Plans Building at Delaware and Rush

Erwin, Wasey & Co., advertising, now own 100x150 at the southeast corner of Delaware and Rush and intend within the next year to build an office building, the height of which has not yet been determined. George F. Porter has purchased the 75x136 at the southwest corner of Ernst court and Walton place from Erwin, Wasey & Co. Hedberg & Bistor were brokers in both deals.

News of the Architects

W. Scott Armstrong, consulting engineer, announces that he drew complete working plans for the proposed $800,000 building at the northwest corner of South Park avenue and 63d, to be erected by Carl Edward.

"I've started suit against Mr. Edward," said Mr. Armstrong, "to secure the fee for the working plans and specifications contracted for and which I worked on for two months."

This department originally reported Mr. Armstrong as the structural engineer, but learning from Mr. Edward that he had turned it over to another firm, so reported it. We are glad to state the facts as above, for in Sunday's "News of the Architects" we implied that Mr. Armstrong's name was incorrectly given as the architect originally engaged.

Howard Greenley, president of the Architectural League of New York, and nationally known for his stage settings, will talk on "Architectural Values in Stage Scenery" before the American Institue of Architects, Illinois chapter, at the Art institute next Tuesday evening.

Meyer J. Sturm announces his removal from 116 South Michigan avenue to 232 East Erie street.

George C. Nimmons of George C. Nimmons & Co., architects, has been selected by President Albert Moore Saxe of the American Institute of Architects, Illinois chapter, and President F. E. Davidson of the Illinois Society of Architects, as the third member of the committee to act as judge in the annual awarding of prizes by the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank for the best architectural work in the north central district and along Michigan avenue. The Illinois society at its last meeting instructed President Davidson to act as one of the three judges.

PLANS NOVELTY CO-OP SIX FLATS FOR EVANSTON

What appears to be a novelty for this section in the way of six flat buildings is the design of S. W. Hind for two coöperative apartment houses which he will erect in Evanston. Both the front and rear stairways will be in the center of the building, which means that the usual space occupied by them in the upper stories will be used for living space. For instance, on the second floor of a typical flat the living room will be the full width of the frontage of its half of the building and in the rear there'll be a private inclosed porch where one can snooze peacefully late in the morning without being disturbed by the thump and thud of milkman and iceman. There'll be showers in the basement for the use of tenants who are beach fans.

They will be built on the north side of Emerson street, half way between Orrington and Sherman avenues. Work will start in two weeks with Sept. 1 occupancy in view.

According to Mr. Hind $9,500 in stock will be issued to each apartment owner, representing the value of his flat; this to be paid for at the rate of $500 earnest money; $1,500 within ten days and $2,000 in the next thirty days the balance to be paid like rent at the rate of $75 a month. One of the two buildings will be a trifle larger and the price will be accordingly more.

Wheadon M. E. Church to Have $30,000 Addition

Contracts have been let for a $30,000 addition to the Wheadon M. E. church, Ridge avenue and Noyes street, Evanston, from plans by Architect Edgar Ovet Blake. The old building in the rear will be remodeled into community rooms, gymnasium, showers, dressing rooms, and dining room. The new section will be an auditorium.

WE PRESENT HEREWITH GUARANTEED LIKENESS OF O'TOOLE, REALTOR

BARTHOLOMEW O'TOOLE.

We take pleasure in announcing positively and absolutely that the features of the gentleman reproduced herewith are no other than those of Bartholomew O'Toole of the Chicago Real Estate board, who has just been appointed by President Hiett of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, chairman of the new committee on national publicity. This new body will assist local boards throughout the country.

To assuage the curosity of Mr. O'Toole, his family, and thousands of his friends, we announce that the picture printed on this page last Sunday as that of Mr. O'Toole and supplied to us by the photographer as being that gentleman, was a Mr. J. C. Bannister, a resident of Wisconsin. Whether he happens to be a realtor or not we don't know, but we apologize to him, and, of course, to Mr. O'Toole, for the error. Every one who saw the wrong Mr. O'Toole's picture, however, agrees there was a great resemblance to that gentleman.

BRICK BUSINESS BETTER.

In the Chicago district, which is the largest brick producing center in the world, according to the monthly digest prepared by the Common Brick Manufacturers' Association of America, the deliveries of brick through February and March were at a rate that promises a season's output closer to normal than has been experienced in the last two years. In other large centers the demand is above normal for this season of the year.

Among the Brokers

Louis R. Cerf, formerly associated with Mark Levy & Brother for nearly ten years and out of the real estate business for the last two years, has reëntered it under his own name. He has opened offices at 140 South Dearborn; phone Randolph 5757.

James A. Savage, who has been in the real estate business for nearly two decades and during the last few years with George W. Walker, is now associated with the Cochran & McCluer company in its real estate department.

John P. Hooker & Co. announce that Orrin D. Dodge, for many years in charge of the Ryerson properties in Chicago, and Bernard Greenberger are now connected with them and will specialize in the sale and renting of business real estate.

Plan $600,000 Warehouse at Lumber Street and 22d

The Tooker Storage and Forwarding company has had plans drawn for a six story warehouse, with 250,000 square feet of floor area, by George C. Nimmons & Co., to be built this spring between Lumber street and the river, just north of 22d. It will cost approximately $600,000.

Turnverein Plans New Gymnasium on Diversey

The Lincoln Turnverein is planning to erect a $150,000 two story gymnasium and hall, 50x100, at 1005 Diversey parkway. No architect has yet been engaged.

Painter Buys $113,000 North Side Apartments

ASK HIM TO SHOW THE BASEMENT FIRST

Look for the Heating Boiler

The man who rents an apartment without taking a slant in the basement first, is either an Eskimo at heart or just a natural-born, reckless skeezicks.

If that apartment hasn't a first-class heating boiler in it, like the Kewanee all steel boiler, then it is about as valuable as a lead nickel with a hole in it or a guarantee on an automobile.

Renting an apartment must be based on the heating plant. You must LOOK IN THE BASEMENT FIRST, old bean. If you find the Kewanee Boiler there, with the name Kewanee on the door, you're safe. If you don't, then you are going to wear out your voice hollering for heat.

Don't blame the janitor when the radiators refuse to whistle. He can't coax steam out of a boiler that can't respond. It may be that the boiler is made of cast-iron which can't stand cold weather. Take your own precautions. The apartment is only as good as its heating plant.

Write to the Old Man Behind the Boiler TODAY and ask him how apartment-life may be as comfortable as a comfortable day in June.

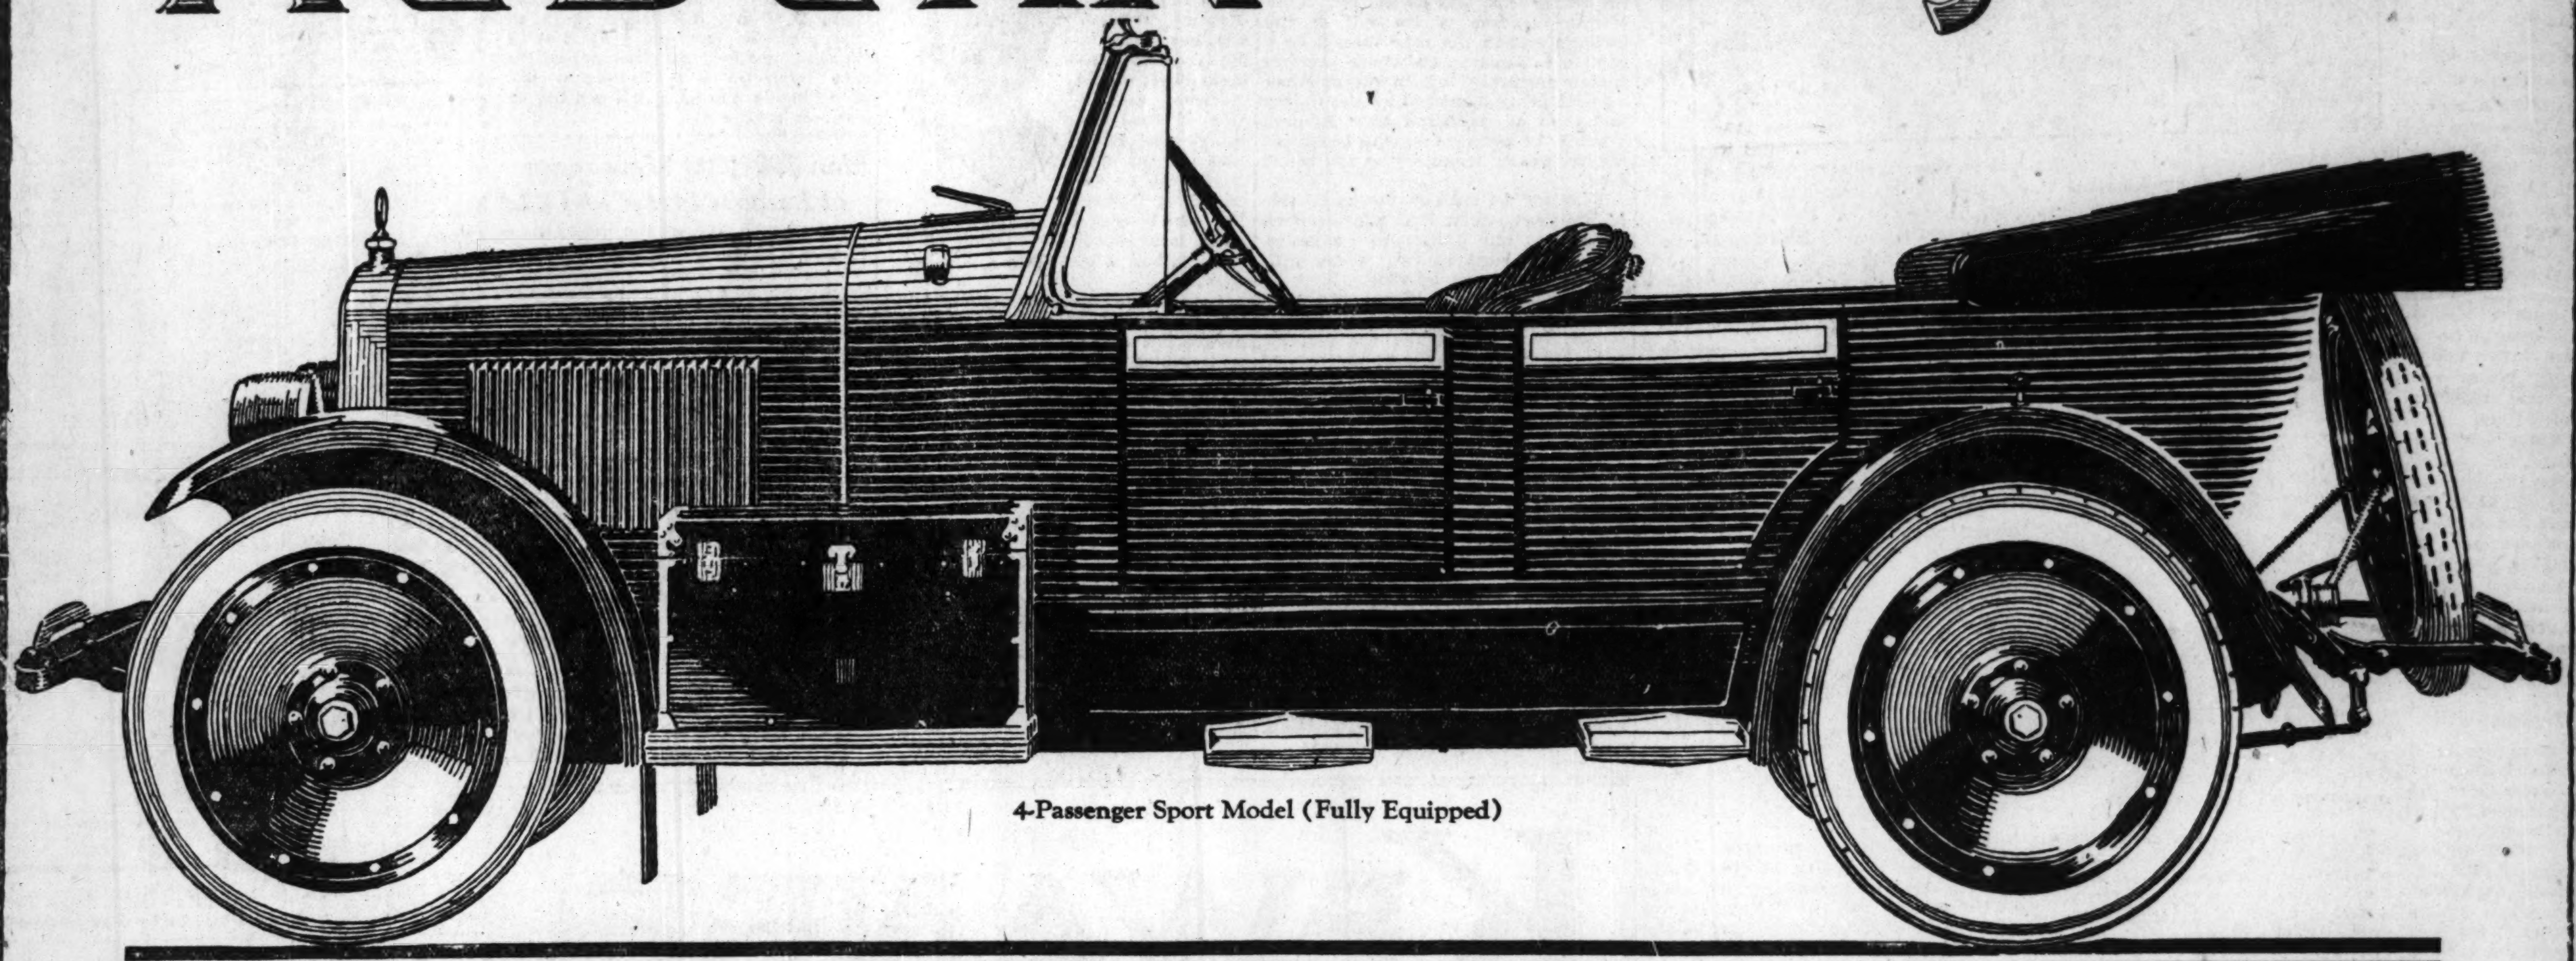
AUBURN Beauty-SIX



4-Passenger Sport Model (Fully Equipped)

An X-RAY of Auburn Features

These Auburn features make for exceptional comfort, thoroughgoing dependability, distinctive beauty and remarkable economy. These essentials, combined in the Auburn, set a new standard of value. The Restful riding qualities of the Auburn car are made possible by these superior principles of construction.

1.—Motor—Continental Red Seal Motor—Model 7-R, the finest product of the world's largest exclusive motor manufacturers, with its positive-pressure oiling system and four-bearing crankshaft which eliminates vibration. 55 brake horsepower at 2600 R. P. M. Power, flexibility, smoothness and economy.

2.—Velvety Spring Action—Auburn springs are unusually long and strong. They're made right and hung right. Front springs are provided with snubbers, adding still greater comfort and protecting springs against breakage.

3.—Torque Arm—A torque arm on the rear axle takes up both the driving and braking reaction. The springs are thus relieved of this extra duty. This results in fullest riding comfort, and longer life for the car.

4.—Seat Comfort—Seat and back cushions are deep and soft. Seat cushions built over double deck springs—the upper decks are very sensitive, while the lower decks come into play only under abnormal weights and road irregularities.

5.—Upholstery—Upholstery is of finest quality hair and felt, covered with genuine semi-bright, long grain, black leather. French-pleated in soft folds.

6.—Oilless Bushings—Oilless bushings are generously used in all inaccessible places. Entire system of brake levers and pedals floats upon 14 of these bushings. This construction avoids chassis squeaks, rattles and undue wear at these hidden points.

7.—Frame—Frame is of deep section, wide flange, high carbon steel with FIVE cross members of like material. Taper side channels insure perfect alignment of entire chassis, eliminating body squeaks and door rattles.

8.—Clutch—Borg & Beck Clutch 10" single dry plate, disc type, completely enclosed with accessible adjustment. Annular and thrust ball bearings throughout. Easy operating clutch pedal.

9.—Transmission—Transmission in unit with motor, insuring perfect alignment. Gears are of forged nickel steel, case hardened. The teeth in Auburn Transmission gears are not only unusually wide but the face of each tooth is individually ground after hardening, rendering their operation especially quiet. This is a mechanical refinement rarely found even in high priced cars.

10.—Steering Column—Steering column and wheel set at proper angle for maximum comfort to driver. Steering wheel of moulded black rubber composition with polished aluminum spider. Corrugated grip on steering wheel.

11.—Instrument Board—Instrument board and tonneau cabinet finished in genuine walnut. Instruments sunk into board beneath individual glass dials.

12.—Propeller Shaft—Double universal drive shaft with large bearing surfaces which are all hardened and ground steel, the best construction to be had for this service. High carbon steel shaft, exceptionally strong and flexible.

13.—Curtains—Storm-tight curtains open with doors. Chafing and marring of curtains when not in use is eliminated by the container fastened inside of tonneau cabinet door where they are always accessible without disturbing passengers.

14.—Body Moulding—Top edge of body is finished with a smart aluminum moulding along its entire length and around the cowl. This moulding permits an unusually neat and durable body finish.

AUBURN Beauty-SIX

Send for the new Auburn catalog. The mechanical chart and data it contains will help you make a wise selection of your motor car.

The Auburn is built in six superb body styles—Sedan, Coupe, five-passenger Touring, seven-passenger Touring, Sport Model and Roadster. A car for every need.

Buy your car with Open Eyes

Here are the Auburn facts. Make them your guide. We've laid bare every Auburn feature. See what Auburn offers you. Learn how the Auburn is made.

Today, more than ever, value counts! Look for it. Before choosing any car—be sure! Buy on facts.

Eighty per cent of your automobile investment is beneath the surface—the unseen units. Know what you are buying. Compare the Auburn features here set forth with what you get in other cars.

But don't stop there. Make your test complete. Come and ride in the Auburn. Test the power and pick-up of Auburn's Continental Red Seal 7-R Motor. Test the comfort and stamina of this restful riding car.

Velvety Spring Action

Ride as far as you like. Pick the rough roads and worn pavements. Go where the going's hard. Test Auburn's springs. Test its balance. Test its ease of driving. Test its noiseless operation.

Auburn springs are long and strong. The car is wonderfully balanced. Note how it hugs the road. Note the absence of side-sway.

Take the wheel. See what restful driving means! The wheel is right in size and position. Brake and clutch pedals respond to slight pressure. Hand levers are long and conveniently placed. Gears shift without effort. And the Auburn turns in short space.

Noiseless Car at Last

All these things you can know for yourself. You can know, too, how quietly the Auburn runs. In mounting the body, no metal touches metal. Instead a series of cork pads are used. The doors have anti-rattlers. And 14 oilless graphite bushings keep the brake assembly noiseless. You can really ride restfully in this silent, squeakless car.

Beauty! No mistake! You can see it with your own eyes. Dependability. Low upkeep. Long life. Ask any Auburn owner. He'll tell you the facts. He'll give you a new idea of motor car economy!

Built Up to a Standard

Auburn cars have been bettered—not cheapened. Best of all, the Auburn is backed by a company in business to stay—a pioneer—a company that has never been in financial difficulties—a company that is stronger today than ever before in its 22 years! Remember, it is your money you invest in a car. Play safe. Investigate. Test. Compare. Look over all the cars in this class. Yes, and cars costing much more. We will gladly demonstrate that these statements are facts! Come in; or a phone call will bring the Beauty-Six to your door.

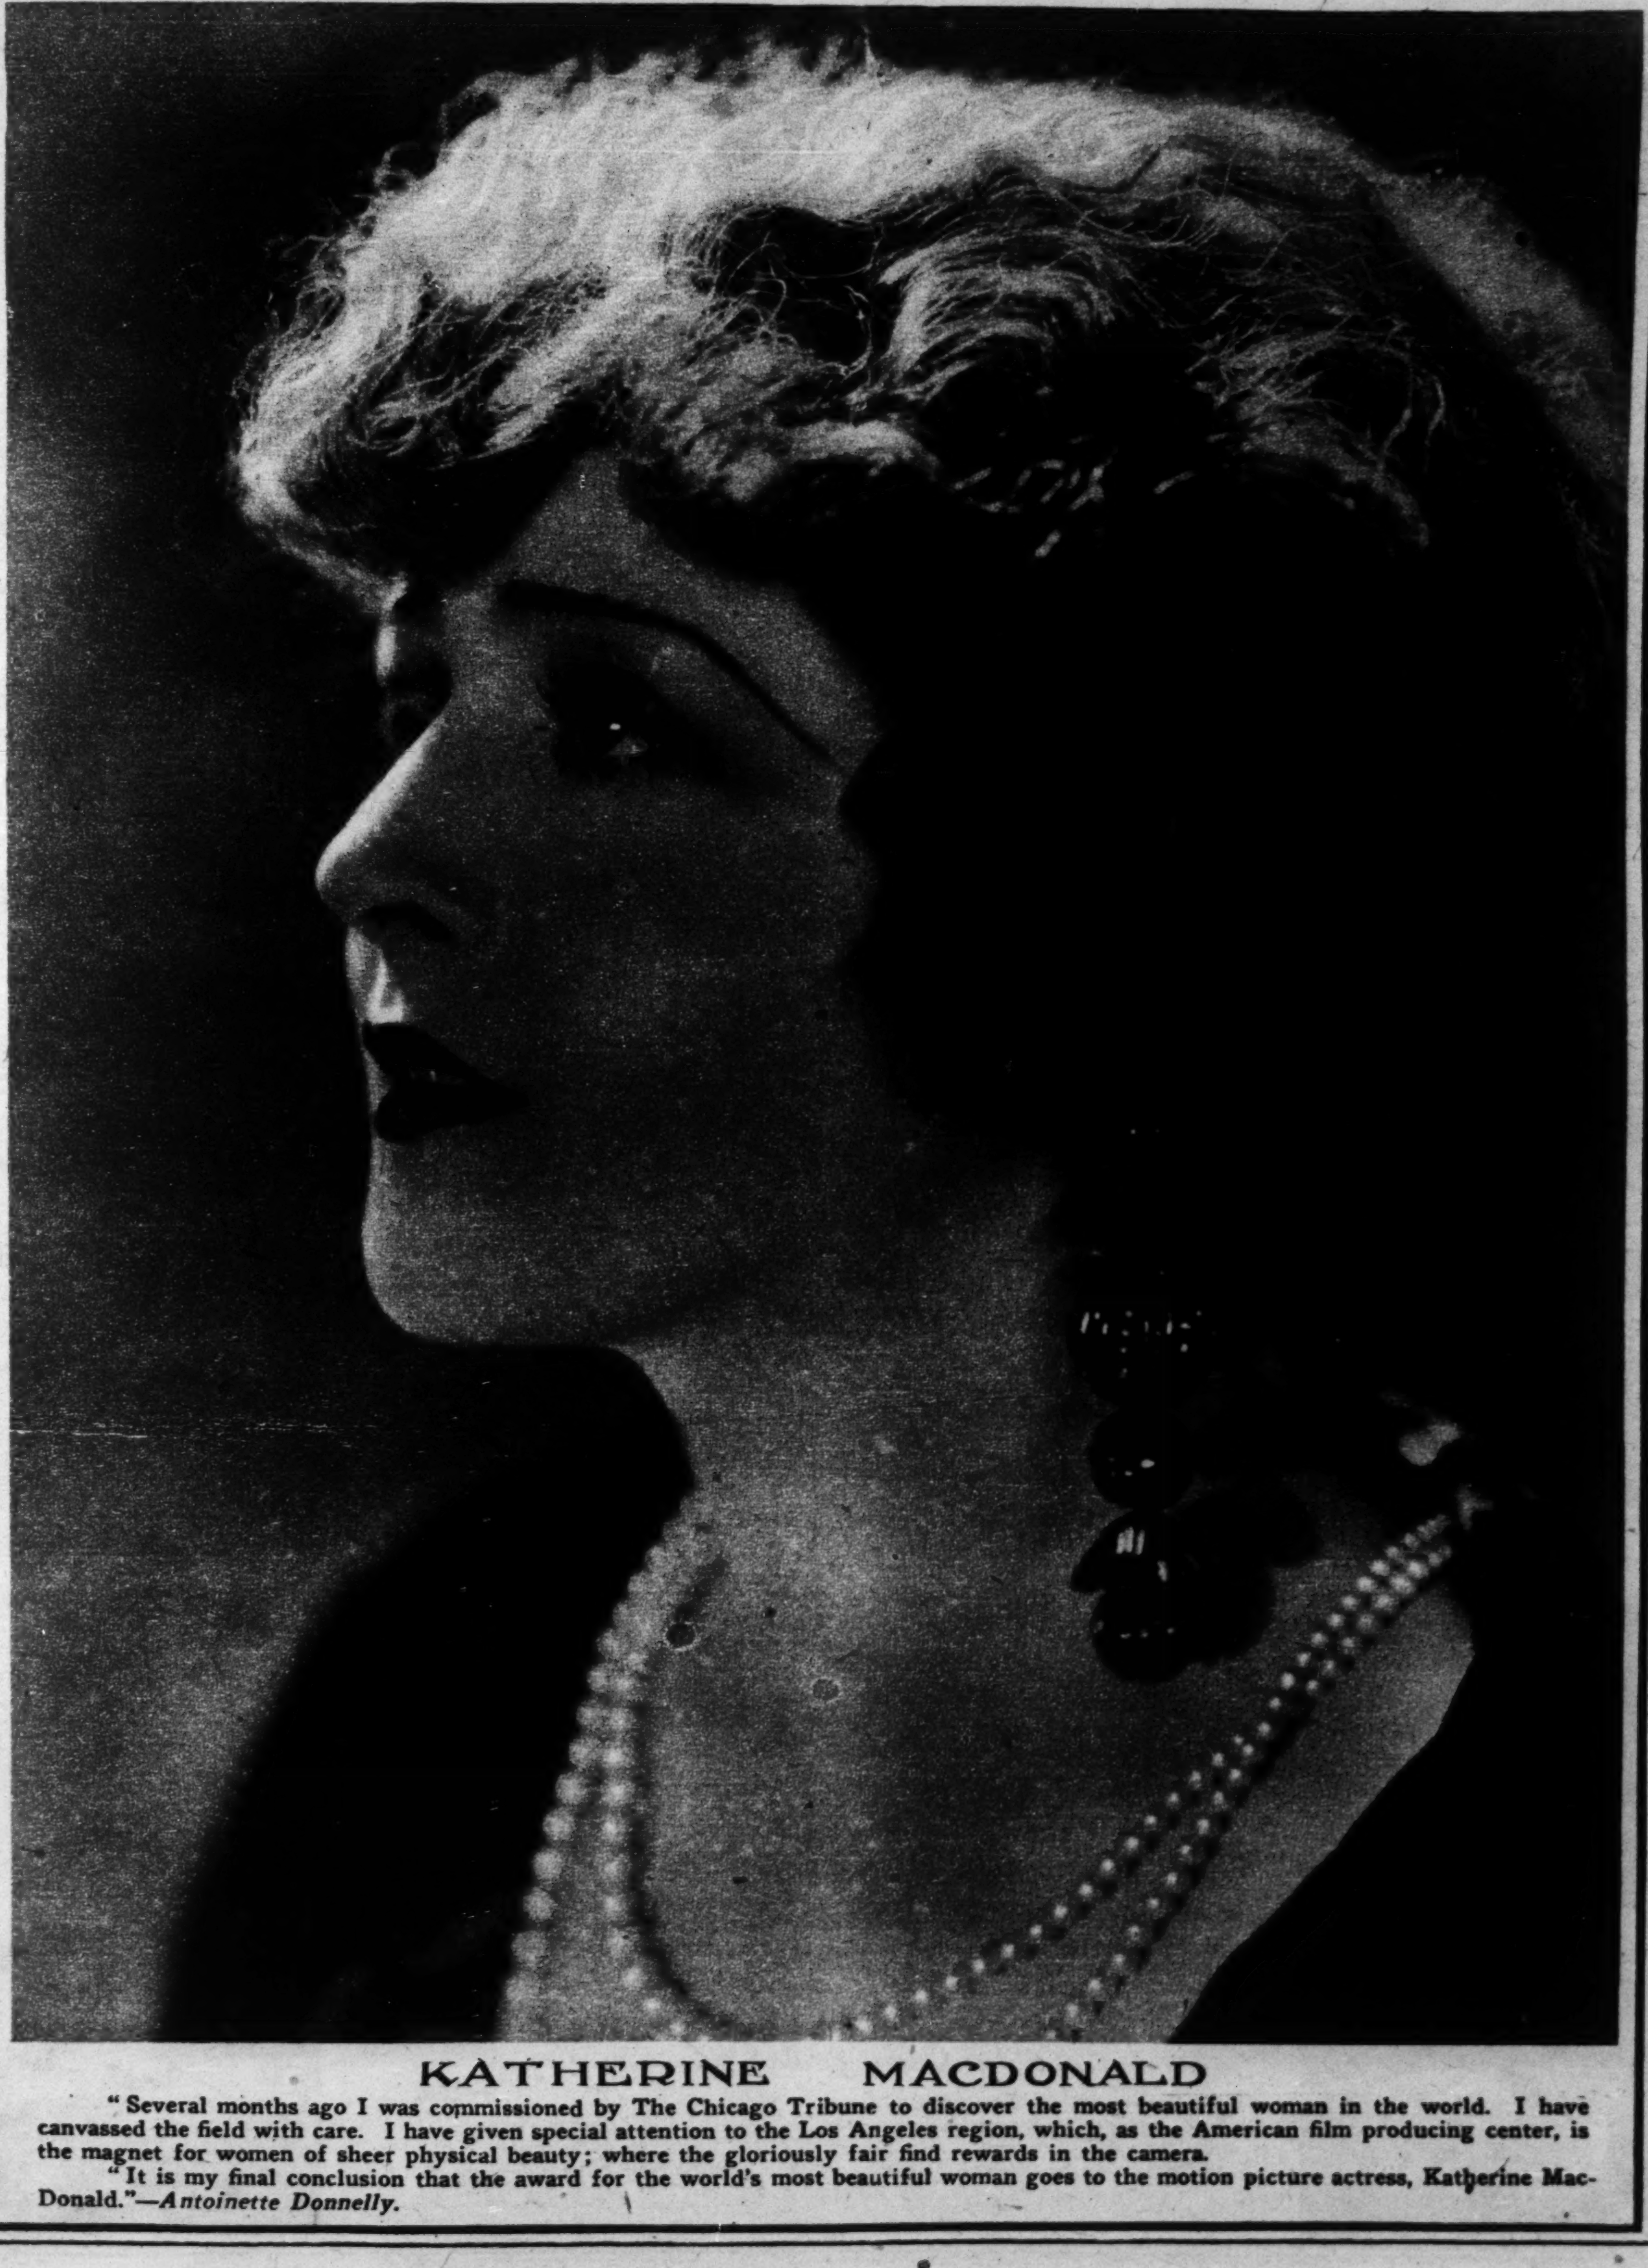
THE MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN IN THE WORLD



KATHERINE MACDONALD

"Several months ago I was commissioned by The Chicago Tribune to discover the most beautiful woman in the world. I have canvassed the field with care. I have given special attention to the Los Angeles region, which, as the American film producing center, is the magnet for women of sheer physical beauty; where the gloriously fair find rewards in the camera.

"It is my final conclusion that the award for the world's most beautiful woman goes to the motion picture actress, Katherine MacDonald."—Antoinette Donnelly.

Send No Money!

No money in advance. Not a cent! Simply make your request via the coupon below if you want this brand new Oliver Typewriter for five days' free trial in your own home or office. Use this Oliver for five days as if it were your own. Type all your letters or any other work with it. Put it to every conceivable test. Compare it with any $100 typewriter on the market. Compare it for simplicity of construction. For beauty of finish. For ease of operation. For speed. For neatness of work. Then if after 5 days' free trial you do not wish to keep the typewriter for any reason whatsoever, simply send it back to us and you won't be out one cent for the free trial. If, on the other hand, you decide that it is the finest typewriter, and you wish to keep it, then pay $3 after trial and then at the easy rate of only $4 a month. This is the open, free trial offer we make to you on the Oliver to let you see for yourself that if any typewriter is worth $100 it is this splendid, speedy Oliver No. 9, our latest model and the finest we ever built. The Oliver's new commercial keyboard eliminates all difficulty of operators transferring from four-row keyboard machines to the Oliver—the fingering is identical.

No two styles are quite alike–

THIS is Silk Glove Time—and what a joy to select yours this spring. For novelties in silk gloves are profuse this season. Long silk gloves with fine French tucks, lovely embroidered and fluted styles, gauntlet models with contrast straps, and short gloves in interesting new color originations have added a new charm to spring attire.

There is a feeling of luxury in hands that are gloved in silk—it gives them a grace and slenderness that no other material can give. Comfortable and cool and easy to wash—a real economy. Silk gloves are the most practical for spring and summer wear.

To meet Fashion's varying moods, Kayser, the originator of double finger-tipped silk gloves, offer at good stores everywhere a new thought in silk gloves—individuality and variety of style, a color for every costume, and, of course, the quality you expect in Kayser.

one of the chief causes of constipation?

The quotation is taken from an important paper on the treatment of constipation by a well-known physician.

DID it ever occur to you that the cathartic you take to relieve constipation, is the cause of your trouble?

Yet when a number of doctors were discussing this almost universal complaint one of them said: "Probably one of the most frequent causes of constipation is the indiscriminate use of cathartics." For years physicians have tried to persuade people to give up laxatives and to eat corrective foods instead.

It is now known that Fleischmann's Yeast is a food which makes the use of cathartics unnecessary. Because of its freshness it helps the intestines eliminate waste matter.

People who are adding Fleischmann's Yeast to their daily diet find that their body functions are kept normal and regular. Eat 2 or 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast before or between meals every day. Place a standing order with your grocer. He will deliver Fleischmann's Yeast fresh daily.

MORE PICTURES OF WORLD'S MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN.

Pyorrhea Is Not Hopeless

Try Kloria for 2 weeks. Gum soreness and bleeding usually end in one week. Destroys germ cause. Free trial.

TENDER, bleeding, spongy gums (pyorrhea), if neglected, lead surely to extraction of teeth. But Kloria, used in time, has worked wonders in countless cases, and is worth a trial. Usually, in one week, amazing improvement is shown and soreness and bleeding stop. Soon the gums begin to tighten around the teeth again. You are here offered a trial—test it. Kloria is the one antiseptic we know of which has the germicidal power to destroy the germ cause of this serious disease.

This is the new and wonderful antiseptic, discovered in the world war, which, by scientific test, is over 40 times more germ-destroying than carbolic acid.

Yet Kloria is not poisonous, doesn't burn or irritate, is soothing, pleasant, safe, and by all odds the greatest healing agent for general use ever discovered.

As a mouth-wash, it really destroys the acid-forming bacteria that cause tooth-decay. As a gargle, it relieves sore throat almost immediately. Eczema, barber's itch, and many other skin diseases are now quickly relieved. Notice how it soothes inflamed, itching skin, itching scalp or itching anywhere. Wet the scalp with it a few times, and watch dandruff disappear, yet it is as harmless as water to the hair. Try it on a boil or open sore, and note how it ends the pus infection and soreness. Cuts and burns heal often in a fraction of the usual time. Harmless, yet far more effective than any poisonous antiseptic for personal hygiene.

Dissolve a few Kloria Tablets in water, and instantly you have, at a cost of a few cents, a large bottle of liquid antiseptic which is clean, colorless, stainless and virtually odorless.

All druggists, 50c. Money refunded if not satisfied.

Free Sample A sample of Kloria enough for a convincing test, will be gladly sent free. Write for it. The results will be a revelation.

Found!

A Skin Laxative that makes any Complexion Beautiful in an Hour

Young English scientist finds natural element which moves skin pores. A single application clears all three layers of the skin, and restores full color. And it is done in 60 minutes!

M. J. McGowan

[All facts here set forth were recently investigated and verified by WM. R. DURGIN at the request of one of America's leading women's magazines.]

WHY, when a woman, is 30, do her blushes no longer show? How does a skin grow dull and unlovely while the eyes are still clear and sparkling? Science has learned why—and how to secure a truly beautiful complexion in less than an hour! Thirty thousand women already know this to be indeed so. The process, scientific as it is, is utterly simple; used with perfect success in one's home.

This remarkable discovery restores the skin texture and coloring of youth by laxation. M. J. McGowan—only 31 years old, but with ten years' experience as a dermatologist—has solved the problem of all skin blemishes. He discovered a way to flush every pore of the skin structure. The gentle but thorough action is brought about in an hour. The skin's three layers pass every impurity, and the resultant natural color lasts for days! The process leaves one's skin as clear and clean as that of any child.

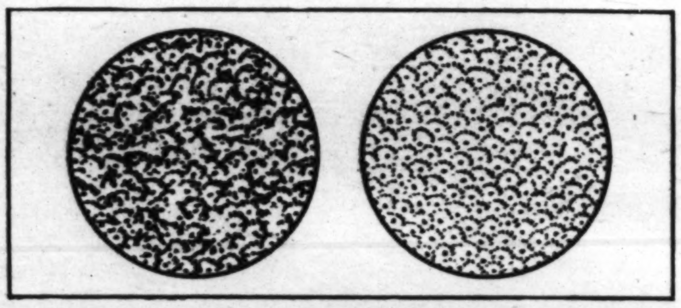
The Magic of Modern Chemistry

In a soft, plastic clay of marvelous smoothness, a newly-found laxative element has been blended. Spreading the clay starts the laxative action. Out come all impurities—hard or soft—not a pimple, blackhead or particle of dirt but what is loosened. Wipe off the magic mask of clay, and behold a skin as fair as Nature makes!

Terradermalax is the scientific term for McGowan's discovery. The writer has seen at least fifty actual demonstrations of its marvelous qualities, at the laboratory. I witnessed absolutely astounding improvements to complexions. The subjects were of varying age—and every imaginable condition of skin. Terradermalax seemed to have the same magical results in every case. Sallowest, dullest skins were, when the mask was removed, radiant with color; velvety soft in texture; fair and clear. I know now why the requests for Terradermalax have grown to several thousand in a single day's mail!

Another blessing Terradermalax has brought: women may now powder to heart's content without injury to the most delicate skin. For occasional purging of the pores in this way removes the fine particles that otherwise become impacted in the skin. Occlusia (occluded, or clogged pores) is ended by the first day's use of Terradermalax.

See how thoroughly this new element works; the reproduction of a microscopic slide shows the same skin before and after the first application. But you must treat your own face and let your mirror tell the story. Which reminds me: Mr. McGowan applied his compound to one young woman's face on only one side. On removal, she appeared a different person when viewed on opposite sides. The contrast was startling. And Terradermalax is just as effective on the coarser skins of men. It already has many masculine adherents.



Amazing change wrought by Terradermalax. Both magnified views are of same skin, the second showing texture just 40 minutes after first application of the new laxative element.

How to Obtain a Supply

The active ingredient of Terradermalax is of limited life. Its discoverer refuses to chance its long standing before use. So, a two-months' supply is sent direct to the one who is to use it, the same day compounded, the label dated, to be certain of full life and strength and 100 per cent results.

You might expect and be willing to pay a high price for the big benefits of this discovery, but a laboratory fee of only $2.50 covers all. "We don't want the cost to stand in the way of anyone," says McGowan, "and any man or woman who does not experience astonishing benefit from the first application can have even this small fee back."

So fill out the handy application below. You need not send any money; pay the postman when he brings your jar. However, if you expect to be out when postman calls, you can send $2.50 with application; the guarantee of money back if wanted holds good either way. Sign and mail this handy form:

DERMATOLOGICAL LABORATORIES

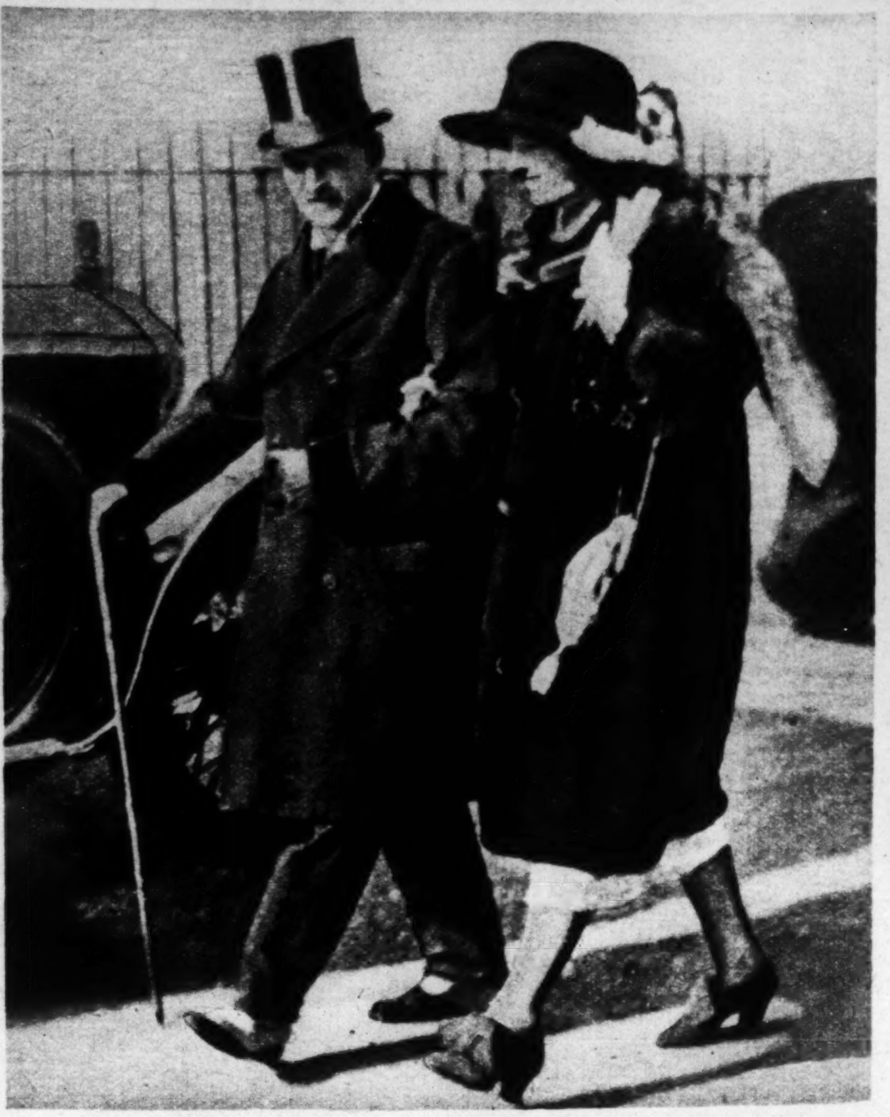
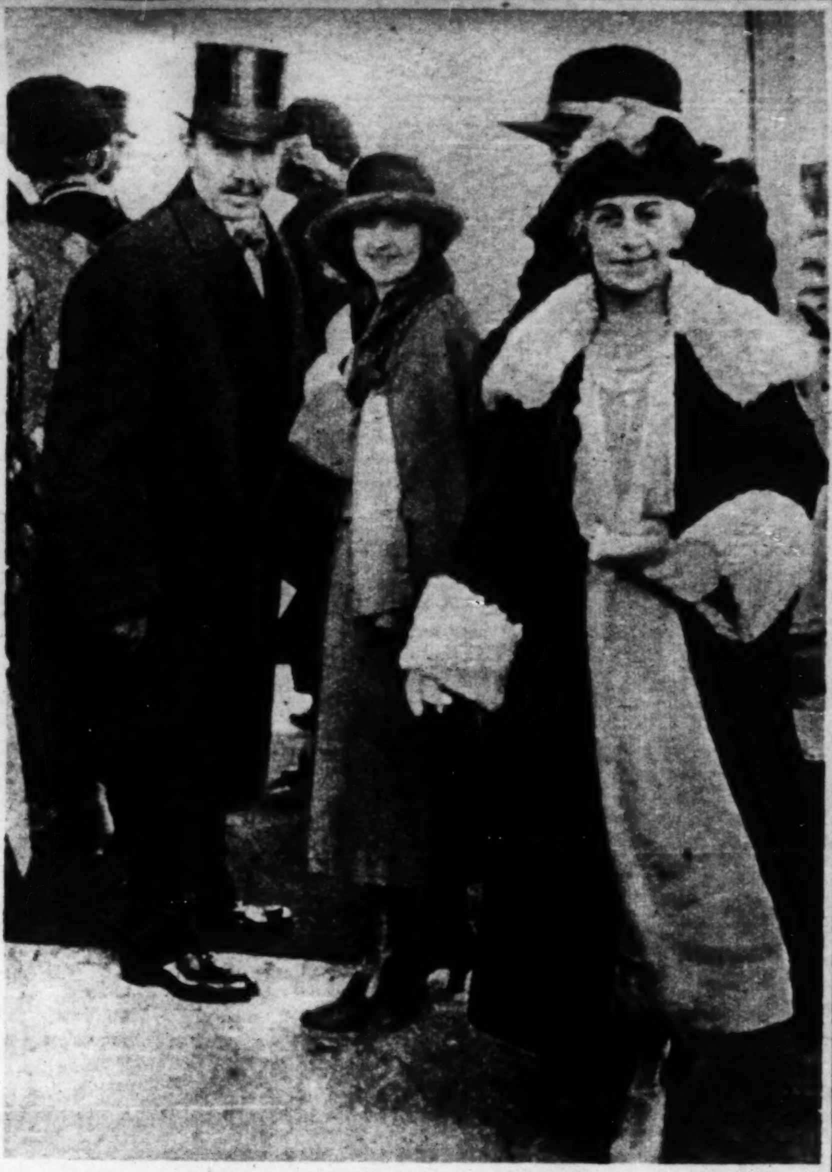
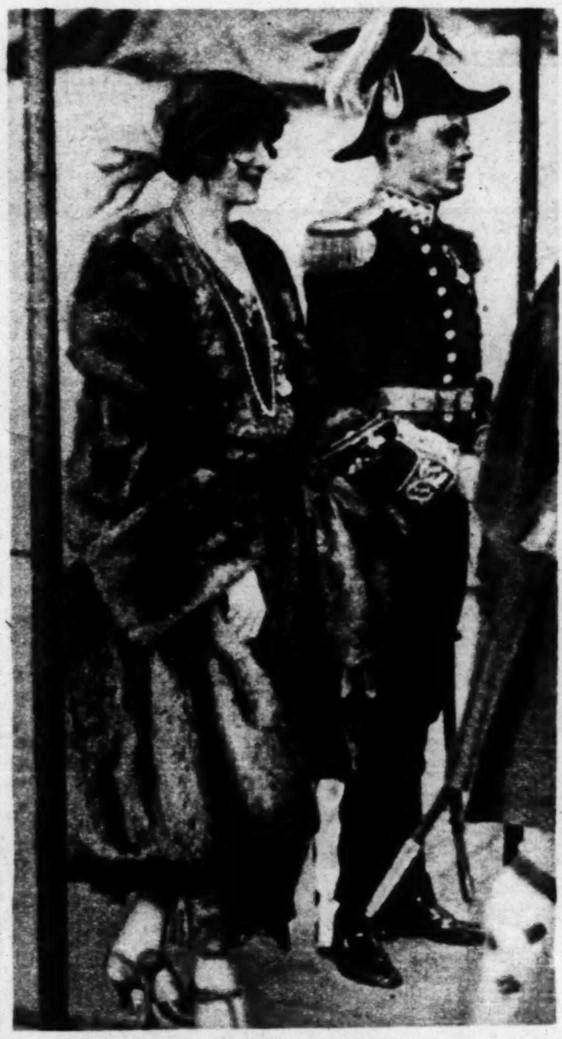
MARRIED AND ---- the fairy-story wedding of the Princess Mary.



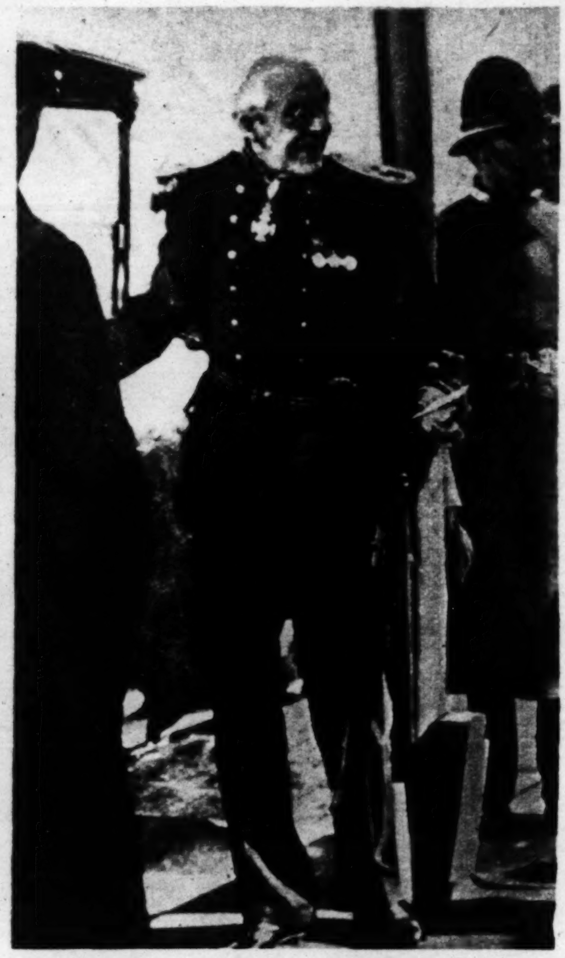
AND HERE WE HAVE THE DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH and his second American bride, who formerly was Miss Gladys Deacon of Boston. His first wife was Consuelo Vanderbilt.



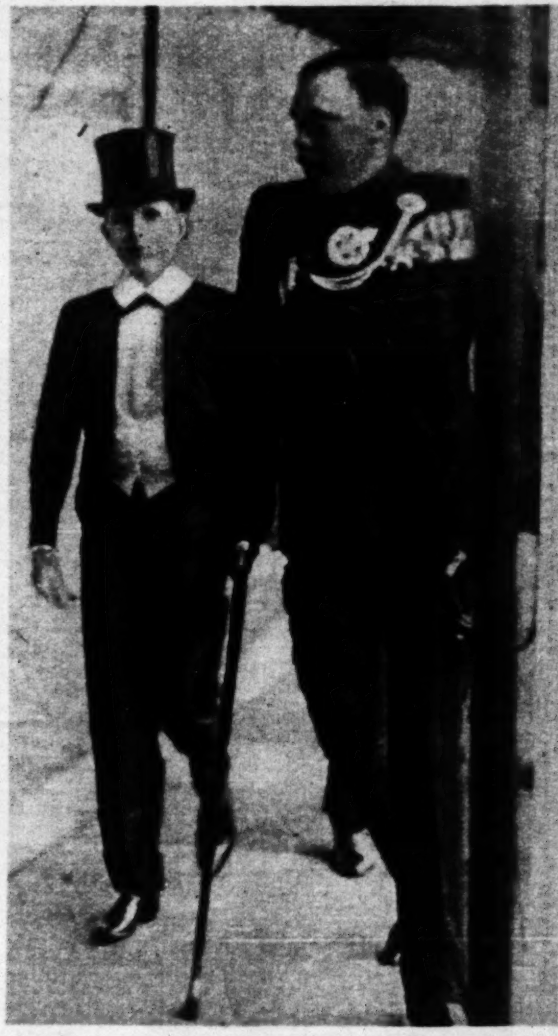
JAMES HENRY THOMAS, labor member for Derby since 1910, came to the wedding with his wife and daughter. He was an errand boy at 9; now he is secretary of the powerful British National Union of Railwaymen.



THE YOUNG DUKE AND DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND presented this handsome appearance. The duke is the owner of about 1,000,000 acres of land.



ARTHUR JAMES BALFOUR, who recently refused a peerage, but accepted the Order of the Garter as a reward for his services at the Washington disarmament conference, is here shown saying it with a smile. The British call him the hero of Washington.



MAJ. EDWARD LASCELLES, D.S.O., brother of the bridegroom, limped to the wedding on the crutches that were brought to him by heroic war service.

THESE PRETTY LITTLE HAPSBURGS ROMP AND FROLIC IN THE MADEIRA SUNSHINE just like other children, even though it is the sunshine of exile and though one of them has lost all chance to wear a crown of empire. They are the children of the former Austrian emperor and empress. Those in the rear row are Archduke Felix, Crown Prince Otto, and Archduke Robert. In the front row are Archduke Rudolph, the Archduchess Adelaide holding the tiny Archduchess Charlotte, and Archduke Charles Louis. (Photograph from International.)

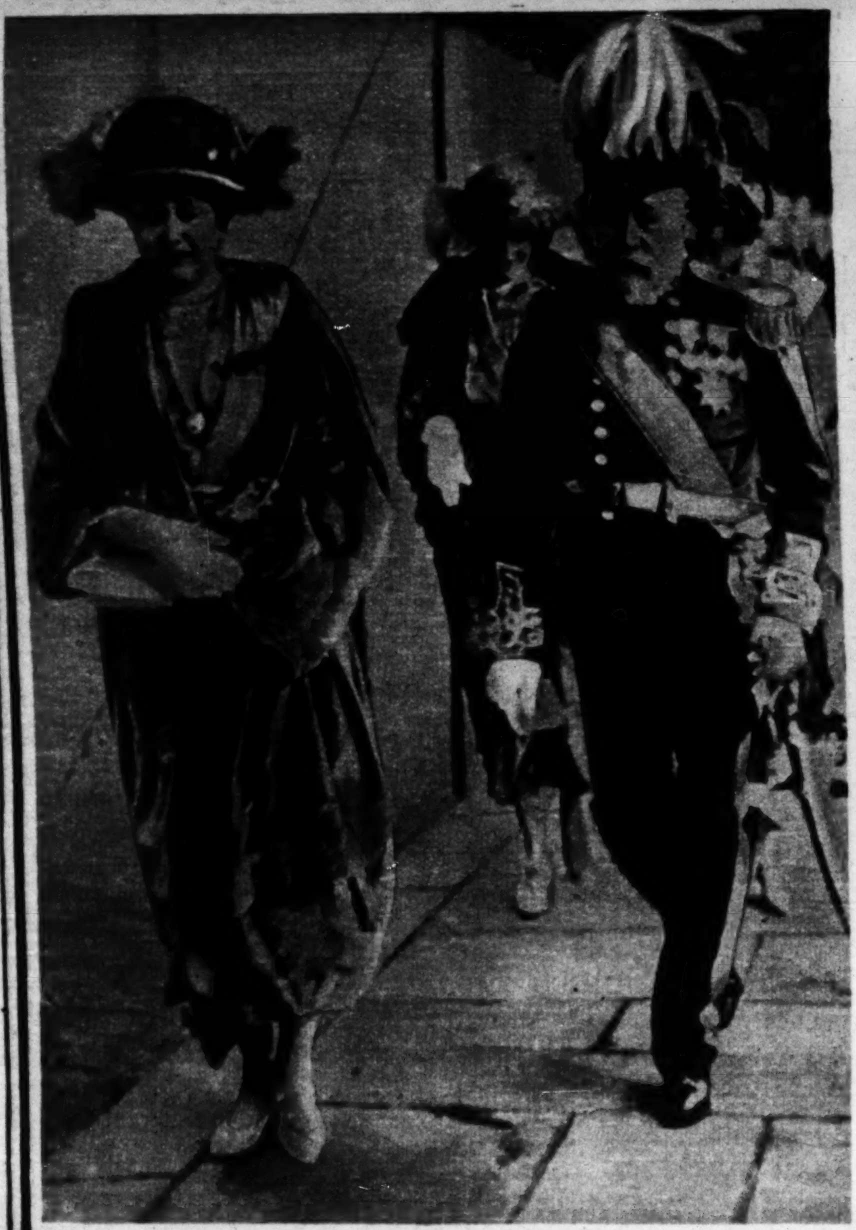
GEN. BARON VON HAUSEN, who ordered the bombardment of Reims cathedral, died recently in Germany at the age of 76. He was one of the leaders in the German advance of 1914 and admitted in his memoirs that he had ordered the historic cathedral to be bombarded. (Photograph from the Keystone View company.)

MRS. HENRY W. KEYES, wife of the senator from New Hampshire, is acting president of the League of American Pen Women in the absence of Mrs. William Atherton DuPuy, who has sailed for Europe. (Photograph copyright by Harris & Ewing.)

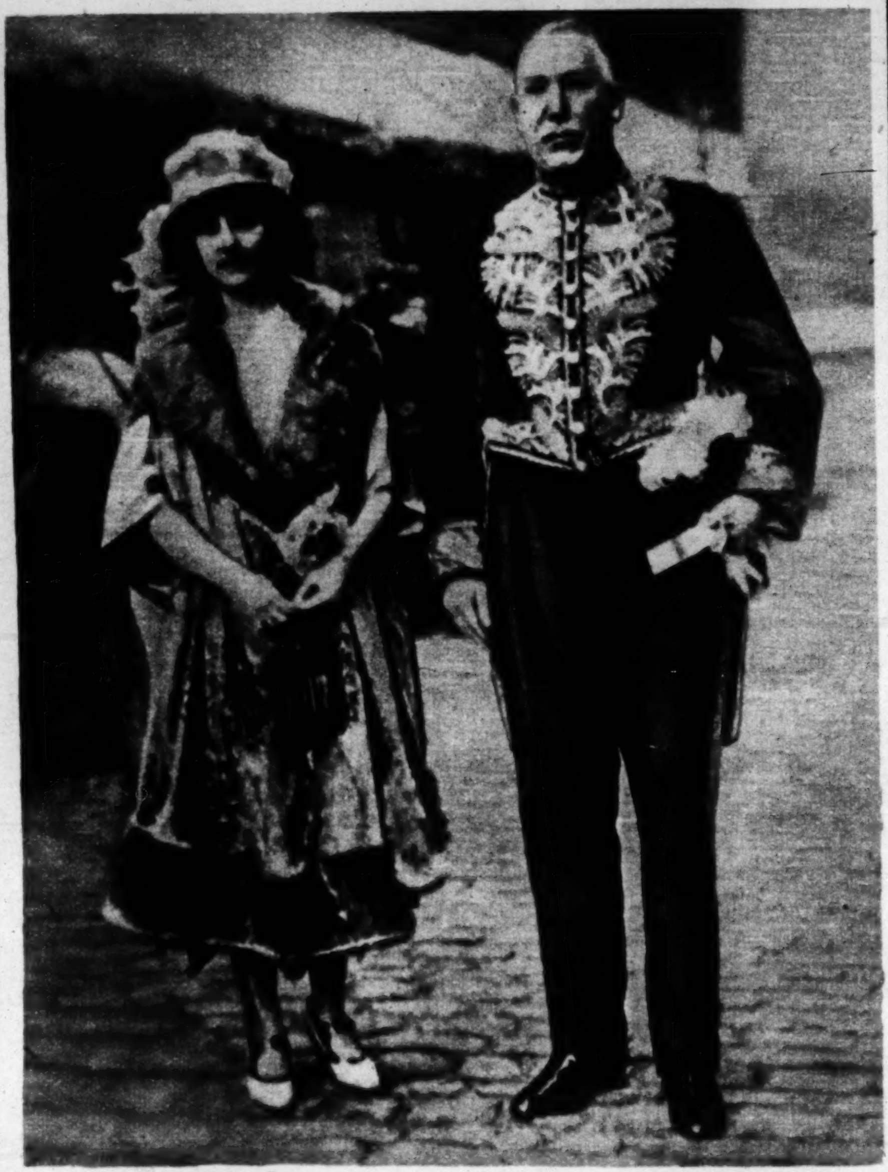
ALL DRESSED UP IN HIS $1,500 ROBE OF SILK, GOLD, AND SILVER, Kinjo Ikeda, Japan's master of jiu-jitsu and catch-as-catch-can wrestling, has reached this country and has issued a general challenge to American wrestlers to "show him." The picture was taken at Los Angeles. (Photograph from the Keystone View company.)

AND SO THEY WERE

Just a few of the notable guests who attended

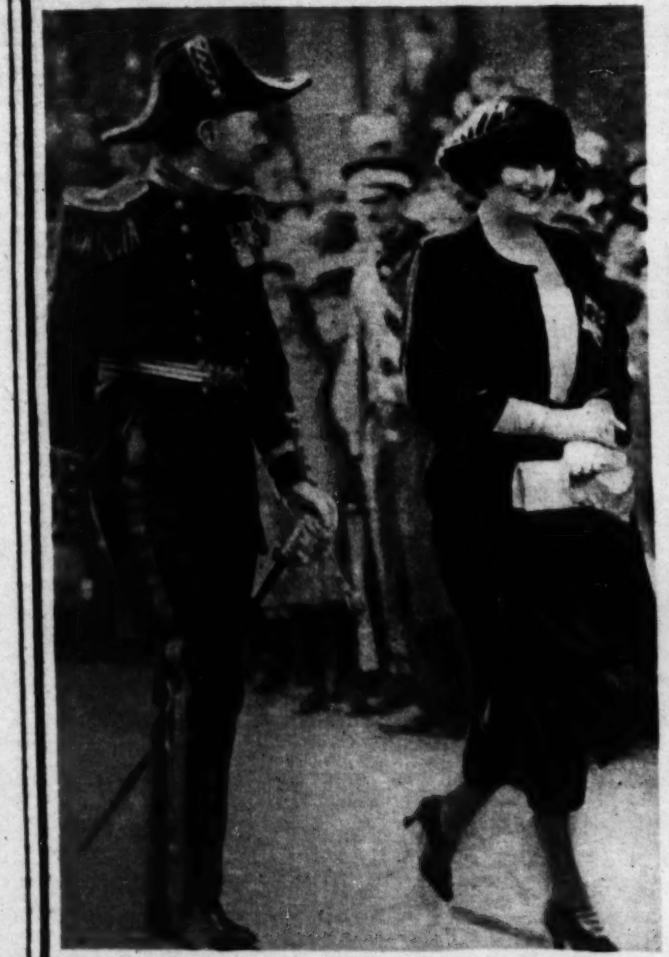


HENRY ULICK LASCELLES, fifth Earl of Harewood, and his countess, the parents of the bridegroom, Viscount Lascelles, were, of course, notable figures at the ceremony. The earl is the owner of estates totaling 29,700 acres.

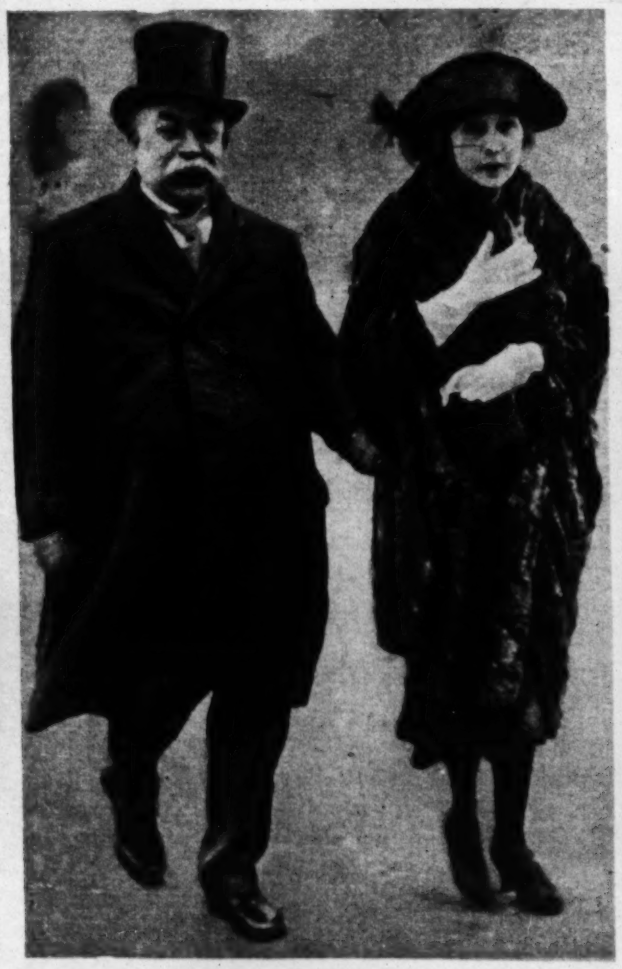


SIR JAMES CRAIG OF BELFAST, the famous Ulster leader, was the very pink of dignity as he arrived with Lady Craig.

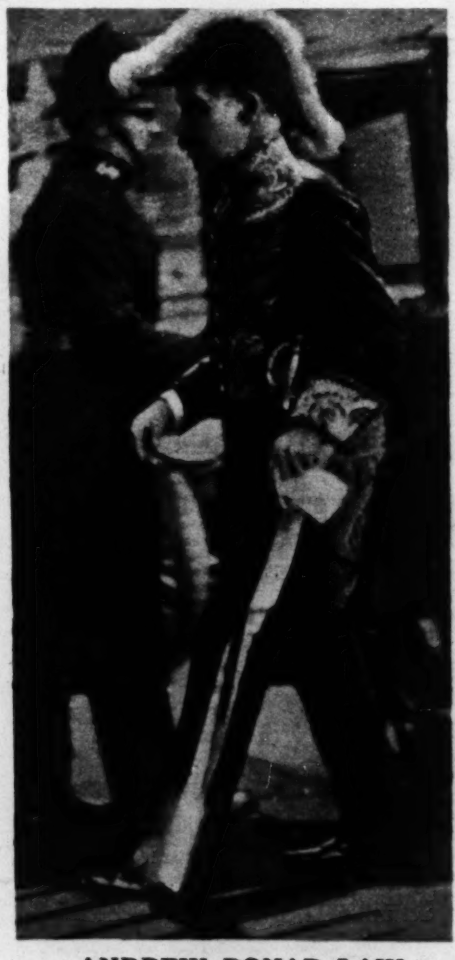
(Pictures from the London Sketch.)



WINSTON SPENCER CHURCHILL, secretary of state for the colonies, and Mrs. Churchill were all smiles when they arrived for the wedding.



JOHN HODGE, member of parliament for Gorton, Lancashire, since 1906 and noted as a labor leader, attended with his wife. His favorite recreation is cycling.



ANDREW BONAR LAW, distinguished British politician, former leader of the Unionist party, and member of the war cabinet, also was a guest.

Miss Violet Heming, who posed for this study of her lovely hands, says, "Cutex provides the busy woman with a quick, easy and delightful way of keeping her own nails always in perfect condition."

Just wipe away the ugly dead cuticle—

NEVER use a manicure scissors on the cuticle. This is what causes hangnails, and that ragged, frowsy condition of the nail rims that makes any hand look ugly and unkept.

The thin fold of scarf-skin about the base of the nail is like the selvage edge of a piece of cloth. When it is cut or torn, the whole nail rim gradually ravels out—just as cloth ravels when the selvage is cut.

You can take off the hard, dry edges of dead skin quickly, easily, harmlessly with Cutex Cuticle Remover. Work gently about the nail base with an orange stick dipped in the liquid, rinse, and when drying, push the cuticle downwards. The ugly, dead particles will simply wipe away.

Once you have begun to use Cutex regularly you will have no more hangnails and the entire cuticle will always be firm and even.

Two new polishes— just perfected

Cutex now offers you the very latest and finest development of two highly popular forms of nail polish—Powder Polish and Liquid Polish. They are put forth now because, at last, they meet every requirement for these two forms of polish.

Cutex Powder Polish is practically instantaneous. With just a few light strokes of the nails across the palm of the hand, it will give you the highest, most lasting luster obtainable. It is scented, delicately tinted, velvet smooth.

Cutex Liquid Polish requires no buffing at all. It goes on with an absolutely uniform smoothness, dries instantly, and leaves a luster that keeps its even brilliance for at least a week. It is a wonderful protection to the nails. Used as a finishing touch, it will make a manicure last twice as long.

Your first Cutex manicure will seem like a miracle to you, when you see how marvelously smooth and even Cutex Cuticle Remover leaves the cuticle and what a delightful luster the Cutex Polishes give to your nails.

Sets in four sizes

To many thousands of people a Cutex Set is now an absolute toilet necessity. They come in four sizes, at 60c, $1.00, $1.50 and $3.00. Or each article in the sets may be had separately for 35c. At all drug and department stores in the United States and Canada.

She Doesn't Know

Today her beauty is unblemished; her step is light and quick, her smile is gay, her teeth gleam with the white of polished pearls. A fig then, for tomorrow!

Yet even now those precious charms are threatened by Pyorrhea and she doesn't know her danger.

It is a grim fact that four out of five people who pass the age of forty are marked by Pyorrhea for its victims. Thousands younger also suffer.

And in almost every case the disease might be prevented if heed were only paid to Nature's warnings.

Watch your gums! They flash the first danger signal.

If they are tender, if they bleed easily when brushed, beware! That is the way Pyorrhea starts.

If you have Pyorrhea symptoms go at once to your dentist for teeth and gum inspection and start using Forhan's For the Gums today.

Neglect is costly. For as Pyorrhea gains headway it loosens the teeth until they drop out or must be extracted. Deadly pus pockets form at the roots and germs seep throughout the system, causing many kinds of illness.

If used consistently and used in time, Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea or check it in its course. An excellent dentifrice, it keeps the teeth white and clean and the gums pink and healthy.

Brush Your Teeth With Forhan's — How to Use It

Use it twice daily, year in and year out. Wet your brush in cold water, place a half-inch of the refreshing, healing paste on it, then brush your teeth up and down. Use a rolling motion to clean the crevices. Brush the grinding and back surfaces of the teeth. Massage your gums with your Forhan-coated brush—gently at first until the gums harden, then more vigorously. If the gums are very tender, massage with the finger, instead of the brush. If gum-shrinkage has already set in, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment. 35c and 60c, in the U. S. and Canada. At all druggists.

DO YOU REMEMBER 'WAY BACK WHEN GEN. GRANT AND THESE OTHER NOTABLES OF MORE THAN FORTY YEARS AGO explored the Consolidated mines at Virginia City, Nev.? It was on Oct. 7, 1879, and those in the group, left to right, are: John W. Mackay, cable promoter and one of California's early millionaires; Mrs. D. Gillette, U. S. Grant Jr., Mrs. U. S. Grant, Gen. Grant, Mrs. James G. Fair, Gov. J. H. Kinkead of Nevada, and James G. Fair. Blankets still as soft and fleecy as the day you first tucked them in

YOU had had one pair ruined. Cake soap—rubbing—and your handsome blankets returned to you matted and shrunken—their softness and fleeciness gone.

They could not stand the old stern methods. Wool is more sensitive than any other fabric, and requires more careful laundering. Even the suds from a harsh soap or harsh soap flake will make its delicate scale-like fibres tangle and shrink.

With Lux you need not hesitate to wash your soft, fleecy blankets at the first sign of dinginess.

The creamy, satiny Lux flakes whisk into a thick lather. There is no rubbing to shrink and mat the tiny fibres—not one bit of solid soap to stick to the soft wool and yellow it. Your blankets come from their Lux bath as big and soft as when you put them in.

"My Auto Speedster's Just as Well-Built as Your Dad's Car"

FOR sturdy construction, clever design and handsome finish, the Sheboygan De Lux Auto Speedster is in a class with the better automobiles of today. Built with the rakish lines of a 1922 sport-model, this coaster is rapidly becoming the most popular wagon on the Great American Sidewalk.

In the Auto Speedster have been combined nearly a dozen modern features, not found on the old, out-of-date coaster wagons.

The De Lux is equipped with double disc steel wheels, over-size solid rubber tires and frictionless roller bearings made of heat-treated steel—three reasons it is so easy-riding and easy-running. Auto-type headlights and a three-color, Auto Gloss Enamel finish add to its attractive appearance. Swivel steering handle and a back-board that's cut to fit the leg make operating easier.

At work or play, a Sheboygan De Lux is always a faithful pal—a speedy coaster in a race or a roomy carry-all for earning quarters in "rapid express" service after school is out.

DADS: You haven't forgotten your coaster-wagon days and the fun you had. Give your boy a De Lux—the modern coaster wagon. It's sold by most hardware, furniture and department stores. If not displayed in your neighborhood, write or phone and we will give you the name of the Sheboygan dealer nearest you.

Sheets and towels spotlessly clean

Shelves piled high with sheets and towels and table-cloths. There is no greater satisfaction—yet how much time and strength it has meant to keep your supply fresh and clean.

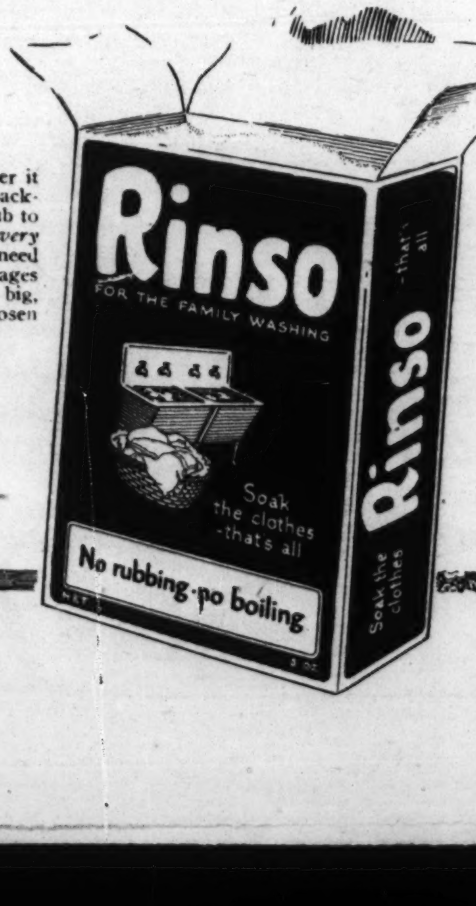
But now, just by soaking in this new kind of soap, all these clumsy pieces are spotlessly clean.

Use enough Rinso to give big, lasting suds, and even the most ground-in dirt will be so loosened that a light rubbing with dry Rinso will make it disappear.

Rinso is a perfectly balanced soap—so rich in pure ingredients, it does what soap has never done before. It soaks clothes clean without hard rubbing.

Rinso is made by the largest soap makers in the world. Get Rinso today at grocery and department stores. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

NOTE: In hard water it takes from ¾ to 1 package of Rinso to a tub to make good suds. In very hard water you will need from 1½ to 2 packages to a tub to get the big, lasting suds that loosen all the dirt.



There is constant danger in an oily skin—

IF your skin has the habit of continually getting oily and shiny—you cannot begin too soon to correct this condition.

A certain amount of oil in your skin is necessary to keep it smooth, velvety, supple. But too much oil not only spoils the attractiveness of any girl's complexion by giving it a disagreeable shininess—it actually tends to bring about an unhealthy condition of the skin itself.

A skin that is too oily is liable to infection from dust and dirt, and thus encourages the formation of blackheads, and other skin troubles that come from outside infection.

You can correct an oily skin by using each night the following simple treatment:

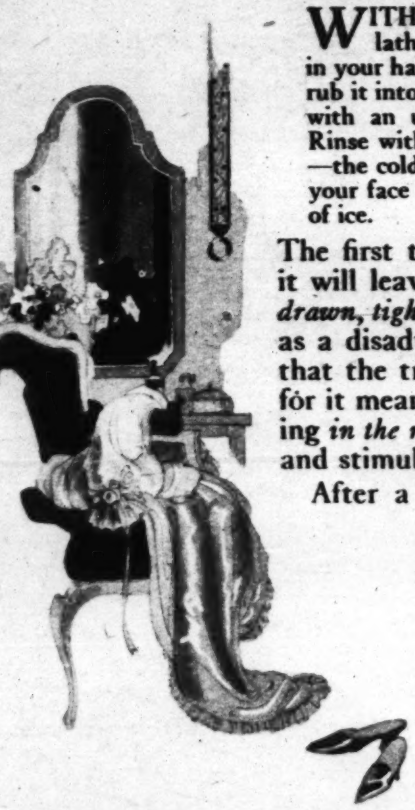
> WITH warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.



The first time you use this treatment it will leave your skin with a slightly drawn, tight feeling. Do not regard this as a disadvantage—it is an indication that the treatment is doing you good, for it means that your skin is responding in the right way to a more thorough and stimulating kind of cleansing.

After a few treatments this drawn feeling will disappear, and your skin will gain a new sense of smoothness and firmness.

Special treatments for each different skin need are given in the famous booklet of treatments that is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter, and begin tonight the treatment your skin needs.

The same qualities that give Woodbury's its beneficial effect on the skin make it ideal for general use. A 25-cent cake lasts for a month or six weeks for general toilet use, including any of the special Woodbury treatments. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York, and Perth, Ontario.

Send today for a complete miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations

The bicycle girl of the late nineties caused a lot of agitation. She wore bloomers and people called her the new woman. They said all the things about her that the older generation today says about the younger.

Way back in the pre-Mack Sennett days, around 1900, this was considered a pretty daring pose—yes, sir, pretty daring! A girl who would stoop so low as to pose like this—even for the sake of art—would probably paint her face, too! (The lady, you will note, is wearing a Janice Meredith curl of the period.)

Well at the head of the list of the girls who were the belles of yesterday came the young lady who was considered a perfect type of Gibson girl. In fact, it was rumored that Mr. Gibson had once asked her to pose for him.

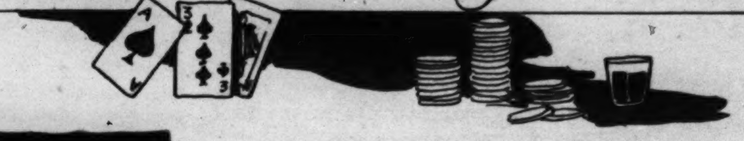
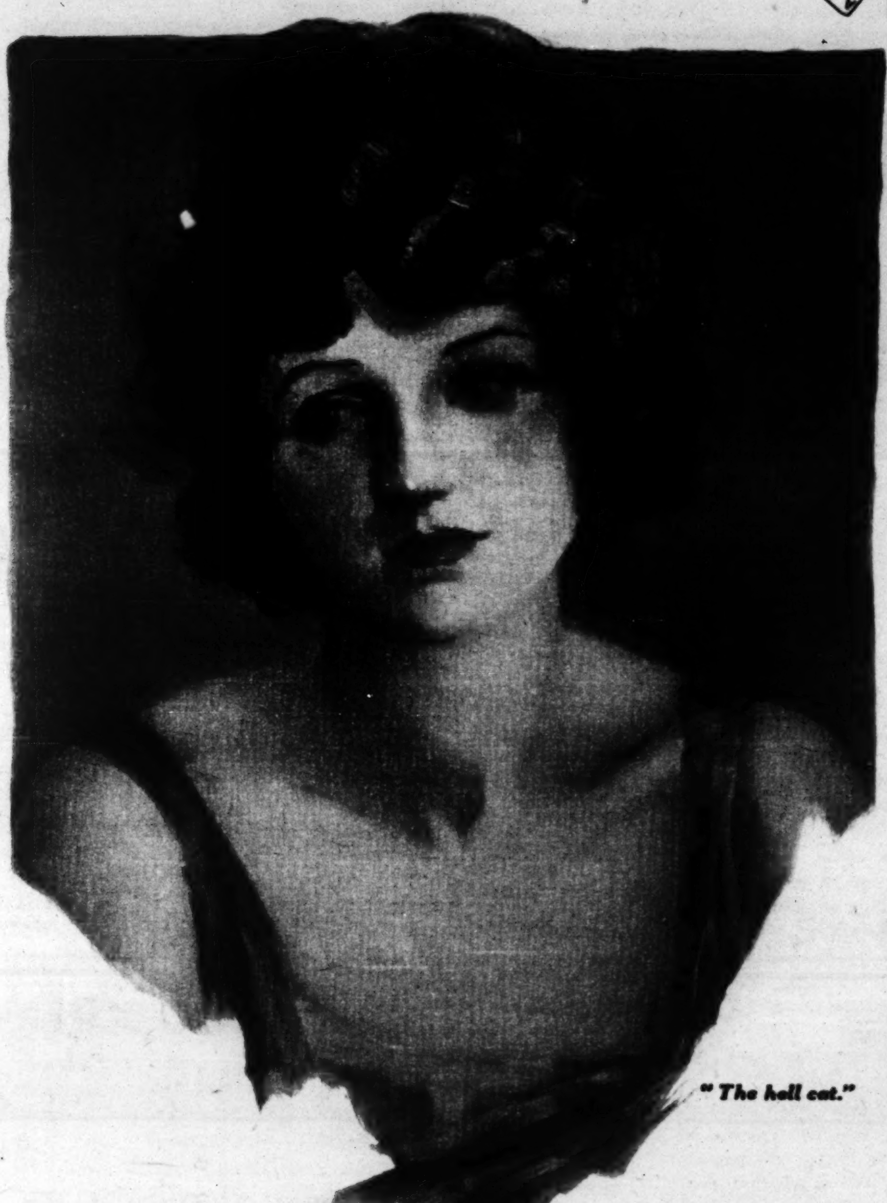
NO DRAMATIS PERSONAE

by J. Frank Davis





"The hell cat."

Lure of Gambling, Lore of the Old Texas, Love of Woman, and Luck of Cowboys.

THIS story was told me by Shutter Snell, who dresses like a retired evangelist and used to deal faro for Nelse Kincaid when San Antonio was wide open and the killings averaged one a night. He said it had some kind of interesting things in it, but he didn't see how I could make any use of it in my trade, because it didn't have no dramatis personæ.

Shutter amplified this. Unless he was mistaken—in which case I could correct him, but he knew he wasn't—dramatis personæ meant characters in a drama. A drama had to have a hero and heroine and a villain and probably some comedians. Maybe you could get along with a hero or a heroine, but not without both of them, and the fact that there were two or three villains wouldn't make up for it. And in this yarn, about the time June Kincaid helped her father go after Cole Gurney's roll, the leading man was a fool cow puncher who drank too much and the only woman in the whole cast was a hell cat, and, dammit, you couldn't make that kind of material into heroes and heroines, could you? He left it to me, straight.

While admitting the probability that his point was well taken, I encouraged Shutter to proceed with his reminiscence. It is not often or easily that he speaks of the ancient days, and when he does, although he sometimes rambles and has queer ideas of what are the important and unimportant parts of his stories, his speech frequently drips precious jewels of information.

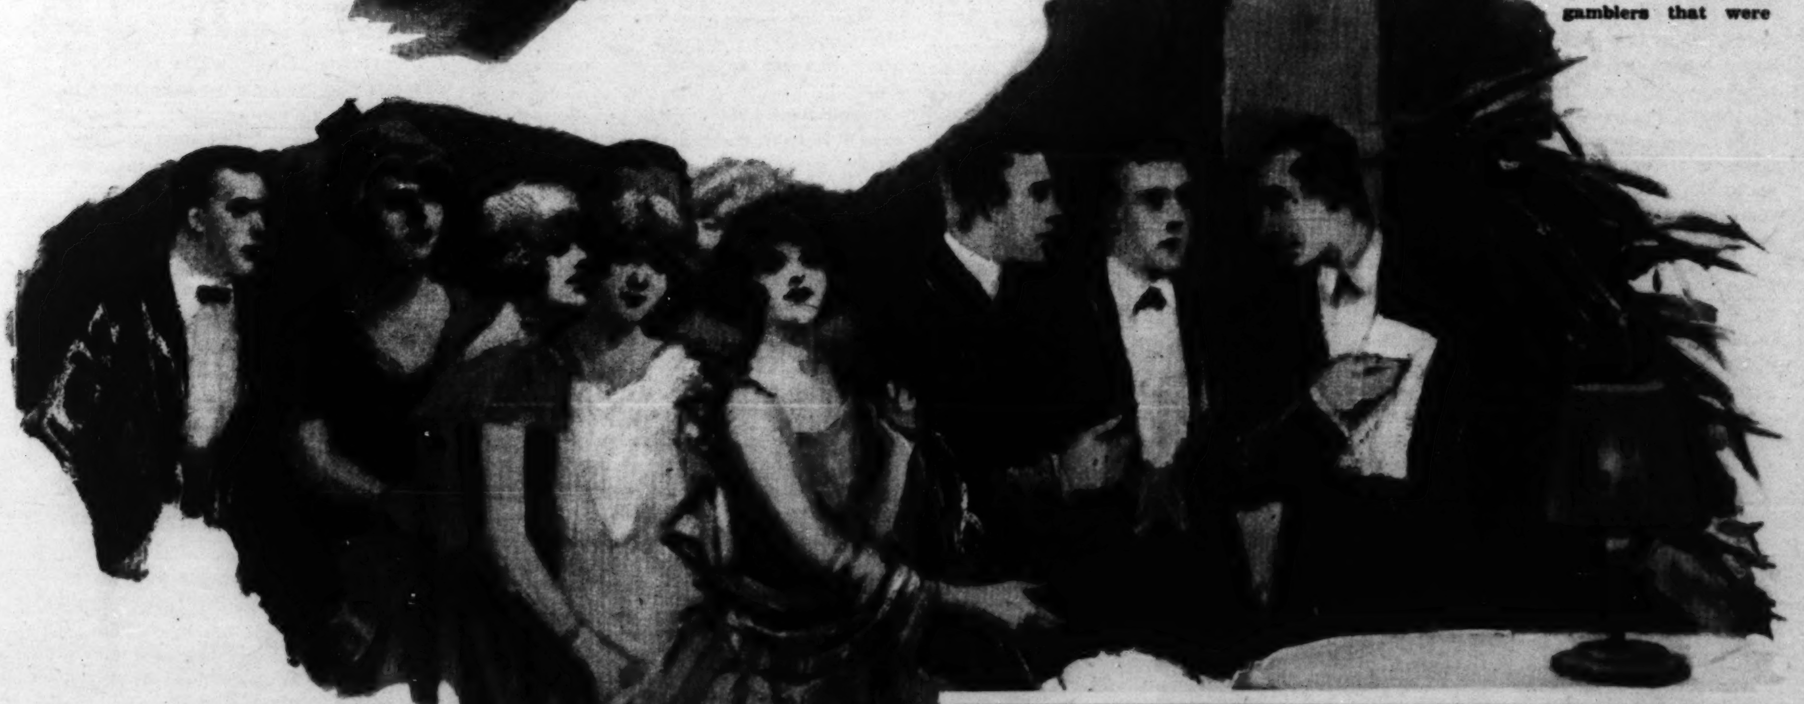
"Was this daughter of Kincaid's the hell cat?" I asked, to get him going smoothly. "If I wasn't mistaken, it was the sight of a bunch of pretty girls who had just arrived there where we sat, on the roof garden of the Hotel Bonham, that had started him. There were four of them, all aged somewhere around twenty, all dainty and vivacious and bubbling over with youth. One of them in particular, a brown haired, brown eyed maid with a mischievous mouth and a delicious creamy coloring of skin that was all her unartificial own, especially held my eye. They were in filmy summer frocks, fresh from some dinner party, perhaps, and, with a quartet of clean looking boys and a plump chaperon, had come to dance.

I had gushed a trifle over their attractiveness as they arrived, and Shutter had surveyed them in silence, fallen into a reverie, and come out of it to say:

"I never told you, did I, about how Nelse Kincaid planted three cards cold at the bottom of the box and had his girl tip Cole Gurney to 'em—crooked?"

Following this came his dissertation as to the absence of value to a writing man of a story without hero or heroine.

"Hell cat was right," he agreed, to my query. "She was sure bad—and she wasn't. You get me, don't you? One of those girls that raise hell with a man and always stop short of paying for it. There didn't anybody use this here word 'vamp' in those days. If they had, that was June Kincaid. She didn't have any mother and she didn't have any principles to speak of, and her father was a bad hombre with a pair of hands that could do things to a deck of cards old Hermann the Card King never even dreamed of, and the luck never to get caught at it. Cold steel nerve, too. Would take a chance and pull a thing right under the noses of a whole houseful of gamblers that were



It was the sight of a bevy of pretty girls that started him. One of them in particular held my eye.

Why Physicians Prescribe Nuxated Iron

EVERY physician knows that all success and happiness in life depends upon the nervous system, which consists of countless millions of cells. In these cells is stored that mighty, mysterious energy which we call nerve force. When your nerve force becomes weakened or exhausted, you may suffer from all kinds of alarming symptoms.

The nervous woman of leisure feels bright and like herself during any exciting pleasure, yet every time she indulges in such she is only further spending her already small supply of reserve nerve force and further aggravating her already lamentable condition. When such a woman has no exciting pleasure she at once feels morbid and depressed, has headaches, periods of great weakness and moods in which she wants to scream.

The nervous mother or housekeeper is highly irritable, forgets where she puts things and often cannot remember what she started to do. At night she often has a "good cry" and excuses it by saying it is a relief for her nerves, when it means a high state of nerve force exhaustion. The nervous business man feels in a perpetual hurry. He is impatient and restless while waiting for his car or luncheon. He eats rapidly, fidgets, and at night tosses and thinks for an hour or two before he can go to sleep. His memory fails, his judgment becomes poor and he often makes bad decisions, which greatly injure and sometimes ruin his business. The nervous student broods over his studies and cannot fasten his attention upon his work. Without "nerve force" your will power becomes weakened. You have noble impulses and desires, but you do not carry them through. The most pitiful sight in life is a man or woman who has "no will." Of all diseases, except insanity, there are few, if any, more terrible in their nature than exhaustion of the nervo-vital fluid. In such cases it is often worse than foolish to take mere stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your fagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. What you need is to put more nerve force into your nerves and more iron into your blood, to help make new nerve force with which to feed your starving nerve cells.

This is most effectively accomplished by the free use of Nuxated Iron, which not only increases the activity of the blood-making organs, but it feeds true red blood food directly to the blood itself, thereby helping to create millions of new red blood cells. This wonderfully increases the power of the blood to help manufacture new nerve force, the same as enriching the soil increases its power to grow more wheat, corn or oats.

Physicians prescribe Nuxated Iron because they know that it contains organic iron like the iron in your blood, and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples.

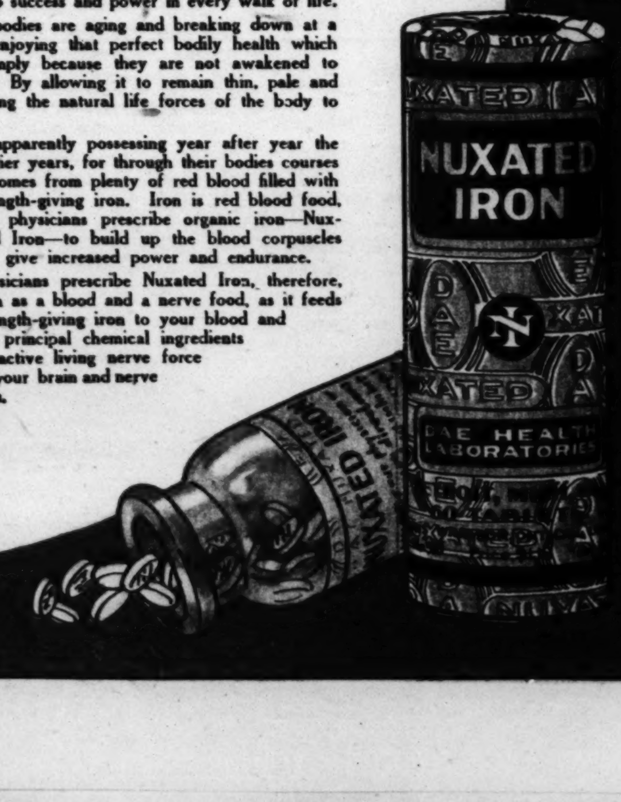
Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man or woman a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it altogether robs them of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life.

There are thousands whose bodies are aging and breaking down at a time when they should be enjoying that perfect bodily health which cries defiance to disease, simply because they are not awakened to the condition of their blood. By allowing it to remain thin, pale and watery they are not permitting the natural life forces of the body to do their work.

Yet others go through life apparently possessing year after year the elasticity and strength of earlier years, for through their bodies courses the energy and power that comes from plenty of red blood filled with strength-giving iron. Iron is red blood food, and physicians prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to build up the blood corpuscles and give increased power and endurance.

Physicians prescribe Nuxated Iron, therefore, both as a blood and a nerve food, as it feeds strength-giving iron to your blood and the principal chemical ingredients of active living nerve force to your brain and nerve cells.

OVER 4,000,000 PEOPLE annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood, help revitalize your wornout, exhausted nerves and give you new strength and energy. It costs about eighteen times as much to make organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, as it does to make metallic iron, though it costs you but little more. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. If you are not feeling quite up to the mark, start taking Nuxated Iron today. In tablet form only; look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. Nuxated Iron for the blood and nerves is sold by all druggists.



wise to all the tricks and looking for them; wait till I tell you. But knowing when to take his medicine and call it a day; you'll see that, too."

The Game of a Vamp

IT became apparent now that Shutter Snell was going to speak of matters regarding which ordinarily he is, to say the least, noncommittal.

He is not accustomed to admit that in the period when he was connected with temples of chance he ever was concerned with any of the tricks of his profession not recognized as legitimate; indeed, I have many times heard him assert that it had been his principle never to be employed by any gambler who was not strictly on the level.

Shutter has been respectable for more than twenty years, having possessed the foresight to buy centrally located land in San Antonio at a time when it could be had for a song, and, as he once confidentially informed me, not such a darn musical song at that. He has intimate friends among the best people of the older cattle set. Not every one among his acquaintances knows that in youth he was a gambler, and those who are told it are given to understand that he was invariably a square gambler, which I have found usually to mean one who does not cheat unless the other fellow starts it. Thus this almost admiring comment of his relative to the dexterity of Nelse Kincaid was an unexpected admission.

"So she went vamping along, and getting away with it," he said, "and by and by along come this Cole Gurney."

Gently I reminded him that this was hardly the place for a tale to begin. He hadn't told me how she vamped, and why.

June Kincaid, he went back to say, was something like eighteen or nineteen years old then, and as pretty as they made them. And nobody had ever had much of anything to do with bringing her up except old Nelse, who had his own ideas as to how a pretty daughter should be helpful to the proprietor of a notorious gambling house.

Nelse would have killed the man that wronged her in a minute, and he kept strict track of her comings and goings and saw to it that she kept straight, although it was no more than fair to say that she never showed any inclination to be otherwise; but there are morals and morals, and the kind June Kincaid had would have fitted those young ladies that sat on the beach and combed their hair and sang songs that induced sailors, according to that old story, to steer their boats plumb on the rocks. Yes, that's the word. Sirens.

She never associated with the dance hall girls; in fact, it was seldom that she went on to the floor and danced—never, unless there was a victim in tow. Her activities were in the gambling room and at the bar, when the crowd lined along it was not too rough, where she had a sort of private personal place, at the end nearest the gambling room, at which she held court, as you might say, greeting her friends and encouraging them to believe this was the night when luck would break their way at the tables. Especially favored friends she drank with, but a certain monotony distinguished her orders. Invariably she called for a little gin, and was served out of a special bottle with a third of a whisky glass of excellent spring water. On occasion she showed the effect of her potations mildly; she had a most convincing cough that sometimes followed tossing the fiery stuff into her throat.

Young men off the range, known to have a desirable quantity of cash on hand and to be careless with their savings when illuminated, found her an affable person. Nelse selected them. After they had drunk freely—out of no bottle of innocuous spring water—and her ingenuous brown eyes had worked havoc with their sense of values, tolling them over to one of the roulette wheels or up against a faro bank was really no feat at all. Especially if, their choice running to faro, June offered, as a special favor, to bring them luck by keeping cases for a deal or two.

They played at Shutter's bank usually, because that was the one behind which Nelse Kincaid himself commonly sat high in the lookout chair, with a sharp eye on the whole room, but more especially on the play at that particular table, and also because stakes ordinarily ran higher at that table than elsewhere, and the size of stakes is often a contagious thing; a boy with a roll in his pocket is unlikely to pike if the other players in his game are betting freely. Especially unlikely if the prettiest girl in the southwest is keeping cases for the game and occasionally looking across at him with expressive eyes. His tendency, under such circumstances, is to be at least reckless and probably careless.

Shutter made it quite clear, without putting the matter into definite words, that these games, at which the girl kept track of the cards as they slid out of the deal box and her admirers were encouraged to make their bets high, wide, and handsome, were not customarily crooked. He implied that when he dealt they were never crooked. Sometimes luck would get to running seriously against the house, June's friend would begin to win and to bet still more heavily, and old Nelse, up there in the lookout, would slip Shutter the signal to say his eyes were beginning to ache and that he would like to skip a deal or two, whereupon Nelse would climb down and relieve him.

Luck was pretty likely to turn against the plunging player soon after. When he was broke June would surrender the case rack to one of the professional casekeepers, laughingly assure the victim that his turn would surely come next time, and flit away with him to the end of the bar to join in a consoling drink on the house.

"Little Hell Cat!"

IT was a boy who went plumb broke, so that he couldn't come back to play any more, who gave her the name. He and she had been chummy for more than a fortnight, so that his pals had all been jealous and he had got positively cocky about it, and then when his money was gone she let him down suddenly, due to another man in the offing that Nelse had picked to be his successor.

He came in one night and bought a drink or two and piked with five or ten dollars at the wheel, and went over to start one of his old joyous talks with her, and found her chilly as a January norther. Some of his friends—they were a roughish bunch—gave him the laugh. "A lot I care!" he cried defiantly, being young. Shutter was getting himself a sandwich during his half hour layoff period at midnight, not far from where they stood at the bar, and heard him. "A lot I care! Damn little hell cat!" Which showed how terribly much he did care, because it wasn't customary in those days to call young ladies names, not even young ladies who assisted their fathers in the profitable conduct of a gambling house. If Nelse Kincaid had heard him say it he might have come a-smoking.

And Along Came Cole

COLE GURNEY was a big chap about twenty-three or twenty-four years old, with blue eyes, a lot of thick wavy hair, and a manner, some ways, that was even younger than his age. He had been working a year or two for the Circle Lazy D outfit, and somebody up north somewhere had died and left him ten or fifteen thousand dollars, and he was going to get him a bunch of cows of his own. That is what brought him into San Antonio. Before he had been in Nelse's place three times Nelse knew all about the ten or fifteen thousand, and that he had it on deposit over in the McCluskey bank.

The next evening June let Gurney buy her a drink.

It developed that the boy had a failing and a virtue. It was easy for him to drink too much. When he began to get under the influence he developed an amazing streak of stinginess. Nelse Kincaid, no doubt, listed these traits reversely.

Well organized, with seven or eight drinks disposed of, Gurney's idea of financial recklessness was to buy one twenty dollar stack of chips at a roulette table and put them all down at once, win or lose, and then quit. From the player's standpoint, Shutter conceded in telling this, there might be a lot of ways less indicative of wisdom in bucking a game where the percentage in favor of the house is as devastating as in roulette. Cole esteemed faro to be lacking in sufficiently brisk action, but he played it occasionally. Especially when June offered to keep cases. He played two dollar chips, mostly, with perhaps five or ten on the turn, when the bank pays four for one if the player guesses the correct order in which the last three cards come out of the box, and limited his losses to fifty dollars or so.

Nelse, with his mind on that ten or fifteen thousand over in the McCluskey bank, was plumb disgusted.

June never for a minute let it affect her work. Drunk or sober, play high or play low, she smiled her sweetest on Gurney. Her eyes had never beamed liking on one of his predecessors more convincingly, or more effectively. If ever she owned a slave it was Cole. He spent all his evenings in the place, and when he couldn't be with her—and naturally she wasn't foolish enough to let any one customer monopolize her smiles—he never left off looking at her.

He got, one night, to talking big brother stuff.

"Nothing," she told Nelse, when he asked her the next day what all the confidential conversation had been about. "Nothing. Except he said I didn't fit with the other girls in the place."

"Who the hell ever dares to say you do?" Nelse demanded. "He's got a nerve coupling you up with them."

"And gave me a dare," she said, laughing a little, but a laugh without any great amount of amusement in it. "He said he kind of didn't like to see a nice young lady drinking."

"Damn critical, ain't he?" said Nelse, grinning at the thought of the special gin bottle of spring water. "What was the dare?"

"He said he'd swear off drinking, cold, if I would."

Nelse was irritated, but encouraged, too. "He might almost as well be a teetotaler, at that," he grumbled, "the way he plays 'em up against his chest when he's lit. Stick to him, June; we'll find a way to make him loosen, yet. But don't give him too many chances to spout this confidential stuff."

June patted him. "Little June can take care of herself, daddy," she said.

"Bet your life she can," he responded proudly. He had a tremendous admiration for the girl, had Nelse. And affection, too. In a way. Some warped in his ideas as to how a father ought to bring up a daughter, to be sure, but what could you expect? He was what he was, and she was his. If he wasn't proud of his business, he wasn't ashamed of it, and he didn't know any reason why she should be.

It was a week or so after this that he heard about how badly Cole Gurney wished he had two or three times as much capital as laid over there in the McCluskey bank to his credit waiting to be checked out. It was really a chance of a lifetime. A ranch, with a fair acreage under fence and some three thousand head of stock there and on the range, easily worth fifty thousand dollars, which could be had for thirty-five thousand—perhaps thirty—because old Sim Tarrant, who owned it, had got bumped off in a little ruckus about a waterhole and his widow wanted to clean up and go back to her folks in Illinois. But which had to be paid for absolutely in cash; old Mix Tarrant didn't want recollection or reminder of Texas once she left; vendor's lien notes, even at ten per cent, did not interest her at all.

Nelse worked out a characteristic scheme of temptation.

At this point in his story, Shutter Snell, recounting the tale across the table while the orchestra jazzed and the shuffle and swing of sliding feet beat rhythmically about the dance floor beside us, became somewhat vague in several respects. It was not clear, for example, how he, who never participated in ways that were dark, came to be taken into his employer's confidence, nor was he able, apparently, to go into any details regarding the technique planned by Nelse Kincaid whereby June should get Cole Gurney to risk his bankroll on her unsupported promise that she would see he didn't lose. I take it Nelse saw how serious the affair was getting with Cole, and sensed that the boy might even be thinking of asking June to marry him, and that he staged some mock quarrel with the girl, so that she could go to Cole for sympathy and seem to be at odds with her father, which would make plausible her confession.

This confession—Shutter did not know how it was worded, or what led up to it, of course—involved the old man's probity, and June's. At times, when there was a big game, a faro deck might be partially stacked, to affect the three cards in the last turn, and June might tip a victim as to how the cards were to come out, and tip him falsely. She was to imply that her father wanted her to do this, but that she would not. If Cole wanted to gamble five or ten thousand dollars on one turn, she would undertake with Nelse to double-cross him—and would double-cross Nelse himself.

There was some sort of revenge motif as an excuse, Shutter said, and also there was the ingenious use of an old rumor—quite nonsensical—which Cole doubtless would have heard in the gossip of the place, that June wasn't Nelse's daughter. All in all, it was a plot that older and wiser infatuated men than Cole Gurney might have succumbed to.

Then, just on the eve of it, June balked. She said—and again, if Shutter had no active part in these things, I do not understand how it came about that the conversation was in his hearing—that Cole was a nice kid and that it was a shame. Nelse Kincaid thereupon flared.

"I suppose," he sneered, "the young idiot has been telling you if you was away from the bad influence of your daddy, he'd be half inclined to marry you."

"He didn't say 'half,'" she retorted.

"I thought so. Well, there's two reasons that I know of why he wouldn't."

He amplified, at her look of inquiry:

"One is that he ain't the marrying kind. But if he was, I'd see he didn't. When you get married, which won't be for many a day yet, we'll pick more of a man than he is."

"I'm sort of curious to know just how you'd stop it, daddy," she said, and something in the way she drawled it—some inherited quality of his own cold, sneering speech when he was angered—made him reply, nastily:

"Suppose he was tipped that somebody had a prior lien—that if you married anybody, it ought by all rights to be somebody else?"

She went white at the underlying significance and brutality of the threat. "Such a lie!" she choked.

"He wouldn't know it was, would he? It would fit in quite plausible with the bar, and the dance hall, and the associates that he wished you wouldn't keep, wouldn't it? At that, would it be so much of a lie? It's Bible truth that any time you get married, it will be to somebody else than him—the curly headed fool!"

June bit her lip and got control of herself, for she had an intimate acquaintance with the old man's temper and vindictiveness.

"I didn't know," she said, slowly, "that you had anything against him—personal."

"O, you didn't!" he growled. "You think I admired to have the smirking idiot tell you, in your own father's place, that your drawn. So Uncle Nat sat down on the steps and brooded over the curious behavior of white folks until he forgot everything else, and paid no attention to an auto which was then turning in at Bennington gate. Had he looked he could have recognized Mr. Fatface at the wheel. But Nat wasn't studying about Mr. Fatface, when he could hardly sit still for wanting to know what might be happening behind Dr. Humphrey's blinds. Maybe the doctor had forgotten to shut his north window, as nobody ever passed along that ell of the gallery; and Nat went sneaking around the house to take a look.

The door was closed, but the window beside it stood open. Huh! they warn't nigh smart enough to hide things from him, and company had no legal right to shut themselves in like that. Soft footed as a cat he crept up the steps. Not a board creaked as he eased along by the door, and had almost reached the window when Dr. Humphreys suddenly flung open his door, and shouted:

"Nat! O, Nat!"

"Yas, suh. Yas, suh." The startled Negro whirled, and began fumbling with some fishing tackle in the corner, while Dr. Humphreys seemed even more surprised as he said: "Ah! There you are."

"Suttinly, doctor, dis is me. I was seekin' fer dat little pole o' your'n. You tole me to put on a new sinker."

"Never mind the pole. Never mind the pole. Run and get Maj. Stark—quickly."

"Suttinly, suh; goin', suh."

A strong shove gave Nat a running start, yet even with the doctor looking at him he squinted through the window as he passed, and saw nothing. Then Dr. Humphreys called after him in a low voice, "O, Nat, Mr. Clayton will be in here; but don't say a word about him to the major."

"Lawd Gawd! Mister Stuart in dis house? No, suh, I won't speak his name to de major. Not me."

Trapped!

THAT'S what Dr. Humphreys had up his sleeve, and the miracle of it filled the Negro's mind as he went shuffling along the gallery and turned the corner. He was so busy pondering over Mr. Stuart and the major coming together that he didn't look where he was going, and never even saw an automobile that had halted at their steps. Mumbling to himself, Nat got mighty nigh to the front door, when he stopped and squatted and gasped, for Mr. Foxyjaw sprang from his car and landed on Maj. Stark's gallery. Nat broke into a run, but the marshal halted him with an abrupt order:

"Come here!"

"Meanin' me, suh? Suttinly, suh, suttinly."

"O, ho!" snapped Foxyjaw, his mustache bristling and his gimlet eyes boring the Negro through. "O, ho! You're the same man who got my five dollars."

"Yas, suh, dat's me, suh."

Bad luck had dogged Nat's heels ever since he first glimpsed those constables in their automobile. No matter how hard he tried to do right, everything turned out wrong. After taking so much trouble to keep away from the detectives, and withstanding a temptation to collect twenty dollars at the magnolia tree, here came Mr. Foxyjaw himself jumping right on top of him.

"You got my five dollars!"

Then, of course, Nat had to say:

"Egzactly, suh, egzactly. I'm on my way right now, suh, to see ef Mr. Clayton's done 'rived back home. Lemme git my hat, suh; lemme git my hat."

"Stop!" Foxyjaw cut him short. "We've caught our man without your valuable assistance."

"Caught Mister Stuart agin? Huh?"

"Sure." The detectives made no concealment of triumph as he nodded towards his car.

Up to this moment old Nat had been so keen in watching for his opportunity to dodge that he hadn't looked at anybody except Mr. Foxyjaw. Now he glanced in the car, glanced and gazed with eyes and mouth popping open wider at what he saw. On the rear seat, between two silent officers, sat a third man wearing the familiar riding breeches, but not low enough to hide his funny little mustache and goatee.

"Mister Stuart!" Nat groaned.

"That's him," said the detective. "Step lively now and tell Maj. Stark that the United States marshal asks permission to use his telephone."

"Unity States? Egzactly, suh, egzastly."

The bewildered Negro paused and stared again at the prisoner, who sat all humped up as if he didn't want folks to be looking at him. Then Nat turned and went shuffling through the hallway as he proclaimed:

"O, major! O, doctor! Run here quick! De Unity States constables is done grabbed Mister Stuart! I tole you so! I tole you so!"

The clamor of Nat's excitement brought Barbara running through the rear door, just as her father stalked from his room and came hobbling to the front, where Mr. Foxyjaw grimly introduced himself. One squint at his badge convinced old Nat that he must be an extremely high constable.

"What can I do for you, sir?" the major inquired.

"I must call up New Orleans—in a hurry."

"Help yourself, sir. Nat, bring a light." With a wave of his hand Maj. Stark indicated the phone upon a table outside of Dr. Humphreys' door, which was a slatted door like those used on steamboats for ventilation.

A blind man could see that Maj. Stark was mightily provoked, and Nat guessed Mr. Razilly had been telling tales about the note. So the Negro's hand trembled and the lamp chimney jingled as Nat placed a light on the table, showing the tense face of Miss Barbara, who listened while Mr. Foxyjaw exulted in the capture of Stuart Clayton.

"But what has Mr. Clayton done?" she demanded, then hushed for fear of rousing her father, and the major himself blurted out:

"For what crime is this fellow arrested?"

"We are not permitted to answer questions," said Mr. Foxyjaw, smiling like a wise little weasel, who knew plenty of things that he was keeping to himself.

"Is it a serious offense?" Barbara persisted, and her voice wavered as she asked.

"Must be pretty bad, miss, or the government wouldn't be searching four states to catch him.

"Where is he now?"

"Out there in my car."

"May I speak to him?"

"You? Certainly not!" Her father wheeled upon her, thumping his cane upon the floor, and adding, "Barbara, this is no affair of ours."

Having laid down the law, and, although he was bursting to hear, it was characteristic of the obstinate Maj. Stark to pay no tribute of a glance in the direction of the automobile. And Uncle Nat considered that he hated to look towards a Clayton, or have anything to do with a Clayton. By holding his mouth tight sealed and letting off no steam, the major stood swelling with wrath as Mr. Foxyjaw put in his call for New Orleans.

The Man in the Motor

IN the equally determined Barbara these family traits found wholly different expression. She did not argue or contradict, which could only result in locking horns with her father, and getting nowhere. She meant to do something, and her jaw set firmly like the major's as she drifted to the doorway and looked out upon the car.

Through the gathering dusk she could not see the prisoner's face, only the lower part of his body, the well remembered leggings, the riding breeches of Bedford cord. These, and his present attitude of dejection, recalled the enigma over which she had puzzled since their first meeting beside the lake. Always he had seemed uneasy and constantly on the alert. She remembered when he spoke of it being dangerous for him to tell her that he was Stuart Clayton, on his way back to Salamanca. Now she remembered every word, and here was the result—a guard of five United States marshals.

Barbara Stark could laugh at him when he was most in earnest, she could taunt him when she knew it hurt; she had even told a falsehood when terrified by his strength and overmastery. But now, with every instinct and every impulse, she ached to help him. She moved out of the door and nearer to the auto without considering what might be done; only realizing that she wanted to see him, to tell him the truth about who she was, and to say that she could never believe him guilty of any crime. Beyond that, Barbara did not know what she planned as she crossed the gallery and half descended the steps. Mr. Fatface, on the front seat, sprang out immediately and stood guard at the car door.

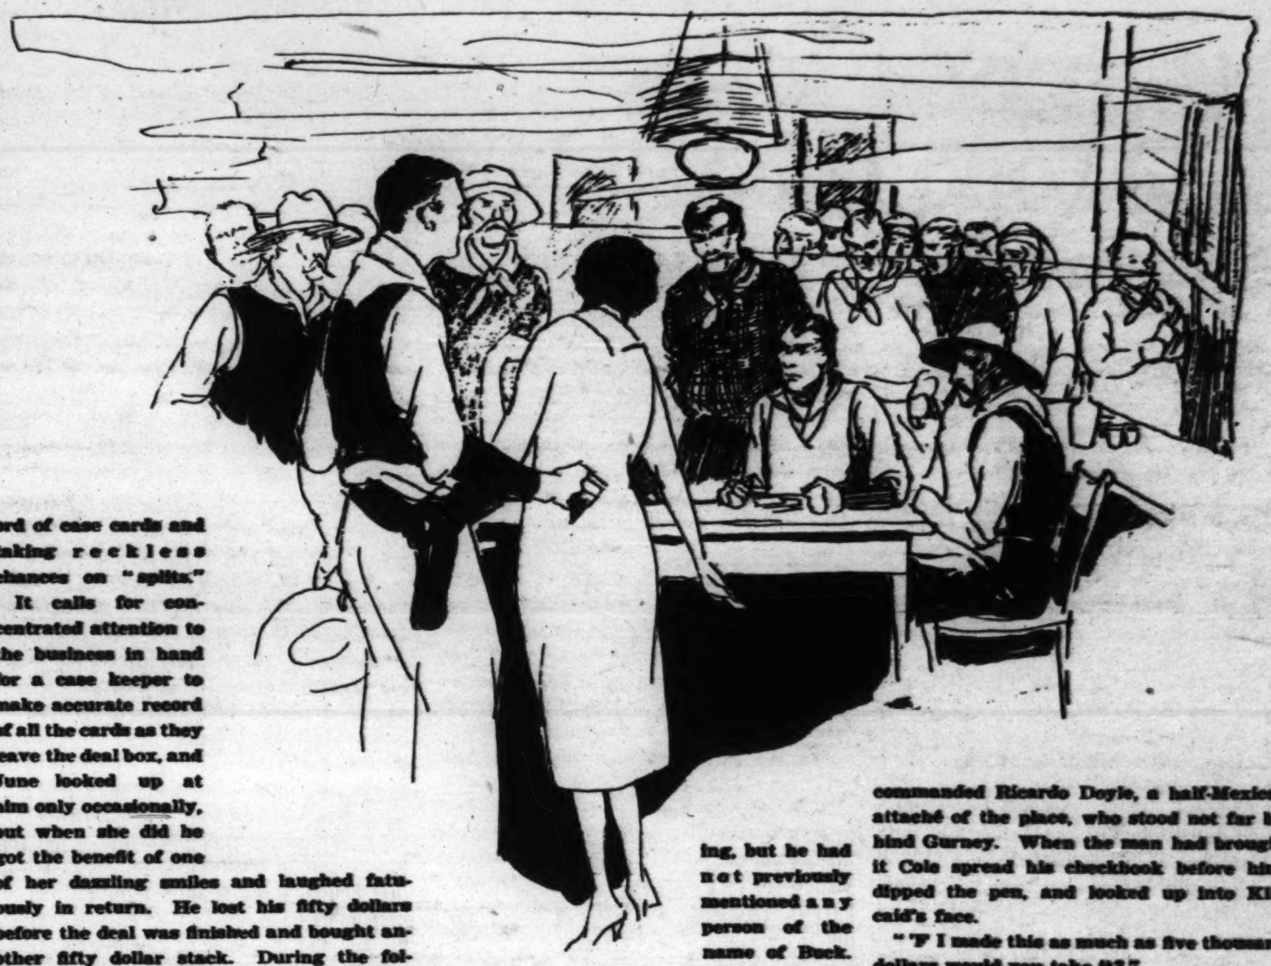
"What has Mr. Clayton done?" Barbara demanded.



She went over to where Cole stood waiting by the door and they went out of the room together.

own father wasn't man enough to look out for you."

"When did he?"

"Didn't he? Didn't he say you oughtn't to be around here where these other girls are? Didn't he kick at your taking a drink—as if I don't know whether you ought to drink or not? As if I ain't competent to 'tend to you?"

She opened her mouth as if to contradict or protest, and closed it. Her lips set in a straight line. Then she began over again, saying: "He meant well."

"Hell's paved with 'em!" Nelse snapped. "Well, life's too short to use it all up talking. Do we pull the play as set up, or don't we—tonight? Because, one way or the other, this pup Gurney is going to get sent about his business. He can be chased back onto the range by the need of replenishing a busted roll and disappointment in love, or he can be chased back by disappointment in love all by itself—you're the one to say which. But one thing I'll tell you straight, young lady. We ain't running the house for our health. You've made unprofitable eyes at him as long as you're going to."

June looked straight into her father's face, and saw he meant it, and she squared her shoulders and threw her chin up.

"All right," she said, shortly. "We pull the play tonight. What are the three cards?"

"That's sense!" cried Nelse. "It will be the first deal after Shutter goes to eat, at twelve. The turn will be ace, king, and some little card. The little one is immaterial; it will be at the bottom. They will come out king, ace."

"And I tell him they are fixed to come out ace, king."

"Right. You tell him to play 'em ace, king."

"He won't have it all in cash, of course."

"I'll take his check, if he guarantees it. You know how I stand with McCluskey."

"Afterwards, if he makes a disturbance and tells how he thought it was planted——"

"He won't make any great disturbance here," Nelse promised. "As to telling, he'll be drunk, won't he? Laugh at him. I don't think there'll be any scene, though. I ain't figuring he'll blab that he's been made a monkey of. You'll keep out of his way afterwards, natchully, but if you and him ever should meet up and he should corner you alone, you tell him I threw 'em out different from what I said I was going to, or that you misunderstood the lay, or, if he is drunk enough tonight so you think maybe you can get away with it, that you told him to play king, ace, and you never was more shocked in your life than when you saw him lay the bet down different from what you had said."

Kincaid rolled himself a cigarette. "But I don't guess you'll ever see him in our place again," he concluded.

"I believe you are right, father," June agreed. Which ought to have set Nelse to thinking. Not a dozen times in her life had she called him anything but daddy.

The Play Begins

SO at about midnight, just before it was time for Shutter to take his half hour off for lunch, June, who had talked long and earnestly with him in a booth at the side of the dance hall, tolled Gurney to the faro table, laughingly told the case keeper to go and smoke a cigarette or two, and took charge of the case rack.

A good many drinks had been served to the curtained booth during their conversation, and it was plain to be seen that Gurney was more than ordinarily jingled. He got a seat at the high card end of the table, and bought his customary fifty dollars' worth of chips. Thus he was directly to the left of June, who sat between him and the dealer. He looked at her more than he did at the layout, and put his little bets down haphazard and without judgment, ignoring the record of case cards and taking reckless chances on "splits."

It calls for concentrated attention to the business in hand for a case keeper to make accurate record of all the cards as they leave the deal box, and June looked up at him only occasionally, but when she did he got the benefit of one of her dazzling smiles and laughed fatuously in return. He lost his fifty dollars before the deal was finished and bought another fifty dollar stack. During the following deal he bought again. Seldom, therefore, had he ever been willing to lose more than a hundred dollars at one sitting.

Now, as to just when the deck was fixed for the slaughter I am not clear, because Shutter wasn't. He implied that, of course, it was done after Kincaid took charge, and I am inclined to think it was. At any rate, the sleight of hand which placed a king, an ace, and a trey at the bottom of the box, notwithstanding the ostentatious shuffling and cutting, came at some time during the comparative confusion attendant upon the change of dealers.

When a deal came to its end soon after twelve o'clock Shutter pushed back his green eyeshade, half turned in his chair toward where Nelse sat in the high lookout seat, and remarked: "Time to feed, cap'n." Kincaid glanced in the direction of the clock, nodded, and climbed down to slide into the place Shutter vacated, being careful, as they always were, not to disturb with his knee the pistol that hung suspended under the table edge, its butt handy for a sudden clutch.

"It's sure a slow night," he commented good naturedly as he settled himself and looked about the table, while the players prepared to put down their initial bets. "Here it is tomorrow, and nobody wins much and nobody loses much. Come get the old man! Why don't somebody sting the house good?"

"Gimme fifty more," said Gurney, stiff lipped. "Going to take you up on that. No chance to sting the house with only fifteen."

This won a thin, impersonal smile from some of the players, sixty-five dollars not being an amount with which a bank of the caliber and capacity of Kincaid's would be likely to suffer. The table fell into the tense quietness characteristic of faro, and the deal proceeded.

Shutter did not get any lunch, but swallowed a hasty drink and came back into the room, where he remained over by the door. The quiet group at the faro game was picked out sharply by the wide shaded hanging lamp overhead. In that illumination, striking down across his wavy hair, Cole Gurney looked more like Buck than ever.

"Ace, Trey, King!"

I HAD to interrupt Shutter at this point, with all the chance it necessitated of throwing him off his stride with the real dramatics of the yarn presumably impending, but he had not previously mentioned any person of the name of Buck.

Hadn't he? He sure thought he had. He had noticed the resemblance first time Cole Gurney ever came into Kincaid's. Just about the same size. Same kind of hair and eyes. Same jolly sort of reckless laugh. About the same age, he was, as Buck the last time Shutter saw him, when he left home up there in Kentucky to come to Texas. A powerful lot Shutter had always thought of Buck. Kind of wild, too, the boy was. Mother used to worry a right smart about him. Younger brother? Of course. Sure. Thought he said so.

June looked up from her case keeping presently and announced:

"Last turn!"

She ran her eye down the undistributed buttons on their little wires, like a Chinese abacus, and called the remaining cards:

"Ace, trey, king."

"Last turn," monotonously chanted Kincaid, following the customary dealer's routine, "and four for one if you call the order."

He sat back to await the final readjustment of bets.

"I great mind," said Gurney, with drunken solemnity, "I great mind t' make you a real bet."

"Go as far as you like," Nelse told him cheerfully.

"What you mean? How big a limit?"

Kincaid's reply was a little contemptuous. There would seem to the encircling players and spectators small chance that an habitually modest player like Gurney would want to stake anything spectacular.

"To you," he said, "the roof is off. The blue, blue sky."

"D'you mean that?" Gurney ogled. "D'you mean it?"

"The higher you stack 'em the better we like it," Kincaid told him, still smiling.

Gurney got out a little wad of bills and surveyed them. There couldn't have been more than two hundred dollars. "I'd have to write a check," he said. "I don't s'pose you'd take a check."

"I would if you guarantee, on your word, there'll be enough in the bank in the mawnin' to cover it if you lose." Nelse was still half smiling provocatively. Gurney dug a checkbook out of his pocket and muttered something about a pen.

"Go get a pen and bottle of ink," Nelse commanded Ricardo Doyle, a half-Mexican attaché of the place, who stood not far behind Gurney. When the man had brought it Cole spread his checkbook before him, dipped the pen, and looked up into Kincaid's face.

"'F I made this as much as five thousand dollars would you take it?"

Nelse stopped smiling and his face set to the emotionless inscrutability behind which a gambler hides his thoughts when high plays are afoot.

"I'll take whatever you guarantee in the presence of these witnesses will be good in the mawnin'," he replied coldly.

"But if I made it ten thousand?" leered the youth with alcoholic persistence. "'F I made it ten thousand, and she come out, for one, I reckon I'd bust the ol' bank."

"It would be bent, but it'd take more than a forty thousand losing to plumb bust it," Nelse assured him.

"Damn 'f I don't!" cried Gurney, and scrawled the check. "Gimme big chips."

Nelse picked up the paper and read its figures aloud. "Ten thousand. You guarantee there will be enough in the mawnin' to cover it?"

"Word of honor," mumbled Gurney.

Kincaid opened the drawer and dropped the check in. From a corner of his chip-rack he selected counters of a color and design used only on special occasions. He smoothly slid them in front of Gurney—ten of them. "One thousand apiece," he declared.

Double-Cross

WORD rustled about the room that big play was in progress at Kincaid's bank, and men who were mere spectators of the games moved in that direction. Shutter edged in fairly close, so that he was against the wall off at Kincaid's right, directly facing Gurney. The boy, he said, sat fingering the little stack of checks half-stupidly, as though now that he had them he didn't know what to do with them.

"And things got to moving kind o' fast," Shutter said. "One thing come after another so it was darned hard, afterwards, to recollect just how it all happened. I don't suppose it was more'n four or five minutes from then until the excitement was all over, but the time was sure crowded."

Shutter Snell turned his head and looked out across the gay dance floor with its swirling crowd, its bright summer dresses, its laughter, and its swift-beating rhythm and rattle of syncopated harmony. There was a slight reminiscent smile on his lips; from my side, as he turned, it seemed drowsy and absent. He was looking far beyond the modern dance floor, across twenty-five years and more of flying time, to a day when some men were honest and some were knaves in this old city that was

by Harris Dickson

THE STORY THUS FAR

ON opposite sides of Lake Marmion, Mississippi, are two estates—Bennington, owned by Maj. Kenneth Stark, and Marmion, property of Gen. Bob Clayton, who fled to Salamanca, Central America, following a duel with Maj. Stark. As the story opens federal detectives are hunting Stuart, Gen. Clayton's son, who has returned on a mysterious mission. Uncle Nat, Maj. Stark's aged servitor, warns Stuart, but is greeted so coldly he suspects the youth is an impostor. Uncle Nat tells his suspicions to Barbara, beautiful daughter of Maj. Stark, and her guest, Adelaide, wife of Florian Razilly, a jealous creole. The girls had met Stuart, whom they know as "the mysterious horseman," in the woods. He is in love with Barbara, who has told him she is "Adelaide." Indignant at his supposed imposture, Barbara greets Stuart coldly when the two girls keep a tryst at the Lone Oak, and he clasps her in his arms. To escape him she tells him she is married. Stuart gives Uncle Nat a note for "Adelaide" and by mistake it falls into Florian's hands. Razilly swears revenge. Uncle Nat hears Stuart has been arrested by the federal men, but later finds him hiding near Bennington. Stuart refuses to flee.

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT.

The Vulture of Salamanca.

THE thought of possible gossip over the countryside was unendurable to Clayton; yet, that being his personal affair, he must not jeopardize the secret business which had brought him to the states and had not even been confided to Adelaide. He must not forget a white haired friend now held prisoner by the Vulture of Salamanca and counting the days in his dungeon until Clayton should release him. Nor could he break faith with comrades that were watching from their rocky coast for El Señor Clayton to land his gringo machine guns and overthrow the Vulture.

His life was not his own to be trifled with, and that alternative flashed before him when Razilly said, "You will await me here." In a few moments the husband would rush out again, and Clayton felt compelled to go. But Adelaide must not be left in ignorance to despise him for a coward. Somebody must tell her. Whom could he trust? Humphreys? Yes. Swiftly he thought, and even more swiftly he decided. Almost upon the instant that Razilly vanished through the doorway Clayton turned in the opposite direction, then hesitated, and halted; for the high minded physician would never carry messages to a married woman unless Clayton told him only half the truth.

As old Nat saw him coming he sprang up with finger pointing to the road and almost shouted in the hope of warning Clayton.

"Look yonder, doctor! Ain't dat de same automobile what fetch dem constables? Mister Stuart better git away—quick. Lawd, Lawd!" he gasped as the headstrong youngster advanced to the steps, saying:

"I beg your pardon, sir, but isn't this Humphreys?"

"Yes, my name is Humphreys." The old gentleman rose and smiled.

"I am Stuart Clayton."

"Stuart Clayton!" With both hands he welcomed the son of Gen. Bob. "Bless my soul, boy, I'm proud to see you. Look, Stuart, here's Uncle Nat. You remember him?"

"I've just been talking to Uncle Nat," he answered. "Doctor, can you spare me a moment, privately, at once?"

"Sure! Make it a week."

"Then please come to the road. Nat, you stay here and watch."

The broad, gray back of Dr. Humphreys followed a slim, drab figure through the rose garden, and he naturally supposed that Nat was left behind to guard against a visit from the officers. But wise old Nat knew better. 'Twarn't the constables; it was Mr. Razilly who aimed to raise a ruckus. Maj. Stark wouldn't show up. This being the time for his bath, the major would slosh around in the tub for half an hour if the house burned over his head. Nat could see Miss Barbara questioning Neeser at the wharf, while Mr. Razilly in his room talked to Mrs. Razilly loud enough for anybody to hear. Things looked reasonably safe, but old Nat squinted every which way as Clayton led Dr. Humphreys through the bushes toward the public road.

The two men had scarcely disappeared when Razilly opened his door, slammed it behind him, ran across the hallway, and entered Maj. Stark's room.

"Dere now!" Nat grumbled. "He's gone tattlin' to major 'bout dat little ole note."

At the identical panel where Mr. Foxyjaw had halted his car to question old Nat by the roadside Stuart Clayton now climbed the Bennington fence.

"No, doctor," he turned and said; "you needn't get over. But I'd better stay on the outside, in case of accident."

His caution seemed to confirm Nat's tale that the constables were fixing to grab him, and Dr. Humphreys wondered why. Across the road lay the dry bed of a slough, so grown up in jungle vines that a man familiar with the country must surely escape from any pursuing stranger. The doctor observed that Clayton eyed this slough, and also looked both ways along the road before moving back to the fence. Yet the physician betrayed no curiosity as he rested his elbow on top of the whitewashed plank, smoking a pipe, and outwardly serene.

"Well, Stuart," he remarked, "I'm mighty glad you've come home. Wish we could sit down and talk for a month."

"Haven't got time." He spoke almost curtly. "Doctor, I'm going away tonight, and leave my reputation in your hands."

"In my hands?"

"Yes. When I'm gone people may condemn me for hiding from the federal officers."

"Wouldn't it be manlier not to hide? Better give yourself up?"

"I can't doctor! I can't!"

"Your father would."

"Father would do just what I am doing—break every neutrality law on earth and go back to Salamanca."

This failed to convince the straightforward old physician. His gray head continued to shake as young Clayton said, with a jerky gesture toward Bennington House:

"They are not my friends up there, and I want them to know—especially Miss Stark——" he dared not say "Mrs. Razilly."

"O! that's it!" the doctor whistled softly.

"No, not that. I don't want any American girl to think of me as skulking about these woods like a horse thief."

His excuse was desperately thin, and Clayton searched the kind old face to note how far it served.

"Yes." Humphreys stroked his gray beard and half agreed. "Yes. But, my dear boy, it looks bad for you to be——"

"Wait, doctor!" the dear boy had no leisure to discuss ethics when he wanted to send a grapevine telegram to Adelaide through Dr. Humphreys and Miss Stark. "Wait, doctor! Col. Thomas B. Yandell is your friend?"

"Yes, we soldiered together. Stark and I were talking about him this morning. How is old Tom?"

"He's rotting in prison."

"What?" Humphreys dropped his pipe as he grappled Clayton's shoulders and demanded, "Tom Yandell? In prison?"

"Yes. That's why I came to the states."

"To keep out of jail yourself?"

"No. To buy machine guns and get him out. We must drive the Vulture from El Jucaro."

"The Vulture? What's that?"

"He's the dictator, Gen. Tartarilla—the 'Vulture of Salamanca.'"

"Look at me, Stuart Clayton," Dr. Humphreys gripped the top plank of the fence, and his gray eyes glittered like bayonets. "Has one of those infernal politicians dared to lay hands on Tom Yandell?"

"Yes, sir; and he may never come out of prison alive."

"Then why the devil did you run away? Why didn't you do something to help him?"

"That's exactly what I am doing."

Secrets of Salamanca

NO man could doubt the boy's sincerity as he crowded the story of years into five minutes of time—telling how Yandell had settled in Salamanca and devoted his great genius to its development. Unlike most Americans, the people loved him; he became rich and a power in the land. He set Gen. Clayton on his feet, and had always befriended his son. But Yandell spoke his mind too freely, the Vulture coveted his possessions, and kidnaped him.

The fighting blood of generations flowed through Dr. Humphreys' face as he listened to Clayton's plan of rescue. The boy's eyes sparkled and his voice trembled, for he was telling of the man he loved, so that the woman he loved might hear of it and understand.

"Doctor," he finished, "we can only get Col. Yandell out by force, a thunderstroke of force. We have plenty of men. I came here for rifles and machine guns. Never mind how I got them, but I got the best."

"Then what are you doing here?" his friend gave him a shove. "Why are you loafing around Marmion?"

At this Clayton smiled and confessed, "Strategy, doctor, strategy. The Vulture suspected my hurried visit, and notified this government to prevent a filibustering expedition. Detectives trailed me about New Orleans, thinking I would lead them to our ship. So I came home instead, and let somebody else do the loading. Now my vessel is ready to sail, and I must go."

"Go on! Go on! Start right now."

The physician had become less patient than himself, ready to do anything, and Clayton broached the more delicate subject. "Doctor," he questioned earnestly, "you understand why I'm hiding?"

"Bound to hide. Quite right."

"And a private affair should not detain me?"

"No, sirree; not a minute."

"Very well. Then I want you to do something for me." It had required a devious diplomacy to reach this point, but Clayton finally steered around to it. "Doctor, there's a difference between Mr. Razilly and myself——"

"Between you and Florian? What about?"

"It's too long a story. Please say to Mr. Razilly that I shall notify him of the day when I can come to New Orleans and place myself at his service. Will you remember that?"

"Certainly. I'll tell Florian at supper."

"No, doctor; wait for about ten days."

"And let folks be spreading lies on you? Not by a jug full!"

"But, doctor, for Col. Yandell's sake we must keep this quiet. After I reach Salamanca you can give out my reasons for coming home, and why I left in such a hurry."

"Rely on me, boy, rely on me. I'll preach your gospel. But come to the house yourself and tell that part of it to Maj. Stark." The eager physician felt that now was the time to let bygones be bygones, and kept insisting, "Come on, Stuart; come on."

Young Clayton still held back, held back against the seductive hope that he might get a chance to speak with Adelaide.

"Come along, Stuart. Make friends. That's what your father would do."

"Yes, I know." While the son gazed towards Bennington and thought of a girl in her light tan riding habit, the memory of Dr. Humphreys raced backward to this boy's father when he wore a suit of confederate gray.

"Stuart," he pleaded; "it would make me happy."

"But I've got to ride like the devil to Vicksburg."

"Twon't take two minutes."

Before Clayton realized it he had clambered over the fence, and stood once more within the Bennington enclosure.

"We'd better not go together," he suggested as the physician took his arm. "Nobody must see me. You go in by the front door, and let me come around to the side."

"Good! I'll bring Stark to my room."

The doctor turned and hurried towards the front, where it seemed quite safe for Clayton also to enter; but he preferred to tread the garden route, alone and free to talk with Adelaide if he could find her. For years the boy had looked back upon this rose garden as a boundless domain of paths and mysteries, peopled with fairies and Indians and giants. Now it jarred upon his childish recollection that the place should seem so small, a mere miniature, yet all unchanged. Nobody need point the path by which he could reach Dr. Humphrey's room at the northeast corner. It would be easy to dodge from the gardenias to the myrtles, stoop behind a clump of Spanish daggers, thence to the crimson rambler, and gain the little steps that led to the doctor's room. And before starting Clayton peered around him, searching amongst the shrubbery where he hoped, by the favor of providence, to catch the flutter of her skirt. But providence intended that events should happen in another way.

It always gave Uncle Nat the jimmies not to know what was occurring in his immediate vicinity. Of course, Mr. Clayton must have something powerful to tell, or he would not have taken Dr. Humphreys plumb down to the fence, and stayed and stayed, while Nat wriggled on the front steps with curiosity stewing his insides, until he saw Dr. Humphreys returning from the road. Up sprang the Negro with the anxious question, "Is he gone, doctor? Is he got away?"

But Dr. Humphreys did not answer; he only brought his lips close to Nat's ear and whispered:

"Where's the major?"

"Major's mighty nigh through wid his bath."

"Where's Miss Barbara and Mrs. Razzilly?"

"Mrs. Razzie's in her room. Yonder's Miss Barbara nigh de wharf, argufyin' wid Mr. Razzie."

All four of the white people being definitely located, the doctor said, "That's good! Go and ask Maj. Stark to please come to my room at once."

"Yas suh, I'll fetch him."

The Eavesdropper

SUCH unusual secrecy on the part of Dr. Humphreys set Uncle Nat on fire. He wondered why the doctor should be so particular to find out where everybody was, why he marched into his room and locked the door, he being a man who always left things wide open. And the major nearly snapped Nat's head off when he poked it into his room and said, "Dr. Humphreys 'sires to see you, suh." Everybody had got mixed up in a tanglement, and the Negro itched to discover what it was all about. But he couldn't even get a peep into Dr. Humphrey's room, for the blinds were

Narcissa Takes a Long, Long Ride

by Paul W. Gallico

She Awoke to Find Herself Beside a Strange Young Man in an Automobile Speeding at a Terrific Rate.

BY the time Narcissa had trudged seven and a half miles along the road that led out of Riviera Falls her enthusiasm for virtue and Shakespeare had waned a good deal and her feet were hurting furiously. Not that Narcissa was the kind of a girl who bought her shoes a size or two smaller than she ought, because she wasn't. But seven and a half miles is seven and a half miles, especially when you're not used to hiking them in a broiling sun, lugging a suitcase besides. Narcissa had been careful enough in packing it, taking only her makeup box which she loved and a few essentials. It had weighed like a feather the first half hour, and she had swung it blithely as she sniffed in the pleasant afternoon air. Narcissa had a pert nose that was just made to sniff pleasant afternoon air, though it was little enough she got of it.

Now, however, as she stood contemplating the squat white stone that informed her that she had still some sixty-seven miles to travel before she reached New York, it weighed a good deal more than her entire wardrobe trunk which she had regretfully but of necessity left in the hands of Goldstein.

Nevertheless, she thrust her chin into the air and carried on. Once she had made her choice she was bound to stick to it. This choice, incidentally, had been rather limited. The ninety-seven cents and two two cent stamps she had in her pocketbook would have taken her to within some thirty miles of New York, but there would have been no food from there on. By walking the entire distance she hoped to find barns to sleep in at night—she would at least have something to eat, providing she nursed her cash supply carefully. So Narcissa walked.

Nine miles out of Riviera Falls she stubbed her toe full on a pointed stone and sat down in the middle of the road and cried. Then, when she suddenly realised the extreme indignity of her position, she dried her eyes, swore sobbingly, looked around her, and saw it.

It was nothing more than a car drawn up on one side of the road. It was an open car with a tremendous hood and dashboard and not much tonneau and it had cushiony seats of black leather. There was no sign of owner or driver in sight. Narcissa hesitated a moment, counted five, and then went and sat in the front seat with her suitcase beside her. She realised gratefully that she had found a species of heaven before her time. Then her toe began to throb.

Narcissa removed her shoe and felt it to see if it was swollen. It was hot to her touch and the stocking felt as though it were binding it, crushing it. So she removed that, too. The toe did not look as though it had sustained any serious injury. She opened the door of the car and let her foot hang over the side. The breeze coming up over the swale felt cool and pleasant on the hot flesh. The toe no longer ached so distressingly. Narcissa fell asleep.

Whence and Whither?

NARCISSA was flying along in an airplane, ten thousand feet above the ground, with the motors humming and roaring and the wind tearing through her hair. She leaned snugly against the side of the cockpit and gave herself up to the delicious sensation of hurtling along through space. Then suddenly the airplane gave a lurch and her senses began to clear. She was no longer in an airplane, but the same rush of wind, the roar of a motor, and the sense of annihilating space was still with her.

She opened one eye tentatively and then shut it again as quickly as she could. She counted ten before she opened both of them and found herself sitting in the front seat of a motor car that was tearing along the road at a desperate rate of speed.

She had slid forward in the leather seat and her head was resting comfortably against the right arm of a strange young man who was paying strict attention to the road ahead of him.

Narcissa removed herself as far from his shoulder as the width of the seat would allow.

"O!" she said. "How in the name of Heaven did I get here?"

The young man grinned. "I'm sure I don't know," he said. "When I left the car to get water you weren't in it, and when I came back you were."

Narcissa considered this statement for a moment—she was no more than half awake—and then as her head cleared finally, she realised all that had gone before; the long walk from Riviera Falls, the stubbed toe, the comfortable looking car, the momentary rest, the ride in the airplane—she blushed furiously. She had fallen asleep in a strange young man's car. Then it dawned upon her that the young man was running off with her.

"Stop!" Narcissa commanded. "This has gone far enough. I want to get out."

The young man pushed a lever or two connected with his steering wheel before he replied, "Sorry—I'm in an awful hurry. We'd better keep right on going."

"I'm going to jump out," Narcissa announced firmly. "You've no right to drive off with me like this."

"Don't!" said the young man, calmly, pressing his foot more firmly on the accelerator, which caused the big car to shoot out even faster. "There'd be a terrible accident. We're going awfully fast right now."

Narcissa looked over the side at the trees that were whirling by at an alarming rate. Undoubtedly she would be hurt if she jumped.

"O, dear," she wailed, "then why don't you slow down?"

The young man smiled, but merely offered, "Can't. The accelerator's jammed. Better hang on. This curve is a peach."

Narcissa clung to the side of the car as it roared around a bend, and found herself in spite of this thrown violently against his arm. It was a firm, hard arm, and she wished her conscience didn't tell her that as soon as they reached the straightaway, she would have to move away from it again. Somehow or other, while it was there, her own, the one that had carried more than its share of the suitcase, stopped aching, and felt rested and comfortable. The young man could drive.

"Why didn't you wake me?" she asked, plaintively. "It was wrong of you to let me sleep in your car when I had no business there. You had no right to drive off with me. You should have waked me."

The young man kept his eyes glued to the roadbed ahead, and fingered the wheel lightly, so that the car seemed to be choosing the smoothest spots of its own accord.

"I tried to," he said, "but you wouldn't wake. You can't pour cold water on a young lady whom you don't know very well. I shook your shoulder until you opened one eye and said 'lemme sleep!'—so I thought perhaps I'd better."

"I Fell in Love with You"

NARCISSA lapsed into silence. She had never met such a distressing young man. He was actually making it appear that she was to blame for her sitting at his side while he drove his car at a crazy reckless speed. She summoned up a lot of courage.

"I never heard of such a thing. You should have waited. You should have waked me. You should have done something."

"I did," the young man said. "I was in a hurry. You wouldn't wake. I couldn't throw you out and leave you sleeping on the road very well, so I thought I'd take you along with me. And now the accelerator's stuck." He took his foot completely off the pedal, but the car still continued its mad speed. "And now, as long as we seem forced to spend some time together, I'd better introduce myself. My name is Bill Brown, and I saw you act in the show in town last night, and I thought that you were wonderful. In fact——" he paused to guide the car around and past a lumbering hay wagon in front of them, clearing by a matter of inches—"in fact, I fell in love with you."

"O!" said Narcissa, ineffectively.

"Right," went on Bill Brown. "And, I say, is your name really Narcissa Hamlin?"

Narcissa felt less ineffective. A light had broken in upon her.

"Of course it is," she said. "I was never ashamed of being on the stage. I remember you now. You sat down in the second row right in the middle, on the aisle, and when I came out on the stage your mouth opened and it never closed for the rest of the evening."

The young man did not seem a bit abashed. "Admiration, pure and simple," he said. "I'm glad you remembered me. I wondered if you would."

"It was your mouth," retorted Narcissa severely, beginning to be annoyed for a reason that developed as she watched Bill Brown more closely. "I bet that you wouldn't close it, and you didn't. It wasn't memory, it was gratitude. I won twenty-five cents, and I'm going to need them, too. You might as well stop the car now. I want to get out."

The young man's voice was no longer quite as sure as he replied, "I thought I told you the accel——"

"Nonsense," said Narcissa, "I hate being laughed at. I've been watching you drive the car with your finger for the last five minutes. I want to get out right away."

The young man switched the drive from the wheel to the foot pedal and stepped on it.

"Not while there's any gasoline left in this car," he said grimly. "I was scared stiff last night that I might never see you again, and now that I've got you I'm not going to let you go until I've said a lot of things to you."

Narcissa felt the helpless wave sweep over her again. She didn't want to get out of the car very much, but for the sake of her self-respect she must keep up the front she had presented or hate this Bill Brown forever after, and she didn't want to do that either.

"You can stop right now," she announced, "because sooner or later we'll have to pass through a town, and then I'm going to do Ophelia's mad scene right here in the car and scream until some one follows us and makes you stop!"

"O, I say," protested Bill Brown, slowing down a trifle.

"And if that doesn't work," continued Narcissa—beginning to feel sorry for herself—"if that doesn't work, I'm going to jump out, no matter how fast we're going. I might as well, anyhow." She wished she could slide up to Bill Brown's arm and weep.

The Vanished Stocking

THE young man slowed the car down regretfully and brought it to a stop on the side of the road close to a corn field. "I'm really awfully sorry."

"I don't want you to be sorry," snapped Narcissa. "I want my suitcase."

Bill Brown said no more, but, reaching back into the tonneau of the car, groped for Narcissa's suitcase and handed it to her. Narcissa wanted to kick it, but she accepted it silently, opened the side door of the car, and stepped on to the road—there was a flash of white.

"O, horrors," cried Narcissa.

The young man looked alarmed. "If I mustn't be sorry, may I at least inquire what the trouble is?"

"My shoe and stocking!" gasped Narcissa.

"Yes."

"They're gone. I haven't got them. O! I took them off—you must have seen them."

"But I assure you I haven't. I don't understand how you managed to walk so far without——"

"I didn't—stupid. I took them off in the car. I left them right on the step—my foot—O, you must have them."

Bill Brown shook his head gravely. "You must have let them fall in the road. They weren't in the car. Of course, I didn't imagine——"

Narcissa turned her flashing eyes on the young man—they were brown eyes, and Narcissa could make them snap—"O! you're unspeakable. I never heard of such a thing. You might have looked."

Bill Brown turned fully around in his seat. "I assure you," he began, "when a young man returns to his car after having left it for a moment, and finds the young lady with whom he has just fallen in love, asleep in it, the very last thing he does is——"

"What am I going to do now?" she wailed. Then she sat down on the step of the car and burst into tears.

Narcissa never understood how the young man extricated himself from the wheel so rapidly, but she was suddenly aware that he was sitting by her side with his arm about her shoulder and she was enjoying a most satisfying and delicious cry with her face pressed hard against the rough tweed of his jacket. She cried as long as she possibly could and then straightened up and tried to dry her eyes with little ineffectual dabs of her handkerchief.

"Thank you!" she said.

The young man tendered her a large, white, roomy looking handkerchief from his pocket.

"There—" he advised. "Better use that. I don't see how you accomplish anything anyway with those little bits of things." He climbed back into the car and did something to the engine that made it throb and roar. Narcissa looked at him piteously. All her bravado was gone. Her toe hurt when she put it on the ground.

"But what am I going to do?" she cried.

"Better come along with me," suggested Bill Brown. "There's no point to your trying to walk minus a shoe and stocking. Perhaps when we come to a fair sized town we may be able to get mates for you."

Narcissa paused no longer than to count three before she slung her suitcase into the tonneau and climbed in beside the young man.

Ophelia in Tights!

"YOU'RE nice, Mr. Bill Brown!" she announced, drawing the white foot up under her and hoping the young man would not think it strange that she did not attempt to clothe it from her suitcase. She had a hysterical thought of painting on a stocking with her eyebrow pencil, and gig-

NARCISSA TAKES A LONG, LONG RIDE

"I oughtn't to sign," Narcissa said. The young man guided her fingers to the proper spot.

"To begin with—where were you going?"

"New York." For the life of her, Narcissa could not tell why she was answering his questions.

"You poor darling, it's over fifty miles. And when you got there?"

"I don't know; the rounds, I suppose. Managers' offices, office boys—maybe another chorus part if I have any luck. I can dance."

"And until you get your part do you eat and sleep?"

"O, yes. I'll manage all right." Narcissa wouldn't tell him, no matter how hard he asked."

"Narcissa " sternly. "Tell me the truth! Have you any money?"

"No," reported Narcissa meekly.

The young man made some sort of noise in his throat, but kept his eyes on the mirror and the road as he mumbled. "If only I didn't have to drive this damned car." Then, "Narcissa, you poor, sweet girl—you must listen to me. I love you, I love you dearly. I know that I loved you from the first moment that I saw you in Riviera Falls, when you—here comes a motorcycle cop!"

Narcissa straightened up in the seat. "Where?" she gasped.

"In back of us—I caught him in the mirror as he came around the bend. He'll have to do an awful lot of moving if he's going to catch us." The needle quivered and moved to fifty. "It's ruination if he does. Keep your eye on him, Narcissa, dear. You know, I tried to find you after the show to tell you. I knew the moment you came on to the stage. It was in your face and your eyes. Is he gaining?"

"I—I—think so," quavered Narcissa. "He looks bigger."

The needle edged slowly away from the fifty mark—three, four, and five. The road lay straight as an arrow.

"Narcissa, darling, I can't stop. I've got to tell you all now. I've been so lonely with my farm and the estate. There was no one when dad died. Dogs and horses go just so far. Where is he now?"

"He's coming closer. Bill! Step on her!"

"She'll do sixty-seven and no more!" said Bill, grimly, raising his voice above the roar of the motor. "Where was I? There, Narcissa—don't you see? It was beginning to eat into me, the loneliness. It was getting me. I couldn't find any one I cared for. I worked hard to make the place a success and I did. But it kept me apart and all I had to keep me going was the thought of you—I mean the you I knew existed some place and whom I would find some time and——"

"Bill!" shrieked Narcissa, "you've got to go faster. He's almost behind. He's got goggles or something on."

The indicator already pointed to sixty. "Hell!" roared Bill, and ground his toe into the bottom of the car. The needle went to sixty-five, hesitated, dropped back, and then staggered to sixty-seven.

"For heaven's sake, hold on, Narcissa. That's all there is—except that when I saw you the first time last night I knew that you were made for me. Your voice, the tenderness in your eyes, and the humor in them, too. I loved you—loved you so that I wanted to come up on to the stage and take you away then and there. That's why my mouth was open. That's why——"

"Bill, Bill!" wailed Narcissa. "He's getting us. Can't you go faster?"

"We're done!" shouted Bill. "It's all over. She won't go any faster. Narcissa, listen to me. There'll be no drudgery. I've made it pay. Dear me, there'll never be another like you. Narcissa, darling, say you'll come. Fresh rolling lands, clear air, and trees and grass and your own home. We could be so hap——"

A new noise, augmenting the roar of the powerful car, suddenly cut him off, and a weird figure wearing a visored cap and motor goggles, mounted on a shiny motorcycle, slipped alongside the young man's machine as though it had only been coasting along.

"That bane gude car you got!" it roared in a voice that made itself heard above the noise of the combined motors. "But I gass I go faster. I juss buy this new. I gass I go way now. Gude bye!"

The pop pop of his motor took on another note and he slid on ahead.

"Good heavens!" shrieked the young man. "The fool was racing us!"

"I Won't Sign!"

BILL BROWN took his foot off the pedal for a moment to let the car slow down and looked around.

"Bless his soul! Granby's in sight. We've made it. I'd never have dared to go fast if it hadn't been for him. Thank goodness the minister lives on the outskirts."

Narcissa jerked away from the young man's shoulder. The minister! She wouldn't be married this way, she wouldn't, she wouldn't, she wouldn't.

The car had come to a stop. Narcissa felt a panicky helplessness again as she looked out at the low white frame house with the two placards on the door, one announcing, "County Clerk" and the other—"Rev. M. Bowlby, D. D."

"We've got fifteen minutes," the young man announced gleefully. "Let's go right inside."

Narcissa edged over toward the wheel. "My foot—my toe. I can't! I won't!"

"Narcissa, dear, you must come. We can't get along without you. Here—never mind your foot. They'll never notice it. Hang on!"

Narcissa suddenly found herself being wafted out of the seat, and the next moment she was in the young man's arms with her head resting snugly against his chest and breathing "I won't. I don't want to. You can't make me. You can't. I won't," into his vest. Then a tall, thin man with gold rimmed glasses was placing a chair for her, and she sank into it as her knees threatened to give way. Bill was pushing a pen into her hands and leaning over her shoulder. Behind him stood a pleasant faced, elderly man with a clerical collar. "You sign right there, dear," Bill was saying soothingly. There was a legal looking paper with a red seal beneath her fingers—she was helpless. She couldn't even count.

"I won't! You can't make me. I won't. O, dear, w-w-w-here is the l-l-l-ine? I can't see it?"

The young man guided her fingers to the proper spot.

"I oughtn't to," said Narcissa, and wrote "Narcissa Hamlin" in a shaky hand. Over her shoulder the tall, thin man blotted the signature, and then the paper was taken from him and the minister signed it, after which the tall, thin man took it away and signed it himself, and then they stood around and shook hands with each other and the minister was clapping the young man on the back, and Narcissa sat on the chair and wished they would begin.

Suddenly Bill Brown snapped his watch out of his pocket, glanced at it, and whistled.

"We've got ten minutes, before the stores close, to get to Granby, if we want to get a shoe and stocking. We can make it. If we get there just as they are shutting up, they'll hold it for us. Up we go!"

"I Despise You"

WITH the sickening dead certain sensation that something terrible had happened, Narcissa felt herself lifted off the chair, once more in Bill's arms. They were moving out of the house. Something was wrong! She wanted to ask Bill, but she had no voice. Then she was in the car again, in the same front seat, with the young man beside her. The motor was purring and Bill was saying something to her as they moved off. She put her hands to her throbbing temples, but forced herself to listen.

". . . of all the absurd situations," he was saying, "to have to rush you along like that, but somehow or other, I just didn't seem to get a chance to explain. You see, it was a question of getting to the minister's on time, that is, before five, or the whole church property with a good part of Dr. Bowlby's land would have been forfeited. I only found the paper in the morning, among some old letters of father's, so, of course, I phoned the minister immediately and told him to have the county clerk ready as soon as I got there, and we'd settle the thing as my father intended it to be settled before he died, and——"

Narcissa, with her head reeling, sat up as straight as she could in the car and looked at the young man. She found her voice.

"O," she gasped. "O! You unspeakable—What was that paper I signed?"

Bill brought the car to a stop. "Why," he said, "why, it was the deed, of course. He owned the land, but gave it to Dr. Bowlby, who was his best friend. The deed was lost. Of course, I should have told you all this before, but the way things went— The right of the church to the property was contested, and it would have been forfeited if——"

"And that is what I signed!" Narcissa's voice had a cutting, chilling quality.

"Why, yes. That was all. I forgot I had to have a witness until it was too late to turn back, but I figured I'd pick some one up in Granby. But as long as you were with me I thought——"

"I hate you! I detest you! I despise you!" cried Narcissa wildly. "I can never look myself in the face again. Let me go. I want to get away from here. I never want to see you again. I never want to see or speak to another man. Let me go, I tell you. O, I can't stand it, I can't. To think that I ever thought of marrying you—you—you—you. O, I can't think of anything awful enough to——"

"Good Lord, darling! Narcissa. You mean you thought of marrying me—were going to ac——"

"I was crazy. I hate you." Narcissa had broken down and was sobbing with her face hidden between her hands. "And I b-believed you and signed my name. O, I'll never live through i-it. D-don't—I can't stand it."

Narcissa was in the young man's arms again with her head tucked beneath his chin and her face pressed hard against his shoulder — a rough, hard, comfortable shoulder.

"Narcissa, sweetheart, I never dreamed you cared for me. The way I did. What a glorious ass I've made of myself. You do care, then. Good God, and you thought the paper was——"

"The m-m-m-marriage license," finished Narcissa, and tried to bury her face deeper yet into the shoulder—her shoulder.

"Narcissa! You darling! And you signed it, honey. I—there's time yet."

Narcissa felt one arm leave her and looked up frightened. She wanted both of them around her. She heard the gears again and felt the car swing around.

"Bill—B-Bill. Where are we going?"

Bill kissed the top of the brown head and then the soft lips. "Back to the minister's. We've got five minutes to do it in. The clerk will give us the license right away. Sweetheart, we'll be married in fifteen minutes."

gled. The young man must have taken it as a good sign.

"O, Bill, Bill by all means—I detest Mr. Brown. You might as well, you know. Everything has been so pleasantly informal so far. I'm going to call you Narcissa."

He threw the car into gear and eased it smoothly into the center of the road.

"Better settle yourself comfortably, Narcissa. We're going to move right along. We've got to make up time."

"All right—Bill." Then—"You've never asked me how I came to be without one shoe and stocking."

Bill gave his eyebrows a funny quirk. "There are a whole lot of things I never asked you," he said.

"I was running away from the show—the company—that is, Mr. Goldstein."

"Good," applauded Bill. "What had you done?"

"It isn't what I did—it's what I wouldn't do," said Narcissa, grimly. "I wouldn't play his darned old Ophelia in tights, the way he wanted me to."

"O-o-h!" The young man turned his eyes to the road ahead. Narcissa detected what she thought was a shade of disappointment in his voice. She turned to him.

"O, it wasn't for the reason you think," she flashed.

"How do you know what I was thinking?" inquired Bill, his boyish face bearing a sheepish caught-in-the-act grin.

"Because I know," said Narcissa grimly. "I wouldn't wear tights playing Ophelia because Ophelia didn't wear them. It's inartistic. The show didn't go so well the first night or so—I mean there weren't many in the house—so Goldstein said it would wake the hicks up a little if Ophelia appeared in tights, and a few other additions and subtractions, and I said that Shakespeare would get vertigo spinning in his grave, and that I wouldn't do it."

"And he dismissed you?"

"Not exactly' Narcissa hastened to explain. "He just said I would either go on or go out, so I went out."

There was still a slightly puzzled frown on Bill's face. "But that doesn't explain the rock and the toe."

"O, you mean my walking," said Narcissa brightly. "That was simple. I had no money. To be exact, I had ninety-seven cents and two two cent stamps."

Bill interrupted. "But surely Goldstein——"

"Goldstein?" said Narcissa, and she drew down the corners of her mouth and arched her eyebrows so that she was Goldstein—"Goldstein said, 'Peeble vat breaks condracts don'd get money from me. In der condract stands you act like I diregt, and ven you don'd do that, the condract is broke.'"

"The damned villain!" exploded Bill Brown, "I'll punch his head."

"O, no," advised Narcissa cheerfully, "don't do that. Goldie's all right. You see, the worst of it is that in this case he's quite justified. I did break my contract, you know."

"But to turn you loose without a cent, to walk, without——"

Narcissa looked out over the country flashing by. "O, Goldie didn't know what he was doing. I mean, he didn't know I was an orphan. He wouldn't have hired me if he had. He never engages orphans, because he says they're so hard to fire when you're far from any place."

The young man brought the car to an abrupt stop, and turned away from the wheel toward Narcissa.

"Narcissa Hamlin! Am I to understand that because you thought it was inartistic to play Ophelia in tights, you left your company and began to walk to New York with ninety-seven cents in your pocketbook?"

"Why, y-y-y-es. It was all I could do. I mean I played the game my way. I was engaged to play Ophelia. I was brought up on Shakespeare."

"Bless you, Narcissa. You're wonderful, You're more than wonderful. You're adorable," said Bill Brown. "I'm going to kiss you."

There was no time or room for Narcissa to move, and the young man took her face between his two hands and kissed her. There was a pause. The young man shifted back to the wheel again. Narcissa looked frightened.

"O," she said, "I don't know what to say."

"Golly!" Bill twiddled with the levers on the wheel. "I don't know what to say, either."

Narcissa maintained silence.

"Of course, I love you," offered the young man.

Narcissa said nothing.

"I—I couldn't help it," went on Bill Brown. "It was so wonderful to find some one who felt the way you did. I mean did things the way you did. You see, I was let out of college for a reason almost like yours."

"O, not really?" Narcissa was grateful. The letdown in the tension came just as she was wanting either to be kissed again, or to suddenly find herself alone on a desert island, a thousand miles away from the world.

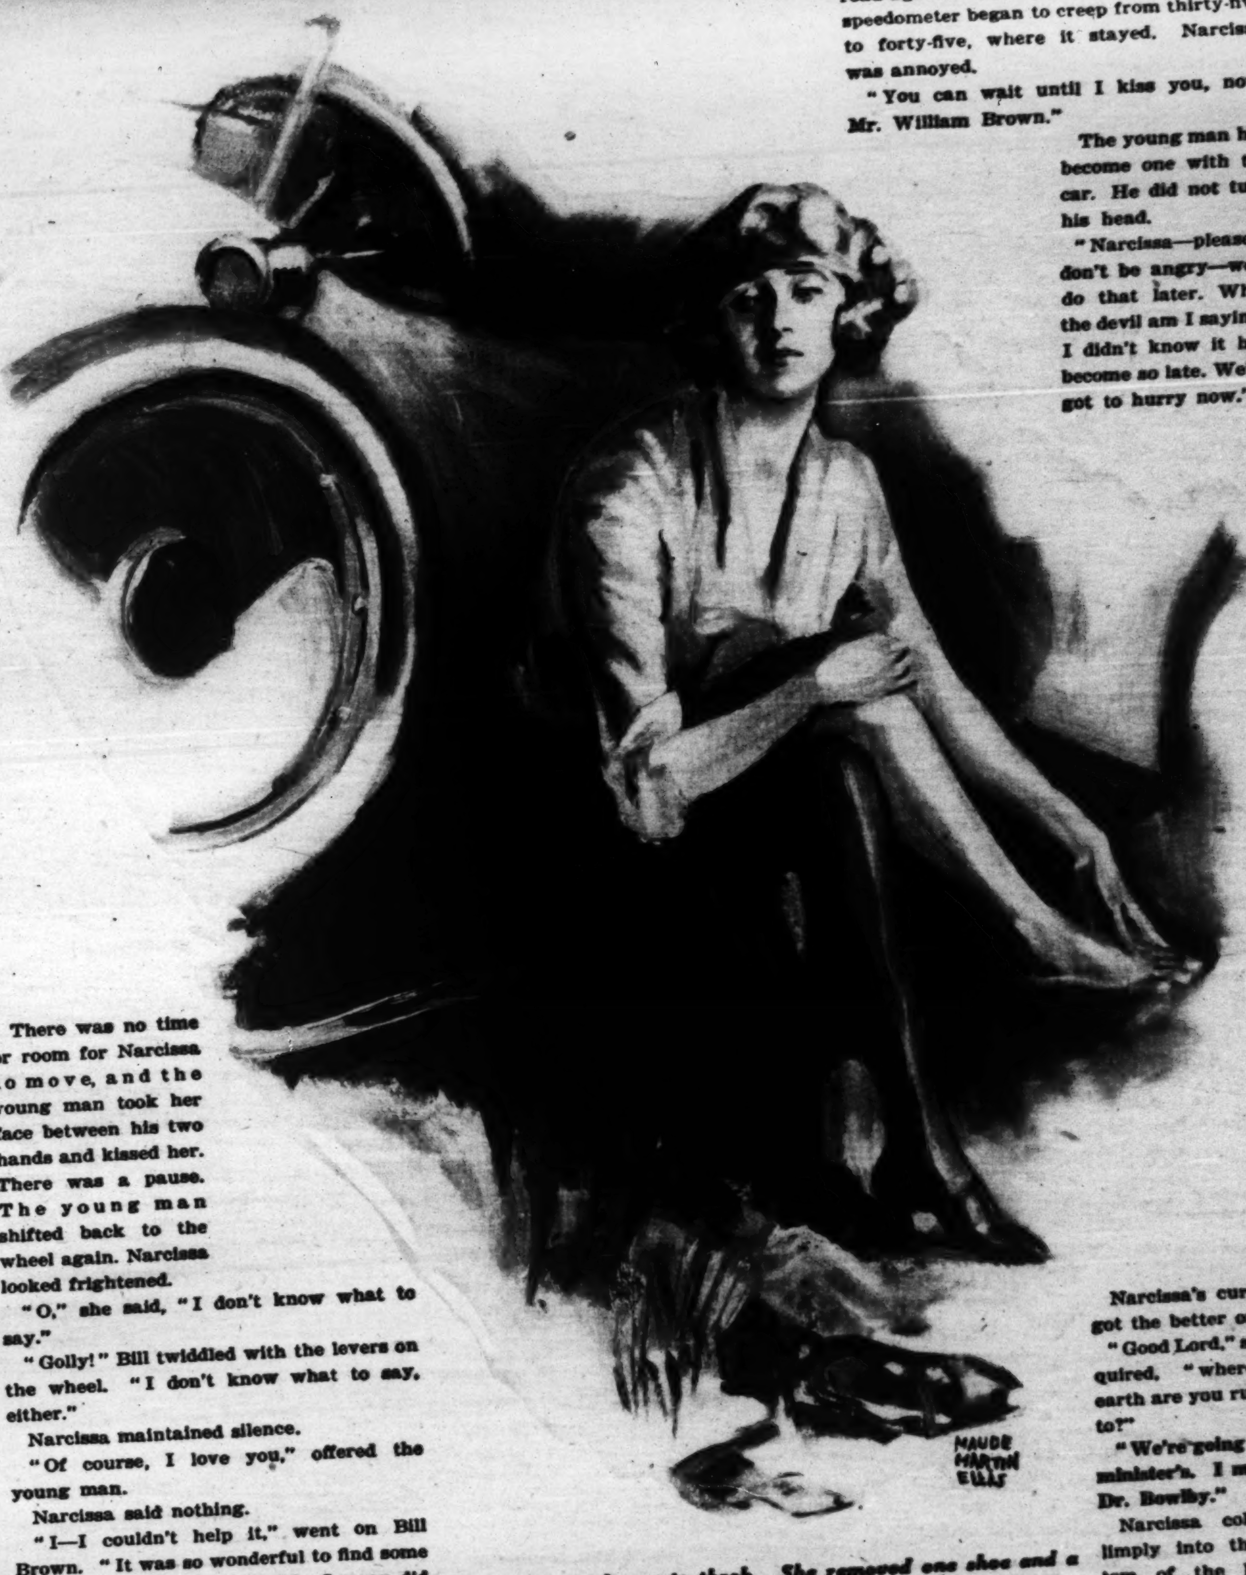
The young man was speaking again. "Well, not exactly, but it was a great deal like your case. I was permitted to resign, and the university expressed all the due regret that I couldn't finish my course there. I said a lot of things about our prexy, and he heard about them."

"O-o-o-oh," said Narcissa, with exactly the same intonation of voice that the young man had employed once before, but he paid no attention to her interruption, continuing reminiscently with his head sunk on his chest and a half smile on his lips.

"As I remember it," he went on, "I said he was a baldheaded pursy little snob, with absolutely no sense of humor, and no morals. I said it with utter conviction to a roomful of fellows in the dorms, and felt tickled to death with myself until I got into bed that night and thought how easy it was to say that when he wasn't there."

Narcissa actually felt a thrill of possessive pride. "So you——"

"I called to see him the next day and told him. That's how he heard about it.



Narcissa's toe began to throb. She removed one shoe and a stocking. The breeze felt cool and pleasant on the hot flesh.

Did you ever see a pursy baldheaded man get angry? I proved my points one after another. It was the one about lacking a sense of humor that annoyed him. He had written a book entitled 'The Humorous Side of University Life,' and when he requested me to give grounds for my statement that he lacked a sense of humor, I quoted passages. Then he proved it further by asking for my dismissal on the grounds of my moral accusation."

"O, Bill!" said Narcissa, rapturously. "I could kiss you."

"Narcissa," returned Bill Brown, "I wish you would."

Off to the Minister's

NARCISSA instantly made up her mind that she really wanted to and that she was going to do it. She took a sly glance at the young man out of the corner of her eye, and located the spot—right above the temple, where the hair was thinned. The young man's eyes strayed to the dashboard for an instant, and caught sight of the clock.

"O, good God!" he shouted, "we've got to move!" The motor roared into life, a flirt of his wrist, and the car chunked into gear, and the next moment leaped on to the road again, and the needle indicator of the speedometer began to creep from thirty-five to forty-five, where it stayed. Narcissa was annoyed.

"You can wait until I kiss you, now, Mr. William Brown."

The young man had become one with the car. He did not turn his head.

"Narcissa—please—don't be angry—we'll do that later. What the devil am I saying? I didn't know it had become so late. We've got to hurry now."

Narcissa's curiosity got the better of her.

"Good Lord," she inquired, "where on earth are you rushing to?"

"We're going to the minister's. I mean to Dr. Bowlby."

Narcissa collapsed limply into the bottom of the leather seat, but the young man, with one eye to the road and the other to his mirror to watch for policemen, went on.

"The county clerk lives in the same house, but he can't perform official business after five o'clock. Thank God, you're along. It'll save just that much more time. It's four-thirty now. Now if the particular fairy who watches over speeding motorists will only shift a little dust into the eyes of every motorcycle cop between here and Granby——"

Narcissa lay limp into the seat and dazedly watched the landscape whirl by and listened to the palpitations of her heart. How dare he? She hadn't said she loved him. She was sure she didn't. He was treating her as though she had nothing to say in the matter. She hated him. She wouldn't go another inch. She would walk. Automatically her toe reported with a reminding twinge—walking was impossible. She'd show him, then, at the minister's. She'd refuse then and there. He couldn't force her. Suddenly the young man broke the silence.

"Narcissa!" he said.

"Yes,"—very faint and suppressed.

"What were you going to do when you got where you were going to?"

"I don't know."

the country's last frontier, but most men had courage. He was standing there against the gambling house wall again, his gaze intent on the cold-eyed Kincaid, the drunken boy, and the provoking, alluring, infatuating June.

I had to call him back.

"And Gurney didn't seem to know how he wanted to bet," I prodded.

"He didn't seem to know what he wanted to do with them, or whether he wanted to do anything with them," Shutter resumed, turning to face me again. "Everybody waited and let him take his time; a player that was going to lay a bet that size was entitled to think it over as much as he wanted to without anybody getting impatient. There was noise enough in the background—the click of the marbles at the wheels, loud talking and laughing at the bar, and the music from the dance hall—but over in our corner everything was still and sort of breathless. Then Gurney looked up; he was pale and his face had lines in it, like he was just sensing that this was most of his fortune he was planning to gamble on the turn of two cards. He asked:

"'What are they, again?'

"'Ace, trey, king,' Kincaid told him.

"He stared a minute at the painted ace and king on the layout, almost under his hands, the ace on his right and the king on his left. Then he pushed his stack onto the edge of the ace, tipping it in the direction of the king.

"'Playing ace, king,' said Nelse, clearly, for the benefit of all witnesses.

"'Bets go as they lay, don't they?' demanded the kid, all on edge and nervous.

"'Right,' agreed Nelse. 'Bets always go as they lay.' His fingers moved toward the deal box. 'Are we all set?'

"A little two dollar bet that a player had made on the nine to win—the nine had just come out in the losing pile and Nelse, with the big play in his mind, had failed to see the lonesome chip—still lay where it had been placed, and June's eyes fell upon it.

"'You overlooked a sleeper, daddy,' she said, and reached across the layout to gather it in. Her body came between Nelse's eyes and Gurney's stack of chips, and in the two seconds while she was leaning over, gathering in the little chip, and settling back into her chair, the boy reached forward, lightning fast, and moved his stack across to the king, tipping it toward the ace. He threw himself far back in his chair, his hands off the table.

"'Here we go,' announced Nelse, and shoved off the top card. The one beneath it was the king. His eyes darted to the left, a hand already moving in that direction to gather in Gurney's bet, and narrowed into slits as he realized the change and what it meant.

"'That bet was ace, king,' he said, harshly.

"'It was,' the boy said, just as hard and cold. 'Bets go as they lay.'"

He was sitting up straight now, his face white, but his eyes looking square into Kincaid's. I'd seen men sober up quick under a strain, but never as quick or as complete as he had.

"Let's see the next card," he demanded.

Nelse made a movement as though he would reach forward and turn the box face down, signifying that the house refused to go on with the deal—then hesitated. Deals ain't broken in the middle of the last turn. And it would be the same as confessing that he knew what the next card was going to be. The chances in a square deal were still even that the next card would be the trey.

"'You shifted the bet after I began the turn,' he said.

"'I did not,' said Gurney. 'Throw out the next card.'

"'Meaning to call me a liar,' Nelse murmured, soft voiced and deadly, and his right hand began to move toward the edge of the table where the holster hung. At which Cole came to his feet like a cat, kicking his chair back and reaching for a gun.

"'O, don't shoot," cried June to Gurney, and threw herself across her father. This knocked his hand to one side before it got to the pistol under the table, and at the impact his chair tipped backward and his knee came up sharp against the swinging holster, and I heard the gun slip out of it and go thumping to the floor.

"All during the play, ever since he brought the pen and ink, this Ricardo Doyle had been standing right back of Gurney. Now, when the boy was reaching back to his hip, the half-breed grabbed his arm. Cole swung a short left hand punch to his jaw, which landed glancing and didn't damage Ricardo none, but it made him let go, and Gurney got to his pistol, swinging around to face Kincaid again. Whereupon Ricardo, behind him now, whipped out a knife.

"So there was where, of course, I had to get into it, my boss being unarmed and a player starting trouble, and I got out my gun as fast as I knew how and took a shot at Gurney."

Shutter paused, wagging his head regretfully.

"You shot Gurney!" I exclaimed.

"I shot at Gurney," Shutter corrected me. "I never was more ashamed in my life. It wasn't more'n seven or eight yards, and I missed him."

Again Shutter shook his head; the note in his voice was rueful and apologetic.

"Missed him by a plumb foot. And the bullet happens to get Ricardo square in the wrist—of the hand that's holding the knife. So he's out of it. And, being flustered at missing thataway, I suppose, I fumble my gun getting ready to shoot again, and before I can do it somebody has my shooting arm, and I'm out of it, too And there is Gurney, with his back up against the wall to the left of the bank, swinging a gun so it covers Nelse, and Nelse's assistants that are coming a-running from one place and another, and whomever else it may concern, and Nelse, who has pushed June to one side, puts his hands up over his head just as he might if robbers had got the drop on his house.

"'So it's a holdup, is it?' he says. 'All right. Come get what's in the drawer.'

"'It's no holdup, Mr. Kincaid,' Cole told him. 'These gentlemen are witnesses that I didn't make a move until after you had begun to reach under the table. I don't want what's in the drawer unless it belongs to me, and I won't know whether it belongs to me or not until you throw out another card. All I want is to see whether the ace or the trey is under that king.'

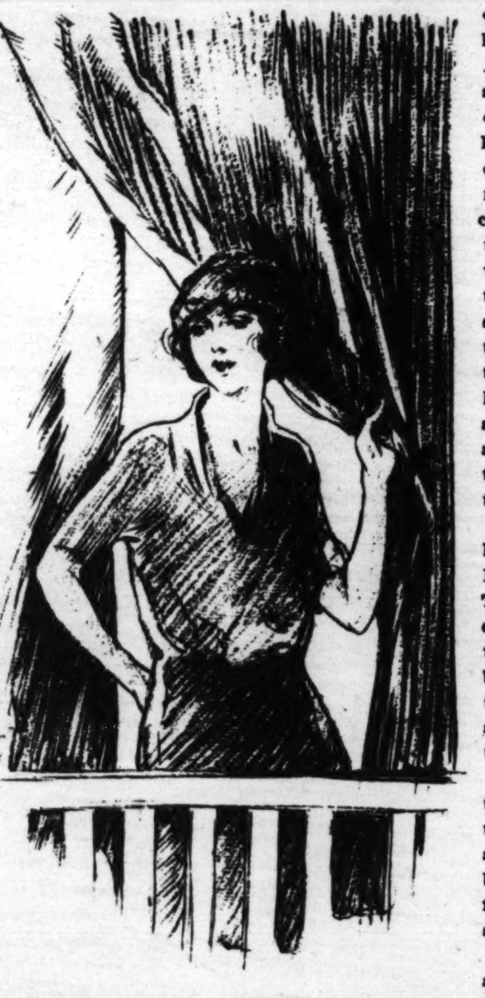
"So Nelse sees, of course, that the game is played out. He's got to turn that card—or go out of business in San 'Ntonio. He takes his eyes off Gurney and looks around at the players and spectators, all rigid, waiting developments.

"'Gentlemen,' he said. 'You know the rules. If this man moved his bet after I began to turn the cards his money's mine. If he didn't he's got a right to have it lay where it is until we see what the next card is I believed he shifted his chips after I touched the box. I still believe so—but men have been wrong. Mr. Apgate.' He spoke to a man that had been looking on, not far from Gurney. 'Did you see the play?'

"'Yes, but this isn't my business,' Apgate said.

"Kincaid nodded agreement with this. I sure admired the man's nerve. He had lost, and he knew he'd lost, and here he was getting himself into a position to stand right with the crowd when the thing was over, as cool as though the money involved was a Mexican dollar.

"'Not unless both sides ask you to settle it,' he said. 'That's right, of course.' He looked about at the crowd again. 'I'm willing,' he told everybody, 'to leave this to Mr. Apgate. He's a squareman; everybody knows it. Whatever's right is right. If he decides against me the bet lays and we go on with the turn.' He shifted his eyes to Gurney, his thumb on the hammer of his six shooter, alert, standing there against the wall.



She never associated with the dance hall girls.

"Gurney knew Apgate. Everybody did. There wasn't an old cattleman in town had a better reputation for being absolutely on the level.

"'I'll leave it to Mr. Apgate,' the boy agreed, shortly. 'He'll be doing me a favor if he will settle it.'

"'We both ask you,' said Kincaid.

Apgate spoke to the players. 'Does any other man with a bet down object?' he asked. 'I won't horn in on this unless everybody interested wants me to.'

"Two or three spoke up and told him to go ahead and be the umpire, and nobody had anything to say to the contrary.

"'Gurney had finished moving his bet and got his hand clear before you touched the box,' Apgate told Nelse.

"Nelse shrugged his shoulders. The expression of his face didn't change. 'You can put that pistol up,' he said to Cole. 'The bet goes as she lays, and we'll look at the next card.' With fingers that never trembled he slid the king out of the box, and it sounded as though everybody in that end of the room let out a sigh he'd been holding back for five minutes as they saw the ace lying underneath it.

"'The turn comes king, ace,' called Kincaid, exactly as if nothing unusual had happened.

"He paid the smaller bets that won and gathered in the chips that lost. Then out of the drawer he got Gurney's check and laid it beside his stack of ten chips, which he picked up. 'Four for one; forty thousand dollars,' he said. He went down inside his shirt and brought out a package of bills, ten hundreds, fourteen five hundreds, and seven one thousands. .'Fifteen thousand,' he said, as he counted them out in front of Gurney. 'No use digging into what is in the various drawers; it would be only chicken feed, and, anyway, we may need it for settling up with the others. I'll give you my check for twenty-five thousand. It's on the McCluskey bank. I guarantee you'll find cash there to cover it when you take it there in the mawnin'.'

"Nobody doubted he was speaking the truth, of course. If he didn't make good his gambling house days in South Texas would be over. Gurney took the check when Nelse had written it, tore up his own, stuffed the fifteen thousand dollars in bills into a pocket, and got ready to leave, all without speaking.

"The Name Is Correct!"

JUNE all this time had been standing beside her father, her face colorless, only her eyes moving, shifting from one to the other of the men as they spoke or acted. She looked down at Nelse, now, and he looked back at her with that sneer of his. His lips formed a word.

"'Hell cat!' they said. He nodded twice, very slightly, and added another: 'Correct.'

"She leaned over and spoke swiftly, for his ears alone:

"'You made me do it.'

"He nodded agreement with this, too. 'All right,' he told her. 'I know when a hand is beat. Give him my compliments and tell him he's a damn good actor. . . . Will you be dropping in?'

"'Do you want me to?'

"'Why not?' He half smiled, sort of twisted. 'I never reniged on taking medicine yet. You never thought I was a short sport, did you? Besides——' and he whispered something to her I couldn't hear. It was months—I don't know but years—before I ever knew what it was.

"It made June almost laugh. 'That's fair,' she said, and with the laugh in her eyes she went over to where Cole stood waiting by the door, and they went out of the room together."

Shutter Snell lighted a fresh cigarette and sat back, his gaze roving the roof garden. In a maze of dancers the girl that I had especially noticed when she arrived with a party—the girl with brown hair and eyes and the marvelous complexion and mischievous mouth—came whirling in the embrace of an ardent youth close to our table, and her glance fell upon Shutter. She gave him a dazzling smile of recognition. "Hello!" she cried, after the friendly fashion of an old and intimate comrade, and went spinning away. Shutter beamed after her.

"Isn't she pretty?" he murmured.

"A corker," I agreed. "Who is she?"

"That's Mattie Lou Gurney—June's youngest girl. Haven't seen much of her the last three, four years; she's been up east to college. Her picture was in the paper last Sunday. Maybe you didn't see it; it was on the society page. She's one of these here dee-bu-tantys. I reckon Cole and Miz Gurney must be in town from the ranch. They've got a big city house up on Laurel Heights. Seen enough dancing? Suppose we drift along."

"Wait a minute," I said, harking back. "What was it Nelse Kincaid whispered to June that almost made her laugh?"

Shutter grinned:

"He said: 'Besides, I'd like to borrow about ten thousand dollars of that roll back from him tomorrow. The bank is practically broke.'"

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE TROUSSEAU

by Corinne Lowe

WHEN as in silks Bride Julia goes, she might as well do a moire step. This fashionable silk is illustrated at the left of the page in the fashionable dandelion yellow. It is made in a delightful period mode, and is combined with embroidered net. Next, a traveling or sports suit combining plain brown jacket with plaid skirt is completed by a two tone felt hat. Another moire, this in navy with trimming of gray chiffon and nail heads, is followed by an evening gown of larkspur blue crepe.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—This spring style is an automat machine. You put a sleeve in the slot and you get out—chic! Of course, this simple process is going to encourage the home brew dress, for by the simple expedient of putting in a new sleeve you get a new dress.

This is perhaps a reckless statement. But if we include color and new trimmings along with sleeves we are justified in saying there is little change in the silhouette.

Some of the skirts are undoubtedly fuller. But they are made—here is the point—to look as if they weren't so. We get this impression strongly in some of the Georgette and Patou models, where plaited panels open out fanwise at the bottom when the wearer walks but close up like a clam when not in action.

As to length, the evening dresses are emphatically longer. But if we are going to make one of the dear old chemise frocks we whittle off only about eight or nine inches from the ground. Indeed, many of the formal afternoon frocks are made no longer than this.

But the really startling feature of the new clothes is color. The rainbow is romping around like a puppy. Of course, there remain with us many black gowns, but they are eclipsed by this wonderful play of color. For daytime we have beige and gray and tan and much navy blue trimmed with red. This does not sound so cheerful, after all, but wait! The other day I was shown a wool dress of ashes of roses. "From Jenny," whispered the saleswoman reverently.

"But do you mean it's for lunch—that sort of thing?" I asked in bewilderment.

She assured me that it was, and then she whisked out another simple little daytime model—this of mauve serge with a blue girdle. And both, she insisted, were smart substitutes for the navy or beige or gray frock in which we do our noon chores.

Surely this shows which way the wind blows. And when we come to afternoon or evening frocks we are hit full in the face by the gale. These same shades—mauve and ashes of roses—are used for the afternoon crêpes, also the evening ones. Then there is the fashionable almond green, the even more fashionable Etruscan red, dandelion yellow, and blues in a wide range, including larkspur, peacock, and turquoise. And even this catalog does not indicate how far we have gone in our present zest for color.

It is a crêpe year, and every variety of this fabric is mustered into service. Many of these crêpes are elaborately beaded, and Worth, in particular, usually effects a sharp division between skirt and bodice. He will bead the bodice and leave the crêpe skirt unembellished or else pursue the contrary plan.

But, although many of the most beautiful of the evening crêpes are under the bead influence, a number of others—and these chosen by fashionable New York women—resist the impulse and rely solely upon draping for the ultimate of their evening charm. Thus the gown of larkspur blue crêpe at the right was brought over from Paris recently by one widely known Gothamite noted for her taste in clothes. And it is so distinguished in line that I am suggesting it as a model which may be chosen wisely for the evening gown of the spring bride's trousseau.

This gown is draped. So are nearly all of the evening models. And the tendency in these draped gowns is to have no girdle. The low waist line is defined only by folds, horizontal or sloping, made by the dress itself. We find this mode exemplified, too, in many of the afternoon models.

Moire is more and more. So prominent a place has it been accorded in the spring fashions that we are presenting on the page two models of this fabric—one designed for elaborate afternoon wear—or even the little informal dinner—and the other fitting in gracefully with the 1 o'clock luncheon. The latter is shown here in blue moire with trimming of gray chiffon and nail head beads, but I should advise it rather in one of the cocoa tints with a touch of green and the same nail heads. This model has the new sleeves, which, fitting the top of the arm rather snugly, emerge into a flare at the wrist. This, by the way, is, I believe, destined to be the predominant sleeve of the spring.

The second moire frock is made in charming period style and is combined with white net. Beside it a suit bending to the uses of either sports or travel is found, combining a skirt of checked woolen material with coat in solid brown. The hat worn with this is one of the new two tone felts showing an underbrim of dark brown with a top of beige. Flowers of felt in the same two tints are the trimming.

I have not time here to take up novelty trimmings, such as the eyelet jackets of Jenny, the patchwork effects of Rolande, and the sleeveless jackets disclosing richly embroidered sleeves. For these are most significant of the new mode and deserve a chapter of their own.

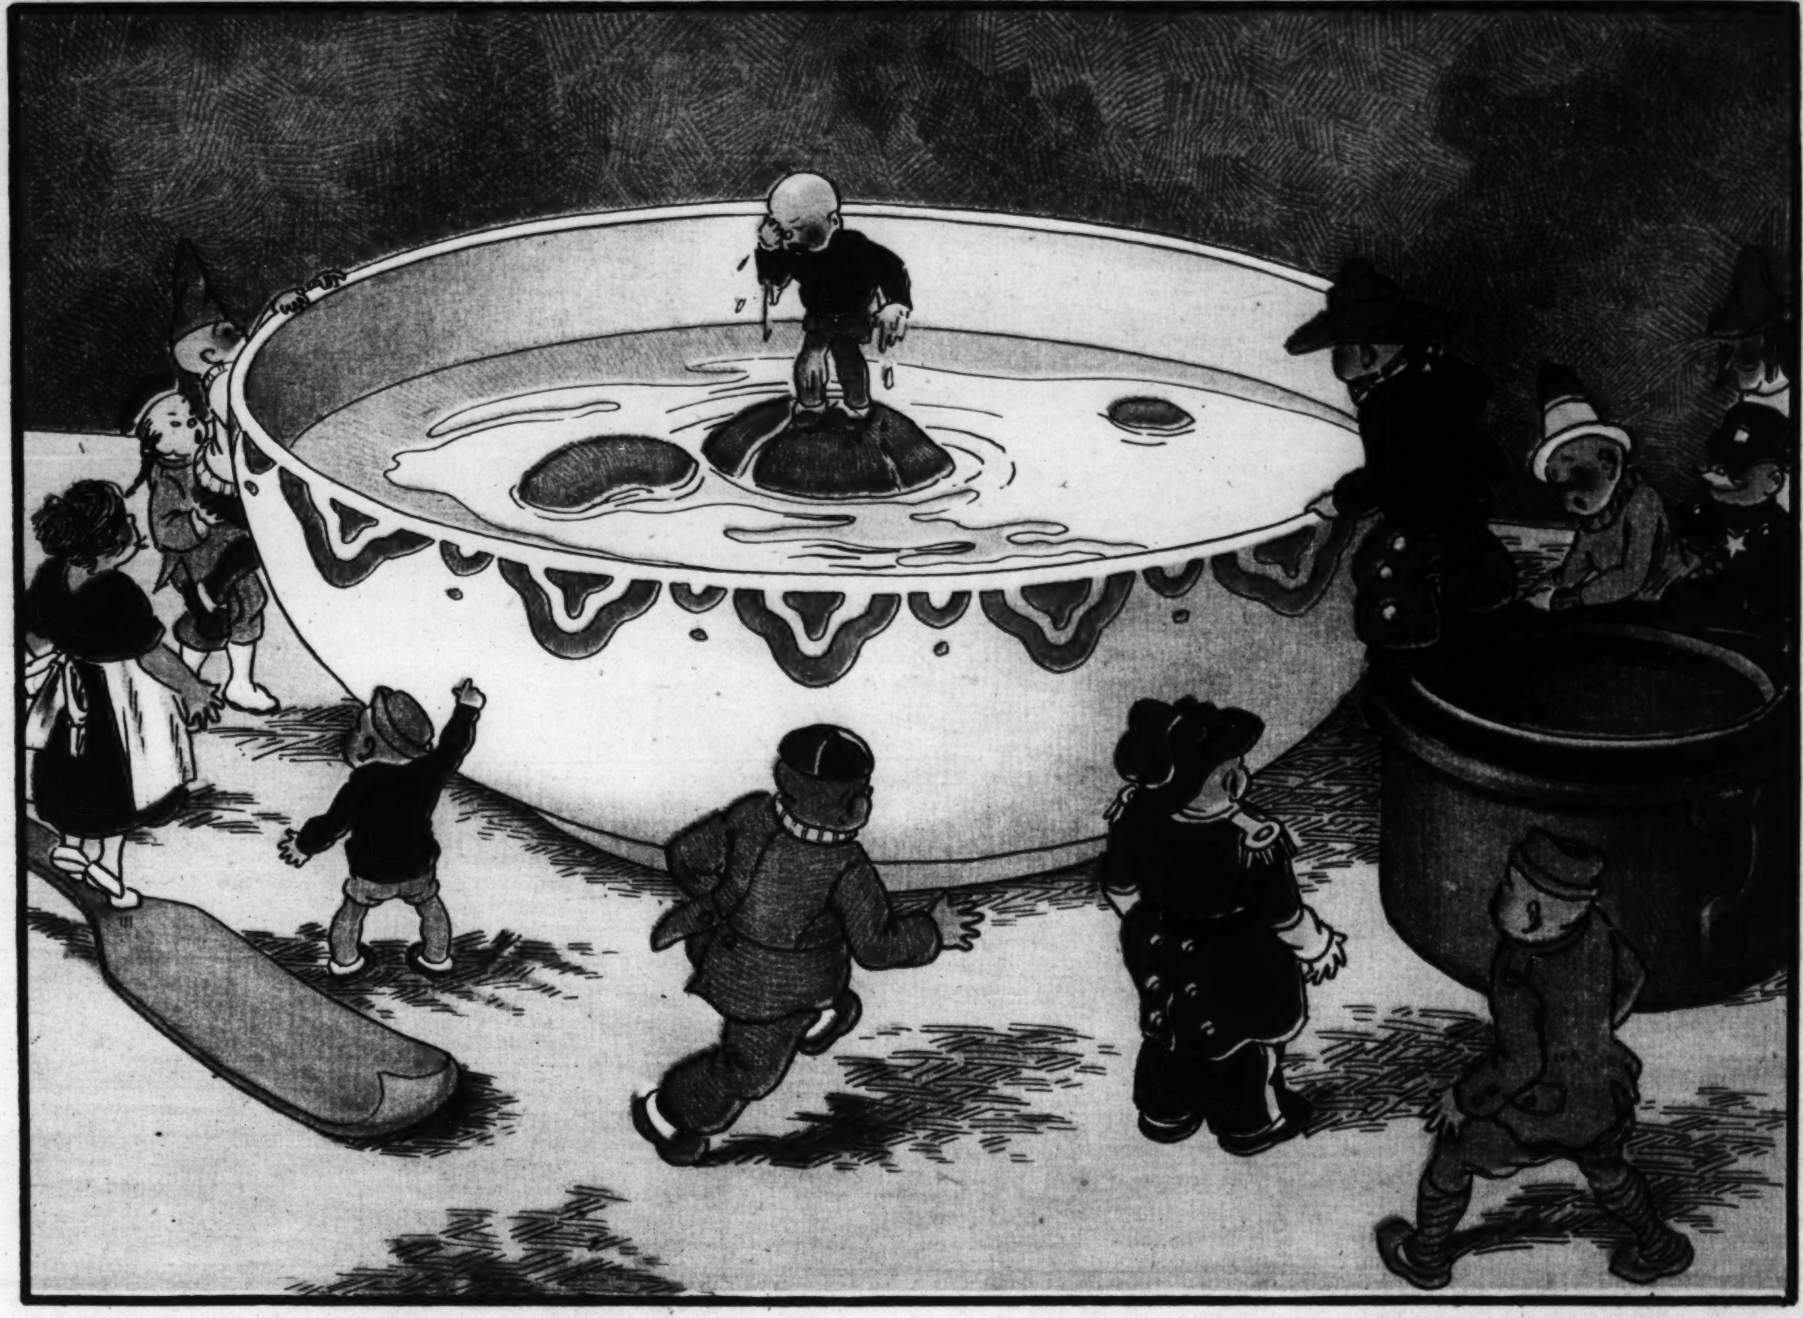
THE TEENIE WEENIES.

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

THE TWINS WANDER AWAY AND GET INTO TROUBLE.

BY WM. DONAHEY.



TEENIE WEENIE children are just like ordinary children—they laugh, play, wear their stockings out at the knees, have whooping cough and measles, and they run away.

In spite of the fact that Tom and Jerry, the Lover twins, had a lovely baby shoe for a home, a kind hearted father and mother, and a roomy glass fruit jar for a playhouse, they would run away.

When Mrs. Lover was busy with her housework she would lock the twins in the big fruit jar, where they could play in the pile of sand which had been put there for their amusement, but as they grew older they were sometimes allowed to play outside.

"I don't think it's right to keep the children penned up in that old fruit jar. It will break their spirits," Mr. Lover told his wife one day; and right there the trouble started, for the next day they departed for parts unknown. The last Mrs. Lover saw of them they were playing horse by riding a couple of matches in front of the house, and when she looked again they were gone.

The little mother called several times from the porch, but when she received no answer she set out in search of the twins. She visited the teapot, where the Chinaman did the Teenie Weenie laundry; the hospital, the tool house, Box Hall, the shoe house, and the schoolhouse, but not a sign of the little fellows could she find.

Next she notified the General, and the Policeman was sent out to look for the runaways. When he failed to find them the bell in the schoolhouse was rung, which soon brought most of the Teenie Weenies hurrying up to the old hat.

"Friends," said the General when the Teenie Weenies and a mouse or two and a squirrel had gathered in front of the schoolhouse, "the twins have disappeared, and I want everybody to search the neighborhood for them."

The little people set out at once, and for almost an hour they looked into every bottle, tin can, and bucket that might contain the little fellows.

The Teenie Weenies asked every bird, dog, and cat they met if any of them had seen the missing twins. Finally a bird reported that he had seen the little fellows near a big house on the street back of the rosebush, where the Teenie Weenie village stood.

They hurried to the house at once, and just as they entered the back yard they came across one of the twins running towards them and crying at the top of his young voice.

"Where's Tom?" cried Mrs. Lover, catching the bawling twin up in her arms.

"He bees in dare," answered Jerry, pointing a dirty fist in the direction of the house, and the Teenie Weenies hurried into the house at once.

Loud cries told the little people where the lost twin was, and in a few seconds some of the little folks crawled up to the shelf from which the sounds came.

On the shelf stood a big dish half full of apricot juice, with a few of the apricots showing above the surface. On one of the apricots stood the weeping twin, with juice and tears falling from him like a rainstorm.

In a short time the Teenie Weenies rescued the little chap and carried him home, where his mother stood him in a thimbleful of warm water and scrubbed him until his little body was as pink as a wintergreen drop.

"Now, dear," said Mrs. Lover when her child had been dressed in clean clothes, "tell me what happened. How did you get into that dish of fruit?"

"Me and Jerry, we go to house and we climb up on shelf and me crawl up on pitcher and me fall in dish. Me try to get out and me can't do, so me climb up on fruit and me cly," answered the little fellow.

"Me go for help and me find you," cried Jerry.

"You poor little dear!" cried Mrs. Lover as she kissed the little fellow behind his tiny ear. "It just makes my heart ache to think of you standing there all alone on that apricot."

"It make me cly!" said the little fellow with wide eyes.

"Of course it made you cry," answered his mother. "It would make anyone cry to be stranded on an apricot in the middle of a sea of juice. You won't run away again, my dears, will you?"

"No!" answered the twins loudly. "Not today," and they snuggled into their mother's lap and soon fell asleep, while she sang the "Twins Lullaby" out of the "Teenie Weenie Music Book."

Fashions Beauty Contests

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

WATCH THOSE SUBTLE CHANGES.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—"O, it's all out of style," said a woman of her last year's Renee dress. "You wouldn't want it. It comes down straight, you know—at least, we thought it bloused then, but we didn't know what blousing was. Now they're really blousing."

And so they are—the things of Renee. You have never seen a low waisted line or blousing until you have seen her collection.

But I was citing the conversation apropos of another point. We say that styles in a general way have not changed, and you may wear what you please. But just try the experiment of putting away a dress over a season and getting it out at the same time next year. You don't feel just right in it. There are changes, but subtle ones—still just because a change is a little bit of a thing instead of on a gigantic scale, that doesn't mean your garment isn't out of commission just the same. An accumulation of little difference make one mighty big one in the general ensemble of your appearance.

Next to the matter of the full blousing, the most important change is in the circular flare that is coming in. Or am I mistaken in giving it second place. A circular line instead of a straight line alters the silhouette and therefore takes precedence over all other changes. We are in presently for a big piece of news, if I mistake not. Signs would point to the indication that madam will change the shape of her figure. Vionnet has a little flare in almost everything. Sleeves fall like drop curtains, skirts spring out from a point below the hips, and there is a general swirl to the soft outlines.

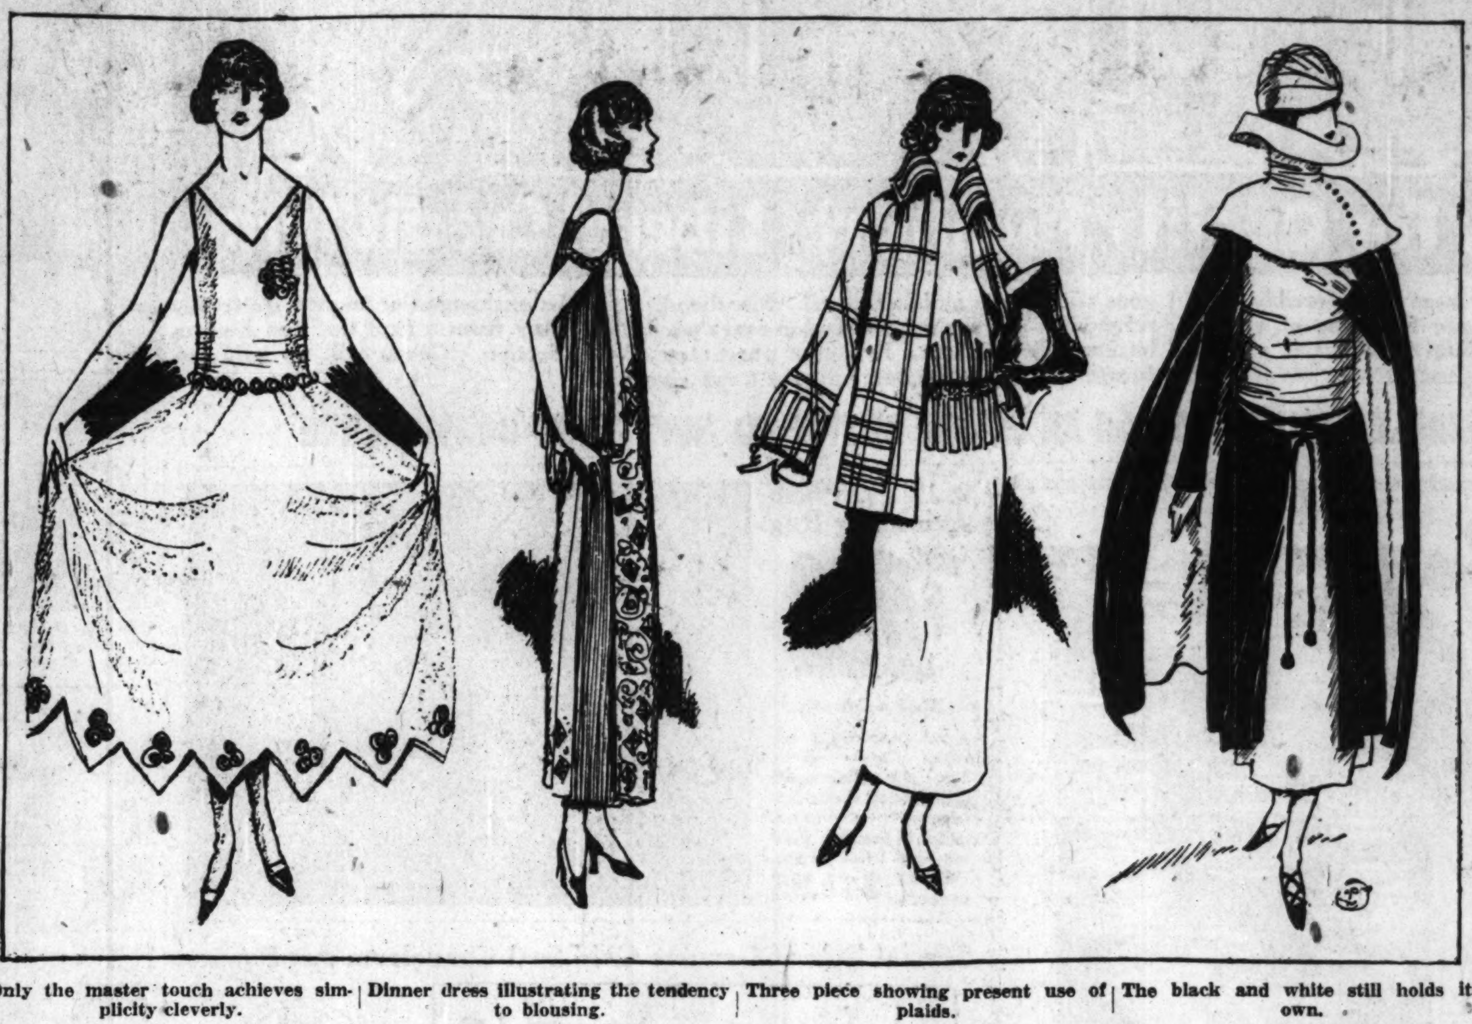
As for the rest, fashion hints for summer consist in a cumulation of details. Flowers are so awfully fashionable—even to scattered leaves and petals in embroidery. Dresses are in one color, perhaps a dignified gray or a somber brown—and they are garnished in a flaming belt of crimson or attuned to the spirit of summer in a tender green.

Callot has a lot of wraps that are bloused coats in the back and straight falling capes in front. Everybody is using wide plaids, and the French are stealthily stealing back to black. I sat in a roomful of them at an opening of Vionnet's, where they were all in black; admired nothing but the black models, and when they liked the outlines of the others discussed what they would look like when made up in black.

Lanvin, who caters to youth, is a long way from the somber color this summer, and when she does settle down to a tailored suit, a practical morning dress, or something in other respects conservative, livens her creation with one of the old fashioned organdy collars that were for so long considered by Parisians to be jay and always by the rest of the world the most becoming and the most troublesome of the garnishments.

Paul Poiret is at it again, with the tricky stuff, and those little things that look simple, but aren't, and ultimately set a season's fashion. Everybody is doing a lot of scallops, and what he is doing with them is to create an impression of simplicity.

Note the guileless little dress that every man thinks could be made just as well as not in the home, and that in reality cannot be bought for much less than 3,000 francs in Paris. It consists of nothing whatever but a bolt of material, preferably white satin, or, failing in that, organdy for summer, with pointed scallops round the skirt bottom, each set with a group of flowers, which are duplicated round the waist line for a belt, and over the left breast, like a monogram. The bodice is the tight, long waisted, sleeveless contraption of the day, with the V shaped neck that has for so long been in oblivion and is now beginning to make its tentative appearance again.



Only the master touch achieves simplicity cleverly. | Dinner dress illustrating the tendency to blousing. | Three piece showing present use of plaids. | The black and white still holds its own.

The second offering indicates the tendency to blouse which I was speaking of a moment ago. The gown is by Doeuillet, and is an exquisite shade of orchid pink satin, embroidered in crystal and pearl beads. The effect of blousing is produced in the back by straps of the embroidery, anchored at the decolletage and fastened at the low waist line. An undertunic shows at either side of the satin, and it is in chiffon of exactly the same color, finely plaited.

The third sketch is also by Doeuillet and illustrates the tendency of the day to use plaids. The coat is of yellow and white plaided broadcloth, with trimming of plain yellow broadcloth in stripes. The same stripes "marry" (as the French put it) the white chiffon blouse into the skirt of plain yellow broadcloth. There is a green and crystal ceinture. You might not guess it, but the young woman is wearing a turban of deeper yellow, and that which looks like her hair (and so it does in real life) is a feather of yellow ostrich. They are using it such a lot again—for hat trimmings and dress trimmings and bag trimmings.

They are wearing a lot of separate blouses and skirts this year; only the French will never accept them without carrying over something from the skirt into the blouse or from the blouse to the skirt. It always looks like one complete costume when they get it assembled.

They are wearing a great deal that is high standing and long flowing and complex with a multiplicity of line. And withal they are accepting what is for the French an enormous amount of white around the face.

The accompanying model shows what I am driving at. There is a high white standing collar of starched organdie held together with tiny buttons set close together. It indeed is the keynote to this complex but smart costume. The remainder of the costume is in black and white crepe, the skirt consisting of a square of black tied over a white foundation chemise dress. The gown is accompanied by a cape in black and white stripes with a white lining.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Offers Man's Suit.

"I have a wool suit, size 30, that I would like to give away. It is in good condition and can be worn by a man 5 feet 6 inches tall. I would like to have a tennis racket so I can play next summer. L. R."

This is a nice offer to pass along, and L. R. also should receive his tennis racket soon.

Pass Them On.

"I am the mother of four children and am expecting another. I get lonesome while the children are at school and would appreciate it if any of your kind readers have any magazines they can spare to give me. MRS. E. A."

Now is a good time to begin spring house cleaning, and how much more pleasant to tie up bundles of books for lonely persons than to sell them to the junk man.

Girl Is Ambitious.

"I am a working girl, the only support of a widowed mother, and I would like to ask if some generous person can lend me a typewriter to practice on at night after my day's work. I will take good care of it and I will appreciate assistance. B. B."

B. B. is a girl with the right sort of ambitions, and she ought to have an answer to her request shortly.

Help an Ex-Soldier.

"I am an ex-service man who has been among the unemployed and finds it will be necessary for me to make a trip in the near future, but have neither suitcase nor trunk. Has some friend in need one to pass on? Will be very grateful. J. L. M."

I do hope this chap will be properly outfitted for his trip; it may mean the landing of a job.

In Search of a Home.

"I have a male bird—good singer—which I will give to some boy or girl shut in, who will give him good care. "I. P."

I hope there won't be as many disappointed kiddies over missing this warbler as there were over not getting the fox terrier snuggle pups last week.

Wants Radio Apparatus.

"I am a boy 14 years old and I am greatly interested in wireless radio. I am making my own set and as I go to school, cannot afford to buy certain parts. I would be greatly pleased if some one would give me a pair of radiophone receivers and any other parts which he has no use for. D. S."

I shall be glad to publish your request with the hope that you will hear from it soon, and be able to keep up your interest.

Funds Are Exhausted.

"Through your helpful column I hope to procure help for a worthy and pathetic case which has come to my notice. The mother of a baby contracted tuberculosis two years ago, and when her husband learned of it he deserted her. Her sister took her to Mexico and cared for her until recently, when the funds were exhausted. They have returned to Chicago and are living in one furnished room. The baby died a week ago of diphtheria. Cannot some assistance be given to people who are in such urgent need of it? A FRIEND."

This is, indeed, a most pathetic case, and whoever will give help to this mother and her loyal sister will feel the reward of a service well done.

Prefers Classical Music.

"I am one of your constant readers and know the good you have done for others. I wonder if you could help me? Have any of your readers any classical sheet music for piano that they no longer care for? I am a lover of music, but I cannot buy it. I have been out of work for quite a while and have no father. I am 17 years old. "CLARA."

Clara is an unusual girl to prefer classical music in these jazzy days. Who has some unused gems of music to give to her?

Lovers of Flowers.

"I wonder if some of your readers have bulbs, bushes, garden seed, or garden implements which they would pass on? We have managed to buy a cottage in a suburb, but with four small children and small earnings, we haven't much to spare for flowers, which we love. I hope I am not asking too much. MRS. F. P."

There is nothing so brightening in this old world as the backgrounds that flowers give. This mother and her children should have help from somebody who has a garden running over with beauty.

Gift for Small Boy.

"My brother has a mechanical building outfit which he no longer wants. If some little boy who is a shut-in would like to have it, he is welcome to it. THE R."

Some little shut-in ought to be made mighty happy by this offer.

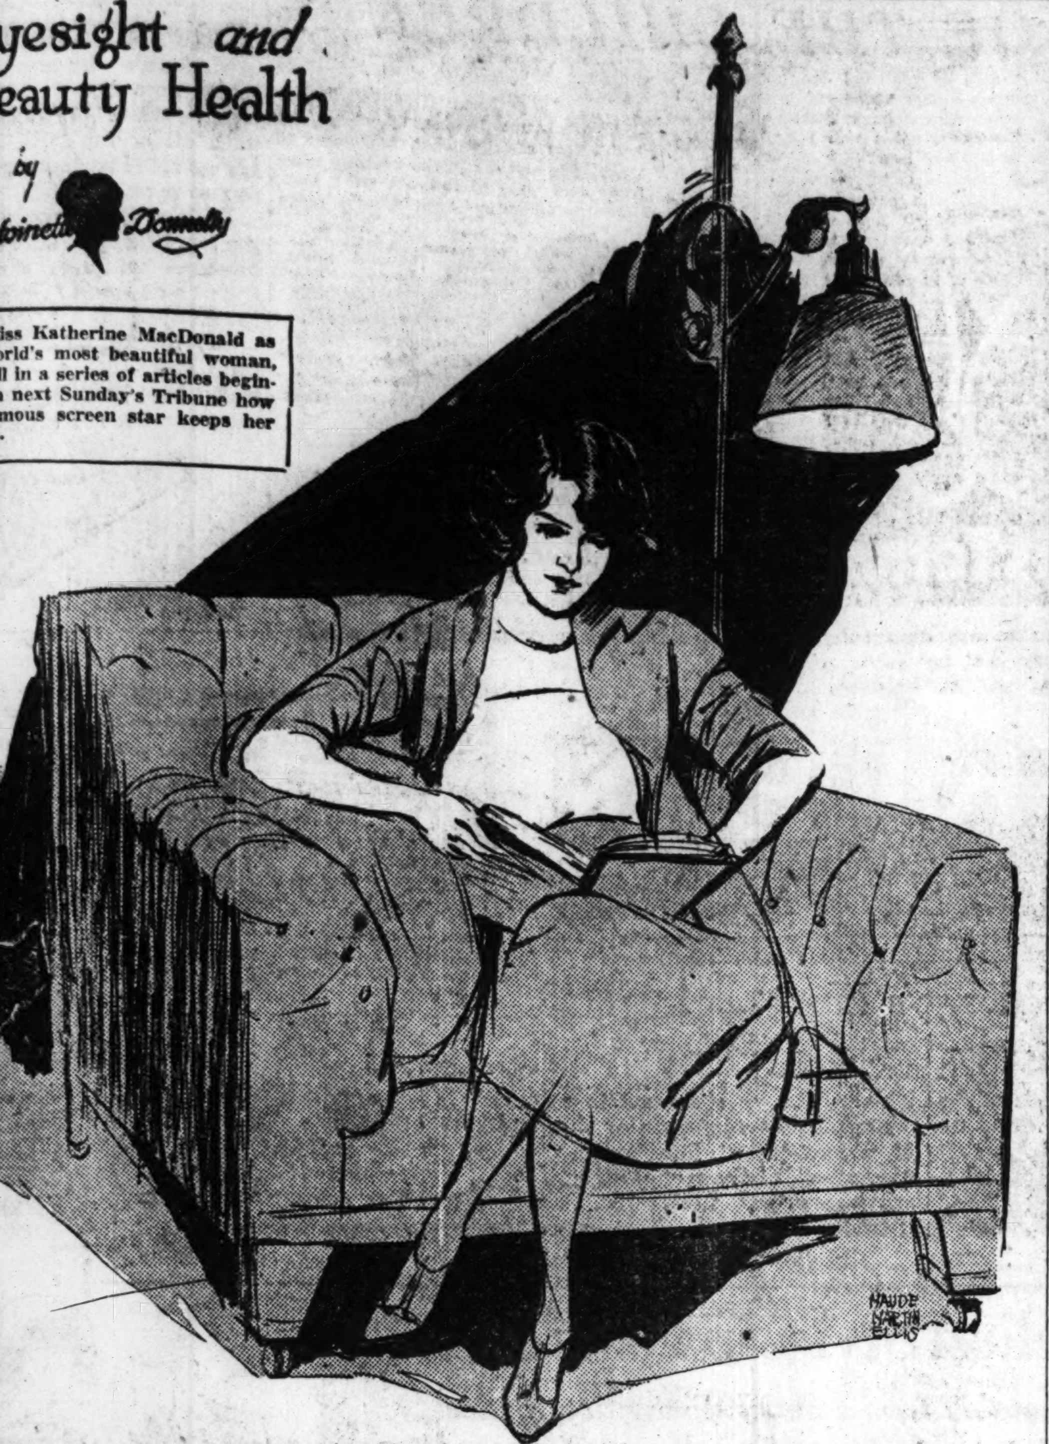
Eyesight and Beauty Health

by Antoinette Donnelly



day Miss Katherine MacDonald as the world's most beautiful woman, will tell in a series of articles beginning in next Sunday's Tribune how the famous screen star keeps her beauty.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—[Special correspondence.]—A girl whom I meet frequently in my workaday world has been complaining incessantly of headaches and eye strain. Her eyes do their own complaining. They wink and blink and nod and seem ever striving for somthing. They look sick. They would be lovely eyes were it not for their obvious ill treatment.

This girl, who seems as blessed as the average of us with good common sense, just goes on complaining. So do the eyes. One of these days she will be forced into making the postponed visit to an oculist and I, for one, will be happy to hear it. No amount of suggestion seems to start her in that direction, for—vanity of vanities—she is afraid she should wear specs! She is going to have to wear them longer every day she postpones her pilgrimage to the specialist.

Her roommate tells me she props herself o' nights on a couch with her pillows leaning up against the wall, facing the only light in the room which is suspended from the center thereof, so that when she has the paper in her hand or a magazine or book, it stands between her and the light. Now, I don't wish her an early ferocious headache, but I do wish she would wake up to what she is doing. She is not only ruining her eyes but her health and her looks into the bargain.

Beware of Strain.

Poor lighting is the cause of most of the eye ills. And eyes are so important in the scheme of things beautiful in which we are most interested after all. Prevention being even better than cure, and your eyes being a tremendously valuable asset, you should know how to preserve their brilliancy and usefulness.

The best lighting system, of course, is that nearest to ordinary daylight. The light should be distributed evenly throughout the room. The method of indirect lighting, by which the light is thrown to the ceiling and reflected throughout the room, is the best. This is now found in many places of business and in many homes.

But whatever the general method of lighting a room may be, there are other things to be considered. There still may be strain. The light may be good, but placed so there are too many shadows, which is just as bad for the eyes as not enough light. You may create the shadows, as did the young girl I referred to above.

Light may be too bright and not properly shaded, so that the eyes are in a constant glare. One cannot look at the sun long without seeing spots. Glaring electric lights are likely to hurt the eyes the same way. Bright lights should be properly shaded. And for reading—particularly when one settles down for an whole evening of it—have the light come over the left shoulder from a shaded lamp.

May Cause Illness.

When you remember how closely the eyes are related to other parts of the body, you will realize how poor sight may cause illness. The floating particles people sometimes complain of are the result of a disordered stomach and constipation or kidney trouble. A yellowish eyeball is due to constipation, sluggish liver, and too rich food.

But a large percentage of the trouble comes from reading and working under a badly placed light. Portable lamps are a matter of comparatively small expense these days, and almost every home nowadays boasts an amateur electrician sufficiently equipped to install extension wires from a ceiling lighting system so that reading may be done with the light falling over the left shoulder as it should be. It is quite all right to read in bed. I've done most of my best reading that way and I believe with the perfect relaxation that comes you absorb better. But I have ever been particular to have a light adjusted over the bed so that the rays, shaded, fell over my left shoulder and I have had little trouble with my eyes.

If you prefer to read in a chair, however, draw it up to a lamp so the rays of light come exactly right.

Relieving Eye Muscles.

Here is a little hint, too, which I wish to pass on and have you practice religiously for the greater beauty and strength of your eyes. Several times a day interrupt your work, if it has been at all confining, for long distance gazing. Nothing is more immediately restful to the muscle. Go to a window that will give a broad stretch of horizon or distance and gaze out over it for a minute or two. Repeat this once or twice morning and afternoon.

Eye exercises are not to be recommended promiscuously. Only by one who knows the actual strength of your eyes should they be suggested. Few people can judge of their own eye strength. If they adopt a set of eye exercises, ignorant of their strength, trouble may be exaggerated.

If there is no eye strain felt other than the natural tire after a day's work there is no need of an eye wash. I do advise, however, after the night washup, applying a warm cloth to the closed lids and letting it remain there a couple of minutes. This releases the eye muscles from the one set position they have been in and rests them. Then in the morning, after the face ablution, repeat, using a cold water application to the closed lids.

Wash for Tired Eyes.

If the eyes are unusually tired or weak, then this wash is recommended: Boric acid, 1 per cent; sodium biborate, one gram; water camphor, sixty drops, and three ounces of distilled water. Apply with an eye cup, which as you know fits right over the eye. Another good wash is boiled water in which a little salt—just enough to make the water taste salty—is used. The plain water will cause a smarting which the salt allays. It has the same effect as tears, the natural eye wash, which have a salty taste.

Flabby lids are due to a lack of physical tone—the same exact principle as flabby cheeks or flabby skin on any part of the body. The remedy naturally is toning up the entire system.

The crusts that accumulate on granulated lids can be soaked off with a weak solution of bicarbonate of soda.

The dark rings and circles and bags under the eyes are matters calling for medical correction, excepting where the rings and circles are due to lack of sleep or anxiety of some kind.

THE Royal automatic
Storage Gas Water Heater

The B-M Water Spreader is an ingenious device, found only in the Royal Automatic, by means of which water is heated with surprisingly little gas. Water that flows through it is spread into a thin sheet. The terrific heat from the Royal burner plays directly upon the bottom of the spreader and quickly brings the water to a raging boil. Turbulent action results—and rapid circulation is established. This removes the heat retarding insulation of air bubbles which always form when water is being heated—AND ALLOWS THE WATER TO GET THE MAXIMUM AMOUNT OF HEAT FROM THE GAS. This feature is found exclusively in Bastian-Morley heaters. See one in actual operation at

Real Love Stories

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago.

SHE WAS SUCH A TIMID MISS.

YOU would never think, when you look at the dignified, self-possessed figure of my dear wife of 60 years, that she was such a timid miss. When I was a lad of 19 I had occasion to visit one of the wealthy families in a small country village. The maid ushered me into the spacious living room. From my position I noticed a young girl, busily writing in the adjoining room.

She was just my style, a real blonde, and I immediately became interested. As I gazed in rapture she suddenly looked up. Upon beholding me she screamed and ran from the room. The only damage apparently was the overturned inkstand and writing paper strewn over the floor. The maid came in; together we cleared up. As I was picking up the papers I noticed the words, "Dear Raphael." As this was my cognomen, and a most uncommon one, I became its possessor.

I had just put the valuable sheet in my pocket when her father appeared. I had been sent by a law firm to hand him an important document.

In the confines of my room that evening I cautiously and guiltily read the letter. I ran thus:

"Dear Raphael: You do not know that I have seen you, but just yesterday you were riding with Mr. White. Father spoke and I asked your name. He said "Raphael." I like your name and I love brown hair and eyes, and so I fancy you are my sweetheart just to write my little letter to, as I have always done, but I never had a real boy in mind. If I should ever see you looking at me I would surely——"

As I had been riding with Mr. White and remembered meeting Mr. Hull, I began to congratulate myself. The next week (I could wait no longer) I appeared on the scene again, where I learned from the talkative maid that Marasene had gone to boarding school. She gave me the address. I wrote a frank, apologetic letter, but received no reply. I tried again and again, but to no avail.

Ten years later while out hunting in a small grove I heard a scream and call for help. I went in the direction of the call and found a young woman. What do you thing she was afraid of? Why, just an owl, a screech owl. She had fallen in a blackberry bush and her thin dress was held fast by the thorns.

I fell in love with this timid, beautiful being, and took my own time to unloosen her dress. As her garments were badly torn, I offered to drive her home.

When she directed me, I said, "You are not Marasene Hull?"

Her affirmative answer brought this from me: "I am your Raphael."

We did not go directly home; the longest way around was the safest with so timid a partner. I often delight in telling our grandchildren about their grandmother's adventure with the owl. L. Y.

A Choice Gift.

Hurrying to the fruit market one morning, I purchased a dozen of oranges, a supply of onions, and other small items. I asked the clerk to put the oranges in a separate bag, as they were for a sick friend whom I was going to visit at the hospital that afternoon.

Two o'clock found me still at home when I should have been at the hospital. I slipped on my hat and coat, picked up the bag in the pantry, caught the first car going uptown, and arrived at the hospital in fifteen minutes.

After the usual greeting, I offered the bag of oranges to my friend. The nurse took it, set it on the table, opening it as we looked on. A queer smile spread over her face as she pulled out of the bag—not an orange, but a good looking onion; A. S.

Love Is Strange.

If you are taking singing lessons, don't invite your best girl to your home to show her off. I did, but I paid dearly for it when some one in the family insisted upon my singing.

It had been so easy to perform for the family, but with her sitting there my shaking knees, chattering teeth, and kaleidoscopic eyesight left me little support as I opened up my vocal powers.

When my voice began to sound natural I was nearly through the song, but with a false spurt of confidence I made an effort to redeem myself with an impressive finale. This is how I ended the thing: "Mut bight I of nove's jectar sip." L. D. L.

Telepathy.

It was my first day teaching at a country school. Goldie, just turned six, was as new at school as I. After reading a short scripture lesson, as was then the custom, I asked the children to repeat the Lord's prayer with me. When we had finished I raised my head, and Goldie piped up, "What are you going to do now?" That had been the anxious question uppermost in my own mind during my supposed devotions. S. G. M.

Couldn't Fool Her.

While attending college I became engaged to a young man in my class. One day when he called me up he disguised his voice a little, and I did not recognize him. Several times after that he did the same thing and teased me quite a bit about not recognizing his voice over the phone.

He was out of the city one week-end, but had planned to come back Sunday evening and promised to call me up as soon as he arrived in town. About the time that I was expecting his call the telephone rang. When I answered a man's voice said, "I have a telegram for you," and he proceeded to read the wire which was from my fiancé, telling me that he would not be back as he had planned.

I was certain that it was nothing but another joke of the kind he had played before. So I said, "Well, I guess you can't fool me again; you've tried it before but it won't work this time."

And I went on in that vein until I heard a rather amazed exclamation at the other end of the line which convinced me it really was the telegraph operator talking. M. N.

Anchoring It Well.

One day I got up late, and did not have much time to dress. I pinned my skirt with four large safety pins, and in my haste forgot to put on my sash.

I was employed in a large office, where there were about thirty-two girls and at least that many young men, and several old men, and there I marched in about ten minutes late, and, taking off my coat, displayed my four large safety pins.

"Well," said the boss, "pinning all these certainly must have taken you those ten minutes." J. P.

Passengers Were Indignant.

The day we moved to our new apartment I got on the car with my pet cat wrapped in a shawl. He began to squirm. I slapped him, and he emitted a low meow. I heard remarks about unkind mothers, and saw twenty pair of indignant eyes leveled at me. Disgusted, I went into the forward car, covering Tom's head closely.

A fat woman sat down beside me and pulled down the shawl. "I must see the sweet baby face," said she.

Every one tittered when puss poked his head out. Next time I move, Tom shall have a taxi ride, if it takes my last dollar. E. B. S.

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clean and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

SETTING COLORS FOR WASHING.

WHEN you take the trouble to make up pretty wash clothes, it is natural not to want the fabrics to fade or shrink. On the other hand there is a certain beauty to the new cloth that makes you dislike to put it in water before making up; but it is far wiser to do it.

When laundering these materials later on you should remember never to hang them in the sun or a strong light, and another thing—always take them down, if hung out of doors, as soon as dry, for the air and wind both work havoc. Some women who are careful, always hang shirts, wash dresses, etc., in the laundry—with windows open—but where the sun will not strike, and in that way the colors last much longer.

Most materials will be thoroughly shrunken if they are well covered with boiling water and allowed to remain until the water is cold; then hung smoothly and without being wrung out where they can drip until just damp enough to iron. A cloth that shrinks badly may have this operation repeated a second time—not the ironing, but putting twice into the boiling water, first allowing it to get perfectly dry from the first wetting, and ironing it after the second. Don't try to press it until just damp—it irons much more easily and isn't stiff.

If it is possible to get oxgall so it is fresh and suitable to use, it is supposed to set any color in silk, cotton, or wool. One tablespoon of oxgall to one gallon of water, preferably soft water, is the right proportion. If too much oxgall is used it turns white yellow.

One ounce of sugar of lead dissolved thoroughly in twelve quarts of boiling water will set any color except blue, in cambrics, calicoes, or muslins.

Saltpeter, one ounce to twelve quarts of boiling water, will set blue.

Alum, one ounce to twelve quarts, is good for blue and green.

Calicoes with blue or pink can be set by putting one tablespoon of baking soda in twelve quarts of water. Vinegar can be used in the same way for pink or green. But be sure to use pure cider vinegar.

Pearl ash used the same as vinegar will set purple or blue.

[All the above are used in boiling water.]

Three gills of salt dissolved in four quarts of boiling water will set most any color except blue, and that color it sometimes injures.

For buffs, grays, or any delicate color one level tablespoon of black pepper dissolved in twelve quarts of boiling water will set the color. Allow it to remain until cold.

For gray linen a strong tea made of common hay is sometimes used.

In setting the color in any material it should be thoroughly rinsed in several waters before being hung up to dry.

A good quality of ribbon can be successfully cleaned by dissolving some good white soap in boiling water so a good suds is made, and when cool enough to bear the hand, pass the ribbon through the water, rubbing it gently. It must be rinsed thoroughly in lukewarm water, and wound around a bottle or pinned to a board to dry. White ribbon should have a little bluing added to the rinsing water. In washing bright yellow, maroon, crimson, or scarlet, add a few drops of oil of vitriol to the rinsing water.

Try cleaning delicate lace by spreading it out on a clean white paper, covering it with calcined magnesia; then place another paper over it; place it away between the leaves of a book for a few days. Then shake the powder out carefully.

MRS. L. G. P.: A colonial costume should be becoming to you, and you can make it of figured and plain sateen instead of silk, if you choose. The tight fitting bodice with net ruffled fichu, the bouffant draperies of the figured sateen, and the long, full skirt of plain sateen should make a lovely fancy dress.

BRIGHT SAYINGS OF THE CHILDREN

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

One day as Mr. Brown was returning from his work he met his small son, aged 5.

"Where are you going, Paul?" he asked.

"I ain't goin' nowheres. I'se been where I'se going," he answered.

Bruce looked about as big as the proverbial minute on his new roller skates. The first time he had them on he floundered about helplessly but saved himself from bad falls by jumping off the sidewalk into the grass. This happened repeatedly and finally he said: "Daddy, I believe grass is an awful handy thing to have about when you are learning to roller skate."

We had gone to the cemetery to fix the graves for Memorial day. Ronald was rather restless and after asking many questions, said with determination, "Auntie, let's go home. Everybody dead around here."

I follow the fashions, although I am past 30, and have had my hair bobbed, but my young daughter has long braids of which I am proud. I was much embarrassed the other morning when Lila remarked before her daddy, "Mother, when will I be old enough to bob my hair?"

Annabelle came to visit grandma. She brought her dolly in her cart. Grandma saw her coming and met her as she came up the walk. As she neared the porch she turned the cart around and said: "May I park here?"

Billy had two younger brothers, and he was obliged to take them to the barber to have their hair trimmed, a job he did not like. One day when they returned, his mother was horrified to see two shaved heads, and when asked the meaning of it, Billy replied, "I am wasting too much time getting hair trimmed."

My boy was given a canary during a recent illness. After listening to the bird singing for several days, he said: "Mamma, that bird doesn't sing any songs I know. 'Tell him to sing 'Mary.'"

Anna's Aunt Louise, of whom she had heard a great deal, had come to visit. She arrived in the evening after Anna had gone to bed.

In the morning Aunt Louise came to offer her assistance in dressing. But it had been an older sister's habit to do this.

So Anna, being a little timid and feeling that Aunt Lou hadn't been with them long enough to be at home, said, "No, Aunt Lou. Let Mary do it; she's homelier than you are."

Relieves Rheumatism

Musterole loosens up stiff joints and drives out pain. A clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard, it usually brings relief as soon as you start to rub it on.

It does all the good work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster, without the blister. Doctors and nurses often recommend its use.

Get Musterole today at your drug store, 35c and 65c in jars and tubes; hospital size, $3.00.

Another Startling Sale of Furniture

General Furniture Co.'s Special Easter Offers

Here is one of those history making sales that will remain long in the memories of those who are fortunate enough to heed this announcement and come prepared to get a full share of the bargains. Compare the merchandise and the prices shown in this advertisement with any other in this paper or in any paper in the United States. And we will gamble that our quotations are considerably lower than the others. The GENERAL carries the best the markets afford, sells on a small margin of profit and offers the most liberal credit terms in America. The GENERAL can do this for the simple reason that the GENERAL'S business volume is more than double that of any other strictly retail furniture house in Chicago.

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

By Jane Eddington.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

GENERAL USES OF LAMB.

WE have been more or less bombarded with literature on the subject of lamb since lambs were raised for patriotic purposes—we needed the wool—even on the White House lawn. The wool argument is still being put forth like this: "Lamb is a wholesome meat. Lamb is an economical meat to buy. A more general use of it by the American people would result in a larger production of wool, so that less would have to be imported." We have to import twice as much wool as we produce.

There is an excellent illustrated little booklet on lamb put out only a short time ago. The distributors give it free. It has the title "Lamb—Eat It Often, a Practical Recipe Booklet Designed to Interest You and Your Family in Lamb." The pictures alone make it worth having, and such a statement as the following is worth heeding: "The breast of lamb is a tasty piece of meat, rich in extractives, and streaked with sweet, tender fat. It may be cut into seventeen pieces for stewing, or roasted whole—either plain or stuffed—or it may be boned and rolled into a compact piece of meat. It comprises about 6 per cent of the lamb carcass, and weighs about two pounds."

Note that it may be cut into seventeen pieces. If there is one thing more than another that the ordinary housewife should know about, it is how to cut meat. She might easily save from one-quarter to three-quarters on her meat bill a year if she understood this. More and more the trade, by diagrams and pictures, is trying to teach her. Anybody who gets a miscellaneous collection of odds and ends when ordering lamb stew meat ought to think a bit after such an experience. There are still butchers who seem to try to wreck their trade in lamb, as thousands have undoubtedly done in years past. This is not speaking from mere hearsay. I have had some most queer experiences in buying lamb of late, which it would take too long to describe, but they give one to think, and think hard.

Shoulder of Lamb.

In the booklet in question there is a recipe for rolled roast shoulder. It says it may be roasted plain or stuffed before tying. In the latter case the housewife would do her own boning, and that is worth while for several reasons. She then removes the "fell," which is the tough and oily outside skin. Thousands of people have disliked all cuts of lamb and mutton because these have been cooked with this skin or fell on, so having a woolly flavor. If the housewife does this work herself, instead of letting the butcher do it, she is surer of the entire cleanliness of the meat. As to rolling, the French for one thing roll a boned shoulder so that it resembles a ribbed melon, the strings forming the ribs, although most people roll it up to resemble a short bolster.

In order that we may know just what the shoulder is let us take a description which links it up with that similar cut of beef which is considered ideal for pot roast. Pot roasting is just as fine a way for cooking lamb shoulder as it is for a chuck of beef. This is the description: "The shoulder or chuck of lamb is a good piece to buy. It has the best flavor of any cut; there is little bone, and what little there is can be boned out and the meat tied in a compact roll; it weighs about four or five pounds, just enough to have for a hot roast one day and some left over for the next one; it is juicy, tender, and delicious. Chops may be cut from it which vie with the loin for flavor and tenderness. These chops contain much more meat per pound than either the loin or rib chops, and are less expensive."

Neck of Lamb.

This cut of lamb is richer in flavoring matter perhaps than any other part, and so is excellent for stews, soups, and braised dishes, although for "broth" it is the shank that is usually ordered. There is a sort of "eye" of meat in slices from the neck, which seems to be quite equal in good lamb to that of the eye in the rib chops, which is about all there is to that cut, while there is much besides, in this cheaper one.

If we knew more about trimming chops we might practice a pretty piece of deception with this. But just as the breast of lamb is a mere shell in poor creatures, so is the neck poor in that sort. Butchers who sell this poor stuff divide their prices thus: Lamb stew, 8 cents; lamb chops—rib or loin—50 cents. Butchers who buy and sell only the best meats are likely to divide their prices thus: Lamb chaps 40 cents—perfect chops, perfectly cut to match one the other—and lamb stew, 35 cents. I sent some one around recently and found just this difference between the pieces of the dealer in the first class meats and those of the one not particular.

Lamb Ribs and Loin.

This tender and juicy meat is expensive. It is used for chops besides for the fanciest of all lamb services, the crown roast. The loin chop without the long bone, if the rim of fat is trimmed and slashed, makes one of the most satisfactory pieces for broiling and is highly advantageous for roasting, and, if old, for boiling, although the boned and tied shoulder may be better for this last, the water in which it is boiled being used for a quickly made broth and a great deal of the meat for made dishes like hashes, croquettes, and meat pies.

Leg of Lamb.

Steaks may be cut from the leg of lamb if you can get the butcher to do it, or if you buy the whole with that in view. The meat is not as fat as that of the shoulder, therefore not so juicy and full of flavor, but sweet butter used in basting it while it is roasting, or even some tried out lamb fat, may partly remedy that.

Lamb's Kidneys.

Lamb's kidneys and kidney chops are dear to the heart of the English eater. They are included in the mixed grill, and the Englishman who picks his chop and then watches it grill in his public eating house will choose the kidney cut. "Ask him!" There are three recipes for cooking lamb's kidneys in Filippini's cook book, and four for cooking lamb's fries, which some people consider it immodest to mention, but which some highly informed people eat with gusto. I once knew of an Episcopal clergyman who preferred them to any other meat, but the true Puritan does not know what they are, and would be shocked to know. Again modern dietetics, and doctors accepting their creed, may prescribe them. The news columns have given us much about these glands without mincing matters.

Roasting Lamb.

Lamb must be roasted quickly in a brisk oven. Its shape will determine how long per pound, as well as the degree of heat to apply. Any cut that is short of fat should be plentifully basted with fat. When it is ready for the oven, pour some fat over it. When this is done the temperature of the oven may be just what is the best for the continued cooking, and when it is not a hotter oven is needed at the start. Always remove the "fell."

Lamb Pluck.

Our grandmothers made delicious dishes from lamb's pluck, and those people who think so much of calf's brain and sweetbreads would like such dishes as they used to make. The whole was boiled, chopped fine, seasoned with plenty of butter and herbs, and a "for nothing" dish was so secured. The butchers often gave away the pluck, or the heart, liver, and lungs. Many a butcher today, it seems, buys his lamb carcasses on a "pluck out basis," because he cannot sell this collection to his trade, but if the newest doctrine in dietetics prevails people will soon be calling for it to an extent to raise the price to a luxury rate.

Crown Roast.

The entire rib sides of the lamb from the shoulder to the loin are usually used for this roast. The ribs are split apart down to the meat, and each section trimmed like a French chop. The brace of chops stands on its meat end, and the ends are joined together to form a crown, the inside of the chops being out. It is highly essential to keep the meat part well joined together, or it may be overcooked. The butcher usually sets up the crown roast, but if you want every bit of fell removed, and every whit of the meat immaculate, perhaps you will do this work at home. The butcher chops off the ribs so as to have them of equal length, and scrapes each bone as well, but you can do this. The roast will be handsomer if the ends of these bones are well covered with an oblong piece of salt pork, which may be removed when the roast is served and the fancy paper flutings put on. You can wrap them with waxed paper, or perhaps the best way of all will be to cover them with the flank of the lamb, which you get with the roast.

The fell should be removed from this if it is so used. You pay for this piece, so why not utilize it? The juices from it flow down to season the roast, but if the meat was rather lean the fat from the pork would be better. If you set up the roast yourself you know more about its condition as regards fat and can then proceed according to need. There are other ways of protecting the parts through which the heat has to penetrate to cook the meat. A bowl or basin may be set inside the roast to protect the shape, and will do it better than forcemeat cooked inside the crown. If there is any danger of burning the roast not only some hot fat but some hot water may be used in the basting. The oven must be thoroughly and evenly hot. Vegetables may be served inside the crown. In fact, there is no end of ways of setting it up for the table.

Lamb Leftovers.

The leftover dishes made of minced lamb are quite endless. Hashes may be made as dainty as sweetbreads. Always use something fresh like raw vegetables or some bacon or ham or spices like curry

How Many Objects in This Picture Start With the Letter "S"?

That's what you are to determine. Without any trouble whatsoever you can readily see such objects as Stove, Saddle, Safe, etc., can't you? Well, the others are just as easy to see, but the idea is to see who can get the most.

Fifteen cash prizes will be given. The answer having the largest and nearest correct list of visible objects shown in the picture that start with the letter "S" will win first prize; second best, second prize, etc.

All answers must be mailed by June 10th, 1922. The prize winners and the correct list of words will be announced directly following the close of the contest.

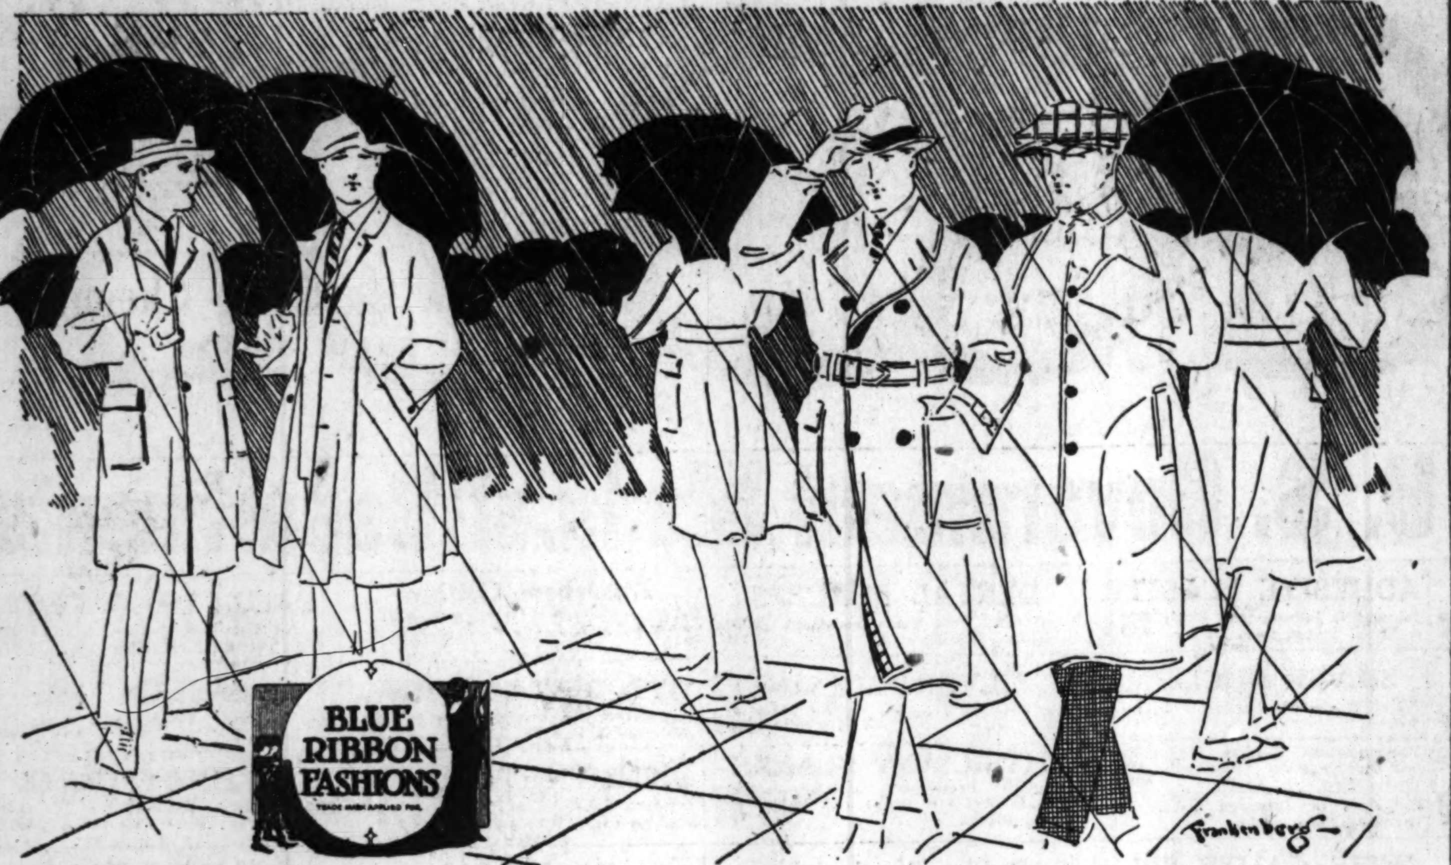
MEN'S FASHIONS



Showerproof built like Chesterfield. Some are made in box coat style. Rubberized and lined with plaid. Rainproof coat; convertible collar.

By A. T. Gallico.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

WEAR ONE OF THESE IN APRIL.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—If it doesn't rain at least once a day throughout April, the month is not living up to its reputation as a season for showers, slight and incidental as they may be. But no matter whether they are heavy storms or mere drizzles, one gets wet, and if one wears a raincoat or showerproof of some kind as almost a steady uniform of April, one's new spring top coat will, in the ensuing month, be as fresh as the proverbial flowers of May.

Raincoats are inexpensive, and the average man can well afford to have one, in addition to his regular coat. Many men have only a showerproof which they use upon all occasions. These coats are not exactly rainproof. They are prepared in a certain way to keep out drizzles, but as a successful protection in a heavy rainstorm they are not as satisfactory as the rubberized coats. You have probably had the experience of camping out in a tent and, after a night of rain, rubbed up against the side or roof in the morning only to have the water come through. The same is true of showerproofs. As long as the cloth is left undisturbed, it keeps out the dampness, but the constant friction of a coat on one's shoulders with rain steadily falling allows the moisture to penetrate.

However, they adequately perform the duty for which they are intended—showerproofs. If a sudden shower comes up they are an emergency protection and will keep out a certain amount of water. And as they are made up in the same materials as the regular top coats, besides gabardine and whipcord, they look enough like the top coats to be worn in sunshine as well as rain, and so there is an economical argument in their favor.

The rubberized coat cannot be used for an all round coat, both because it does not look the part of a fair weather garment and because the rubber makes it too hot when the sun is shining. But if you want a coat that will be a real protection, no matter how hard it rains, you want either a rubberized coat or an all rubber coat. The former are made up in combinations of rubber with tweed, homespun, twill, silk, cashmere, etc. They are made in every style, belted or unbelted, some in the Chesterfield model, some with patch pockets and kimono sleeves. They are mostly single breasted to keep them as cool as possible, and there are ventilation holes under the arms. Some are quite long and others the length of the usual top coats. Convertible collars make possible still more protection. Colors run light—tans, buffs, and light grays being the most frequent. Many are lined, often with plaid.

E. G.: Spring styles in suits for young men is rather a large subject to treat in this space, and I can do no more than make a passing suggestion. Two, three, or four button sack coats are equally proper and good taste. Young men seem to favor the three or four. Lapels tend to the short on these models. The coat should be loose or slightly form fitting, but not tight at the waist. For a dark complexion, dark blue, light gray, or tan should be becoming, and brown is effective on some.

T. F. C.: I expect to devote an article to straw hats in the near future. For the present I have room only to tell you that there will be a vogue among young men who want something different of wearing fancy hats with fancy bands. But the conservative hat, and one that is always safe to have in order to be well dressed, will be about the same as it always is, with bands of plain black or brown. For a full face I recommend a heavy straw, with an adequately wide brim.

W. A. F.: Your height and weight are well proportioned enough to make it unnecessary to offset any lack of length or breadth in your figure. And so the style of your suit is left pretty much to your taste. If you like the three or four button sack suits, they are much in favor. The two button coat is always correct and good taste. The coat should not be tight fitting, and probably single breasted would become you best. With your complexion, dark blue or even black would be extremely becoming. But if you want a light suit for summer, I advise light gray, with tan as a second choice. You ought to be able to wear almost any color tie, four in hand or bow, but be sure the color of the tie harmonizes with the suit you choose.

H. C.: Patent leather shoes are only in good taste with either formal day or formal evening attire, and are not worn with sack suits. With the blue worsted suit and black tie I recommend black calfskin oxfords or high shoes, as you prefer, oxfords being smarter for this time of year. A cap is not proper if you want to create a dressy appearance for the afternoon. If it is for sport wear or in the country, a cap is all right; otherwise a soft hat or a derby.

C. F.: This ought to answer your question.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $5 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possessions you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Doris Blake, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to retain possession of.

WHEN PRIDE GOES.

JERRY, dearest: Please come and kidnap me. I'm wrong and I'm awfully happy to admit it if it will bring you down here to steal me, as you once said it would.

I thought my work meant lots to me, but somehow my paint brush and palette have just conspired against me, and the result is that my last three paintings are all wearing red hair and my thoughts have a tantalizing trick of straying to the balcony and the last night you came to the studio.

I love you, Jerry. There is no one else I could love—but I guess I didn't realize just how much until you confessed your own love, and then I sent you away—and well—somehow it's not been right since, and I'm so lonesome. I want to be just a girl—not an artist, not a tailored girl of business, 'cause I'm only just (I confess it, though perhaps I shouldn't) a little girl who wants to wear a flimsy, fluffy pink frock, and be held and cuddled and loved.

There! I shouldn't be so sentimental, but I'm horribly blue and lonely and just had to "fess up." Still, it's only repeating what you said you hoped I'd say, so it can't be so awfully naughty, can it?

Somehow, bits of your pleadings come back to me as I work, and I just want to toss it all up and fly into your arms and be comforted and let you stroke my hair and have you tell me that everything will come out all right—as you did once years ago, it seems, when at college I thought mid-year exams were overwhelming me. 'Member? We were pals those days—nothing more, but I know now that the best pal I ever had has become more than a pal, and dearer, and the one man in all the wide, wide world that I love.

Jerry, dear, please don't think me bold. You said you wouldn't bother me any more, and asked my forgiveness for the words you spoke—if you only knew how I loved to recall them. You have gone to the mountains to forget, I've heard. So how else can I tell you?

My pride alone has kept me from writing you before, but love is the greatest thing in the world 'tis said, and I have found my love in you, dear, dear pal.

It is I who beg to be forgiven. I'm wrong. I thought when I turned you away it was best for both of us. But it wasn't. It's lonesome here without you. Will you come for me?

All the love in the world from your devoted, PEGGY.

ABOUT WOMEN

Two women passed architect examinations with such distinction in Paris recently that special mention was made in the presence of forty-seven male examiners.

In Great Britain women prisoners work either at cleaning, cooking, washing or needlework, so that they learn to do something useful while serving their sentences.

More than one-half the million members of the Young Women's Christian association are American girls.

Men Notice

very quickly the woman of complete daintiness—especially attractive in this season's thin waists and low-cut gowns.

The refinement and grace of a woman depends upon a faultless toilette. That is why discriminating women insist on Delatone.

DEL-A-TONE

is a safe and sure preparation for the removal of hair from the neck, face or under-arms.

Beauty specialists recommend it because it leaves the skin clear, firm and perfectly smooth.

Delatone is easy to apply—simple directions with every jar.

At Any Druggist's or Department Store

GIVE A BABY SYRUP PEPSIN

Constipation, biliousness and like annoying ills will quickly disappear

A MOTHER is always anxious to give the safest and best medicine to a constipated baby, but is puzzled which to select. Let her decide by the ingredients on the package.

Every bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the formula printed plainly on the outside of the carton under the portrait of Dr. Caldwell, who wrote the prescription in 1892. You will find that it is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It will not gripe the baby, and it is free from narcotics. A bottle sufficient to last a family several months can be had at any drug store, and the cost is only about a cent a dose.

While no one, young or old, need take a drastic purgative like salts or calomel, be especially careful what you give a child. Some contain minerals, coal tar and other drugs that might prove dangerous by over stimulating the intestines or depressing the heart. The ingredients of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are recommended by the U. S. Pharmacopoeia.

Half-Ounce Bottle Free

Few escape constipation, so even if you do not require a laxative at this moment let me send you a Half-Ounce Trial Bottle of my Syrup Pepsin FREE OF CHARGE so that you will have it handy when needed. Simply send your name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 514 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Write me today.

Doris Blake's Answers to Love Problems

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

Young Enough to Wait.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 21 years old and have been going with a young man seven years my senior for three years. He has declared his love for me, but cannot propose marriage because of those depending on him. I am always anxious to be with him and cannot stand the suspense of being separated for long. Recently I have frequently gone out of my way in order to see him. Do you think he will lose his respect for me by my showing my anxiety in this way? TROUBLED."

That is a problem for you to decide. Have you any idea when his dependents will release him, so that he may make a home for you? It quite depends how deeply you love him whether to be hopeful or disconsolate. The kind of man who looks out for his people invariably makes a reliable husband and a devoted one. And you are young enough to wait a while, but I should advise a definite understanding, and then you could show your anxiety without fear of misunderstanding.

It Seems Unkind.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17 and I have been keeping company with a fellow for six months who is 20 years of age. When he was 3 years old one of his arms was badly burned and scarred, and for that reason my parents are against my going with him. They seem to be under the impression that he is a sick fellow on account of his arm, although I am sure that he is in the best of health. They insist upon my breaking off with him. What would you advise me to do? Meet him on the outside or break off at once, although I love him and I know that he loves me? ANXIOUS."

The accident might as easily have happened to a son of your parents, and would it not be unkind in their eyes for another mother's daughter whom he loved to discriminate against him because of his accident? However, dear, there may be some other reason which you have not disclosed. After all, you are but 17 and still should have the guidance of wise and loving parents.

Why Business and Professional Men Need This Great Work of General Knowledge

MODERN civilization makes specialists of us all. The day of the "jack of all trades" is gone forever. We would rather be proficient in one direction than have a smattering of knowledge in many subjects.

The boy and girl in high school and college direct their energies toward some special line of work. Modern educational methods tend more and more to a carefully planned specialization.

With the man in business, his thoughts, his time and his energies are directed to one end—to the requirements of that particular business. This also applies most aptly to the man in a profession or the woman in the home or in business.

We are a nation of specialists, wonderfully proficient in certain lines and woefully deficient in others. Our brains are beautifully rounded out on one side and flat and underdeveloped on the other. Phrenologically our mathematical bump, or our literary bump, or our scientific bump is prominent, but whichever one is overdeveloped the others suffer from under-cultivation and under-nourishment.

Specialists we must be in this civilization, for competition is so brisk that we must be highly developed in our particular field to be successful. But specialization, no one doubts, has its disadvantages as well. The average man or woman of today is lacking in the great wealth of knowledge which makes a person well educated and cultured.

Our mental fabric is warped—it has great gaping holes in it—our knowledge is threadbare on everything but the one subject we know well.

But the world's ideas are changing. More is expected of us today. Not only does the world look to the man to have a high degree of specialized knowledge, but he must also have a fund of general, all around knowledge. Today for just this reason the universities are demanding a college degree as an entrance requirement to their professional schools.

When we visualize the need for general knowledge we primarily think of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. Why? Because it furnishes the supreme recourse to him who seeks for general knowledge. It acquaints a man with every subject known to the human mind, and its authority is unquestioned.

The Britannica gives to the man wide information on the subjects in which he is weak, it makes accessible to the woman information that runs the entire gamut of human thought and action. It gives to the growing boy and girl information that will aid them materially in the study of the great variety of subjects which they take up in grade school, high school and college. To the man with a home and who wishes to provide for his family and himself a cultured background, a thorough foundation of knowledge, the Britannica is indispensable.

The Britannica is available to every man for his home and his family. The easy terms and low prices at which it is sold make its purchase unburdensome. The Britannica is printed on the fine India paper and bound in several styles to suit the individual taste.

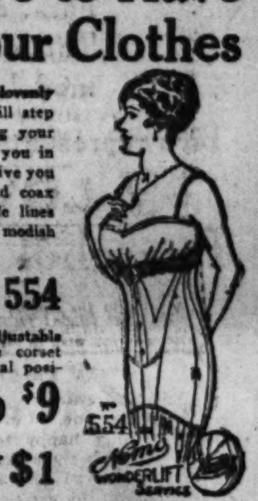
You Don't Have to Have Wrinkles in Your Clothes

An ill fitting gown or suit gives such a slovenly appearance and is so unnecessary. If you will step into our Corset Department before selecting your new clothes, one of our corsetieres will aid you in your selection of a Nemo corset which will give you anatomically correct support and control, and coax your figure into the smooth, flat, fashionable lines which are the best possible foundation for modish frocks and trim tailleurs.



Nemo Wonderlift No. 554

Is medium in all its proportions. The adjustable Wonderlift bandlet, concealed beneath the corset skirt, returns to and holds in their normal positions the frail abdominal organs. Health and style are both improved. White coutil; sizes 24 to 36. $4 to $9

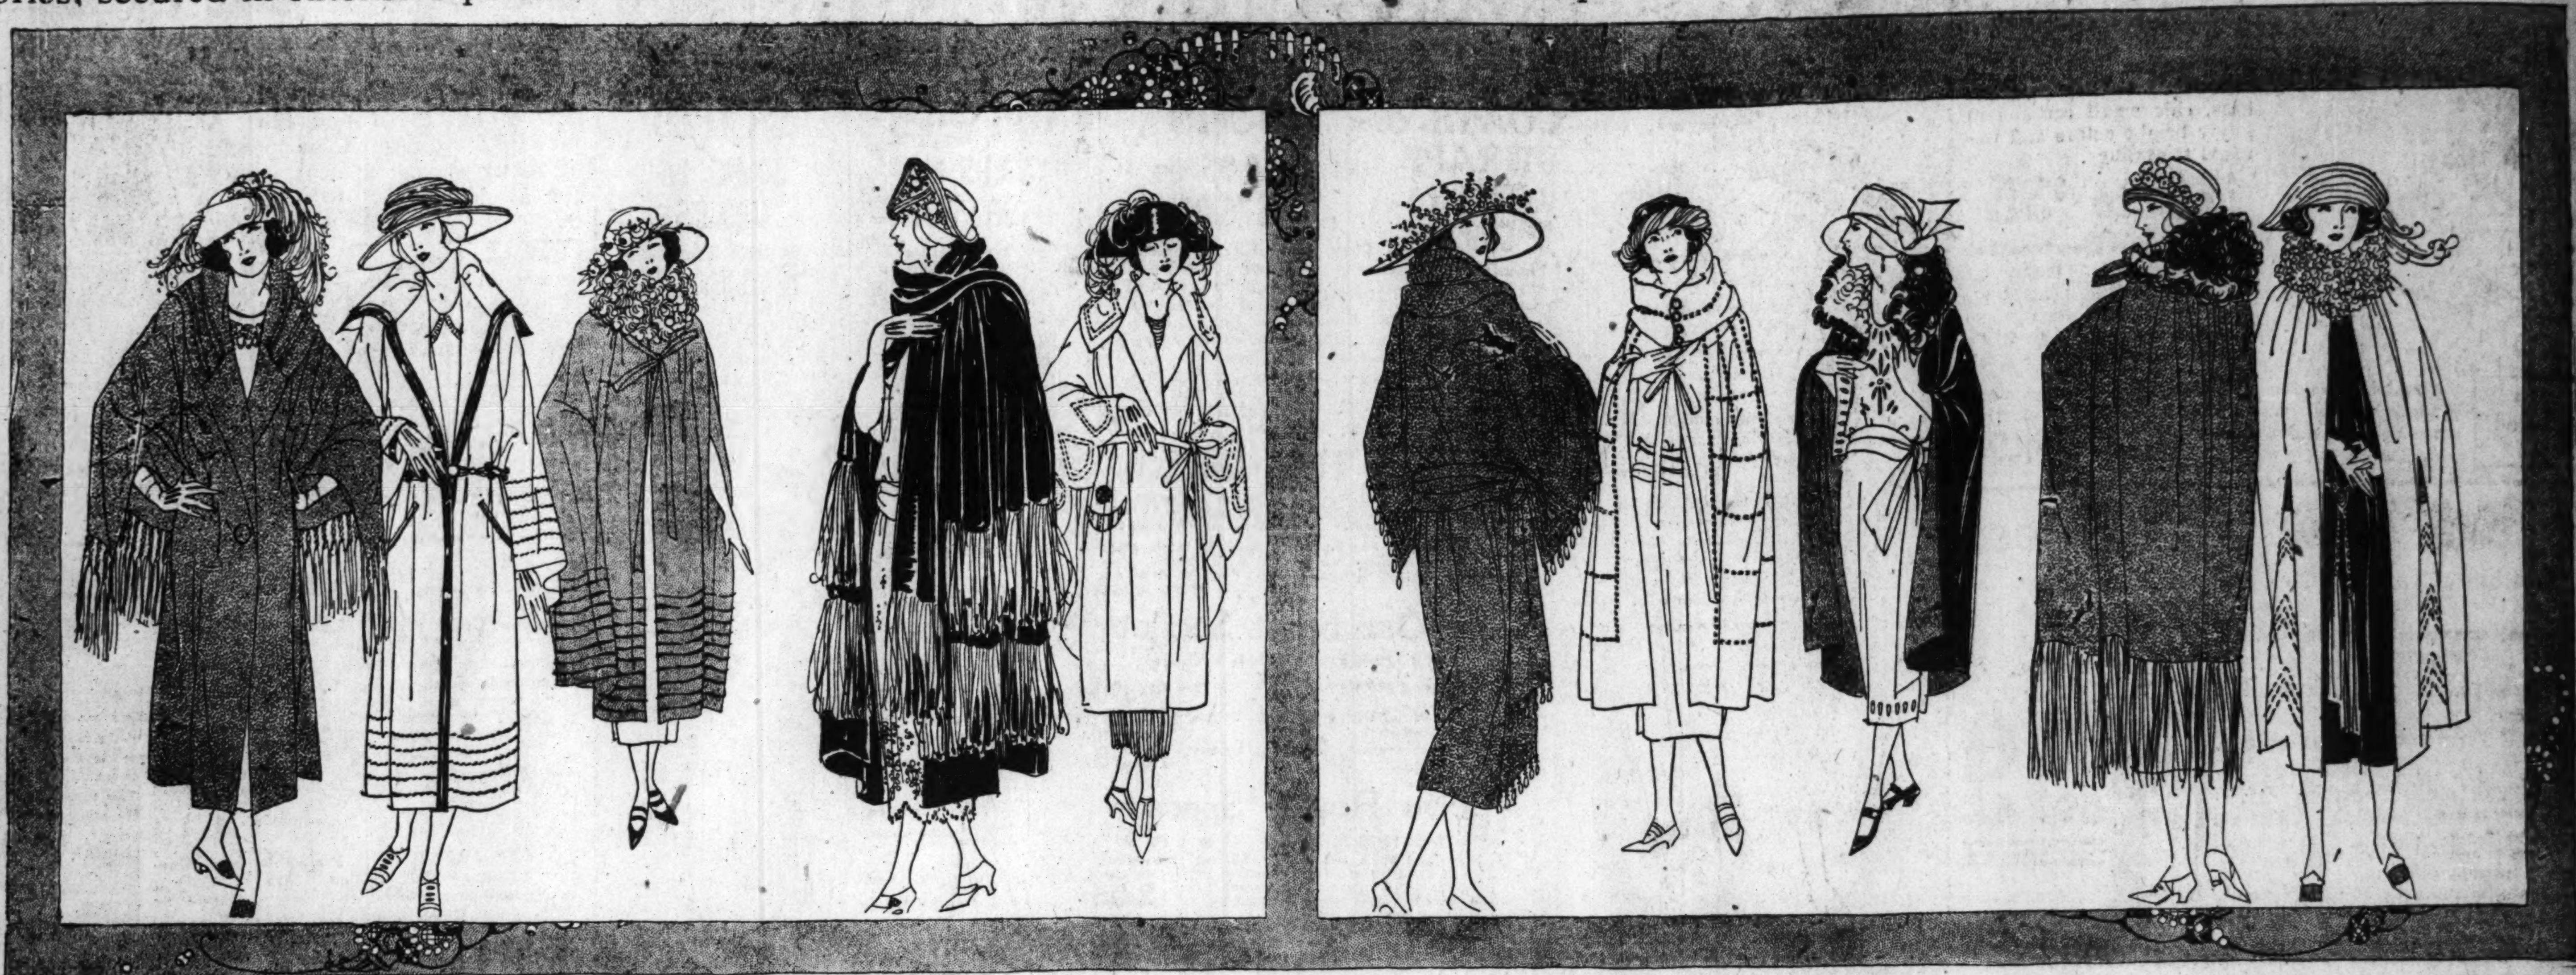
NEW VICTOR RECORDS — 100 CALLING CARDS PRINTED, 39c — WE DEMONSTRATE THE HOOVER

Mandel Brothers' annual pre-Easter coat sale

—women's and misses' styles and sizes—extraordinary values

The season's newest models, many shown for the first time, are here in a remarkably varied assemblage of coats, capes and wraps, fashioned of luxurious fabrics, secured in extensive purchases from manufacturers who interestedly co-operated to produce maximum values. "The" coat event of the season.



Marvella, gerona, orlando, veldyne, twill cord, sonnetta, canton crepe, roshanara, crepe faille and spiral silk coats, in spring's approved colors, and black. The accepted newer developments in straight-line, sleeved coats, blouse models with cape effects, gracefully draped wraps and flowing circular capes.

$65

All the styles are refreshingly "different" from early season modes. Some of the coats are smartly plain and in novel designs, others exhibit clever and unique trimming touches of embroidery, stitching, fringe or caracul fur. All are superbly tailored and crepe silk lined in self or contrasting color.

Five representative women's models are pictured above at the left—five misses' models at the right. The styles include an excellent choice of models in extra sizes for stout figures. Fourth floor.

Fur chokers, capes, coatees

Natural silver, Greenland, Alaska blue, cross, dyed fox chokers; Hudson Bay sable and Russian sable chokers—all special. Fifth floor.

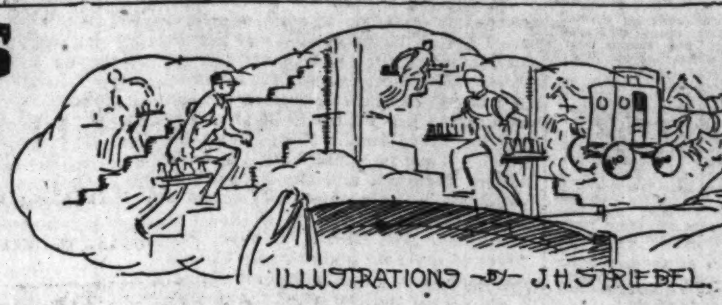
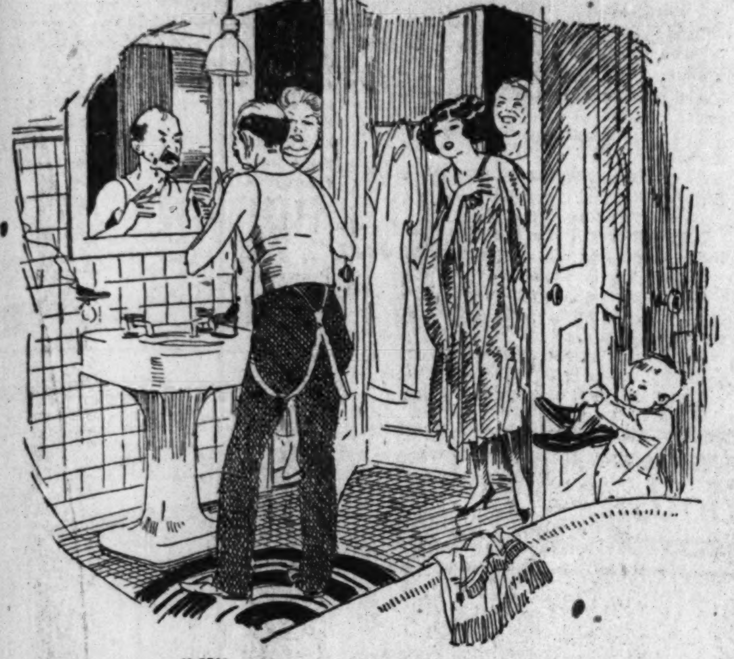
THE POTTERS

by J. P. McEvoy



PROLOGUE.

Many philosophers have spent most of their time down here in thinking up snide remarks about life . . . it is as though they were week-end guests of Mrs. Nature and laid around the house all the while criticising her hospitality . . . life is one long process of getting tired, says one . . . and of making others tired, he might have added . . . life, says another, is the pursuit of the impossible through the useless . . . the sum of life's pleasures is not equal to the sum of its pains, cries Schopenhauer, who probably arrived at this conclusion by lumping all the ladies on the pain side of the ledger . . . not a bad idea; we would amend it by shifting all the men over there with them . . . and even the advertising writers are doing it: "What do we live for?" they complain . . . as yet, no one has been able to advance a credible reason . . . perhaps if we were to examine a typical Potter day as lived by Pa Potter we, too, might be led to wonder why only one-half of 1 per cent of the population commits suicide. . . .



"Why do you cut yourself like that?"

SCENE I.—IN THE BATHROOM.

(Pa Potter is making his toilette . . . his sleep was abridged from the beginning by a neighborly visit, the middle section of it was shattered by an ensemble of vocal cats, singing in amorous ecstasy, while the latter end of his slumber was entirely annihilated by countless milkmen, who clattered up and down the back stairs, giving a faithful imitation of a cavalry charge over a wooden bridge . . . hence Pa is not in a merry mood this morning. . . .)

PA (to the world at large):

Where's my toothbrush? Where's my comb?
This is a madhouse . . . this ain't a home.

(Home is the place where, when everything else is closed, they've got to take you in.)

Ain't you got no towels? . . . Gosh, watta life!

MA (at door):

Say, you want a caddy . . . not a wife!

MAMIE: Hurry up. I wanta fix my hair.
BILL: It'll look just the same, so wadda you care?
MAMIE; O, is that so?
BILL: Yes, that's so.
MAMIE: Think you're smart!
BILL: Think? I know!

(As Bill would say, why should Mamie worry about soap and water when she washes her face with a powder puff and combs her hair with an egg beater.)

PA (cutting himself for the fourth time . . . if a barber ever did the things to Pa that Pa does to himself every morning he would have him arrested):

Y' can't find anything in this flat.

MA (helpfully):

Why do you cut yourself like that?

MAMIE (loftily):

Men never learn to do things right.

BILL (brotherly):

If you would teach 'em, why, then they might.

MAMIE (scathingly):

I was speaking of men . . . pin back your ears;
You won't be a man for years and years.

PA (rummaging neatly arranged drawers . . . Ma will be pleased):

Ain't I got no shirts? . . . Lookit this cuff!
Don't nobody ever look after my stuff?
Where's my collars . . . where are they at?
This is a madhouse . . . this ain't a flat . . .

SCENE II.—ON THE "L."

(After a lightning breakfast, in which the rolls are sent clattering down after the cereal and the coffee scampers down after the rolls, Pa rushes out of the house, taking the paper with him, and crowds into the "L" just in time to get a nice, comfortable strap all to himself . . . unfortunately, in our descent from the monkeys we lost our tails . . . how handy they would be now for straphangers during rush hours . . . two feet free to hold bundles and two hands free to read the paper!)

PA (attracted by headline in neighbor's paper):

Waddye think of that four power treaty?

NEIGHBOR (attracted by headline in Pa's paper):

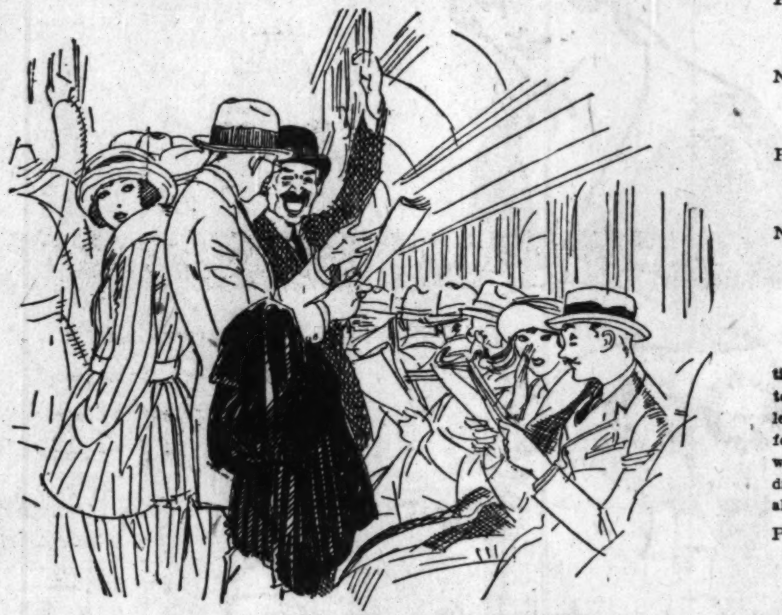
D'ye think they'll pass that sales tax?



"I'm bleeding yet from my income tax."

PA (judiciously):

Well, sometimes I think they will and sometimes I don't.

NEIGHBOR (nodding head in approval):

Me, too. Sometimes I think yes and sometimes no.

PA (enthusiastically):

Y'can't always sometimes tell about those things.
Sometimes they work; sometimes they don't. Everything's got to be tried once, sometime or another.

NEIGHBOR:

Yes, that's right. They say, though, it works all right in Canada. I seen that somewheres.

PA (decisively):

Well, Canada is diff'rent.

NEIGHBOR (heartily):

Tnat's right, Canada is diff'rent. It ain't the same thing at all.

PA (firmly):

We got enough taxes as it is, I'll say, without adding no more of 'em.

NEIGHBOR (gloomily):

Ain't it the truth! If they're so nuts about more taxes in Canada in Canada they can have 'em. Ha, ha!

PA (mirthfully):

I'll give 'em all of mine. Ha, ha! Gee, I'm bleeding yet from my income tax.

NEIGHBOR (sadly):

They say they're checking up on all of 'em. Well, they won't find nothing wrong with mine . . . I hope.

PA (remembering something he remembered to forget):

Well, they won't find nothing wrong in mine, neither. Ha, ha!

(The laugh sounds rather hollow . . . Pa's heart is not in it.)

NEIGHBOR (brightly):

D'ye see what they do to the boys with a million dollar income?
O, boy; I'm glad I don't have to pay it.

PA (in good spirits once more):

Me, neither. But I'm sorry I never will. (Looks out window.)
Gosh, here's my station! S'long.

NEIGHBOR (absently . . . his eye has already caught an attractive headline in the paper across the aisle):

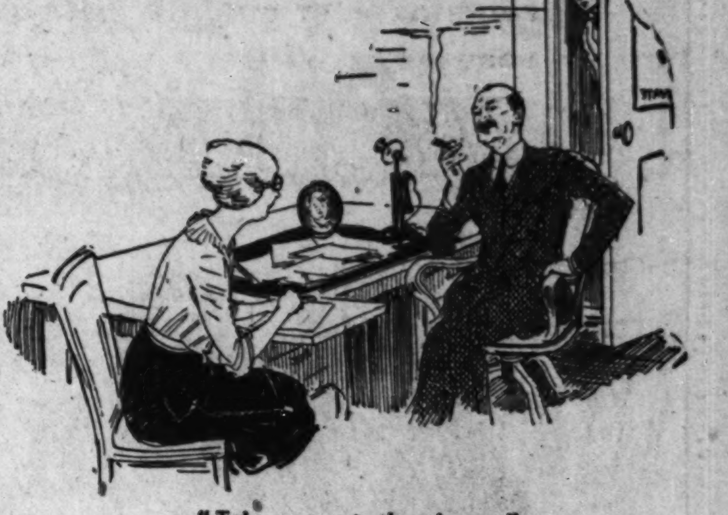
S'long. See you in Hollywood.

SCENE III.—AT THE OFFICE.

The immense mass of current business correspondence is built up upon the assumption that all letters should be answered . . . Pa Potter is always eager to get down to his office and answer his mail, not realizing that the most efficient way to answer letters is not to pay any attention to them . . . leave almost any letter lying around for a few weeks and no reply will be necessary . . . questions not settled by neglect will come up again anyway . . . eventually those who wrote the original letters will die or become discouraged and quit writing, which effectually disposes of the matter for all time. . . .



"Take a memo to the salesmen."

PA (to stenographer):

Take a memo to the salesmen . . . In re Nos. 4867 and 4898—are those the right numbers, Miss Norbeck? Check them up, please—we have decided to change the prices from—what are those prices?—to, let's see—do you remember what those new prices are we agreed upon?—look them up and fill them in. We are somewhat disappointed in your sales on these new numbers. Compare them with those of last year, Nos. 3526 and 35—let me see, what were those numbers? Look them up and fill them in. We must impress upon you the importance of a complete knowledge of your goods. It is of vital importance—underline the word vital, please; send that out—ask Winter when he wants to send it and find out from somebody where the men are this week . . .

MISS N. (answering telephone):

Somebody to see you.

PA (stirring papers all up):

Tell 'em I'm busy. Tell 'em I'm in conference.

Stenographer exits, carrying conference lie with practiced ease . . . a special staff of expert accountant recording angels, equipped with adding machines, have been installed in order to take care of the work since the conference gag was invented . . . Stenographer returns and spends rest of morning taking innumerable memos which nobody wants to remember, countless letters which nobody wants to answer, and jotting down dozens of notes which are never referred to again. The afternoon will be spent carefully filing all this material away so scientifically it can never be found again unless she should happen to be looking for something else. Pa's activities are somewhat as follows:

Starts about 11 o'clock making luncheon engagement.

Goes out at noon for luncheon . . . stays until 2 o'clock . . . returns full of luncheon . . . sits in torpid trance and functions comatosely until quitting time . . . functioning consists mainly in making out reports to be passed by committees which can't understand what they are all about . . .

Goes home all worn out from hard day's work.
Looks forward to good dinner and quiet evening.
Tomorrow will be another day . . .

PA (wearily to Ma):

I tell you this working ain't no fun—
All day long I'm on the run.

MA (just as wearily to Pa, having returned from a hard afternoon at the matinée):

Man's work is from sun to sun,
But woman's work is never done.

(After which she drags out into the kitchen and prepares the evening meal with the aid of a can opener.)

(And That's That—Until Next Sunday.)

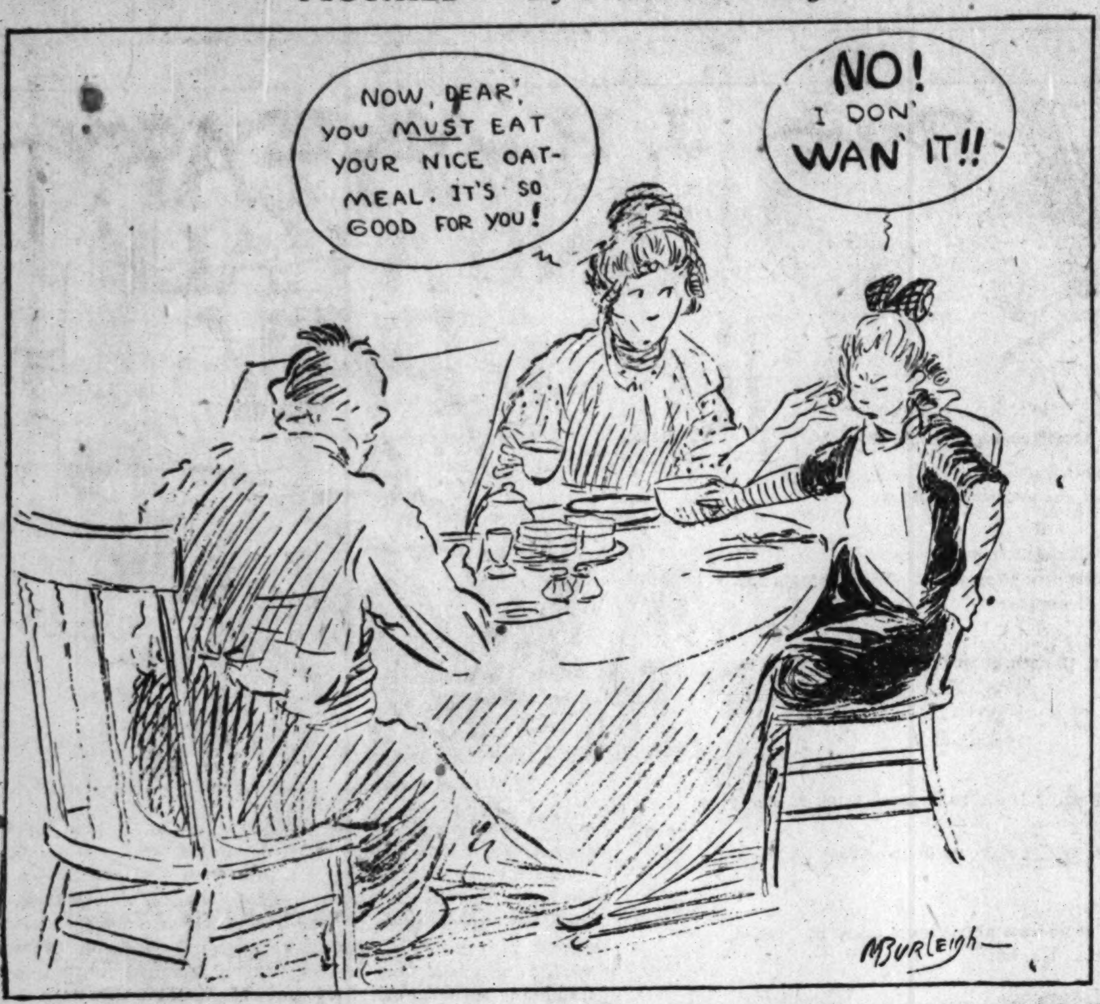
"PIGTAILS"—By Mildred Burleigh



NOW, DEAR, YOU MUST EAT YOUR NICE OATMEAL. IT'S SO GOOD FOR YOU!
NO! I DON' WAN' IT!!
M Burleigh

WHY I TOLD MY LAST LIE

Why did you tell your last lie? Was that the "easiest way" out or did it get you into a worse fix? Tell what happened and how you felt about it. Perhaps you told what wasn't true to help somebody else out of a difficulty. Tell what impelled you to do it. Address your letter to Lie Contest Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. One dollar will be paid for each letter printed.

Stern and Exacting.

I was a young stenographer; my employer was stern and exacting, and I was trying hard to please him. The last letter he gave me in his morning dictation he said was extremely important. He was going away for the afternoon, but would be back about 5, when he wanted the letter ready to sign and mail.

Instead of writing it first, I typed the others in the order in which I had placed them in my notebook. Several unforeseen interruptions occurred. I entirely forgot the letter he was so particular about and it had not been transcribed when I closed my desk at 5 o'clock.

He came in while I was putting on my hat and said, "Did you write that letter to Grant & Green?"

"Yes, sir," I lied glibly; "I mailed it when I went to dinner."

"Why on earth didn't you hold it for me to sign, as I told you to?" he demanded. "Now I'll have to cancel it by wire. I want a stenographer who can carry out instructions exactly as I give them. I'll not need you after this week."
G. W. P.

Women Will Understand.

A new young man had come to town and I succeeded in attracting his attention. He was neat in appearance and frequently complimented me upon what he called my daintiness, in ways and dress.

One morning I was helping mother clean the basement. I had on a pair of wretched old shoes; my dress was dirty; my face and hands were heavily streaked with dust, and to protect my hair I had put on an old sunbonnet, which was pulled down over my eyes, when the door bell rang. I ran, thinking it was the postman, and there stood the immaculate youth of my dreams.

"Is Miss Jones at home?" he inquired.

"No, sir," I answered in a hoarse voice. "She's out shopping."

He didn't recognize me, but told me afterward that he had called and the maid had told him I was out.
W. S. C.

The Easiest Way.

A young student in one of my husband's classes came to my flat and asked for room and board.

As I did not care to take her in I said: "No, we are not going to rent our room this year."

Just as I said it the doorbell rang and up marched a couple of students who asked to see the room I had offered for rent.

Do You Know Your A, B, C's? How Many Objects Can You Find in This Picture Beginning With "C" Only—Like "Cat," "Camel," etc?

EVERYBODY MAY TRY for the Cash Prizes

And the 50 answers that are the nearest correct will be awarded the 50 CASH PRIZES as shown below. Lots of things begin with "C." Nothing's hidden. Just take a good look at the picture. They're adventurers seeking buried treasure. Every object is plain. Make up a list of the names of the things you see beginning with the letter "C" and win first prize.

COSTS YOU NOTHING

It does not cost a single penny to take part in this word-finding game. Everyone may join in. Mother, Father, Sister, Brother—all are welcome to try for the prizes (except employees of this company or their relatives, and they are not eligible). It's real exciting finding "C"-words. Besides, this is a surer way of getting a fortune than by seeking a buried treasure like the adventurers in this picture. Send in your answer right away and get in line for the Cash Prizes. Other members of your family may help you. Aim for the $1,000.00 CASH PRIZE.

To Advertise "Wonder" Purse

The "Wonder" Convertible Purse is the newest and most wonderful ever conceived. It is made of highest grade Elkide, in a rich, dark-brown alligator finish. Strong and durable. Closed like illustration "1" it is an attractive purse. Open half length like "2" it is a Boston Bag. Open full length like "3" it is a Carry-All Shopping Bag. It cannot be found elsewhere, for it is protected by patent, and we are placing it on the market now for the first time. The new "Wonder" Purse is a beauty either closed or opened, and appeals to women of most refined taste. Every household needs one, and it is our aim to place one in every home in America. While introducing our new "Wonder" Convertible Purse we offer Cash Prizes as an advertising feature for the most correct answers to our "C"-word Picture Puzzle, and VERY MUCH LARGER CASH PRIZES for those who answer the puzzle and order a "Wonder" Purse, price $5.00.

How You Can Win $1,000.00

You do not have to buy a "Wonder" Purse to win a prize. But if you do not purchase one and the judges decide your answer is the nearest correct, you will win only $25.00. However, as this advertising campaign is to introduce our new "Wonder" Convertible purse, the following big Cash Prize offer is made:

If your answer is adjudged the nearest correct and you have purchased a "Wonder" Purse, price $5.00, you will win the first prize, $1,000.00 Cash. (See Class "A" Gifts in Prize List).

NOTE: In case the winner of any prize has not qualified for Class "A" Gifts, thereby failing to win the biggest prize money, the balance of such prize money shall be divided proportionately among the other prize winners who have qualified for Class "A" Gifts.

In case the picture puzzle is not clearly printed in this paper, write us and we will gladly send you a larger and clearer picture.

IS MARRIAGE A FAILURE?

Why do so many marriages go wrong? What are the underlying causes of happy marriages? Are there any happy marriages? What is the matter, if anything, with marriage, the institution?

W. L. George, the English novelist, investigated 150 marriages. One hundred and sixteen cases he eliminated as unsuccessful; in five cases the husband was unfaithful; in ten it was the wife; the husband disliked the wife in three cases and in seven it was the wife who did the disliking. Only nine marriages, Mr. George says, were "apparently successful." "Marriage," he adds, "is on its trial before a hesitating jury."

Look over the marriages you know yourself. How many are successes; how many are failures? And why?

The Tribune will pay $1 for each letter published on the question: Marriage—what do you think of it? Address Marriage Editor, The Sunday Tribune.

Proud of Her Now.

Every woman imagines her marriage is an exceptional one, that no matter what people have to say or how many of the same sort of marriages have ended disastrously, her's is bound to be different. When Frank asked me to become his wife, I thought of the wonderful romance of a man asking a woman to marry her after only knowing her two days. Our marriage took place under every condition contrary to convention. We met on Friday, on Sunday discovered our love to be mutual, and on the following Saturday I left for the north to marry him. I was 25 and he was 49. We laughed at the great difference in our ages, saying we'd show 'em.

Seven months later I packed my clothes to go home to stay, and here are a few of the reasons: I was lonely; having servants I had practically no work. My mind was idle. My husband is a lawyer, and studied nearly all the time, and when I'd try to be affectionate he would say, "Now, dear, I'm busy." Then he would hand me some money to go out and buy a new hat, which he never noticed, so I found I was losing my interest in clothes.

We had few friends, because the wives of my husband's friends did not particularly like me. I was too young. I lost all my natural gayety, and I always had a guard on my tongue for fear of saying something which would be misunderstood.

Being naturally jolly, I would laugh at the most ridiculous things and my husband got to saying I was childish. After being alone all day, I found myself when he came home talking of the most trivial things. Poor fellow, he must have had a time of it too.

All of a sudden, good old style common sense came to my rescue. I loved my husband; he loved me. I couldn't change him at his age, and besides, his character is what makes him the great lawyer he is. I found out, also, that I had been living beyond our means, so I was the one who should change.

I began to study a little law and history, to read the different cases in the evening papers, to try to make myself worth while. I also started to do my own shopping, to run my household expenses on a budget, and with the money I saved in that way, I took vocal lessons.

Now I have regained my youth; my husband is happy and proud of me; I don't care to have many acquaintances, for my minutes are all occupied. There is one cure for every marriage and that is common sense. The woman must have it; the man will never change.
J. W. S.

Take Stock and Reform.

We have been married five years. The first year was one of great happiness, with occasional misunderstandings, as first years are apt to be. Since then quarrels have been more frequent. We have taken to picking at each other more. We tell each other unflattering truths. We poke fun at each other before people.

I allow little things my husband does to irritate me. I show my irritation. I am not affectionate. I lavish all my affection on my baby. I don't laugh at small troubles once out of ten times when I could nine out of ten times. I have forgotten that my husband is a big boy and have often been aggravated by his perfectly wholesome foolishness. In other words, I have not been game. I have not done my part.

I have indicted myself, have made a resolution, am gritting my teeth, and believe I shall be able to keep it. My husband is a good, clean, well educated man. We have most things in common, but opposite temperaments. We can be happy if we only will. I believe this is true of most marriages. We have been going toward one of those indifferent, mediocre married lives, a little scrappy, a little naggy. I believe we are going to avoid it.

I suggest the following Does and Don'ts for successful married life:

Take stock of yourselves now and then.

Are you game? Are you doing your part?

Are you good natured about small things?

Don't nag. Be Big—big-minded, big-hearted.

Be affectionate.

Remember a little harmless flattery helps to oil the wheels of married life.

Don't be overromantic.

Be loving and sensible.

Be interested in your husband's or wife's interests.

Be loyal. Never criticize your husband to another.

Make up your mind to be game.

"A Life Preserver for Foods"

To Keep Cream Sweet

The trees of far-off Africa yield their bark for Alaska "cubed cork" insulation

UNDER the scorching tropical sun the cork tree lives, protected by the marvelous air-filled cells of its outer bark.

In your Alaska Refrigerator these same air-filled cells of cork—the most efficient refrigerator insulating material known—stand between the outside heat and the inside coolness to keep your milk and cream, your fruits and vegetables, sweet and fresh and wholesome.

Because "cubed cork" is so remarkably efficient in keeping out heat—the Government specifies it in refrigerators it buys—it is also remarkably economical in ice consumption. When you purchase a refrigerator, insist on an Alaska, with its seven insulating walls and "cubed cork" insulation. It will more than pay for itself in the saving of food and ice.

Other important Alaska features:

Alaska patented circulation system by which the warm air rises from food compartment to ice chamber, where it is chilled and the moisture condensed. The dry, cold air drops back into food compartment to circulate about the food and thoroughly chill it.

Linings of seamless porcelain with rounded corners; or of white enamel; easily cleaned.

Shelves of heavily tinned, non-rusting woven wire, easily removable for cleaning.

Ice rack of galvanized steel, heavily coated, removable.

Special drain pipe with patent trap to keep warm air from entering refrigerator; easily cleaned.

Tight-fitting doors. Handsome finish of several coats of finest white enamel or varnish.

Insist on seeing the name Alaska on the front of the refrigerator before you buy. Don't accept a substitute.

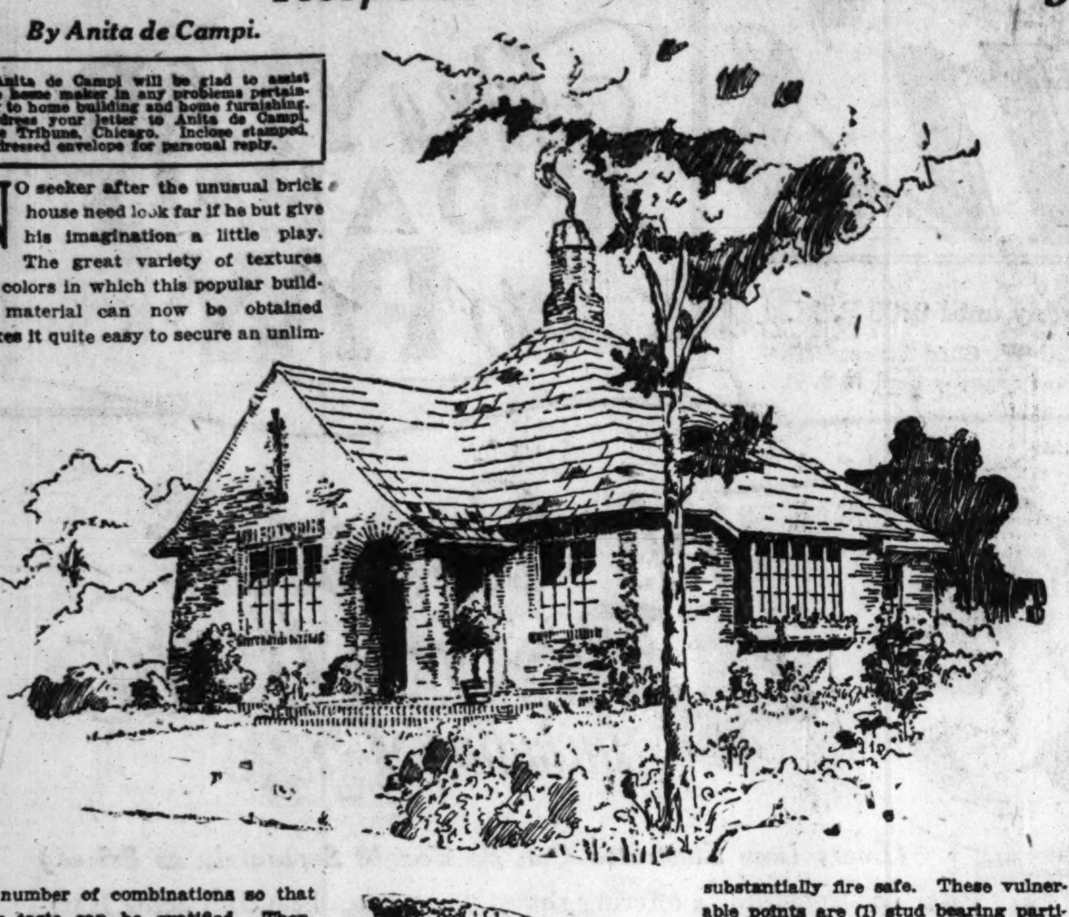
New Colors and Texture in Brick Respond to Demand for Variety

By Anita de Campi.

Anita de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Anita de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.



NO seeker after the unusual brick house need look far if he but give his imagination a little play. The great variety of textures and colors in which this popular building material can now be obtained makes it quite easy to secure an unlimited number of combinations so that every taste can be gratified. Then, too, the advent of the new colors and textures in the bricks themselves has resulted in the creation of a marked demand for artistic patterns in brick work, a development to which the architectural profession has given thought and aid in unstinted measure.

Hitherto, the common or running "bond" was used for the face brick in any but the more pretentious residence, hotel, and apartment buildings. This "bond" consists entirely of stretchers, that is, brick with their length running with the wall and their long side exposed to view. A monotonous pattern was the best to be obtained in this way, but as it was easier to lay and there was no demand for anything more individual. It was and is still used on many buildings where the builder's desire for something different and artistic has not been cultivated.

Now, however, the alert homebuilder chooses the pattern for his brick work as carefully as he does the pattern of his rug.

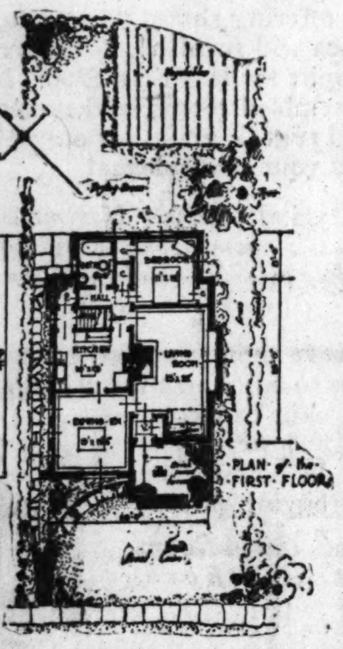
Flemish, English, and Dutch bonds in which the stretchers and headers (the latter brick with short end exposed in face of wall) are arranged in various patterns are now frequently used in even the most unpretentious residences and bungalows.

Then, too, there are other special patterns or motifs which can be worked into any of these bonds, just as they are in the floors, so that individuality of design is distinctly a matter of personal taste.

Last, but not least, there is the effect of color and size of the mortar joints, which, as described in a previous article, has a most remarkable effect in bringing out the pattern of the brick work.

However, as in all things, moderation is best, and I would caution conservatism in working out patterns, color of brick, and mortar joints and use contrast between special patterns or motifs and the background with discretion. Then, too, it does not look well to have too many different colors of brick in the same wall, and those which are used should be chosen with the thought in mind of carrying out a dignified and pleasing style.

Just as when selecting the materials for a new dress it is easier to get the proper idea by glimpsing a similar gown already made up, so I would advise the prospective homebuilder to look around amongst the newer houses being erected for ideas in color, harmony, and style in brickwork.



For a home of this sort many builders hope to make the interior as fire-resistive as the exterior, which, being of brick, tile, or concrete or concrete block and stucco, has a high fire retarding value. They willingly pay for these materials for the outside of the house, but on account of economy and adaptability, prefer wood stud and wood joist construction for many of the vital parts of the interior. However, if the parts most vulnerable to fire are protected by metal lath, the wood frame of the interior can be made substantially fire safe. These vulnerable points are (1) stud bearing partitions and walls and firestops between studs; (2) ceilings under inhabited floors, especially over heating plants and coal bins; (3) at chimney breasts, around flues, and back of kitchen ranges; (4) for stair wells and under stairs.

For convenience of arrangement the snuggest apartment has no advantage over this cunning little home. Having the bedroom and bath across the back of the house in the space usually sacrificed to the kitchen and dining room is an excellent idea, particularly if the plan is used where the view at the back may overlook a garden or perhaps an enchanting shore line.

Notice the charming little terraced porchlike entrance and the brick walk that circles up to it. The triangle back of the curb offers fine opportunity for an exquisite screening of flowering shrubs, to give privacy to the front dining room windows. A side entrance over a flagstone path leads to the kitchen door, while another door in the kitchen opens upon a tiny back porch of brick.

At one end of the living room is a built in bed davenport, which on occasion transposes the living room into a guest's room.

Have you observed that the big chimney is built exactly in the center of the house, with its great fireplace in the living room neatly back to back with the kitchen range? Isn't the whole thing snug and comfortable looking?

The plans for this house were prepared by R. W. Koch of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Quick Relief from Constipation

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" —bad breath — a dull, tired feeling—sick headache — torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant relief from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

"And yet both are the same age"

Comb Sage Tea in Faded or Gray Hair

GRAY hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhance its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored, and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Style and Quality that make boys noticeably well dressed

OUTFITTING time for spring and summer is here. Your boy is ready for new blouses. Experience tells you he doesn't look his best in ordinary blouses. Solve the whole matter quickly and easily by buying him "Kaynee."

Pompeian Day Cream

Pompeian Day Cream vanishing
Pompeian Beauty Powder
Pompeian Bloom
These three for Instant Beauty

Do You Look as Young as Your Husband?

HOW anxiously a woman asks herself this question—and how needlessly; she can retain all the soft, lovely coloring of blushing youth by using the complete "Pompeian Beauty Toilette."

First, a touch of fragrant Pompeian DAY Cream (vanishing). It softens the skin and holds the powder. Work the cream well into the skin so the powder adheres evenly. Then apply Pompeian BEAUTY Powder. It makes the skin beautifully fair and adds the charm of delicate fragrance. Now a touch of Pompeian BLOOM for youthful color. Do you know that a bit of color in the cheeks makes the eyes sparkle with a new beauty? Lastly, dust over again with the powder, in order to subdue the bloom. Presto! The face is beautified and youth-i-fied in an instant! (Above 3 preparations may be used separately or together. At all druggists, 60c each.)

TRY NEW POWDER SHADES. The correct powder shade is more important than the color of dress you wear. Our new NATURELLE shade is a more delicate tone than our Flesh shade, and blends exquisitely with a medium complexion. Our new RACHEL shade is a rich cream tone for brunettes. See offer on coupon.

BEAUTY Powder (60c)	stays on unusually long
BLOOM (60c)	a rouge that won't break; light, dark, medium
DAY Cream (60c)	vanishing; holds the powder
MASSAGE Cream (60c)	clears up the complexion
NIGHT Cream (50c)	the cold cream for beauty
FRAGRANCE (30c)	a talcum with a real perfume odor

"Don't Envy Beauty—Use Pompeian"

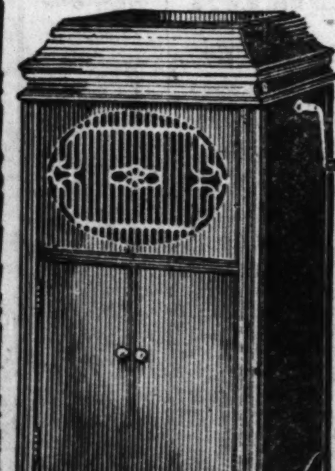
Brunswick



Betterments That Revolutionized Phonograph Music

Your ownership of a Brunswick indicates your appreciation of fine music as well as fine furniture.

You know that you have all that any phonograph can give you—and more.

The Brunswick Ultona, a composite sound-box which enables you to play any make of record without changing the sound-box—something no other phonograph can accomplish.

The Brunswick Oval Tone Amplifier, a tone chamber made entirely of seasoned wood, like a violin box, without a bit of metal, giving the soft sweet tone for which the Brunswick is famous.

Yet the Brunswick costs no more than many ordinary phonographs, and with our terms any one can afford one.

Eighteen Beautiful Models to Choose From, Including Table Tops, Cabinets, Consoles, Period Designs

Prices $65 to $775. Sold on Extended Payment Plan, and as small a sum as $5 will put a Brunswick in your home—monthly terms can be arranged.

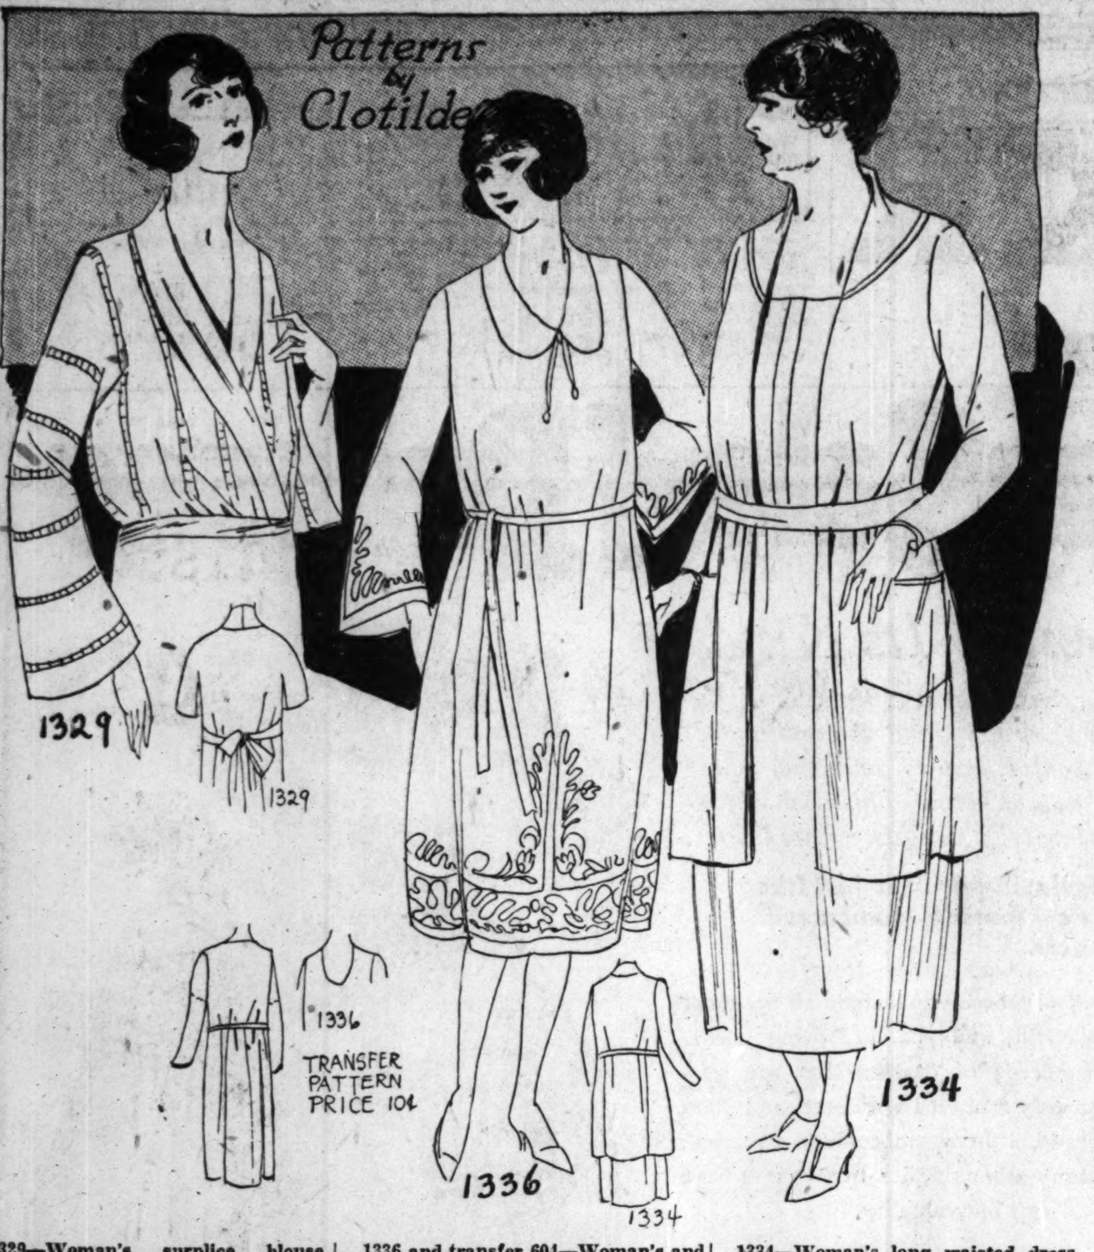
SPRING STYLES, CORRECTLY PORTRAYED IN THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL AND M'CALL'S PATTERNS—SECOND FLOOR.



1329—Woman's surplice blouse. Sizes 36 to 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅛ yards of 36 inch or 2 yards of 40 inch material.

1336 and transfer 604—Woman's and misses' one piece dress. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 required 3¾ yards of 36 inch material.

1334—Woman's long waisted dress. Sizes 36 to 50 inches bust measure. Size 40 or 42 requires 5¼ yards of 36 inch or 3⅝ yards of 54 inch material.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

EMBROIDERY in the gayest sort of colors seems to be the favorite sort of trimming for blouses and dresses just now. And the blouse pattern, No. 1329, will lend itself admirably to any of the beautiful designs seen in the Bulgarian, Italian, or Russian embroideries. If long loose sleeves are decided upon, why not cover the lower half of these with some design; of course, in that case choosing a material for the blouse that is plain in color. The narrow roll collar may also be embroidered.

A crêpe in tan or dark blue will look well with the gay colors that one sees in those embroideries. The body and sleeve of this pattern are cut in one piece—that is, if one chooses the short sleeve. If the long flaring one is desired, there is a lower sleeve section to be added. Where the piecing of the sleeve comes, there may be one or two rows of the darning or outline stitch done in black, for instance, or any preferred color.

French seams may be used for the underarm and sleeve seams. Don't forget the reinforcing at the under arm curves. The blouse is finished at the waist line with a narrow belt which extends into narrow sash ends that tie in the middle of the back.

There never was a more popular and becoming general design for a dress than is shown in the pattern No. 1336, transfer 604. Cut in one piece from neck to hem, and confined at the waist by a string sash, nothing could be more simple, yet it is smart looking and generally becoming.

The opening is on the left shoulder, and the seam on that side is stitched together only from the armhole end to a single perforation, plainly indicated. This gives a substantial place for the sleeve, and leaves enough of an opening to put on and off easily. In finishing the dress on this shoulder, mark the seam lines on the front and back clearly, and press the stitched length open, binding the edges. Turn the seam on the back shoulder on the seam line, slipping a straight length of cambric inside so as to prevent the seam's stretching, and binding the edge, hem to the lining if there is any, and if not, blind hemming it to the dress.

The front shoulder edge is left out straight as an extension, and the edge should be bound with a straight strip of lining, laying the lining on the right side of the dress and stitching in a narrow seam. Then turn it to the wrong side, letting it show on the right as a binding, turn in the raw edge, and stitch exactly on the shoulder seam marking. This stitched line gives the line for making the buttonhole loops on. On the faced edge small hooks should be sewed—letting the end of each hook set back one-eighth inch from the edge. A shoulder seam opening finished in this way will be practically invisible.

With this pattern there is an embroidery transfer design that will solve the trimming.

Cotton crêpe embroidered in mercerized floss will make up well, or, if one prefers, figured foulard would make an ideal material for summer days, using the foulard for the waist and upper part of the skirt and a heavy satin for the balance of the dress.

Pattern No. 1334 is another becoming design, and seems unusually well adapted to large figures, the long lines of the overdress giving a slender effect.

There is an underwaist, to which the vest is attached, and the skirt is the usual straight gathered kind and attached to the underwaist.

The overdress is cut in two pieces—front and back—and the pockets may be used or not, as one prefers. The full length sleeve is in one piece, and is made with a dart up the outside from wrist to elbow, so as to make it close fitting. Pockets, short collar, and belt complete the costume. Braiding or embroidery may be used to good advantage.

That First Love Affair

"Puppy love, calf love"—

That is what the older folk unfeelingly call the first golden love affair of the boy and the girl. But to youth it is a serious matter. Sometimes it shapes lives. Sometimes it deepens into tragedy. But most of the time it is just a roaring comedy of the teens—a comedy that will bear telling now that its principal actors are older, with perhaps a bit of frost in the hair.

What was your "puppy love" affair? Can you tell it now without a wrench of the heart—with a laugh, say? If so—

The Tribune will pay $5 for each story published on "My 'Puppy Love' Story." Write on one side of the paper and make your story brief. Address Puppy Love Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

ALONG CAME BILLY.

The whole schoolroom was industriously working over the assigned arithmetic problems when a young woman and a small girl entered the room. All eyes were immediately turned to the pretty golden haired, blue eyed newcomer, who was then being enrolled as one of our number. All the opposite sex seemed to lose interest in the other girls and fell victims to her charms. I also became her willing slave, and she in return showed a great liking for me.

But there was Billy, a rival of all my work and play, who also appeared to be attracted to her. After that I did not have many hours of peace, because whatever I did he tried to outdo me. How proudly, after defeating him in a fist fight, I walked home with Betty by my side!

But, alas! it did not end so happily for me after another of these successful battles. All had gone well until we were several blocks from school. Then around the corner came Billy, with his new pony and carriage. He hailed Betty, who lost all interest for me in a moment and climbed into his waiting carriage.

With heads held high in the air they passed me, and I walked home alone. It was many a month before I could again look at a golden haired, blue eyed lassie without despising her.

Could You Use $50.00?

Several years ago, when we first put Little Boy Blue on the market, we made an interesting discovery. Our purpose had been to manufacture a good condensed bluing—the very best obtainable, in fact—and when we perfected Little Boy Blue we knew we had achieved this object.

And although we knew that as a laundry bluing Little Boy Blue could not be excelled, it never occurred to us that it had any other merit. Therefore, we were amazed at the number of letters which came to us from women all over the country, congratulating us on our product and enumerating countless ways in which they used it.

So now we want to pay you for discovering new uses for

Little Bo-Peep

"FLEECY WHITE" QUALITY AMMONIA

"Little Boy Blue's Twin Sister"

To this end we are offering cash prizes as follows:

FOR THE LETTER ENUMERATING THE MOST AND BEST NEW USES

$50.00

Second Largest Number	$25.00
Next Five Best Letters	$10.00 each
Next Fifteen Best Letters	$5.00 each
Next Fifty Best Letters	$1.00 each

In Case of a Tie All Tieing Contestants Will Receive Duplicate Prizes

The only thing by which your letter will be judged is the number of best new uses you send us. Penmanship, grammar, literary construction, do not count.

But remember, Little Bo-Peep has more uses than ordinary ammonia because it is a great deal stronger and because of its special process of manufacture, which renders it harmless to hands or fabric, so no doubt it will help you to be familiar with this better ammonia. You will find it economical because one bottle is equal to three or four bottles of cheap ammonia. And unlike powdered cleansers and substitutes, it leaves no traces in corners or on surfaces. But you don't have to buy a bottle unless you want to. You don't have to do a thing, in fact, but write us a letter giving us as many new uses as you can for little Bo-Peep.

We Recommend Little Bo-Peep

For washing blankets and woolens.
For cleaning and purifying refrigerators.
For brightening windows and glassware.
For whitening ivory toilet articles, piano keys, etc.
For pouring in drain pipe and toilets to disinfect and kill odors.
For cleaning rugs and carpets.
For cleaning combs and brushes.
For loosening and removing stains.
For destroying odors.
For removing spots from linoleum.
For cleaning and polishing metal.

Remove Dirt Without Removing the Family!

SPRING cleaning time is here! For days, mother in her "dust-cap" and gingham has marshalled and hurried her costly army of carpet-beaters, dusters and helpers. The family's in a turmoil. Mother's "all in"—the kiddies and dad are "all out."

Perhaps in a week or so the family will be reunited. The dust will have settled once again; the rugs and carpets will be dirty again and mother's drudgery and life-shortening exertion will have been in vain.

These things should not be!

There is an easy, economical way to clean house and keep it clean! That is to equip your home with the electric vacuum cleaner.

Its powerful suction whisks away deeply embedded destructive grit from carpets and rugs in such a way as to prolong their years of usefulness and beauty. Its handy attachment tools remove hidden dirt from furnishings, coverings and upholstered things, mouldings, plate-rails, closets, book-cases, radiators, even the furnace and piping, without raising or scattering the dust, or disturbing the family.

Any dealer or your lighting company, will show you how to solve "spring cleaning" worries. 'Phone or call on one tomorrow.

All Fools' Day would be no joke if there were no response when you pressed the electric light and power switch button. On that day, as on all other days, Sundays and holidays included, your public service company must give steady and reliable service to you and to other thousands of customers. Whether one, or all simultaneously demand that service it must be "there" when the button is pushed. It is this infallible service that operates your electric vacuum cleaner.

Only one way to clean radiators—hang a damp cloth back of the radiator and with the blower attachment of the electric vacuum cleaner blow out all the hidden, germ-laden dirt.

By Mae Tinee.

Do you want more proof that the all star cast's the thing? Here it is. Name, "Cardigan."

It is sure a downright relief to see a picture where everybody's on the job and nobody's walking around hogging the limelight and worrying because somebody else was accorded a big scene. In this photoplay, adapted from the historical novel by Robert W. Chambers, there's a lot of good work and everybody's doing it. And a casual glance at the cast reveals no name that carries any special weight.

BETTY CARPENTER.

Betty Carpenter, for instance. You wouldn't go around the corner to see Betty Carpenter, would you? Because you never heard of Betty Carpenter. Suppose, though, you DO go around the corner just out of curiosity. You'll be surprised! Here's a pretty girl who apparently doesn't know there's a camera "registering" her every expression. A pretty girl who dares to look ugly. A pretty girl who conveys joy and heartbreak without exhibiting facial or any other sort of acrobatics.

Then, William Collier Jr. Ah—you knew William's dad! But you hadn't heard much about William. Behold, then, a youthful edition of Rodolf Valentino. A lithe, brilliant, enthusiastic young chap, who demonstrates with no apparent effort to demonstrate, that he has romance, passion, shrewdness, bravery, and wiry good health wrapped up in the slim person that is himself. He's not as good looking as the adored Rodolf, but he has a world of charm and a "way wid him" that's going to set the flapper's heart to flapping or I miss my guess.

And so you can go down the line. Jere Austin has played leads opposite feminine stars and played them well. But he's not particularly well known, and in "Cardigan," while he has an important part, is NOT the hero. Which fact seems to trouble him not at all. He throws himself heart and soul into the rôle that is his.

The story is a romance threaded through the exciting days that presaged the revolutionary war. It has Indians in costume, council fires, and crooks, gallant bewigged defenders of the nation, and suave bewigged servants of the throne. It has deep forests and stately homesteads; exquisite gardens and fields that become scenes of carnage. It has humor, and pathos, and punch. Yet it apparently makes no deliberate "yank at your emotions," as Eye Witness declares the Griffith film, "Orphans of the Storm," does.

No, "Cardigan" is an interesting story, simply and effectively picturized against a background that always pleases. It is not one of the world's greatest pictures, perhaps, but it is certainly one of the most delightful film offerings of the season.

Without doubt the salaries paid the players were small, as we have grown to think of movie salarites. But they were honest salaries to honest folks who put out an honest picture.

Back to normalcy! Attaboy!

CLOSEUPS

Betty Compson plans a short vacation before starting on a new picture from the story by the late John Fleming Wilson. The title will be "The Bonded Woman."

Bessie Barriscale has been happily married—whisper—nineteen years.

Charlie Ray expects to spend four months making "A Tailor Made Man."

BEST SELLERS OF THE AGES

By Eye Witness.

Eighteenth Paper—"The Three Musketeers," or Action! Action! Action!

> I have never hooted at the great spectacle of the drama of Life.
> ALEXANDRE DUMAS père.

HERE is at once the least quotable and most readable of books. It is all action. We do not remember the words, but the deeds. We are swept along, not by the author, but by his people. They act themselves into our hearts or our hatreds. By action they define and portray themselves.

Thousands upon thousands of the sentences make each a paragraph. Nearly every one of the more than 700 large octavo pages is shot through and through with what the printers call "light." "Better let a little light into that column," they say, and thereby do they wonderfully help dullness to get forward and by.

Papa Dumas has no time to waste nor will he waste yours. His business is to get on. Like Touchstone, he must be swift and sententious. No books are less descriptive and discursive than his, yet none other so animate and enliven and make specific and vocal long stretches of history as his do. When we take up "The Three Musketeers" we have three busy years ahead of us—I mean the three years (1625-28) through which we bustle and ride and fight in the matter of a few days. Thackeray made it a matter of hours, fighting with his womenfolk the while for possession of the volumes, and then, in one of the "Roundabout Papers" he laid his card of thanks on Papa Dumas' table—thus:

> O Dumas! O thou brave, kind, gallant old Alexandre! I hereby offer thee homage, and give thee thanks for many pleasant hours. I have read thee (being sick in bed) for thirteen hours of a happy day, and had the ladies of the house fighting for the volumes. . . . Ah, Athos, Porthos, and Aramis, you are a magnificent trio.

How fast and how feverishly we live from the instant the curtain rises on that gallus fight before the inn at Meung—incessant sword play, whispers of intrigue, battles, sieges, amours, flight and pursuit, English Puritans snuffling their hymns, French theologues maundering in Latin ('tis one of the great comedy scenes of the book and not unworthy of Molière), interviews with royalty, wild passings to and fro across the channel and not an instant to lose by land or sea between Paris and London or the queen's secret will be the cardinal's weapon, executions, too, and clatter of hoofs always. In short, a tale

> . . . . . . of most disastrous chances,
> Of moving accidents by flood and field,
> Of hairbreadth 'scapes i' the imminent deadly breach,
> Of being taken by the insolent foe.

I count three cracking fights in the first six chapters of "The Three Musketeers" (68 pages) and they not brawls merely, but epic stuff, with the destiny of heroes flashing in them.

Amid so much turmoil, so much peril, such diabolical interplay and crossplay of wits as make these pages gallop has Alexandre the Great any time to make himself quotable like a book? Nay, he must be making himself readable like life. If he flings you some apothegm or some admonition, if, as his turbulent pageantry of life rushes by, he says of some engaging aspect of human character, "Note that!" he says it in the manner of a sagacious fellow passenger on the swaying top of a forward-going coach. He is great at such things, uttering them with a kind of stately roguishness, as when d'Artagnan, having been robbed of his money and his precious letter at Meung, cries out that the money is nothing—"that letter is everything. I would rather lose a thousand pistoles than to have lost it."

Dumas' nudge in your side at this moment is worth much money—

> He would not have risked more if he had said twenty thousand, but a certain juvenile modesty restrained him.

Or that lovely bit—a mild and gentlemanlike leer, if one may say so—with which he brings to a close his description of the turmoil in the courtyard of the hotel of the commander of the king's musketeers—

> To make way through these turbulent and conflicting waves, one had to be an officer, a great noble, or a pretty woman.

And here, amid the racket and the bravura of antechambers and rooms of audience a fleeting touch of reverie, soft and disarming—

> M. de Tréville . . . smiled on receiving the compliment, the Béarnese accent of which recalled to him at the same time his youth and his country, a double remembrance which makes a man smile at all ages.

Sometimes he warns you, but always expeditiously, and so you say: "This is for my own good—he is not prating—I am glad he told me." As here—

> Louis XIII., like all weak minds, was miserably wanting in generosity of feeling.

And here, too, forewarned is forearmed—

> A rogue does not laugh in the same way an honest man does; a hypocrite does not shed the same sort of tears as fall from the eyes of a man of good faith.

And he can characterize with a sword thrust. Who needs a page about brave, mystical, dreamy Aramis after this line and a half about him in the account of the duel with the Englishmen, with which volume two opens:

> Aramis, who had the third canto of his poem to finish, made all the despatch of a man very much pressed for time.

Here is d'Artagnan himself in three lines:

> Imagine to yourself Don Quixote at 18; Don Quixote without his corselet, his coat of mail, and his cuistres [thigh armor]; Don Quixote clothed in a woolen doublet, the blue color of which had faded into a nameless shade between lees of wine and a heavenly azure.

And once Dumas said in three words what the world has decided is the essence of the matter—in most matters. It was "Cherchons la femme." That is not in "The Three Musketeers," but in another volume of his, "The Mohicans of Paris."

Action! Action! Action! That is the secret of this master whose books into which he put his best self—he did not always do that—are as alive and as engaging after eighty years as they were in the days when Paris stormed the stalls for the latest one. Action was not alone his literary method; it was the man. "I have never hooted," he said, "at the great spectacle of the drama of Life." It is one of the grandest, heartiest things ever said about a spectacle so brief for each of us that it ought by each of us to be trebly enjoyed—and revered. 'Tis a kind of religion—and good enough to carry us safely through—this joy in and reverence for existence. The tired world is charmed and refreshed by those who can impart that pious gusto, and it will not let Dumas die because he helps it to live. Andrew Lang pronounced his popularity "the widest in the world of letters." Statistics bear out the statement. In our country alone there came out within recent weeks two fresh issues of "The Three Musketeers"—one a stately 700-page volume from the old Appleton press, with the dashing Maurice Leloir's 250 pictures, and that you may buy for $3; the other a bulky wad of 400 pages—fair enough print—in paper covers, which comes from the Four Seas press and may be had for a quarter. Then there is the good edition in limp leather which is a staple at all the book stores and costs $2. Writing twenty-three years after his father's death (he died in 1870) Alexandre Dumas fils said that in those twenty-three years 2,840,000 volumes of the older Dumas' works had been published and sold in France, figures that did not include 80,000,000 of illustrated parts. More eloquent than the son's figures was what a great French surgeon had just told him—this was in 1893. "All our hospital patients," he said, "recover or die with one of your father's books under their pillow. When we wish to make them forget the terror of an approaching operation, the tediousness of convalescence, or the dread of death, we prescribe one of your father's novels, and they are able to forget."

That touched and pleased the son deeply and he wrote these words in apostrophe to his father—you will find them in the new Appleton issue:

> By dint of arousing their interest and enthusiasm, of calling up tears or smiles in those big children styled men, they have come to look upon you as one of their own family, and they call you "Father Dumas." I fancy I see you by the side of the kindly La Fontaine. You are the smiling grandfather who relates in the long evenings beautiful legends of the past.

But I think there is something more important in the lure of Dumas than the high-souled entertainment he gives us—more important for our culture as citizens I mean. In the acquirement of that culture, history is the supreme factor to be sure, and "The Three Musketeers" and its sequels "Twenty Years After" and "Vicomte de Bragelonne" are, like Shakespear's "Henry the Fifth" or his "Richard the Third," and like Thackeray's "Henry Esmond" and Kingley's "Hereward the Wake," among the prime leaders-in books of the world. With Dumas' outstanding historical novels a boy may wonderfully get the lay of the land, the background, the color, the spirit, the savor of long periods of French history, as of the time of Henry II. in "The Two Dianas" and "The Duke of Savoy's Page," and the time of Charles IX. in "Queen Margot," and the time of Henry III. in "La Dame de Monsoreau" and "The Forty-Five," and the time of Richelieu and Mazarin in the "Musketeers" series, and the time of the Revolution, and before it, in "The Queen's Necklace" and "The Taking of the Bastille" and "The Countess de Charny," and so on and so on—an enchanting land all the way. All these books—under one title or another, for the titles of the Dumas translations do weirdly vary—are readily to be had in English, and I think that your boy or your girl having gone through them, you would not find it difficult to lure them into Lady Jackson's delightful fourteen volumes of French annals grouped under such titles as "Old Paris," "The Old Régime," "The Court of France in the Sixteenth Century," "The Last of the Valois," "The First of the Bourbons," and "The French Court and Society." Going so far, that young reader would need no more luring or leading. The first thing you know he would be demanding such books as the goodly Perkins' "France Under Richelieu and Mazarin" and the plays of Molière, and Carlyle and Thiers and young McCarthy on the French Revolution, and then, be assured, that young person would be safe for the rest of his days—safe as reader and safe as citizen.

Trying to Don the Spectacles Children Level at Their Elders

By James Whittaker.

NEW YORK, April 8.—[Special.]—None but a poet could have written the gay and touching comedy which is embracing the cause of the children in the Neighborhood playhouse. The amazing changes which occur in the aspect of the adult world when it is looked into from the level of a child's eyes are tricky material. Longfellow bungled it; Booth Tarkington knows but a bit of it; Mark Twain made excursion into it: he was a poet, and came out with two masterpieces. This author, a Russian woman, has done it best. "The Green Ring" is not created out of memories of childhood but a re-creation of childhood itself. Zinaida Hippius was a child during the time she wrote it.

MISS PAMELA GAYTHORNE.
[White Photo.]

Children forgive and forget the last generation, in time, but first they see it well. The play relates what they see: in the world about them, a muddle into which they will presently mature; in parents, two large babies drooling frivolity in one instant, full of the green apples of sin the next, and bawling unheroically whenever their hearts or tummies ache, eternally crosses for the narrow shoulders of their offspring to bear.

The parents of the play were living in separate sin, father Vozzhin with an auburn widow in a duplex flat, mother Vozzhin with a soulmate in a nearby hotel. Between them shuttled little Sonia, acquiring, as she became entangled in the duplexities of her forebears, an early education in the plaintive inconsistencies of the adult code. Mother wept the tears of her unsuccessful adultery into Sonia's misses' size blouse. Father filled her small ears with the transparent lies incident to a graybeard's stale and perilous flirtations. Sonia decided that the messed lives of her elders were not worth the upkeep. As the play ended, she planned to leave them flat. It is an inspiring idea that it is possible for the child sometimes to turn the erring parents out into the night.

Philosophic Circle of Petrograd Kids.

The play has amusing glimpses into Russian customs. In one act there is a meeting of the "Green Ring," a stern philosophic circle of pigtailed Petrograd school children gathered periodically for discussion of biology, the family as a civic unit, the suicide impulse, and the sex urge. In another the mechanism of one of the famous Russian "mental marriages" is exposed when immature Sonia, for purposes of legal freedom rather than legal bondage, gives her child hand to an elderly philosopher of the plot These incidents are fantastic as they are literally translated and produced in the Neighborhood play house. But I did not find that they diminished the plausibility of the play.

MISS MARGARET WYCHERLY.

Joanna Roos, an inspired youngster, is the heroine of the play and the event. She plays a part not far from her own age with the skill of twice her years, and yet retains the whole charm of young ingenuousness. Unless the chance of casting can perform miracles, the miracle of her playing of Sonia is performed by herself, and you can watch Joanna Roos for the development of genius.

At the first performance of the play, I am told, Pamela Gaythorne, who plays the mother, gave an impression that she was overacting her part. At the second she overacted it a bit more, and is perfect. The life of the type of woman she portrays is overacting. Eugene Powers, who plays the father, overacts not quite enough, and he is not the elocutionary adult the author wrote. His thesis was that the grownups are a lot of bad actors.

Spooky Doings in Voodoo Play.

A bountiful audience of ladies—of ladies bountiful—was on hand Tuesday afternoon to encourage the first performance anywhere of Miss Mary Hoyt Wiborg's play about the dreadful carryings-on of the southern Negro proletariat.

MISS MARY HOYT WIBORG.
[White Photo.]

Mamie, the usherette of the Sam H. Harris theater, was a bit scared of her audience, and seated it primly. The best white manners in the house, the worst black manners on the stage. Mamie took her cue and seated you with a Boston accent.

But Mamie, I suspect, was not frightened by the play, however industriously the hard working Negro actors whom Augustin Duncan assembled to play this exposé of voodooism labored to curdle their own blood. Mamie has seen 'em come and seen 'em go, and no black-faced actor, shouting "Eehyah!" like Hughie Jennings and gurgling over a stuffed serpent, can stand her hair higher than its natural bob.

In the course of the afternoon Miss Margaret Wycherly, on the stage, chanted lugubriously of witchcraft, murder, and black cats, and Mr. C. Kamba Simango of Liberia enacted—in all probability veraciously, certainly voraciously—the ritual of a blood dance in darkest Africa. Mr. Alex Rogers did a spooky incantation over the left hind foot of a cemetery rabbit, husky Fannie Belle De Knight intoned a wailing chanty of the Congo, and dusky Ruth Taylor went into a well simulated conniption fit to a tune of voodoo blues.

Miss Wiborg's first play is a conscientious but confused collection of data from many erudite sources on the barbarisms which sometimes stick to the southern darky out of his jungle past. Mamie yawned. But perhaps the ladies bountiful in the audience got a pleasantly horrible thrill.

Little Theaters Have Prosperous Year.

Both productions of the week were made by Little theater units, a few of which are prosperous. The Provincetown players, the Neighborhood playhouse, and the Theater guild have become solvent in this year which has driven most of the bigger theaters precariously near to insolvency. The Theater guild stuck like a leech to its first principle of choosing plays for every reason on earth but their potential revenues, and finally came to its reward. Its production of "Mr. Pim Passes By" made it so prosperous that it could pay actors with checks instead of in silver from the box office till. Then it staked Mr. Pim's winnings on the handsome staging of "Liliom." The guild is a good gambler. With the money of its first great success it had the choice between caution and daring. It played double or quits, and won. The epic of its climb to its present financial stability has been as entertaining as its best plays.

The Provincetown players are not so far from their start in self-conscious culture and painful poverty. Save pennies as they could, they have never been able to get quite enough of them together to pull them out of the makeshift hole in a Greenwich Village wall which charity and enthusiasm call their theater. At times they even have financial troubles with the furnace. But just at present they are eating well and are optimistic. They put Eugene O'Neill's "The Hairy Ape" on to their diminutive stage, and their diminutive playhouse cannot hold the people who turn their backs of an evening on madding Broadway to trek unfamiliar miles down to the roots of 5th avenue. Winthrop Ames will take "The Hairy Ape" to one of his uptown theaters presently and give the Provincetown players a percentage of profits which will be greater than the sums they can take in at their tiny box office, at least while a deputized fireman is looking.

The Neighborhood playhouse people are less dependent on their own efforts. A fund keeps the roof over the heads of their audiences, for the same roof covers an east side charity which is kept comfortable by benevolent citizens of the richer New York wards. Once in a while, however, the actors unnecessarily make some money. In the last winter they had the first demonstrations of Thomas Wilfred's curious Clavilux, or color organ, which kept their auditorium filled for two weeks. With the proceeds of this and other lucky ventures they strike out and produce the current "The Green Ring." It seems that there is some unlocated Rubicon for the Little theaters to cross. When they have passed it, luck turns, and criticism with it. Mr. Belasco has been in the Theater guild's Garrick, the Provincetown playhouse, and the Neighborhood playhouse. There seems to be nothing beyond to which they can aspire.

Guitrys Coming in French Comedies.

When the Guitrys, father, son, and Mrs., who is known on the Paris stage as Yvonne Printemps, come to America next year to play in a number of the younger man's comedies, you will see what the French mean by their impropriety on the stage. They mean no impropriety at all. Mr. Belasco had to expurge the script of "The Grand Duke" before he dared it here. The Guitrys, for those who will understand their French, will go through with these missing lines perfectly unconscious that they are shocking. And, if Dr. John Roach Straton brushes up his French and flares into language over the discovery that in one part of "The Grand Duke" the elder Guitry and his ex-mistress are having a lot of fun trying vainly to remember just where, when, and how her son happened, the Guitrys are going to be more shocked than will be Dr. Straton.

For they are not devils in their own home town, but leaders of a settlement on the boulevards for clean comedy. Sascha Guitry never soils his pen with anything worse than sprightly jest on illegitimacy and adultery. For that he has been approved, I believe, by mother clubs and the Paris clergy.

Greeting a New Star and a Well-Beloved Veteran

By Sheppard Butler

TWO uncommonly interesting figures dominate the new plays of the week. Neither is, or claims to be, a person of supreme importance, but each has a record of achievement not precisely matched elsewhere in the American theater, and both, in their widely divergent ways, represent the finest traditions of native entertainment. One, Miss Pauline Lord, comes in the first flush of a sensational success which made her—overnight, as the saying is—a star. The other, William Gillette, approaches the contemplative evening of his career, ripe in years and experience, and beloved by the playgoing public in a degree that is all but unique. Not exactly May and December, perhaps, but something like it.

WILLIAM GILLETTE
in "The Dream Maker," at Powers'.
[White Photo.]

Miss Lord's triumph is a matter of hearsay, but the evidence seems sufficiently conclusive. When Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie" was produced in New York she was merely one of the cast. Her vivid impersonation of a girl gone wrong and defiant about it made a profound impression, however, and the hosannas were loud and insistent. Here, they said, was great acting. No player this season has been so extravagantly acclaimed and none has found the way so quickly, by popular decree, into the electric lights of stardom.

Without going into ungallant exactitude as to her age, it may be intimated that she began acting at 17, on the Pacific coast, and that the date was 1904 or thereabouts. Her having "arrived," therefore, it is not a mere matter of beguiling youth, but indicates something in the way of hard work and sound ability. Chicago has seen her at rather infrequent intervals; you will remember her best, probably, for her appearances with Ben Ami in "Samson and Delilah," at the Playhouse last season.

Mr. Gillette is 66 now, and has been identified with the stage, as actor and playwright, since the early '70s. "The Professor," his first venture as an author, saw the light in 1881. Thereafter came a notable succession—"The Private Secretary," "Held by the Enemy," "Secret Service," "Sherlock Holmes," and the rest. No preciosity about these dramas; setting out frankly to entertain, their sponsor achieved his purpose with unerring skill.

Mellow, quizzical, and keen, his is an unforgetable personality. His "Sherlock Holmes" is a classic of the theater, with the bizarre trait of seeming more authentic than Conan Doyle's own description of the character. He was resting in Connecticut last summer, with no particular eagerness for acting, when a newspaper man named Howard E. Morton read of his whereabouts in a New York paper and mailed him the manuscript of a story which, Morton hinted, might be made into a play. It had crooks in it, and a character not unlike the famous Holmes. Gillette liked it, and "The Dream Maker" was the result.

Theater Folk Are Ready Now to Do a Little Censoring.

This chimerical business of self starting stage censorship may not, after all, be wholly a figment of conversation and conference. Much talk and deliberation by busy persons in New York has been sifted down to a grain or two of accomplishment, and they are now about ready to make some experiments with the proposed plan for volunteer juries in whose hands shall rest the fate of plays which Mr. and Mrs. Somebody may not like.

MISS PAULINE LORD
in "Anna Christie," at the Cort.
[Muray Photo.]

The Producing Managers' association, finding discretion the better part of valor, has talked its membership into line and given its official, though reluctant, assurance that it will go along with the actors, playwrights, and others who thought up the scheme. Individual managers have been long willing, but as a body the association has been weak in its enthusiasm. Only by insistent argument have the showmen been convinced that the New York legislature will get them if they don't watch out and that the mask of virtue will be not only becoming but prudent.

Nobody seems to see anything funny in the stage's eagerness to shrive itself because some one heard that a censorship bill might be introduced at Albany. Nor has it occurred to any one, apparently, that some assemblymen may be so rash as to be unimpressed by the volunteer juries and go ahead anyway with his nefarious project for a censorship established by law. Perhaps it is, indeed, unthinkable. If the stage will attend to its own censoring why should any outsider bother his head about the matter? The theaters needn't prove that they are moral. They'll just admit it. It's all so simple.

Meanwhile New Yorkers are contemplating the prospect of hying themselves to Connecticut or New Jersey or Michigan or Illinois to see the plays which shall be banned in New York. New destinations, they suspect, may offer themselves for such little trips as are now made, for other reasons, to Havana and Bimini. Fresh thrills will be available in the adventurous quest of forbidden joys.

One stalwart figure looms through the mists to give them heart of grace. Al Woods, alone, has withheld approval of the jury plan. Al Woods will have none of it. He stands for freedom, and bears aloft a banner with a strange device—a maiden rampant, flanked by the inscriptions, "Ladies' Night" and "The Demi-Virgin." He has organized three road companies, no less, to keep the latter diversions traveling long after the lid shall have descended in his own home town. If they are going to censor the stage he'll give them something to censor it for.

A Bit of Humor Far from Its Native Heath.

With characteristic energy, Miss Grace George has quickly rehearsed and put in performance the brief playlet called "Me and My Diary," which she acquired recently from an English source. It was revealed without announcement at the Princess on Wednesday evening and will continue to serve as a curtain raiser for "The Exquisite Hour" during Miss George's stay in Chicago.

[Moffett Photo.]

The piece is of no consequence, but it is mildly amusing and takes on a bit of extraneous interest as an experiment in the transplanting of topical humor. Concerning it, this much information is vouchsafed in a program note:

> In London . . . it is regarded as allusive to the literary activities of an Englishwoman, recently a lecturing visitor to the United States, of international repute as a wit, a talker-out-of-school, and an opportunist. She spoke some weeks ago in Chicago. The diary of the title is, of course, the autobiography whose publication, about two years ago, stirred up much angry comment and criticism because, first, it was said to have violated many domestic, social, and political confidences, and, second, because of the author's blithe expression of belief that few of the men who touched her life had failed to react sentimentally to her.

I do not know how many of Miss George's customers penetrate the circumlocution which identifies Mrs. "Margot" Asquith, nor how much it may mean to those who accomplish the feat. In London, where Mrs. Asquith is an institution, the playlet has been running for weeks and its satire is keenly relished. In Chicago there are smiles for as much of it as provides a diverting glimpse of any woman who has said too much and is reaping the consequences, but the specific jibes at Mrs. Asquith do not seem to register. Perhaps a similar lampoon about Mayor Thompson would go no better in London.

The author's idea is to introduce a succession of characters, each toting a copy of the "diary," and each complaining to the diarist about something it contains. One threatens a libel suit, another social ostracism. A third is outraged because she wasn't mentioned at all. Finally comes a man (Mr. Norman Trevor), expostulating like the others, to be met with an ensnaring smile. Him the diarist really loves—and he announces bluntly that, since she saw him last, he has been married. Abashed and furious, she lists his wife for comment in her next edition—a sufficiently intelligible revenge—and then changes her mind.

"I know!" she exclaims. "I'll put her in a footnote!"

London roars over this, but Chicago doesn't get it. What we need to be told is that Mrs. Asquith's most virulent indiscretions occur not in the body of her autobiography but in its copious footnotes.

News and Views of the Stage and Its People.

Vicissitudes of the waning season have made several changes in Chicago's theater prospects for the near future. The dramatization of Sinclair Lewis's "Main Street," which had been expected at the Studebaker, has ended its career in Boston, and therefore will not come. Nor is Franz Molnar's "Liliom" likely to reach these parts; it, too, will close soon, and Miss Eva Le Gallienne, one of its chief players, will become a star in something new about Joan of Arc. "Sally," listed for arrival in May, will go to Boston instead, and Ed Wynn, prospering in New York, will remain there, renouncing his opportunity to follow Mitzi at the Illinois. Nothing is in view for the Studebaker or Central, or for the Great Northern when "Orphans of the Storm" shall have departed at the end of this week.

The comedy called "Just Married," in which Miss Vivian Martin and Lynne Overman have been disporting themselves, is a Chicago possibility, and may follow "Lola" at the La Salle. At the Illinois Mitzi will stay a while, to be succeeded perhaps by William Hurlbut's "Lilies of the Field," a farcical opus in a vein similar to that of "The Gold Diggers."

Richard Carle will head the cast of "Molly Darling," the summer show which is due at the Palace Music hall May 9. Others in the company will be Jack Osterman, Miss Ann Milburn, Miss Polly Walker, Bennie Weston, and Billy Taylor. The entertainment will have its first showing in Cleveland week after next.

"Lightnin'" will have its 300th Chicago performance at the Blackstone next Saturday evening. Something like 300,000 people have seen the comedy since its arrival last September.

"Voltaire" has ended its career after a few performances in New York, leaving its college girl authors disconsolate and constraining Arnold Daly to look again for something to do. He and Miss Amelia Bingham are said to have been signed up by William A. Brady for a forthcoming revival of W. S. Gilbert's famous old play, "Engaged." This was one of the earlier great successes of the author of "Pinafore" and the rest. The play was first presented at the Theater Royal, London, on Oct. 3, 1877. It was first done in America at the famous old Park theater, New York City, on April 28, 1879, with a cast including Miss Agnes Booth, James Lewis, Miss Minnie Palmer, and Mrs. Gilbert.

William Hurlbut's new play will be known as "On the Stairs," and is said to be a thriller. Robert Edeson will have the leading rôle.

A third comedy by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, authors of "Dulcy" and "To the Ladies!" will be revealed soon. It is entitled "West of Pittsburgh," and may or may not be a play which they wrote before "To the Ladies!" but withheld for a time from production. This shelved piece was called "Little Old Millersville" when they wrote it. It is a burlesque of the small town comedy-drama of the Winchell Smith school, and is said by those who have read it to be very good.

Not content with acting in "Madeleine of the Movies" and making ready "Little Nellie Kelly," which opens in a few weeks in Atlantic City, George M. Cohan is preparing to try out two other plays, one of which he is writing himself.

Jimmy Hussey, and not Herbert Corthell, will be the featured comedian in "Under the Bamboo Tree" when that musical comedy, stopped by Bert Williams' death, is restored to activity. Hussey, you remember, was here not so long ago in one of the vaudeville revues at the Apollo.

Henry Miller has abandoned his "irreconcilable" attitude at last and joined the Producing Managers' association, as his erstwhile fellow insurgent, George M. Cohan, did some time ago. This leaves no important producer in the ranks of those who have vowed to have no dealings with the Actors' Equity association. Cohan and Miller held out for a long time, while their fellow managers were effecting their agreements with the Equity, but Cohan was won over by argument and Miller, it is said, needs Equity actors for his forthcoming plays. He is now rehearsing the dramatization of Harrison Rhodes' novel, "High Life," in which he will appear with Miss Blanche Bates, and will betake himself and his company to the Pacific coast soon for his tryout performances. Among those who will go along are Miss Ruth Chatterton, for whom a new play is to be tested, and Geoffrey Kerr, who acted the role of the prince in "Just Suppose."

Edward Locke's new "triangle," "My Lady's Lips," was produced in Atlantic City last week. It is described as a melodramatic tale in which Miss Martha Hedman pretends to give poison to William Powell and Miss Gilda Leary in return for her husband's infidelity.

McVicker's enters upon its last three weeks of continuous vaudeville tomorrow. On May 1 the wreckers will take possession to make way for the new theater which will be opened in the fall.

It will be Gerald du Maurier who will act Mark Sabre in the London production of "If Winter Comes." Cyril Maude will act the rôle in the United States.

"The White Slave," Bartley Campbell's famous old timer, is to be revived, condensed, and produced as a vaudeville act next season. Miss Marie Bates, the only surviving member of the original cast, played here recently with David Warfield in "The Return of Peter Grimm."

MISS INA CLAIRE.
[Raymor Photo.]

She signs her private correspondence "Mrs. James Whittaker," being the wife of The Tribune's representative in the New York theaters. Also, she is the airily whimsical heroine of "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife."

The New Plays

OPENING TONIGHT.

"Anna Christie" (Cort)—Miss Pauline Lord in her first venture as a star, playing the central figure in a grim drama of the underworld and the waterfronts by the prolific Eugene O'Neill. The cast includes George Marion, Frank Shannon, and Eugenie Blair.

OPENING TOMORROW NIGHT.

"The Dream Maker" (Powers')—William Gillette as a keen-witted old physician, pitting himself against a gang of crooks out to blackmail the lovely heroine. A thriller by Mr. Gillette, based on a story by Howard E. Morton. William Morris, Frank Morgan, Miriam Sears, and Myrtle Tannehill will help in the acting.

IMPENDING JOYS.

"It Pays to Smile" (Olympic, April 16)—Miss May Robson as the adventure-loving governess in the widely read tale by Nina Wilcox Putnam, made into a play by Ethel Watts Mumford.

"Molly Darling" (Palace, May 9)—Richard Carle and various others in a musical comedy by Otto Harbach, Tom Johnstone, and Phil Cook.

They Laugh at This in Vaudeville

RIALTO.

Pitzer and Daye:

"My wife left me without any reason."

"Well, in that case she left you as she found you."

"What is a monologue?"

"A monologue is a conversation between husband and wife."

"I thought that was a dialogue."

"No; a dialogue is where two persons are speaking."

"In the art gallery today I saw a picture of an onion."

"Was it natural?"

"So natural it brought tears to my eyes."

"What do you think of a man who takes his living out of the mouths of other people?"

"He must be a black leg."

"No; a dentist."

"Chorus girls have a hard time, don't they?"

"Yes, they do have to bare a great deal."

"How did you like the show last night?"

"The comedians seemed nervous. What they needed was life."

"I think twenty years would have been enough."

"I hear your wife's sick."

"Correct."

"Is she dangerous?"

"No, she's too weak to be dangerous."

McVICKER'S.

Melville and Stetson:

"I saw you outside the hotel last week."

"That's where I am staying."

"Where?"

"On the outside."

"Do English earls understand American slang?"

"Some do. My daughter is engaged to one of them and yesterday he called me to 'come across.'"

"Well?"

"Does he mean me or my wad?"

"You seem to know everything about the different shows."

"I didn't go to the theater every night for nothing."

"I suppose you had to pay like everybody else."

"What is the plural of man?"

"Men."

"What is the plural of child?"

"Twins."

"Is this a healthy town?"

"I should say so. When I came here I hadn't the strength to utter a word. I had scarcely a hair on my head; I couldn't walk across the room, and had to be lifted from my bed."

"You give me hope. How long have you been here?"

"I was born here."

PALACE.

Norman Taylor and Ida Howard:

"I have lost my dog, officer."

"You've lost your dog? What kind of a dog was it?"

"I don't know, but he came from Mexico."

"O, a hot dog."

"Well, what are you going to do about it? Will you find him for me?"

"I will put one of my assistants on the case."

"Who?"

"Mr. Skunk."

"Is he a good detective?"

"He has a wonderful scent."

"Don't you know Darwin said all our ancestors came from monkeys?"

"Mine didn't."

"Where did yours come from?"

"Mine came from Wales."

A Good Picture and Some Views of Folks and By 'Em

Evidently "The Barnstormer" was a great little object lesson to him.

Virginia Faire, Buster Keaton's leading lady, is to be starred in a series of one reel comedies.

Baby Marie Osborne, not as much a baby as when she was starred before, is featured in short comedies by Pathe.

ASK ME! ASK ME!

AN INTERESTED READER: No, the villain in "Way Down East" is not a tack manufacturer in "Get Rich Quick Wallingford." The man in Griffith's picture did not wear a mustache. Twekkum.

MRS. M. C. L.: Thank you for your pleasant letter. Won't you write again some time?

FRANCOIS: O, so French and everything! You certainly write a lovely hand! My regards to "La Belle France." You bet I wish you bon voyage. But, whisper—do you REALLY know how to talk French?

ANNETTE: Why, Annette, that's lovely! And some "side kick" you'd be, I'm saying!

KATHERINE M. G.: I'm awfully sorry I wasn't able to visit your neighborhood theater that day. Did the thing go off all right? I'd love to hear more about your work and how it turns out. Would you mind writing me on the subject once in a while?

JOE LE COUTEAU: So you think you'd be a good director of religious scenes? Well, judging from your letter, you would. Certainly handholding is not supposed to go with the proper kind of conversion. Yes, some "simps" are good and some who aren't—are too. As an expert on "the technique of emotion" of religion, I'll say somebody ought to hire you.

INTERESTED READER: What you want is not criticism but abject flattery. Sorry—but this column will never please you, I'm afraid.

CULLEN LANDIS ADMIRER: Address the gentleman care of Goldwyn, Hollywood, Cal.

GEORGE B.: If I knew of "a good substitute for food and sleep," believe ME, I'd be on its trail! The time one wastes and the money one spends on same f. and s.! But don't you dare give up! Why, pretty soon the lilacs will all be out and everything. Good luck to you!

G. H. W.: I'm afraid I don't agree with you. Nora was supposed to be frivolous, but she WASN'T supposed to be a lunatic, was she? It's always nice to get a letter from you. For a traveling man you are the best little remember-er I know. Thanks for your pleasant words and—write again some rainy Sunday.

JASON ROBARDS.
[White Photo.]

He hails from Hillsdale, Mich., and will say "I love you" to Miss Mildred Booth tonight for the 1,583d time. He is, and has been from the start, the youthful hero of "Lightnin'."

KICK KORNER

ITS OBJECT—OBJECTION.

Dear Miss Tinée: The motion picture industry is on the downgrade mainly because it has become an industry. Movies are ground out like garters or boneless codfish, in quantity lots, f. o. b. Los Angeles. O! for more entertainment like "Bunty Pulls the Strings," "Broken Blossoms," "Passion," or to hark back to the dim hobble skirt days, "The Girl of the Golden West," or "An Odyssey of the North."

BEACON STREET.

Dear Mae Tinée: I am sending a letter in reply to Gretchen's criticism. He asks why Tom Mix dresses that way to represent a cowboy. He doesn't have to dress up to be one, for he is one, or used to be before entering pictures. I have always thought Mix portrayed the western rôle better than any other actor on the screen. He is always well dressed to look his part. Who knows more about western life, Gretchen or Tom Mix, a cowboy? It is to laugh. "TOM MIX."

Dear Miss Tinée: Have been an admiring reader of your column for years, and agree with you most of the time, but up to now have refrained from writing you, although have been tempted to do so on several occasions. I would like to add my mite to your Kick Korner, directed at the neighborhood theaters principally. Why do the managers permit their organists to play jazz? For an orchestra it is less jarring, but on an organ it ruins everything. When an organ selection is being played so that it is soothing and inconspicuous, it adds to the pleasure of the performance, but when there is a tiresome and discordant blot it arouses one's ire and ruins the best of pictures. E. A. M.

Dear Madam: I am not an habitual movie knocker. I do not complain because a girl rescued from drowning appears the next moment in dry clothing. I don't expect her to sacrifice her health and continue the act wringing wet for art's sake.

But in "Smilin' Through" I saw the heroine Moonyeen shot and dying in her lover's arms. A priest or a minister waiting to marry her stands to one side. Stands is the proper word. Now, whether we are Jew or Gentile, our one hope is for a happy death. It is God's minister's duty to administer to and give hope and consolation to the dying. They have braved sickness, pestilence, even death in performing this duty. Still our clergyman in this production stands calm, cool and collected without the slightest move to perform his greatest duty.

W. J. C.

(Editor's Note: I think you're all wrong. The minister in the case performed his greatest duty in NOT forcing himself and platitudes into a great last moment, where neither he nor they were wanted.)

MARY McCORMIC.

Mary McCormic, youngest member of the Chicago Opera association, is now on the ocean, sailing in the direction of a summer's study in the music centers of Europe and another step of the ladder that reaches from the plains of the southwest to operatic stardom. Miss McCormic goes abroad to pursue a course of study mapped out by Mary Garden.

Browsing Backward with the Devotees of Motion Pictures

Dear Miss Tinée: You request the names of photo plays that "stick with you." Here is the best one I have ever seen. It was good—"The Trial," featuring Sidney Ainsworth. Wish I could see it again. I expect the ladies' gowns would be out of fashion, but one would forgive that in the greater interest of the play itself and the splendid acting. E. S. T.

Dear Miss Tinée: Browsing back to the old time plays, I wonder how many remember the thrills we got every time we saw the latest episode of "Lucile Love" and "The Adventures of Kathlyn"? And how many remember the loving Florence Lawrence? She was a great actress, and could show her better talen in the pictures of today, owing to modern improvements. Then, when Mabel Normand, Mack Sennett, and Raymond Hitchcock acted in the old slapstick, pie throwing Keystone comedies, who could help laughing? Remember Mary Pickford's early picture known as "Shadows of Doubt," in which Owen Moore and Marion Leonard also were cast? And then, turning back a little later, who remembers "The Conquerors," "The Spoilers," "How Could You, Jean?" and "The Eagle's Mate," in which Mary Pickford starred? In my estimation, quite a few of the older pictures rank with some of those we have today in spite of the fact that the acting was rather stiff, the photography poor, and the scenery, as a rule, artificial, but the actresses themselves, and the actors also, were good; for instance, June Elvidge, Evelyn Greeley, Florence Lawrence, Florence La Badie, Ella Hall, Robert Leonard, Flora Finch, John Bunny, Francis Ford, Grace Cunard, Ben Wilson, Neva Gerber, J. Warren Kerrigan, and Margery Wilson. Let's hope some of these screen celebrities will soon appear again.

LEONARD JACKSON.

MAURICE N.: The most humorous picture I ever saw was Chaplin in "A Dog's Life." The memory of that dog's tail beating on that drum from out of Charley's big back pocket will make me laugh in my sleep for years to come. For real tense feeling Nazimova got under my vest in her play called "The Brat." She is an artist to her finger tips, and I am no press agent, either.

Of course, it all depends on which string of the harp stirs you most, and what mood you most desire to cater to, so that it is impossible to pick on one play and declare it the best.

On account of the vast amount of drivel, piffle, and slush in vogue today I have refrained from the movies until they hand us something more "bright and good for human nature's daily food" than at present.

For a good study in psychology I also recall "The Sea Wolf," which I saw years ago, and I remember I left the theater like one coming out of a church after hearing a powerful sermon. It was gripping, it was great, and it made you palpitate, etc. Some people say Jack London ain't no great shakes as a writer. Then it must have been the leading man alone who made the film so great.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Vesuvius Frowns On Naples and Goes on Smoking

By Mme. X.

NAPLES.—[Special Correspondence.]—Chicago has thousands of chimneys. Naples has practically only one, Vesuvius.

Vesuvius knows nothing of Chicago smoke laws. If Vesuvius knew more of them it would probably make about as much difference to this industrious Mediterranean chimney as these laws make to the average Chicago smoke producer, and what that amounts to you and I know well. Our annual bills for cleaning garments, for soap, redecorating, refurbishing, and for all the other repairs our soot covered lives require amount to millions, and still we never feel clean.

Coal being $35 a ton in Naples, the Neapolitans leave all their smoke display to the great smoking mountain under whose shadow this ancient city has existed for countless generations. At the moment this famous volcano is more than usually energetic. Even that masterly local volcano of ours, the waterworks chimney, would look like a piker beside it. A plume of solid gray oozes out of and curls about the blunt nosed summit, which is all in the way of a profile that the tremendous eruption of 1906 left to the mountain.

Preferring Beauty to Duty.

Foreigners who live in this part of the world from choice, and there are a few such, must have an insatiable appetite for beauty, for there is little else in southern Italy to make life attractive to the mortal brought up in the fine, bracing, sweet air of Anglo-Saxon civilization. There is something stupefying about an existence fed on natural beauties.

One sees it in those Americans who select southern California as an abode merely because it has a genial climate and many lovely views. They are apt to become like much of the fruit of that region—just a little insipid. There is the same quality in the alien residents of this part of the world. They constantly seek your approval of their choice and urge you to join them as expatriates.

Expatriates who have an admirable object in their expatriation are of enormous value to humanity. They have subdued waste lands, have opened up new countries, and built great nations. But the kind of expatriate who is so because he or she prefers beauty to duty or because of the greater purchasing power of his or her dollar is a small loss to any country. And Italy is full of such.

Italy Poor but Alert.

Italy is shabby, down at the heels; her roads are in poor condition; sugar is scarce, and doled out in little packages like a medicine; butter is a luxury, and milk a mysterious article several removes from the cows that we know. And yet Italy is much alive. One cannot talk with the average Italian, the cabman, the clerk in the shop, the hotel concierge, or the waiter, which are the classes of Italians most accessible to the Italian speaking traveler, without being impressed with a certain alertness, an independence, a determination to run things to suit themselves entirely different from anything the writer knew in Italy before the war.

There is a condition on the railways which indicates the powerlessness of the government and the temper of the people to a regrettable degree. There has developed a system of thievery on railway trains which got to such a notorious point that even traveling Italians protested about it.

As long as the thieves pillaged only the luggage of traveling foreigners, the Italians made only half hearted efforts to end it, but when the trunks and valises of the Italian traveling public were also broken open a strong appeal was made to the government to find out what was going on. An investigation was made in which thirty-four railway employés on the trains between Naples and Rome were found to be guilty, besides many others.

Running the Gantlet.

But it was not possible to punish them because of the great danger of an eruption of that seething revolutionary movement which is going on here all the time under the surface. A few of the evil doers were dismissed, but many of the original malefactors are reported to be still filling their positions (and their pockets, probably) on the same run between the port of southern Italy and the national capital, and people traveling between these two points consider themselves lucky if they arrive at their destination without loss of belongings.

An example of the precarious condition of the country outside of the larger cities is the tragic experience of a woman of wealth and standing who last autumn undertook to make the journey from Rome to Naples by motor, a favorite way for the well-to-do to avoid the disagreeables of the trip by rail. The woman in question was the Countess Czernin, a daughter of the late Earl of Grimthorpe, and a granddaughter of the late Mrs. Lucy Lee, the best known, most influential American woman for half a century in the Roman great world.

Countess Czernin's husband was an Austrian, a member of one of the most prominent families of that nation. Difference of opinion on the war separated him and his wife, and she left him, taking her three sons to Italy to bring them up. Her brother, the present Lord Grimthorpe, has a beautiful place at Posilipo, one of the popular suburbs of Naples, a district where many well known Britishers have houses (among them Lord Roseberry).

Slain Without Warning.

Countess Czernin usually spends some time in the autumn and spring with her brother, and last fall was on her way from Rome when, at Viterbo, their car was stopped and they were warned that a band of supposed Fascisti was ravaging the neighborhood and that motorists were not safe. The chauffeur thereupon turned down what he thought was a safe side road to seek shelter. The automobile was fired upon immediately by unseen assailants. One son, the eldest, a lad of 17, was instantly killed and all the rest of the party were wounded. Countess Czernin was shot in the shoulder and neck. Her second son was so badly wounded that one leg had to be amputated. The other son was also injured. The driver of the car was shot in the head and fell unconscious in the bottom of the machine. The mother, wounded though she was, dragged her two living sons out of the car to the rear of it, where she did what she could to staunch their wounds, and then tied her handkerchief to a cane and held it up for the snipers to see that the party was a harmless one. Help came ultimately, and the Czernins finally reached their destination with the dead body of the eldest son.

Nothing ever was done to the miscreants. I don't think they were discovered. But such are the possible conditions of travel out of the beaten tracks of Italy.

They Prick Their Victims.

Travelers' tales of the perils of walking the streets of Naples are a pleasant and fertile topic when two or three are gathered together, and make one think of home. The latest tale is that a favorite modus operandi of the Neapolitan banditti is to stick a long, sharp pin in their victim's arm, the one from which hangs the inevitable little bag containing passport, letter of credit, and money, with which American women travel, and then, as the arm relaxes in anguish, the enterprising robber seizes the bag and disappears.

For days we have been anticipating this sharp, intolerable pain. It haunts us more than the possible loss of the indispensable portemonnaie. We even think of inventing and patenting a protecting leather shield, to be worn under the dress sleeve. Meanwhile we are taking chances that our aspect is so poverty stricken that we may escape what we are assured by those always taking the joy out of life is the usual fate of American visitors to Naples.

Also, we are adding a great many grains of salt to these amazing stories. One such incident can easily be magnified into many, and no people love so to spread discouragement as the average traveler. A tour without excitement, real or imaginary, is a tame affair, and as we come from a country and a city where life and property are not so safely guarded in the tumult of this changing epoch, we do not indulge in many fears.

The French Argosy which brought us and many others across the over-energetic Atlantic [I wish you could have heard the china crashing about on board one morning] gave us a whole twenty-four hours at Algiers. Algiers is a gay looking French town built around an old and dirty Arab city. In the many drear places into which it has been our privilege to glance, in a somewhat extended experience of travel, we have never seen so much human misery and squalor as in that congested, evil smelling human rabbit warren. Blind eyes exuding filth, faces empty of noses, bent and creeping effigies of want and dirt, a general air of dumb horror were registered on the mind with a permanency with which we would gladly dispense.

Among the more or less permanent residents of Algiers is a descendant of Lafayette, the Countess di Brazza. She is the widow of a well known Italian scientist and explorer whose especial field of labor was the Congo. She is the daughter of the late Duc de Chambrun. His grandmother was the only child of the Marquis de Lafayette, whose name is so identified with our American history. One of her two brothers married a cousin of our well known countryman, Nicholas Longworth, congressman from Ohio and husband of the popular eldest daughter of the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Alice Roosevelt.

Met Tragic Fate.

The lovely daughter of one of these French marriages met such a tragic fate not many months ago that it is perhaps well to chronicle it so that the same accident might be avoided by any one who reads this column. She was taking a bath and it is supposed that, while still in the water, she reached out and turned on or off the electric heater. She was found dead in the bath, evidently having been electrocuted. The water in which she was standing made a short circuit for the electric current which flashed through her and killed her. It is an accident which might happen to any one who did not know or forgot the affinity of water for electricity.

The Countess di Brazza makes her home in Algiers and is bringing up her children there. There, as elsewhere in French possessions, there is a great money stringency, and she feels it and lives in what would seem a simple way to the average American.

A journey into the world makes one realize how much higher our American standard of comfortable living is than that of any other people. When you come to countries where coal is scarce you first appreciate how that commodity lies at the basis of our daily life. It supplies us with the constant supply of hot water denied to other nations. It gives us the universal warmth which makes us shiver when we go to other countries. It makes possible the excellent cuisine which, in time, will become a national asset when our cooks have become more expert and our standard higher. We have better materials for making a meal than any other country and only need to know how to handle them.

Naples Meets the Taxi.

That even here in Naples the world is moving out of one epoch into another is made manifest to us wayfarers by a strike of cab drivers which has just started. They are striking not for higher pay nor for shorter hours but in order to express their disapproval of some nifty little red taxis which were introduced into Naples a few months ago and which are the Neapolitan equivalent for certain of our taxis because they are so good, so universal, and so comparatively cheap.

Of course the Naples cabbies are up against an impossible proposition. They cannot set back the world. They cannot make their horse run vehicles popular or even profitable.

The mere question of forage for their horses is becoming difficult. There is little grass grown in this part of Italy. Cows are almost an unknown quantity hereabouts. The goat is the universal provider of milk for those who require lacteal food. This herbiferous and omnivorous animal thrives on these sparsely clad and abrupt rocks as no other creature could. It is still the custom to drive a flock of goats up

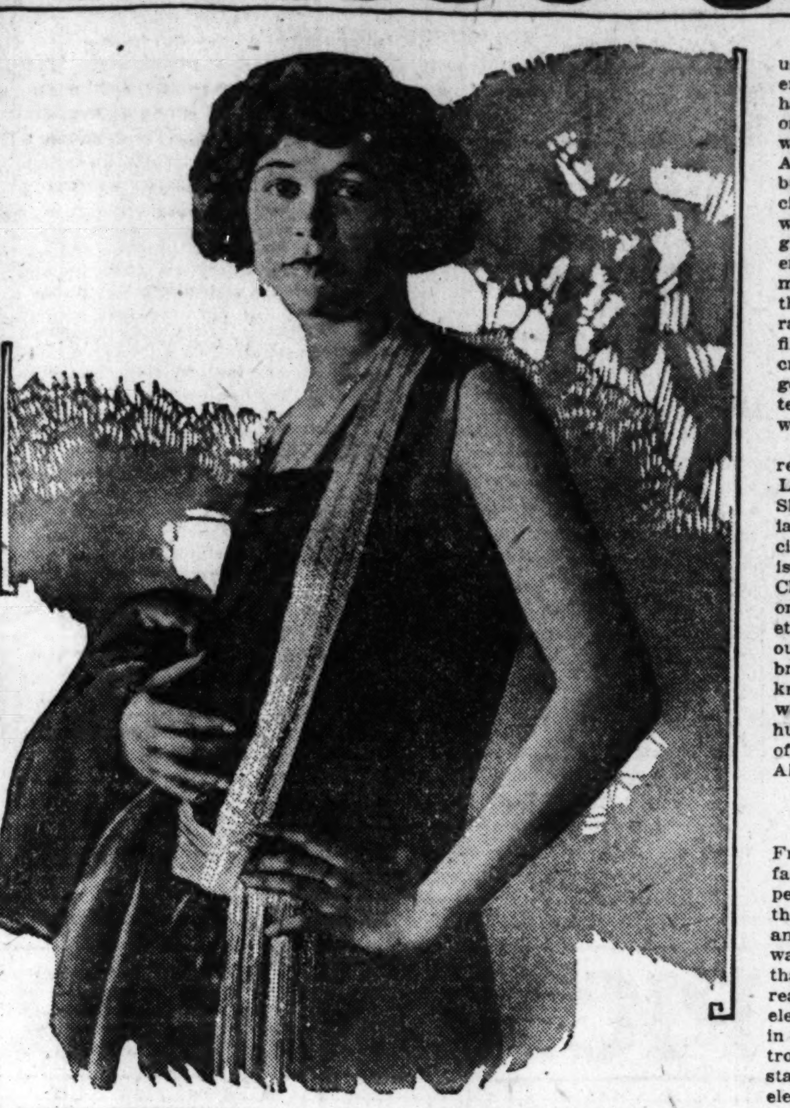
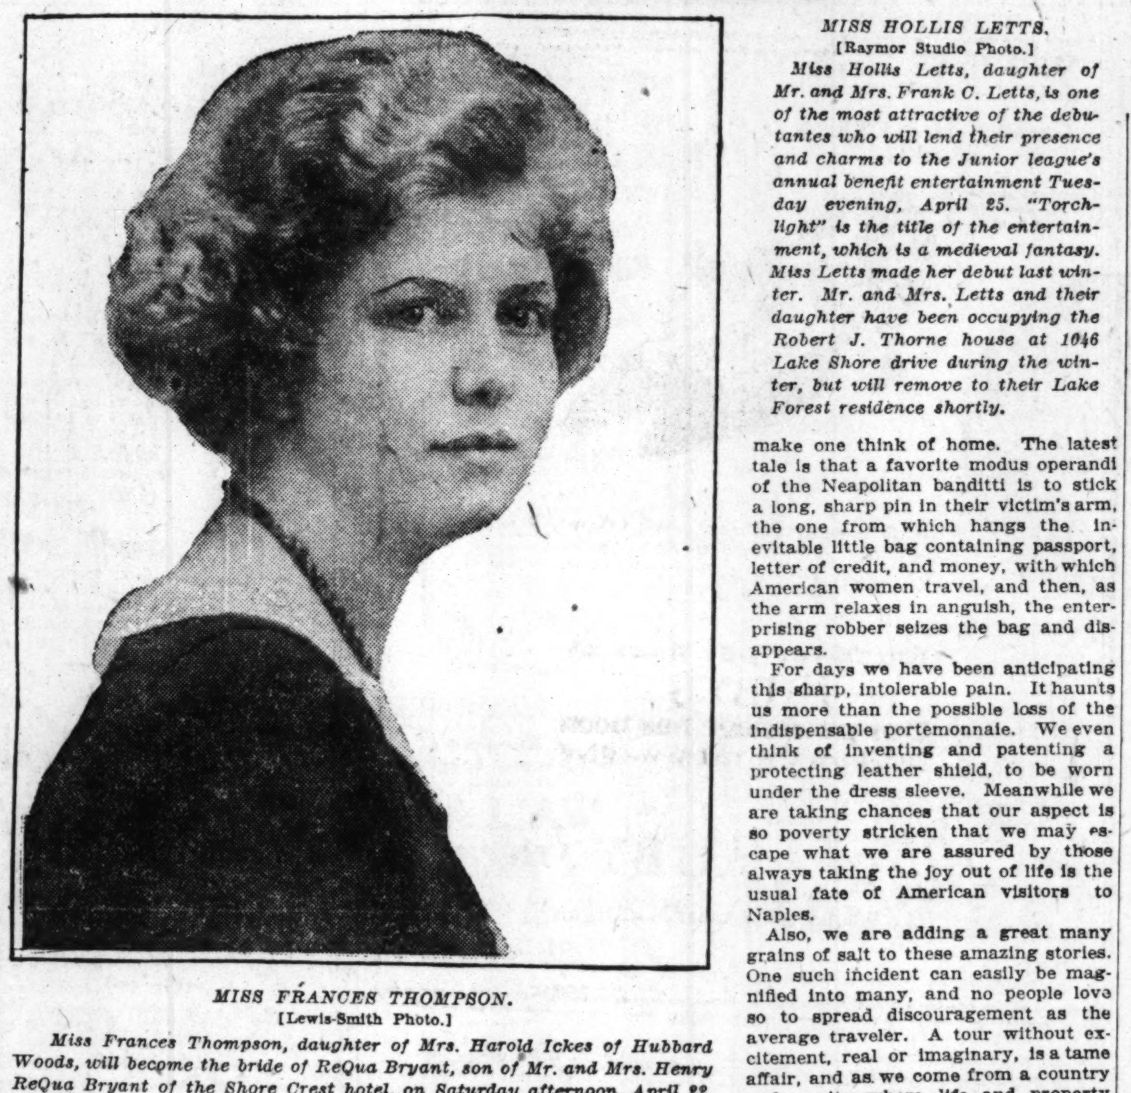
MRS. JAMES NICHOLS SMITH.
[Moffett Photo.]

Mrs. James Nichols Smith of 11 East Division street is program chairman for the musical to be given Tuesday afternoon, April 18, at the residence of Mrs. Frederick D. Countiss, 1524 Lake Shore drive, for the benefit of the music school of Olivet institute. Mrs. George Halleck Taylor is general chairman and Mrs. Don B. Sebastian is chairman of the ticket committee.



MISS HOLLIS LETTS.
[Raymor Studio Photo.]

Miss Hollis Letts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Letts, is one of the most attractive of the debutantes who will lend their presence and charms to the Junior league's annual benefit entertainment Tuesday evening, April 25. "Torchlight" is the title of the entertainment, which is a medieval fantasy. Miss Letts made her debut last winter. Mr. and Mrs. Letts and their daughter have been occupying the Robert J. Thorne house at 1046 Lake Shore drive during the winter, but will remove to their Lake Forest residence shortly.



MISS FRANCES THOMPSON.
[Lewis-Smith Photo.]

Miss Frances Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Harold Ickes of Hubbard Woods, will become the bride of ReQua Bryant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry ReQua Bryant of the Shore Crest hotel, on Saturday afternoon, April 22, in Christ church, Winnetka. Following the ceremony there will be a reception at the residence of the bride's mother. After a wedding journey in the south Mr. and Mrs. Bryant will live in Evanston.

Shoes and Success

Badly designed shoes do much more than hurt the feet. They strain muscles and tendons all over the body. They upset the nervous system, sap your energy, deplete your nerve force.

Cantilever Shoes fit the foot, support the arch, strengthen the muscles. They are shoes that help you to gain health and success.

The Cantilever lasts are patterned from the outline of the foot. The natural inner sole line permits the toes to point straight ahead as they should for comfort and strength.

The Cantilever Shoe encourages an easy posture. The weight is so properly distributed that you can walk or stand on your feet for a long time without tiring.

Pulling the laces draws up the under-arch sole to support the foot under the curve of the arch. And that support is not unyielding. The flexible shank of Cantilever Shoes allows the foot perfect freedom. The muscles exercise in walking and grow strong from use. Cantilever Shoes prevent and correct fallen arches by strengthening the foot.

Good looking, very comfortable, and well made. Try a pair this week. Sold in Chicago only by

[Toloff Photo.]

A charity ball is to be given on April 21 at the First Regiment armory by the advertising fraternity of Chicago, for the benefit of the Off the Street club, at 1526 West Van Buren street. Founded twenty-three years ago by a number of advertising men, the club has grown until there is a membership of more than a thousand girls and boys, formed into classes and clubs, doing a concrete and practical work building them into useful citizens. Mrs. Louis R. Wasey is one of the patronesses for the dance.

MRS. GUY B. CHILD.
[Chambers Photo.]

Mrs. Guy B. Child has been elected president of the Chicago South Side club, which will have its annual spring luncheon on Tuesday at the Sisson hotel. The other officers are Mrs. J. W. Sleight and Mrs. W. D. Shafer, vice presidents; Mrs. F. R. Fenton, recording secretary; Mrs. E. S. Bastin, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. W. B. Ewing, treasurer.

MISS FLORENCE MURPHY.
[Koehne Photo.]

The Chicago chapter of St. Mary of the Woods alumnae is giving its third annual dance on Easter Monday at the Drake. The proceeds are to go toward the maintenance of the St. Columkille Day Nursery at 521 North Paulina street, which was opened four years ago by the alumnae, and which cares for more than a hundred children whose mothers go out to work. Miss Florence Murphy is chairman of the committee arranging the dance.

Alumnae to Give Dance Proceeds to Day Nursery

By Kate Webber

THE youngsters who receive care at the St. Columkille day nursery at 527 North Paulina street will benefit from a post-Easter dance to be held on April 17 at the Drake. The affair is the third annual one of its kind to be given for the nursery by the Chicago chapter of St. Mary of the Wood alumnae. Mrs. John J. Walsh and Miss Florence Murphy are co-chairmen of arrangements for the dance.

Opened in 1918, with the object of caring for children of working mothers, the nursery has increased from the first roster of twelve tots to one of more than 105 names. Four workers, assisted by volunteers, look after the play time, sleepy time, and education of their small charges.

The nursery occupies twelve rooms in the present building, where a dormitory, isolation room, offices, cribrooms, kindergartens, playrooms, and kitchens care for all needs. When summer time comes, there is a broad lawn and playground, which is fitted up with swings, hammocks, and devices to intrigue the interest of the little ones who otherwise would be lonely at home, with their mothers away all day.

The children have necessary medical aid through the gratuitous services of physicians and nurses, the latter making daily visits for inspection and to detect and check infectious ailments.

Through the funds derived from the dance and from the interest aroused in the nursery, the alumnæ hope to create more of the atmosphere of personal service, which will help these little children to have a happier start and probably a brighter career than if they are treated merely as charges, which is almost inevitable when a few workers must take entire care of a hundred children.

The nursery depends principally for its maintenance upon the alumnæ, the Associated Catholic Charities of Chicago, cash donations from friends, and entertainments and contributions to the nursery box. The last named resource is the daily fee of a few cents asked for each child. This fee protects the child in after life from derogatory or unkind remarks.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

TO MY LITTLE DAUGHTER.

With what indulgent tender care
You follow brother everywhere,
Anticipating his demands
With loving heart and eager hands,
Attentive to his slightest call,
And vigilant to every fall,
Forgiving hasty words and thumps
And kissing all his little bumps.

And as I watch you, sweet and kind,
The thought arises in my mind,
Will brother always mean just this,
A pal to guard and love and kiss?
Will brother always be to you
A friend as well as brother, too;
Or, growing, will you grow apart?
If I but knew, my dearest heart!

Ah, dearest heart, if I but knew
That naught will come between you two,
That through the years you'll ever be
As dear to each as each to me;
That in the shelter of his arm
You may be safe from grief and harm
And, watching o'er him, near or far,
Be his abiding, guiding star. . . .
If I but knew!

A bath a day—
the Mueller way

The New Mueller Tub-Shower Faucet

WITH this new invention you can take a tub-bath, or a shower-bath. You can enjoy a hot tub, followed by a warm or a cold shower. You get the combined advantages of both tub and shower. Cold, warm or hot water can be drawn from either spout or spray.

The hose is permanently attached and independent of spout.

Dad and the boys can have their cold showers—mother and the girls can have warm showers or tepid tubs and luxurious shampoos—all with the Mueller Tub-Shower Faucet.

Makes the tub you now have into a shower—encourages the bathing habit with the children. Insist that your architect specifies and your plumber installs Mueller goods.

interminable flights of stairs to the doors of flats on the topmost floors of the high tenements and there milk them into the cups and pitchers of the residents.

The cabby is becoming extinct, but not the goat herd. So those who remember the impetuous driving of the Neapolitan cabman, the snappy crack of his whip, his raucous call as he turned sharp corners, must be prepared to do without that accompaniment to life here. The horn of the little red taxis is all that one hears on the hill nowadays in Naples.

Vesuvius on Guard.

Indestructible and unchangeable, however, is the view of the bay of Naples, with Vesuvius standing guard at one side of it, while the Sorrentian peninsula stretches out embracing the oily, blue waters in a curve of dim purple mountains, and Capri lies, a dream, on the southern horizon. To the west the cliffs of Posilipo tumble into the bay, with the charming villas of the well to do natives and foreigners rising right out of the sea, their garden terraces climbing the steep incline behind.

Just beyond Posilipo point is where one of the Roman emperors—I think it was Nero—tried to drown his mother. He had constructed a royal barge, cleverly split through the middle so that at a certain point in the trip to her favorite island, a rocky asylum not far from shore which she delighted to visit, it should break in two and precipitate the imperial dame and her escort into the sea.

Everything happened as planned except that the old lady would not drown. She paddled lustily around, shouting for help, until finally she was saved, much to her devoted son's consternation. He gave her up then as a bad job, and, according to history, never tried to dispose of her again.

Discriminating Romans were fond of the beauties of nature to be found around the Bay of Naples, or Neapolis, as the city was then called, and many of them had villas in this region. Of these appreciative ones were Virgil and the two Plinys, father and son, as well as many of the Roman emperors, including Augustus and Tiberius.

The Saracens, the Normans, the Spanish kings, the stately and stupid Bourbons, even the famous Admiral Lord Nelson, all reveled in the loveliness of this part of the world, yet none of them left what could have been called a distinguished record or any mark which makes for the adornment of the city or the surrounding country unless one excepts the ruins of the twelve Tiberian villas on Capri.

Seek Familiar Faces.

While admiring the sea and mountains and the historic antiquities, we are also keeping a weather eye open for such Chicagoans as are said to be wandering about this part of Europe. We almost thought that a distinguished looking, extra tall man, with an aristocratic nose and wearing a belted gray overcoat, we saw yesterday was our friend and fellow citizen Charles Burrell Pike, who, with his wife, has been touring Egypt, but found out our error in time before giving the hearty salute with which Chicagoans greet each other in foreign lands.

We are hoping that the Arthur Aldis and Cyrus McCormick contingent, which has been exploring the desert of Sahara, will pass this way on its way home. Should we see a turbaned group in the distance we should feel sure it was this party, for they have been going from oasis to oasis in a regular Arab caravan, camels and Bedouins and all.

Cyrus McCormick Sr. is reported to have bought a donkey as an alternative to the camel he was otherwise to ride. There are many who dislike intensely the gait of the camel. "The ship of the desert" is well named, as many an inexperienced camelite has learned to his or her sorrow when overtaken by acute seasickness. The other two members of this caravan party are Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr.

It is about time for many of these touring Chicagoans to be turning their faces homeward. A city by a great inland lake beckons them to come back and take up real living.

FUTURE EVENTS

This week being Holy week, there will be fewer social affairs than there have been during any other week of Lent. But there will be many meetings of committees to complete plans for the numerous benefits which are scheduled for the latter part of this month and May. The first benefit will be a musical on Tuesday afternoon, April 18, at 3:30 o'clock for the benefit of the music school of Olivet institute. Mrs. Frederick D. Countiss, whose house is always available for any worthy cause, has given the use of her beautiful residence for the affair. Mrs. George Halleck Taylor is chairman of the committee on arrangements and Mrs. James Nichols Smith is program chairman.

Starting Tuesday morning will be a course of lectures by Horace J. Bridges under the auspices of the Women's club of the Chicago Ethical society, at the residence of Mrs. William L. Baum, 1508 State parkway. Mrs. Baum's house is another one which is opened many times each year by its hospitable chatelaine for worthy objects. "The Life and Work of St. Paul" is to be discussed by Mr. Bridges at the four lectures.

The Service Star Legion will give a benefit card party Tuesday afternoon, April 25, at 2 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. George W. Dixon, 1250 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Ellsworth Gross is chairman of the committee in charge.

A concert under the auspices of the woman's board of St. Luke's hospital will be given Tuesday afternoon, April 25, in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone. Mrs. William E. Casselberry Jr. is in charge.

That night the annual Junior League benefit performance will be given at Orchestra hall. "Torchlight" is the name of this year's production, of which Miss Alice Gerstenberg is in charge.

Wednesday afternoon, April 26, a recital for the benefit of the Farmington Elizabeth Keep Memorial kindergarten will be given in Orchestra hall. Mrs. Hubert Burnham and Miss Elizabeth Farwell are in charge.

Mrs. William H. Scriven is arranging a benefit for Monday evening, May 8, at the Auditorium theater, the proceeds to go to Emerson house. Pavley and Oukrainsky will give the program. A meeting of the large committee in charge will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of Miss Muriel McCormick, 675 Rush street. Miss McCormick and Mrs. Hathaway Watson are co-chairmen with Mrs. Scriven.

The first of a series of three talks on "Going to Paris" will be given this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Grace Hickox studios by Miss Clara Laughlin. Mrs. Charles H. Besly, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Edgar Lee Masters, Mrs. Jacob Baur, and Mrs. Murry Nelson are among the patronesses.

Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. John Root, Miss Katharine Cooke, Mrs. C. Edson Manierre, Mrs. Richard B. Barnitz, Miss Florence Harris, Miss Annette Washburne, Miss Sarah Hinde, Miss Mary Cooke, Walter Frazier, Charles McNear, Harry D. Pires, Elisha Cook, Douglas P. Street, George F. Wolff, Robert Eskridge, and Vandervoort Sloan will take part in "Overtones," to be given tonight by the Playwrights' theater at the Powers theater.

Miss Minna Seeman will open her residence at 3801 Pine Grove avenue tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock for the second of eight French illustrated musical lectures by Mme. Rachel Descoubes and Mrs. Elizabeth Heath.

Mrs. Arthur B. Wells of 1334 North State street will entertain the Music guild tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock to meet Miss Maud Morgan of New York, dean of American harpists, and Mme. Bernhard Stavenhagen, noted pianist from Zurich, Switzerland.

The Vocational Society for Shut-Ins will have an Easter exhibit and sale Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday at 677 North Michigan avenue. Mrs. Percy Skillin will be in charge. Girl Scouts under the direction of Miss Cordelia Carpenter will serve tea and cookies. Mrs. Alfred J. Benson is president of the society.

The last of three lectures on "Interior Decorating" will be given Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Paul Chalfin at the residence of Dr. George Snow Isham, 1340 North State street, under the auspices of the Vassar salary endowment fund committee.

PERSONALS

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

What is the best joke you ever heard? Share it with The Tribune readers. One dollar will be paid for each joke published. Address the Jokes Editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

Doubled His Ability.

A group of boys was playing marbles. A minister approached and asked the way to the postoffice. As he was about to proceed on his way a burst of profanity escaped one of the group.

The minister turned around and said: "My little man, you ought not use such language. Come to my Sunday school and I will show you the way to heaven."

"Aw," replied the little gamin, "how can you show me the way to heaven when you don't even know the way to the postoffice." J. E. A.

Insisting Upon Accuracy.

A certain small town had become enthusiastic over prohibition. The leader of the movement posted the sign, "This house is bone dry," on his front door.

One by one the other houses in town displayed similar signs until every house in town but one was tagged.

The owner of the house was prevailed upon to place a sign upon his door. At last he posted the following: "This house leaks a little." M. M.

Crash Goes Mother's Ladder.

The mother was trying to break into society. As an opening wedge she was having a formal dinner at her home. Just before the guests arrived she sent her small boy upstairs to bed. All went well until the guests were seated at the table, when a voice from upstairs shouted, "Mother, the towels in the bathroom are all dirty. Shall I start a clean one?" R. B. H.

Via Wireless.

A young lawyer, just out of school, was anxious to start his practice. One day he heard footsteps approaching his door. Immediately he picked up the receiver and began an imaginary conversation about some big case he was handling.

He finished, and turning to the man who had just entered, said smilingly, "What can I do for you, sir?"

The quick reply was, "I've come to connect your telephone." T. B. B.

Its Master's Voice.

A man walked into a garage where his car was being repaired and was heard to reprimand the garage owner for telling him how to run his own car, saying, "This is my car, and what I say goes."

A moment later a tired, greasy mechanic looked up from under the car and said, "For Pete's sake, say engine." L. W. W.

Strategy.

Swanson was ill humored. In spite of the fact that the street car was overcrowded, he managed to get a seat over in one corner of the car. In front of him stood three young women, who looked at him in such a way that he knew they thought he should offer his seat to one of them.

He didn't want to give up his place, but still the looks that the women were giving him bothered him considerably.

Finally he stood up, and said: "Allow me to offer my seat to the oldest one of you ladies."

He didn't have to stand. E. E. C.

He Knew Her Kind.

"Now, tell the truth," said the fussy woman to the street corner beggar, "are you really blind?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied the beggar.

"What is this I am about to give you?"

"A penny, ma'am," replied the beggar.

"Ha; if you are blind, how do you know it's a penny?"

"Because, ma'am," replied the beggar, "I never get more than a penny out of people like you." W. J.

Yes, Yes—Go On.

John persisted in lengthy answers on the witness stand. The opposing lawyer, losing patience, insisted upon brief answers.

"But you cannot answer every question with yes or no," retorted John.

"Yes, you can," said the attorney. "Try it on me."

"Do you beat your wife?" said John. C. F.

Two of a Kind.

Artillery Rookie [about to take his first lesson in horsemanship]: "Sergeant, please pick me out a nice gentle horse."

Stable Sergeant: "D'ja ever ride a horse before?"

Rookie: "No."

Sergeant: "Ah! Here's just the animal for you! He's never been ridden before. You can start out together." F. P.

WHERE MUSICIANS STAND IN FIELD DAY OF CRITICS

By EDWARD MOORE

IN an effort to "orient," as they call it, the American public among the newer critical standards, Vanity Fair this month publishes a table showing the composite opinions of ten critics upon some 200 public characters. The critics are Heywood Broun, Henry McBride, H. L. Mencken, George Jean Nathan, Burton Rascoe, Paul Rosenfeld, Gilbert Seldes, Deems Taylor, Edmund Wilson Jr., and Willard Huntington Wright. The subjects range all the way from Æschylus to Charlie Chaplin and from Marcus Aurelius to Jack Dempsey.

SOPHIE BRASLAU.
[Goldberg Photo.]

Markings run from plus 25, the summit of approval, to minus 25, the most enthusiastic condemnation. Each list was added and then averaged.

Some musicians are in the 200—not all by any means, not even all of the more significant ones. Among the composers there is no mention of Chopin, Schubert, Schumann, Verdi, Gounod or Massenet, to name only a few, and among performers the list is limited to Geraldine Farrar, Mary Garden, Yvette Guilbert, Maria Jeritza, and Al Jolson.

In fact, the table, like many others of its kind, gives quite as much information about the critics as it does about the persons criticized. At that it is interesting.

Shakespeare Ranks First.

Shakespeare takes first position, with 22.4 points, followed closely by Bach, with 22. Among the other musicians in the first flight are Beethoven, who ties with Nietzsche at 19, and Wagner with 18.1, who is just ahead of Leonardo da Vinci with 17.4 and Charlie Chaplin with 17.2. Brahms totals 15.3, about like Gilbert and Sullivan, who are considered as one and given 15.6.

Less respectful treatment is afforded the others. Miss Garden, it is true, comes out with 8.6, in between Einstein with 8.5, and Emerson with 8.8, and in measurable distance of Stravinski, with 8.2. But all that Miss Farrar gets is minus 2.2. She is tied with Henry Ford and close to Woodrow Wilson, who achieves minus 2.9.

Chicago Almost Ignored.

Claude Debussy manages to secure 11.9, thereby bracketing him in the nearby company of Mme. Guilbert, 11.8. Irving Berlin and Mme. Jeritza are also allied, with 7.2 and 7.9, respectively. But Chicago is still an outpost of civilization. John Alden Carpenter is the only representative, and he is donated a total of .8. Even Al Jolson does better, with 1.2. Edward MacDowell gets 4, Arnold Schönberg 3.1, and Ed Wynn, 6.8.

And this is in the same issue with an article signed by Mr. Taylor in which Mr. Carpenter is referred to as "a real dramatic composer, one who has the deftness and gift for characterization and sense of the stage that a man must have if he would write for the stage," and in which his "Birthday of the Infanta" is called the best ballet score any one has done since "Petrouchka."

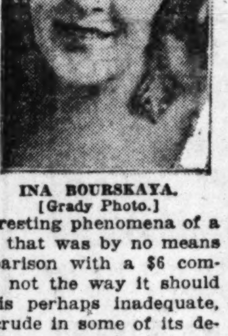
Russian Repertoire Extensive.

That brave band of pioneering pilgrims, the Russian Grand Opera company, is about to finish its Chicago engagement and go away from here.



INA BOURSKAYA.
[Grady Photo.]

It came for three weeks, then decided to stay four, and could perhaps remain a time longer did booking conditions permit.

It has been one of the highly interesting phenomena of a musical season that was by no means dull. In comparison with a $6 company, which is not the way it should be judged, it is perhaps inadequate, perhaps even crude in some of its details. But it has an ensemble that permits no slip and a spirit such as is seen in no other company. As they say in our set, every member is up on his toes all the time. Incidentally, at least a full half dozen of its singers would not need to apologize for their presence were they transferred to the ranks of the Chicago Opera association.

Best of all, the organization has presented a list of works that even the most fantastic hope never expected to witness here for years to come, and has managed to surround them with manner and atmosphere.

The final schedule follows:

Tonight—"Demon," by Rubenstein.

Monday—"Snow Maiden," by Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Tuesday—"Mermaid," by Dargomizsky.

Wednesday—"Boris Godounoff," by Moussorgsky.

Thursday—"Carmen," by Bizet.

Friday — "Eugene Onegin," by Tschaikowsky.

Saturday afternoon—"Snow Maiden," by Rimsky-Korsakoff.

Saturday night—"Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo, followed by Russian ballet.

Serious Music for Holy Week.

As another season of the Chicago Symphony orchestra begins to draw to its close the name of Sophie Braslau appears in the procession of soloists. She will be here this week and will sing twice in the order of the program. Following her custom of making part of each public demonstration intensely serious—too serious, think some of the admirers of her fine voice and talent—her first number will be "Andromache's Lament," from Bruch's "Achilles." Later she will sing Elgar's "Sea Pictures," nearly the best thing the English composer ever did. He wrote them years ago for another famous contralto, Clara Butt.

MARY GARDEN.
[Moffett Photo.]

Mr. Stock will introduce a new piece for orchestra. It is Eichheim's "Oriental Impressions," and it is said to be unusual in its form and interest. Two excerpts from "Parsifal" will also be included the "Procession of the Knights of the Holy Grail," at the beginning, and the "Good Friday Spell, Transformation, and Glorification," at the end. Beethoven's Eighth Symphony is also up for performance.

Ifs and Ands.

It will not be long now before the Chicago Opera association returns from gadding about the west. Finished with two weeks in San Francisco, the company will approach Los Angeles this week, then a quick jump to Denver, a brief visit to Wichita, closing April 22, and finally home.

Not much news has come out of the west this season, apart from periodical remarks by Miss Garden regarding her own continuance as general director. Most of them would seem to be interpreted in terms of the refrain to the old song, she would not and she would. As soon as the company gets back there will be meetings of various kinds around here, and then, presumably, a bit more will be known about what is going to happen next season.

Up to the present every prediction has had to be qualified by the chilling phrase, "if the guaranty fund is raised." With the approach of spring that condition shows a few signs of improvement. With no wish to define it too precisely, there are certain indications that the gnarly and innutritious "if" may in time swell into the more florescent "when."

Announces Scholarship Contest.

The Chicago Artists' association is out with two announcements. One concerns a scholarship contest of its junior section, in which prizes of $50 each will be given to winners in the piano, vocal, and string departments. The competition will take place May 16.

The other refers to a manuscript program for Tuesday night at Fine Arts recital hall. Grace Walsh will play a group of her own works. Elsa Holinger will sing from Beatrice MacGowan Scott's "Art Songs for Children," and Edith Allan from some works by Eleanor Everest Freer. Wally Heymar and Ebba Sundstrom will play three movements from William Lester's sonata for two violins, with the composer at the piano.

Eric DeLamarter will speak on problems of composers in the United States. He has one striking qualification for his remarks, that of knowing what he is talking about.

A debut by the Chicago Business Men's orchestra is announced for tonight. This is a musical body that organized last fall under the name of the Amateur orchestra, and has been rehearsing steadily ever since. It num-

A Bit of the Future.

Some of the more important events to come within the next few weeks will be a joint recital by Rosa Raisa and Giacomo Rimini at the Auditorium; another appearance in the same theater by Serge Oukrainsky and Andreas Pavley and their ballet school; and a concert appearance by Tito Schipa, in which he will be the guest artist with the Swift & Co. male chorus at Orchestra hall. The recital appearance of Titta Ruffo, bulletined for some time, has been canceled. He and his physician declare his physical condition will permit no more appearances this season.

The Pavley-Oukrainsky program will take place April 22. It will not be their only appearance this spring, since a report comes that they are also engaged to appear at the Auditorium May 8 for the benefit of Emerson house. On this second occasion they will present for the first time in Chicago Gabriel Grovlez's "La Fête à Robinson." The composer was one of the conductors of the Chicago Opera association in the present season and his work was scheduled for performance here but not given until the company reached New York.

A Recent Convert.

Sometimes they do it. Germaine Schnitzer, a gifted pianist, is to play a recital in New York this afternoon with a new kind of program. It will be aimed directly at the many and away from the few. Miss Schnitzer has in her time harvested much praise, but she is strong in the belief that fair critical words butter no parsnips, neither are they worth much in paying rent.

As quoted in the Musical Courier, she says: "I intend to be guilty of what the musical highbrows call 'commercializing' my art. In other words, I am tired of playing the works of the great masters for the benefit of the comparatively few who understand those works. I am tired of having my sole reward consist of laudatory notices in black and white. I desire a few rewards in green and yellow, signed with the name of the treasurer of the United States of America. To get them I must disregard in a measure my audience of the last years and create for myself a new one from those people who love music because it is melodious."

Here is what Miss Schnitzer plans to play, and this typewriter inclines to the belief that it is an agreeable prospect: Weber's "Invitation to the Dance," Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," Brahms' "Hungarian Dance," Chopin's "Military" Polonaise, Grieg's "Butterfly," and "Spring Song." Chaminade's "Scarf Dance," Sinding's "Rustle of Spring," Schubert's "Moment Musical," Liszt's "Rigoletto" paraphrase, Strauss-Schütt's "Wiener Wald," Rubinstein's Melody in F, Kreisler's "Liebesleid," Paderewski's Minuet, and Strauss' "Blue Danube."

VIOLA SHERMONT.
[Moffett Photo.]

Among the youthful graces of the Chicago Opera association is Viola Shermont, who is the premiere danseuse in the western tour of the organization. Miss Shermont is 19 years old, and is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Burkhardt, 450 St. James place. She has taken important positions in the ballets of "Carmen," "Samson and Delilah," "Hamlet," "La Gioconda," "Faust," "Manon," "Traviato," and "Mignon."

Music Memory Contest.

A bulletin on the preliminary contests in the music memory contest for schools of Chicago and vicinity shows high percentages for the Thornton, Deerfield-Shields, New Trier, Harvey, and Evanston high schools.

The Army band is a recent organization, intended for permanent life and taking the same place in the army that the Marine band does in its branch of the service. It is located at Fort Hunt, Va., with Capt. Parry W. Lewis as the commanding officer. Francis Leigh has been assigned as bandmaster. In 1918 he was president of the board assembled by Gen. Pershing to examine bandmasters in the A. E. F. for commissions. The Army band will number 100, and an orchestra of corresponding type will also be formed.

The Ferrell Symphony orchestra, founded and conducted by Harrison H. Ferrell Jr., and composed of some forty colored players, will give a concert at the Blackstone theater this afternoon. Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, Coleridge-Taylor's "Bamboula," and waltzes by Strauss and Tschaikowsky are among the listed numbers. Florence Cole Talbert, soprano, and Harrison H. Ferrell Jr., violinist, will appear as soloists.

were exposed, causing a revolution of the Piano Industry of America.

AND WHY?

1 We announced the OSBORN $350 GRAND PIANO F. O. B. Factory—our own original plan.

2 We served notice on the Piano Buying Public of America that they could buy a $350 OSBORN GRAND PIANO with the name in the plate, insuring them against deception—guaranteeing them against profiteering.

3 When the OSBORN $350 GRAND PIANO was announced ONE YEAR AGO TODAY the lowest priced Grand Piano on the American market was $795. The OSBORN GRAND today is sold at the same price as a year ago.

4 The $350 OSBORN GRAND should only be compared with Grand Pianos that have recognized Standard Grand Piano Actions, retailing from $800 to $3,000.

5 The $350 OSBORN GRAND has a superb tone, due to scientific construction.

6 Artistic appearance, easy playing, standard grand action, and a case of genuine mahogany constructed by America's most skilled specialists in Grand Piano building, with the aid of the only hydraulic pressure press in existence, that makes possible gluing together eighteen separate pieces of wood under 2,000 pounds pressure per square inch, insuring everlasting durability.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

Last week's composite list of best sellers at five leading Chicago book stores was:

FICTION.

"The Veneerings," by Sir Harry Johnston.
"Kimono," by John Paris.
"Vandemark's Folly," by Herbert Quick.
"The Beautiful and Damned," by F. Scott Fitzgerald.
"The Great Prince Shan," by E. Phillips Oppenheim.
"Maria Chapdelaine: A Tale of the Lake St. John Country," by Louis Hémon.

NONFICTION.

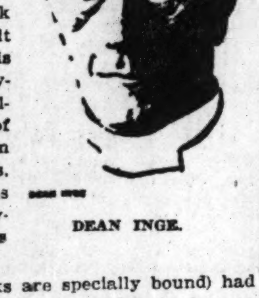
"The Mind in the Making," by James Harvey Robinson.
"My Memories of Eighty Years," by Chauncey M. Depew.
"Westward Hoboes," by Winifred Dixon.

AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Six books most in demand at the Chicago public library last week were:
"If Winter Comes," by A. S. M. Hutchinson.
"The Beautiful and Damned," by F. Scott Fitzgerald.
"Maria Chapdelaine," by Louis Hémon.
"The Outline of History," by H. G. Wells.
"The Story of Mankind," by H. W. Van Loon.
"My Diaries," by Wilfrid Scawen Blunt.

By Fanny Butcher.

THE Gentleman with the Duster has taken a swish at the religious portraits of England. The gayety with which he polished up the handles of the big front doors of Downing Street and with which he flicked the glass of fashion has been—as befits his subject, he may think—exchanged for a solemn sweep of the literary arm, a sedate and pompous gesture. He has written "Painted Windows" with the obvious object of doing for the clergy of England as he did for her politicians and her social scions, but he hasn't the courage. He is most certainly a devout man himself and he has too much emotion about religion to be able to turn a pretty knife in any of religion's protagonists.



DEAN INGE.

He has written what—as the last page is finished—one realizes to be a good journalistic character sketch of twelve English prelates, but a book wholly lacking in what he evidently expects it to be overflowing with—vision. His conclusion is almost what we in America would call soppy (having stolen that useful word from English schoolboy novels). It is a search into the why for of religious unpopularity. Jesus employed the term faith, meaning "making use of belief," he says, and "a knowledge of the sense in which Jesus employed the word faith is the clew to the recovery of Christian influence." He speaks the obvious with a great show of pronouncing a prophecy.

If Mr. Duster (as he is labeled when his books are specially bound) had left out, or off, his almost childish conclusion his book would have been a series of rather interesting pictures, not lacking in cleverness, of men and one woman about most of whom we in America know little. And when we had finished reading the book we would have been mildly amused, we might have been led to become better acquainted with a few of them, Maude Royden, Dean Inge (pronounced to rhyme with "sting"), and L. P. Jacks especially. We would miss the stinging sarcasm of "The Mirrors of Downing Street," and we would undoubtedly say that old Mr. Duster hadn't vivified his religious puppets as he had his political, but we'd argue that we didn't know English clerical life as we did English political life, and that, besides, even an anonymous "gentleman" must naturally respect the cloth. But he didn't leave out his conclusion and it "motivated" the sketches which should have been without motive, and dulled them.

"Painted Windows" is the kind of book which must be quoted—it cannot be epitomized. The sketches are themselves so highly essenced that to try to redistill them would result in nothing. We would quote a column or so. We may quote no more than a sentence here and there:

Bishop Gore—"It is not the face of a man who is at peace with himself. If he has peace of mind, it is a peace of Versailles."

Dean Inge (which is by far the most appealing sketch in the book, leaving the reader with more of a sense of the dean's personality than of the personality of any other character he writes about)—"In repose he looks as if he had set himself to stare the Sphinx out of countenance and had not yet lost heart in the matter; the fine scholarly face suggests . . . a frozen whimsicality." . . . "Christianity for him is not a series of extraordinary acts, but a voice from heaven." . . . "There is no greater mind in the Church of England, no greater mind, I am disposed to think, in the English nation. His intellect has the range of an Acton, his forthrightness is the match of Dr. Johnson's, and his wit, less biting, though little less courageous than Voltaire's, has the illuminating quality, if not the divine playfulness, of the wit of Socrates."

Father Knox—"He asks us, 'Is Truth something which we are ordered to keep, or something which we are ordered to find?'" . . . "The man who has said that he would not choose as the battleground of the Christian religion either 'the credibility of Judges or the edibility of Jonah.'"

Dr. L. P. Jacks (a character which Mr. Duster makes extremely appealing)—"Christianity is man's passport from illusion into reality. It reveals to him that he is not in the world to set the world right, but to see it right. . . . Nature is the handiwork of a Father. Look deeply into that handiwork and it reveals a threefold tendency—the tendency towards goodness, the tendency towards beauty, the tendency towards truth."

Bishop Hensley Henson—"In Dr. Henson one is conscious of nothing behind the intellect but intellect itself, an intellect which has absorbed his spiritual life into itself."

Maude Royden—"One may affirm of Miss Royden that she is at once a true woman and a great man." . . . "To others she leaves the esoteric aspects of religion and the ceremonial of worship, and the difficulties of theology and the mechanism of parochial organization. Her mission is to preach . . . that Christ is a Power, a Power that works miracles . . . and can give both peace and guidance to the soul that is dragged this way and that."

Canon Barnes—"Is careful to insist upon a rational loyalty to Christ."

Gen. Bramwell Booth— . . . "Instead of a text over his mantelpiece one might expect to find the commercial legend, 'Business Is Business.'"

Dr. W. E. Orchard—"He presents the spectacle of a sparrow stretching its wings and opening its beak to imitate the eagle of the Catholic lecterns." . . . "He was against the war. However, he was careful not to go so far as Mr. Bertrand Russell. As he himself says, 'I don't mind dying for Jesus Christ, but not for making a silly ass of myself.'"

Bishop Temple—Such a collection of rather dull platitudes as to be unquotable.

Principal W. B. Selbie—"Religion is something to be taught. It is not a mystery to be presented, but an idea to be inculcated. The world has got to understand religion before it can live religiously."

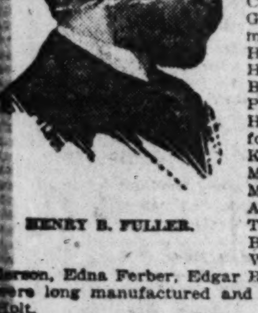
Good Old Henry B. Fuller and the Local Lights.

In the Literary Review of the New York Evening Post for March 18 Henry B. Fuller has an excellent short article on "Chicago Novelists" which will be of great help to study groups who wish to take up their native writers—and there must be many such groups, for I am constantly getting requests for lists of Chicago writers.



HENRY B. FULLER.

Those Mr. Fuller discusses are:

Will Payne, Edith Wyatt, I. K. Friedman, Hamlin Garland, Frank Norris, Theodore Dreiser, George Barr McCutcheon, Harry P. Robinson, Frank Harris, Upton Sinclair, Maj. Kirkland, Mary Hartwell Catherwood, Randall Parrish, Emerson Hough, George Horton, Arthur J. Eddy, George Horace Lorimer, Floyd Dell, George Ade, Peter Dunne, Robert Herrick, Robert Morse Lovett, James Weber Linn, Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor, Otillie Liljencrantz, Rex Beach, Edwin Balmer, William MacHarg, Ernest Poole, Newton Fuessle, Opie Read, Stanley Waterloo, Henry Justin Smith, Joseph Medill Patterson, Clifford Raymond, Elia W. Peattie, Grace Duffee Boylan, Kate M. Cleary, B. L. T., Roswell M. Field, John T. McCutcheon, Lillian Bell, Myrtle Reed, Mary Aldis, Marjorie Benton Cooke, Maude Radford Warren, Alice Gerstenberg, Clara E. Laughlin, Eunice Tietjens, Margaret Horton Potter, Mary Hastings Bradley, Clara Louise Burnham, Henry Kitchell Webster, Samuel Merwin, Ben Hecht, Sherwood Anderson, Edna Ferber, Edgar Rice Burroughs, Harold Bell Wright (since his books were long manufactured and marketed in Chicago), Mary Borden, and Isabella Holt.

"Not a group but an army," as William Dean Howells said of the then much shorter list as Mr. Fuller submitted it to him twenty years ago.

Some Governmental Snooping.

Rene Maran, winner of the Goncourt Prize this year with his "Batouala," may regret his apparent good fortune. The French minister of the colonies has been asked some embarrassing questions about M. Maran, who is supposed to be a Negro government official in Africa. Among them was a suggestion that if the author has used his novel as a tract against the white occupation of Africa he is open to punishment. Meanwhile, no English translation has yet been arranged.

The New Anthony Trollope Perks Up.

"Big Peter," Archibald Marshall's latest novel, is not, as has been suspected, "Peter Binney" in another of its phases. It is the story—somewhat more melodramatic than Mr. Marshall's usual quiet tales of English country life—of a young Englishman who has grown up in the Australian bush who suddenly finds himself the heir to a large estate in England.

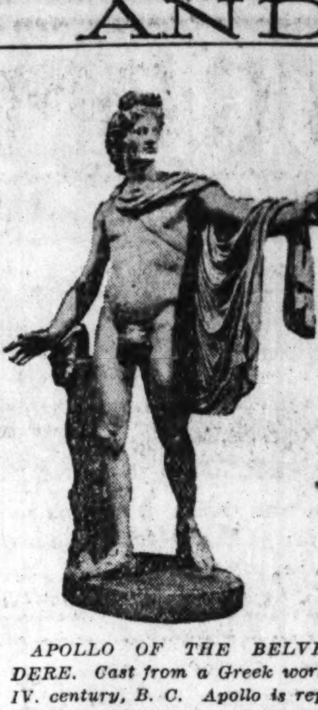
Mystery of Origin Adds to Charm of Apollo Belvedere

By Anne Ellis.



APOLLO OF THE BELVEDERE. Cast from a Greek work, IV. century, B. C. Apollo is represented as having just discharged an arrow.

YOU have heard, no doubt, of Mrs. Perkins of Boston who went on a tour of the European art galleries on her honeymoon. When asked by her mamma how she liked the Apollo of the Belvedere she replied: "Well, personally, I prefer Perkins."

This anecdote epitomizes the way the more effete of the critics feel about the statue which, next to the Aphrodite of Melos, has the greatest popular appeal of all Greek sculpture.

Tomes have been written pro and con, and Winckelman, once considered an authority, issued a lengthy panegyric ending, "It is the highest form of Greek art." But in the last century, especially, much has been discovered and dissected and discussed pertaining to Greek art, and the critics who through these discussions and dissensions have become purists condemn the Belvedere Apollo for its too great beauty, its unreality, and its almost theatric picturesqueness.

They claim anatomical faults which they consider inexcusable. For instance, one shoulder is supposed, according to measurement, to be higher than the other. The legs are too long in comparison to the torso to conform to the Greek standards. However, judged by the standards of America, the land of long legs, such a fault becomes a virtue. It may be that the sculptor made the legs too long on purpose, for, after all, Apollo is the god of light, and by lengthening the legs the effect of treading lightly on air so apparent in the statue is evidently produced.

The statue was found in 1445 at Antium, near Rome, and was bought by Pope Julius II., then cardinal. After he became pope he commissioned Michelangelo to place it in the Vatican and restore the left hand and broken fingers of the right. This latter Michelangelo refused to do, saying, so the story goes, that he was not worthy. It was later done by his pupil, one Montorosti.

The Apollo is of Carrara marble more than seven feet tall, and represented in the act of shooting an arrow. The sculptor's name is one of the eternal queries, as the statue may be a copy of one made in the fourth century B. C., or may have been made in a much later period. That it is not an original is established by the fact that a head of almost exact duplication of the head of the Apollo was found in Rome, and that originals were seldom made in marble. The drapery is disposed in such a way as to lead one to believe that the original must have been in metal, bronze, or ivory and gold, as so many were in an earlier period.

Some authorities think the statue was made about 280 B. C. to commemorate the repulsion of the Gauls from Delphi, which victory was attributed to the aid of the god Apollo. When the Gauls advanced against Delphi after having been led by traitors through a pass in the mountains, the people consulted the Delphic oracle, through whose mouth Apollo bade them not to fear; that he, Artemis, and Athene would defend them. When the Gauls reached Delphi they were defeated by the bravery of the Greeks, and by a terrible storm which spread confusion in their forces. In memory of this defeat three statues—one of Apollo, one of Artemis, and one of Athene—were erected in the temple, and the Belvedere is thought by some to be one of the group.

In spite of so much critical dissension no one visiting the Art institute, where is an excellent reproduction of the statue, can look coldly or unmoved upon the marbly limbs and gorgeous gesture of the sun god. If there is a weakness in the statue it is in the face. But it is a weakness which is in all idealism and which lives, not in the thing itself, but in the human heart which cannot long endure the ideal.

Whatever else one may say of the Apollo, it is a white thing full of scintillating color, like light seen through water, a rainbow among statues.

There is much local comment and discussion at the present exhibition of paintings at the Palette and Chisel club, 1012 North Dearborn street, about Oskar Gross' treatment of an old subject. You all know Salome, daughter of Herodias, and that her reputation has never been the best. She was considered something of a scandal even in the Herod family. But Mr. Gross has championed her at last.

He holds that she was not the pretty sensualist of Fritz von Stuck, nor the mystic of Boris Anisfeld, nor yet the unnatural of Oscar Wilde, but—what do you think?—the first demon flapper ever on record. He says she was merely a spoiled child and the forerunner of all the flappers of today. He admits she was fond of dancing and late hours, but then her mamma didn't set her a good example.

He "allows" she didn't wear too many clothes, but what flapper does? he asks you. He concedes that she tried to vamp her step-papa, but perhaps she wanted a new dress or something, and Herod, you know, was bringing home the family bacon. She didn't like the things John the Baptist was saying about her family, and, besides, he was always singing hymns when she wanted to dance, so she told papa to "cut off his head." But she didn't really mean it—it was merely the extravagance of youth's expression, as one should say, "Give him the air."

When the head of John was brought to her she was horrified and disgusted, and so Mr. Gross has painted her shivering, with closed eyes.

He has painted the portrait of a fascinating flapper, and who knows but his theory may be right? Certainly, like the flapper of the present, she was the family pet, and, like many another such, in common parlance, she "started something she couldn't finish." Whether you agree with Mr. Gross or not, you must admit the idea is an original one, and at any rate the picture won the Municipal Art league prize.

Might not the sculptor have had in mind to render in effect the characteristics of the sun god, rather than to give us his "counterfeit presentment," however beautiful? Did he not, perhaps, have in mind the might, the majesty, the swiftness of the god of light whose tread makes green the earth, whose healing breath annihilates disease, whose swiftness is the swiftness of winds? Did he, perhaps, not have in mind the ideal conception of such a god when he made Apollo?

Surely the attainment of the ideal must always be through the exaggeration of the normal. To criticize a work of art justly one must know what was in the mind of the creator, and until men can judge their own works dispassionately, which will probably be never, there can be no criticism. Eulogy there will be, and dissension, but justice never.

The Apollo Belvedere needs no defense here, however; it has had defenders among the great ones of the earth. Like the Venus of Melos, he has appeared in song and story. Lord Byron wrote of him as "the god of the unerring bow, the sun in human limbs arrayed." Michelangelo himself placed the statue in the Vatican, and any one studying his David, which he later made, cannot help but notice how he was influenced by the Apollo of the Belvedere.

Our own sculptor, Daniel Chester French, whose training in anatomy and practice of sculpture were at that time of less duration than a year, produced in 1875 the now famous statue of "The Minute Man" with only a cast of the Apollo as his model.

The Fête des Arts, the annual pageant of the art students of the Art institute, will be held on April 20 this year. The Palette and Chisel club, the Chicago Society of Artists, and the Antiquarian society have been asked to assist. An exhibition of really interesting lithographs by John Copley and his wife, Ethel Gabain Copley, is now in progress at the institute. There is also an exhibition of architectural etchings by Albany Howarth and Frederick Landseer Griggs. The Camera club exhibition will open April 15 and continue until the 27th.

The Arts club is having an exhibition of sculpture by a young Russian, Boris Lovett-Lorski, which is remarkable for its originality of conception and the effect of massiveness it gives in small size. Mr. Lovett-Lorski won a medal at the Milwaukee Art institute, which was rescinded on account of the fact that he is not yet a citizen of the U. S. A. In the Arts club exhibition are also some Spanish paintings by Claggett Wilson.

Jerome Blum will soon have an exhibition of pictures of Tahiti at the institute.

The Joliet Woman's club has voted a fund for the purchase of one of Frederic Grant's pictures, called "The Harvest."

Mrs. Indiana Gyberson has gone to New York, where she has been offered a contract by one of the galleries. She will still keep her studio in the Tree Studio building.

Woman's Work the World Over

Mrs. Bertha F. Drabelle has been appointed building inspector in St. Louis, with special supervision over department stores and other establishments where women are employed.

The fact that she lives thirty miles from the nearest moving picture theater does not deter Mrs. Nancy K. O'Brien of Osceola, Wis., driving her car that distance in one night just to see a show.

Still active at the age of 80 years, Mrs. J. M. Paterson is employed on the reportorial staff of a Marshall, Mo., newspaper. She has been employed by the same newspaper for the last forty-five years.

In the recent examination at Paris university, women have won more literary honors and prizes than men

Miss Elizabeth Kyle, who won the Brook scholarship at the Irish bar in Belfast, is the first woman barrister in the British Isles.

The plowing championship of England is to be decided in a contest between Miss Elsie Jackson and Miss Joan Hutchinson, two of the best women farmers in the British isles.

Although she is an American citizen and a graduate of the New York university, the recent marriage of Mrs. Jacob Landau of New York to a Britisher prohibits her practicing law in this country.

In order that she may live in greater state, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland has had her annual allowance doubled.

During the twenty-five years she has been a telephone operator in New York City Miss Anna L. Curtis has never been late for duty.

Are We a Nation of Low-Brows?

It is charged that the public is intellectually incompetent. Is this true? It is charged that the public is afraid of ideas, disinclined to think, unfriendly to culture. This is a serious matter. The facts should be faced frankly and honestly.

Without Cultural Leadership

The main criticism, as we find it, is that the people support ventures that are unworthy, that represent no cultural standards. The public is fed on low-brow reading matter, low-brow movies, low-brow theatrical productions, low-brow music, low-brow newspapers, low-brow magazines. As for ourselves, we think the criticism is unfair in that it does not recognize the fact that the public is without cultural leadership. Those who have the divine spark get off by themselves. We believe the public has never had a real chance, never had an opportunity to get acquainted with the great and the beautiful things of life. Given half a chance, we think the public will respond.

We believe there has been enough talk about the public's inferior taste. The time has come to give the public an opportunity to find out something about philosophy, science and the higher things. And the thing must be done at a low price, because the average person's pocketbook is not fat. As it stands, the publishers charge about five dollars a volume, and then wonder why the people stand aloof.

We believe we have hit on a way to find out if the people are interested in the deeper problems of life. And the first thing we decided was to fix a price that shall be within the reach of the person with the most slender purse.

We have selected a library of 25 books, which we are going to offer the public at an absurdly low price. We shall do this to find out if it is true that the public is not going to accept the better things when once given the chance. And we shall make the price so reasonable, so inviting, that there shall be no excuse on the ground of expense.

All Great Things Are Simple

Once the contents of the following 25 books are absorbed and digested we believe a person will be well on the road to culture. And by culture we do not mean something dry-as-dust, something incomprehensible to the average mind—genuine culture, like great sculpture, can be made to delight the common as well as the elect. The books listed below are all simple works and yet they are great—all great things are simple. They are serious works, of course, but we do not think the public will refuse to put its mind on serious topics. Here are the 25 books:

Are the People Ready to Read These 25 Books?

Schopenhauer's Essays. For those who regard philosophy as a thing of abstractions, vague and divorced from life, Schopenhauer will be a revelation.

The Trial and Death of Socrates. This is dramatic literature as well as sound philosophy.

Meditations of Marcus Aurelius. This old Roman emperor was a paragon of wisdom and virtue. He will help you.

The Discovery of the Future. H. G. Wells asks and answers the question: Is life just an unsolvable, haphazard struggle?

Dialogues of Plato. This volume takes you into Plato's immortal circle.

Foundations of Religion. Prof. Cook asks and answers the question: Where and how did religious ideas originate?

Studies in Pessimism. Schopenhauer presents a serious and well-studied viewpoint of life. The substance of his philosophy.

The Idea of God in Nature. John Stuart Mill. How the idea of God may come naturally from observation of nature is explained in this volume.

Life and Character. Goethe. The fruits of his study and observation are explained in this volume.

Thoughts of Pascal. Pascal thought a great deal about God and the Universe, and the origin and purpose of life.

The Olympian Gods. Tichenor. A study of ancient mythology.

The Stoic Philosophy. Prof. Gilbert Murray. He tells what this belief consisted of, how it was discovered and developed, and what we can today learn from it.

God: Known and Unknown. Samuel Butler. A really important work.

Nietzsche: Who He Was and What He Stood For. This is a carefully planned study.

Sun Worship and Later Beliefs. Tichenor. A most important study for those who wish to understand ancient religions.

Primitive Beliefs. Tichenor. You get a clear idea from this account of the beliefs of primitive man.

Three Lectures on Evolution. Ernest Haeckel's ideas expressed so you can understand them.

From Monkey to Man. A comprehensive review of the Darwinian theory.

Survival of the Fittest. Another phase of the Darwinian theory.

Evolution vs. Religion. You should read this discussion.

Reflections on Modern Science. Prof. Huxley's reflections definitely add to your knowledge.

Biology and Spiritual Philosophy. This is a very interesting and instructive work.

Bacon's Essays. These essays contain much sound wisdom that still holds.

Emerson's Essays. Emerson was a friend of Carlyle, and in some respects a greater philosopher.

Tolstoi's Essays. His ideas will direct you into many a profitable path of thought.

25 Books---2,176 Pages---Only $1.85---Send No Money

If these 25 books were issued in the ordinary way they might cost you as much as a hundred dollars. We have decided to issue them so you can get all of them for the price of one ordinary book. That sounds inviting, doesn't it? And we mean it, too. Here are 25 books, containing 2,176 pages of text, all neatly printed on good book paper, 3½x5 inches in size, bound securely in card cover paper.

You can take these 25 books with you when you go to and from work. You can read them in your spare moments. You can slip four or five of them into a pocket and they will not bulge. You can investigate the best and the soundest ideas of the world's greatest philosophers—and the price will be so low as to astonish you. No, the price will not be $25 for the 25 volumes. Nor will the price be $5, though they are worth more than that. The price will be even less than that sum. Yes, we mean it. Believe it or not, the price will be only $1.85 for the entire library. That's less than a dime a volume. In fact, that is less than eight cents per volume. Surely no one can claim he cannot afford to buy the best. Here is the very best at the very least. Never were such great works offered at so low a price. All you have to do is to sign your name and address on the blank below. You don't have to send any money. Just mail us the blank and we will send you the 25 volumes described on this page—you will pay the postman $1.85, plus postage. And the books are yours. Positively no further payments.

Are we making a mistake in advertising works of culture? Are we doing the impossible when we ask the people to read serious works? Are we wasting our time and money? We shall see by the manner in which the blank below comes into our mail.

Conflict
by
Clarence Budington Kelland

AN outdoor story vibrant with the clash of strong wills. When an effete debutante from an Eastern metropolis is transplanted to a wild lumber region where the primal elements are on the surface, it is either going to make or break her. Add to this setting a combination of love, intrigue, and sinister mystery and you have a situation which will more than hold the interest of the most blase of readers. If this narrative does not excite you nothing will. $2.00

KIMONO
By JOHN PARIS

"The Kimono is a symbol with all a symbol's mysterious influence,—of the subjection of women in Japan and the story of the white man's folly. The novel KIMONO is a brilliant and wonderful book."—JAPAN CHRONICLE.

KIMONO has been accorded more space not only in the literary columns, but also in the news and editorial columns of English, Scotch, Welsh, Japanese and Chinese publications than any other novel of recent years. It is, above all, a fascinating human love story of mixed marriage, passion and intrigue, which compels breathless attention from the first page to the very last. It tells of the marriage of an English naval officer to a Japanese girl, an orphan of great wealth who has been educated in Europe, of how they go to Japan against the advice of their friends and for a time are parted, half by the efforts of her Japanese relatives, and half by his discovery that her money is derived from property in the Yoshiwara.

The London Times says: "The flesh exposed by Mr. Paris does not inflame the senses, it chills them. He does not say that women are wicked, he leaves you to see that what they are forced to do is ugly."

THE CANYON OF THE FOOLS
By Richard Matthews Hallet

Richard Matthews Hallet has the most important of all prerequisites for good fiction writing — experience. He has wandered the face of the globe, and sailed the seven seas. All walks of life are equally familiar to this versatile man. He has an established reputation as a writer of adventure serials. Now he gives us a novel on the subject which occupied a good part of his time in the Americas.

The Canyon of The Fools is a tale of that most elusive of all mirages—gold. Men pray, worship, murder, and die for it. The author has utilized his wide experience and whimsical imagination in the creation of this intriguing narrative. You meet some of the quaintest characters imaginable, in some of the most exciting and mysterious of incidents. At all bookstores. $2.00.

Reversal of Thought

may be humbling or inspiring, but the trust many have in some outside power, that will surely establish the kingdom of heaven on earth apart from humanity, must be cast out. Else, in literal truth, we merely stand for progress.

The perfect order of things which man has believed God was to produce for him in another world, he himself is to produce in this world, with the help of the God that dwells in humanity.

Any other view shifts the blame for failure from man, where it belongs.

If you hear clearly the command, "You yourselves must do the good which you desire," and wish to know of an organization that has heard and seeks to live up to it, write to

Trieste Has Guaranteed Cure for Jazz Habit

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

TRIESTE.—The sophisticated and well informed American tourists who "think" the Grand canyon and Niagara falls "just wonderful," Paris "the grandest place," and the Folies Bergere "so quaint and different" will have to visit Trieste to discover "the most unique place" they "have ever saw."

Viewed from the shimmering Adriatic or from the top of the adjoining hills Trieste doesn't reveal her reticent charm, hidden like the beauty of an atrocious oyster in native haunts of slime. Like all great discoveries, those of this unique and delightful place are only revealed through the customary long and painful researches. Karlsbad and Hot Springs advertise their cures, but Trieste, the only city in the world that offers a guaranteed cure for the jazz habit, conceals hers with jealous care.

Scientists have stated the only difference between those addicted to morphine and those addicted to jazz is that the former are afflicted through a weak will, while jazz is thrust upon one like a sunstroke. Whatever may be the cause, no one will dispute that the world is now a slave to oscillatum Ethiopius, as jazz is scientifically called.

Trieste, to take the thunder from the advertisements of the local board of trade, cures people of the jazz habit in the same way that a psychopathic ward cures a man of the drink habit, or muzzles cure German police dogs of biting little children.

And how does Trieste accomplish this miracle? It is a gift, an inheritance, this unique quality. Trieste, to sacrifice a little grammar for force of expression, is the most unique city in the world; it hasn't got a jazz band, a cabaret, nor a male dancer who teaches the shimmy to fat ladies.

WORTH THE RISK

By Guy Lee.

They say it isn't good to loaf,
That labor's inspiration;
That trouble's lurking for the man
Without an occupation.
And some have even gone so far,
In pointing out the evil,
As to insist the toil-less state
Is linked up with the devil.

Well, mebbe so. I won't debate
The claims these seers advance;
But still, if I could dodge all work
And live, I'd take a chance.
Yep, whether it be epigram
Or lit-er-al-ly true,
I'd risk the mischief Satan finds
For idle hands to do!

"Truly the Graduola makes the Vocalion the perfect musical instrument."

The Robins have returned and Spring is here!

Have your Spring song in your own home—where your loved ones are

—Where you welcome your friends

—Where your children are daily learning the meaning of life.

This Special Model Vocalion was manufactured to sell at nearly double the figure we are now asking. It has all the advantages that make the demand for the Vocalion so great.

For example—You will hear no phonograph that has so sweet, mellow and beautiful a tone; you will see no phonograph that reflects such art in the simple elegance of its cabinet; and you will find no other phonograph equipped with the fascinating Graduola, with which you may play the phonograph as a musical instrument, voicing your own musical moods and fancies.

What this special offer includes—

The Phonograph—A beautiful, large cabinet model Vocalion—design and finish that will add distinction to your music room or parlor.

Universal Tone Arm—Plays all standard makes of records. No additional attachments required.

Whispering Hope—Duet—Sung by Grace Kerns, Soprano, and Nevada Van Der Veer, Contralto.

San Francisco Manila, Hongkong Direct Service

THE Pacific Mail Steamship Company, famous for 54 years in trans-Pacific travel, has begun a new service via Honolulu direct to the Philippines and Hongkong.

Now you can travel direct from San Francisco to Manila, the Pearl of the Orient, on new American built, United States Government-owned, oil-burning ships—your ships. Now you can come to know, under the most pleasant conditions, those strange, polyglot Islands that have played so stirring a part in later American history.

To know the East you must know Manila—rich in romance, abounding in strange customs, its teeming colorful population drawn from every quarter of the globe. Jap, Chinaman and Malay, Buddhist, Christian or Mohammedan, European, American or native Philippino, you'll find them all at Manila. Take advantage now of this new opportunity. Send in the blank below today for full information.

"This is the place"

"This is the place I've been looking for," said a guest a day or two ago in my office.

"Of course, I haven't lived in, nor even inspected, all the apartment hotels in Chicago, but I've been around quite a bit, as only seems possible for a newcomer with many generous friends.

"And all my looking-round finally convinced me that the Rogers Park Apartment Hotel offered me most for my money. I am certainly impressed with your accommodations and service—just as much, and probably even more, than the Sunday I made my first inspection, and you so kindly took me all over the place.

"You certainly make it homelike and comfortable, and I again congratulate you. I've seen every word in your Sunday advertisement, and I'm ready to say that you understate the case rather than pull too long a bow."

Drop in and see for yourself that the Rogers Park Apartment Hotel is all we say it is, and more. I will be glad to show you around—the hotel is my pride, and I'm never too busy to tell you why we offer so much more for the money than you will get elsewhere.

The successful use of Yeast Foam Tablets in nutritional disorders

Yeast users: This new pure yeast does not cause gas!

Yeast users troubled by weak, disordered or delicate stomachs will find gratifying relief in Yeast Foam Tablets. They have all the tonic value of baking yeast—and this great advantage: They do not cause fermentation

"I can't eat yeast: it upsets my stomach.

"I'd like to be able to eat yeast, for I know how much it would help me, but I simply cannot eat it.

"It upsets my stomach, fills me up with gas and causes me terrible distress!"

How often you have heard those familiar words!

Especially from people who have weak stomachs and chronic indigestion.

Baking yeast does cause gas

The fact of the matter is, of course, that the common baking yeast does cause fermentation.

If it didn't it wouldn't be baking yeast, because the chief purpose of baking yeast is to generate gas so that the bread will be full of "gas holes" and therefore light and fluffy.

This yeast doesn't cause gas nor belching

For those thousands of people who would eat yeast for its splendid health-building properties→if they only could—we have good news!

Yeast Foam Tablets do not cause gas.

And this further news: that these tablets are pure whole yeast and that they have all the therapeutic and tonic properties of baking yeast.

High vitamin content in small dose

Yeast Foam Tablets contain no drugs or other ingredients. They are from 4 to 5 times as concentrated as the ordinary baking yeast which insures the necessary vitamin potency in a much smaller dose.

Every lot of Yeast Foam Tablets is tested and proved to possess a high and uniform vitamin power.

To the Medical Profession: Yeast Foam Tablets meet your requirements; they are what you've been looking for; they have all the tonic properties of baking yeast—and this big outstanding advantage: they do not cause fermentation.

Why tonic value is greater in this yeast

Yeast Foam Tablets are made entirely of pure whole yeast—the richest source of the tissue-building vitamin

The amazing tonic properties of yeast, and its consequent popularity everywhere, have offered opportunities which patent medicine makers and others have been quick to capitalize.

The resulting flood of so-called vitamin preparations reveals many products which contain precious little yeast and insignificant quantities of vitamin.

Remember these facts

It is of utmost importance to you to remember that Yeast Foam Tablets are made entirely of pure whole yeast—that their vitamin content is proved by actual test to be both high and uniform—that they are endorsed by leading medical scientists—and that they are made by yeast experts, the world's largest manufacturers of dry yeast.

By virtue of these facts you are definitely assured that Yeast Foam Tablets have an exceedingly high tonic value—and that is what you really want.

You may take them with the positive knowledge that they will aid assimilation, promote growth and the formation of firm, healthy tissue, and that through these processes you will experience an energizing and generally upbuilding effect.

Take Yeast Foam Tablets for these conditions

Yeast Foam Tablets, which are so rich in the tonic and tissue-forming vitamin, are recommended for loss of appetite; indigestion; lack of physical strength and energy; anaemia; skin disorders; nervous troubles and many forms of vitamin deficiency and general ill health known as "run down" conditions.

ASTRONOMY

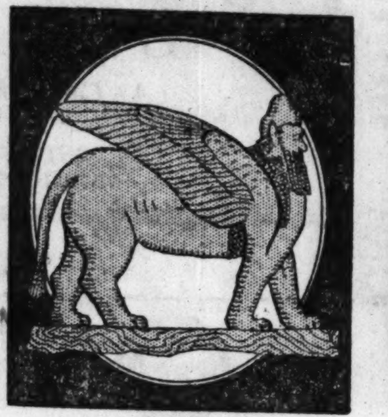
THE SHIFTING ZODIAC.

IT was sunset over the plains of Mesopotamia, 6,000 years ago. Level yellow rays, piercing through the bluffs beyond the Euphrates, turned the fields along the water into a pattern of woven green and gold. Cris-crossing ditches shone like arabesques of silver that stretched out into the tawny desert. In a high watch tower of sun dried brick, a group of seers was watching the fading day. The imperial astrologer was chief among them; the chief of tax gatherers stood beside him; there were secretaries and scribes, all watching the last shadow fall.

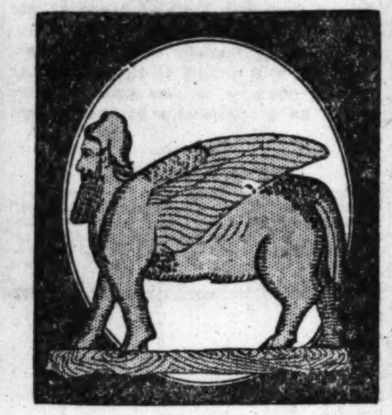
"See," said the astrologer, "the shadow falls a little north of east. Tomorrow at this time it will point south. Tomorrow the sun enters the sign of the Bull, and the day will be the equinox of spring. Night creeps down. Red Aldebaran flashes out in the sunset light over the parched hills, and below him the shimmering swarm of the Pleiades."

In Assyrian times Taurus was the sign of spring, and Leo, the lion, the first of summer. These symbols had great significance to the agricultural peoples of Mesopotamia. We find the motifs of winged lions and bulls occurring repeatedly in sculpture. The wings denote a heavenly aspect, the bulls the constellation of Taurus, and the lions the blazing sign of Leo.

Julius Caesar reformed the calendar. In his time the Chaldean signs no longer were fitted to the seasons. Spring began in Aries, the sign of the ram, and summer fell in Cancer, the crab. Caesar was familiar with calendars. He had once held the Roman office of Pontifix Maximum, or head of the church, where his chief duty had been to interpret the clumsy time reckoning of his day. He knew there were errors in the Roman calendars and so he discarded them, one and all. By decree he made the Egyptian calendar official, under the name Julian. It is this calendar, with a correction in the matter of leap years introduced by Pope Gregory in 1582, that we employ today.



Assyrian Winged Lion.



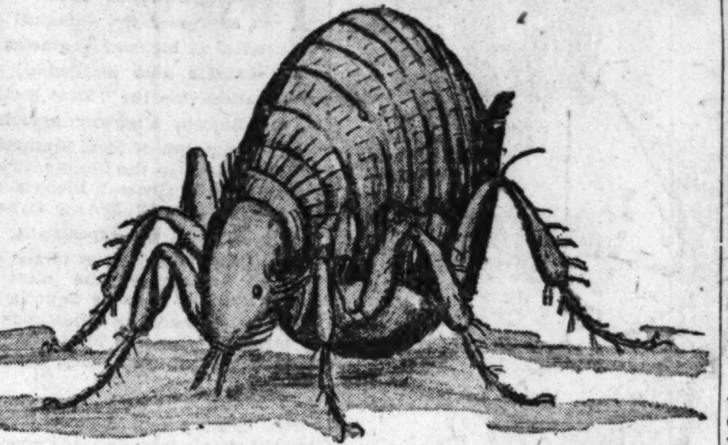
Assyrian Winged Bull.

The vernal equinox that fell on the 21st of last month was not in the constellation of Aries. It was in Pisces, the fish. To call it "First of Aries" is only a piece of fiction. The mid-summer sun will reach the Tropic of Cancer on the 21st of June, but it will not be in the constellation of Cancer that it does it, but in Gemini. Autumn begins in Virgo, and not in Libra, as in Roman times, nor Scorpio, as in Assyrian. Sagittarius is our winter constellation, not Capricorn, nor the rainy sign of Aquarius.

There is third motion to the sky besides the daily whirl and yearly turn. The earth precesses in its orbit, like the bodily wobble of a top that is running down. The turn is slow, and the shift in a year is so slight that only an astronomer can detect it. The poles of the earth make one revolution about the sky in 24,000 years. Their motion is constant, and is a timepiece.

The age of human traditions can be traced when they concern the stars. Taurus ceased to be the sign of spring 6,000 years ago, and hence all pictures of him in that rôle must have been created earlier than that. Perhaps when all of Asia is explored we will find references to the twins of Spring and Spica, blazing star of summer. Those will be symbols of the era when the vernal equinox fell in Gemini and the summer solstice in Virgo.

Insects



HE CANNOT SWIM.

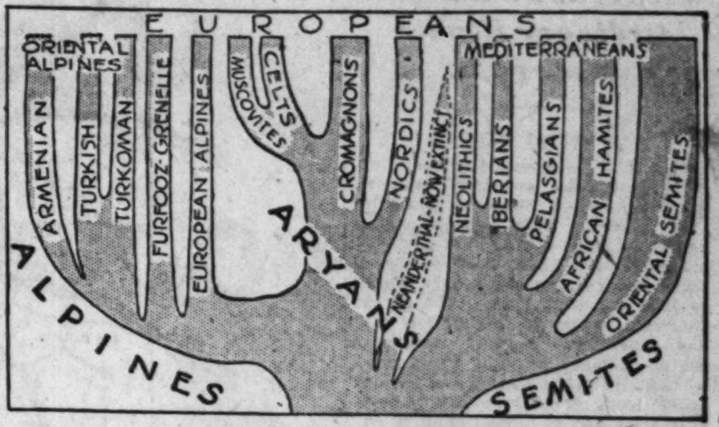
THIS is a flea. He habitually runs with his beak close to the skin of his host so that his dinner will not be too far away. Fleas are an order in themselves and are most closely related to the true flies, or Diptera. Nature has made absolutely no provision for a flea's life in case he gets wet. He is heavier than water and cannot swim. If he barely gets his skin wet he can no longer breathe and so he drowns.

MAN

ANALYZING CHARACTER.

THAT man has a foxy look, you note, and this one is an old bear. You are analyzing character when you make such comparisons. You recognize that one man has a preponderance of unscrupuious cunning in his makeup, like a fox, while the other is surly and growls like an ill natured bear. We all analyze character. We analyze our own minds, and by their patterns we try to fathom the thoughts of those with whom we come in contact. Few of us deliberately set out to make ourselves hateful to our neighbors, or to prey upon our fellows. We know enough of other people to believe that they would not like it.

An orator's power lies in his ability to attune his hearers' minds with his own. If he did not his audience would leave him. An author must know enough of psychology to enable him to write to his readers, or else his works will speedily find a place in the wastebasket. A salesman must make a mental contact with his customer before any discussion of the goods begins.



The Racial Family Tree of the Caucasian Stock Is Something Like This.

There are two parts to every reading of character. You must first know your own mind, and after that the minds of others. Knowing your own mind is most important. You live with others only a small part of the time, but with yourself the whole twenty-four hours of each day. Every thought you think, every memory you have, every outlook you take, every impression you make, is colored by what you are. How do you know that your own interpretations are correct? You do not, unless you have analyzed yourself.

A blond person is impatient. A sharp nose indicates quick perceptions, a slanting forehead denotes rapid selective memory. A convex face is the face of an adventurer. Red hair shows a rapid play of emotions. These facts are not empirical and unrelated. The blond coloring, the sharp nose, the forehead, the profile, and the hair are the attributes of a person of Nordic type. He has these mental traits because he is a Nordic; because his ancestors for thousands of years built up a Nordic mind for him.

Features mean next to nothing in themselves. They are only convenient handles whereby we are enabled to lay hold of the mind within and discover what course of evolution it has followed. A concave profile denotes a planner and a thinker, rather than a doer. The one is not the cause of the other. Both attributes point back to a common origin in a Cromagnon or Celtic heredity. Similarly a round head indicates slow logical thought, and a long, narrow one rapid, erratic processes. The shape of the bones forms a measure to gauge what generalities we may expect from such an individual.

Race is the most important index of character. Most of us think, feel, and act because of what our race has made us. Each of us comes into life carrying a half of our minds already formed. We are born with the foundations whereon we think. But from our first sight of day we begin gathering experiences of our own that will go further to shape our characters. We all conform to environment. Trains of thought racing through the mind wear grooves of habit in us like water through solid stone. Our habits, or the things that we have done, determine what our future tendencies will be.

Habits show in our faces, or walks, our poses, and our thoughts. Experience and education are the same thing when affecting character. Life is the true school. The lives we have lived and the experiences we have been through determine how we will act in the future.

"How then," you exclaim, "can I guide myself to a definite goal if the structure of my mind is all set and bound by rules?"

Human beings have wills. In this they differ from most other animals. Your will is the sum total of all your loves and hates. Love of power, love of home, love of pleasure, fear of stigma, hatred of ridicule, love of success—all these and many more are a part of you. You inherited them all. You have no power to alter any of them, but you can control them. No one is created with the ability to write an excellent line of letters or solve a column of figures, play a musical instrument or row a boat. To do any of these things requires the exercising of individual will. Every desire in the world must be resolutely inhibited except the one before your attention if you mean to succeed.

ELECTRICITY

Telegraphy

GEN. GRANT HEARD IT.

HERE is a photograph of the field telegraph that was used in Gen. Gran't headquarters from Fort Donelson to Vicksburg. On the inside of the cover is this legend:

"1865. Presented to C. F. Gross Dec. 1 by Lt. Col. W. L. Gross, A. Q. M. and Asst. Supt. U. S. Mil. Telegraph Mil. Dis. of the Gulf N. O. La."

"The set works," exclaimed Mr. Gross. "It worked in civil war days and it will work today."

The instruments are in a good state of preservation. They were remarkably well put together, and many of the parts are hand turned. Except for the loss of the lid clasp, a half a century of time has wrought no damage.

"I wonder," I thought, as I carried the set away, "how it would perform. Well, there is nothing like trying it. I will take it over to the telegraph room where wires from all over the country are converged."

"Mr. Anderson," I said, "here is Gen. Grant's field telegraph set. Do you think we can hook it in on some circuit?" He took the instrument and minutely examined it, then reached for a screw driver and a length of wire. He cut out his own relay and inserted the old set in its stead.

"Click—cli—i—ck—click click," it replied, "click click click."

"That's New York," he told me. "It is a good set." He put it through other tests. "A line receiver like this is really a relay," he added. "It makes a noise, but the click is faint. It has contact points for a sounder circuit. A sounder, you know, is the telegraph instrument that makes the loud, ringing click. You can hear a relay for only a few feet, but a sounder shouts at you across the room." He connected his sounding circuit to the third and fourth binding posts of the old set. "Click—cli—ck—click—click," came the message from New York.

"There has been no change in the principles of telegraphy since civil war times," he explained, "but there have been a number of improvements in apparatus. Take for instance our bug.

"A bug is an automatic key. It gets its name from the fact that it works sideways like an insect's jaws instead of up and down. When you press to the right the mechanism sends dots. It would send them forever if you were to hold the key down that long. You press left to send dashes. The old style up and down key could ruin a man's arm. After a certain length of time one set of muscles grew tired and telegrapher's cramp would set in. A man with cramps always had to stop working. A much larger number of muscles are used to run the bug, and many old telegraphers who broke down at the key have learned the new way and are as good as ever."

INSIDE A VACUUM BULB.

DID you ever notice a dark film on the inside of the glass of a tungsten incandescent light globe, particularly when the lamp was about worn out? What is it? Metal. But how did it get there? The inside of the globe is a vacuum. All the air has been pumped out and the tube was sealed off at the nib on the bottom.

When a current goes through the wire it causes particles of electricity called electrons to wrench themselves free. The space about a hot filament is full of flying atoms. It is this metal, recondensed, that makes the film inside the glass.

An audion bulb makes use of this phenomenon. It bears in addition to a hot filament a metal plate, and between the filament and plate a grid of wire.

Let us make ourselves small, tinier by far than any mote ever seen through the microscope. We stand inside a vacuum bulb, with eyes to see electricity.

The filament is glowing red hot, and out from it pours a veritable rain of electrons. They fly in streaking showers, whistling and whining over our heads like bullets from machine guns. The plate near by bears a positive charge because it is connected to the positive pole of a battery. As the electrons fly they are attracted to it and pour in on it like rattling rain. The grid stands between the two—inert, chargeless, useless.

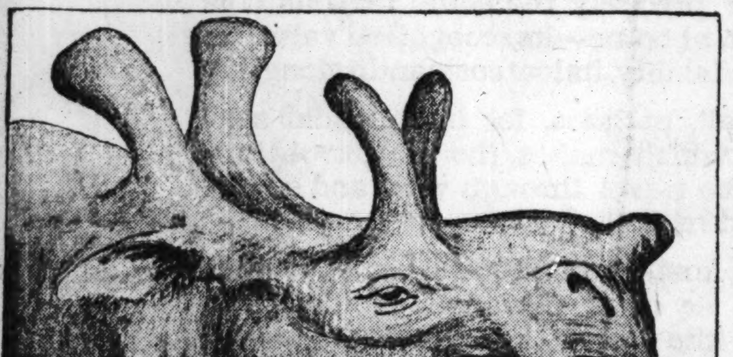
But now some one is speaking at the transmitter. It is not a voice that we hear, but waves of sound like blasts of gases from far off explosions. The telephone sends a current to the grid. It is negative. The flying electrons shun the grid. They deviate when they meet its field of force and will have nothing to do with it.

The tone changes, the phase of the phone current is reversed; the grid takes a positive charge, like the plate. The hissing bullets no longer hate it. They bend to it, they wheel around it—they fly, they turn, they pirouette about it, like a myriad of moths about a light. The positive charge increases. Great swarms of electrons surge in. Positive vanishes. Instantly they are gone. Negative returns. They now abhor the wire they so lately sought. Positive—and they are back once more.

The grid in a thermonic vacuum tube controls the passage of the current. A small, varying charge here holds back or lets go a much larger charge between the filament and plate. When a receiver is connected across the plate circuit these variations are converted into sound.

An audion bulb will magnify sounds without distortion to any intensity from a whisper to a shout. Without it radio telegraphy would me impossible.

GEOLOGY

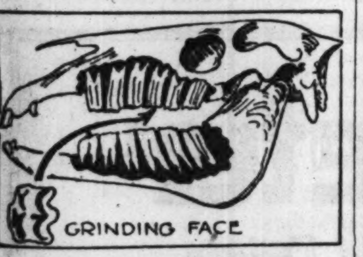


Eobasileus Is Not Here Because He Couldn't Eat Grass.

WHY GRASSES HAVE STRONG STEMS.

DID you ever examine a horse's tooth? If so the folded ridges of enamel must have impressed you greatly. Equine teeth are different from ours. Their grinding surfaces are crossed by folded edges of enamel, while ours have points or cusps.

Cusps pierce food as we chew. Try biting a thin sheet of wax on your back teeth. Notice the holes at the bottom of each tooth print. We eat only foods of a sort that are readily broken up by a piercing action, such as bread, meat, and soft vegetables. Try chewing grass, which is a horse's normal diet. Your teeth will have difficulty in reducing its coarse structure for piercing action is out of place on it. Even after chewing for many minutes the grass will remain fibrous and unresolved in your mouth. Moreover the feeling of the blades on your teeth will be distinctly unpleasant. Grass crunches and grinds and sets your teeth on edge. It is too hard a food for human mastication. Horses' teeth have been evolved to chew, while ours have not. The heavy cross ridges of the former act like knives upon stems and quickly chop them up.



A Horse's Grinding Teeth.

The long strong crowns on horses' teeth are built to stand a great deal of wear. They are perhaps the most efficient chewing mechanism of any animal in the world. But geology shows that many early competitors of the horse fell by the wayside in the race for life.

To understand why this was so, we must learn something of the struggle in evolution that is going on between grasses and herbivorous animals.

The grain bearers, as the grasses are called, are a fairly recent development in plants. They did not appear until the close of the age of reptiles. Before their rise the ground was undoubtedly covered with bracken, rushes, and various small shrubs, none of which were rich enough support to a grazing fauna. Grazers appeared only with the rise of grasses. The two came on the earth together, the one the preyer, the other the preyed upon.

A vegetable's defense is passive, but it is often none the less effective. The weakest links in the life process of the herbivors are their teeth. These essential structures were hardened by stony deposits of lime. The grasses had a harder stone at hand, silica. They could pit the stone of their stems against the stony teeth of animals and wear them down.

Then the race began. Every step in the evolution of the plants was for more silica. Every step in the development of teeth was for more lime and for harder and stronger patterns of grinders to reduce the silica. The animals whose teeth could not keep pace with the development of grasses are extinct. Our quarries are filled with the bones of those who failed, but the ones who succeeded still graze the fields. The battle goes on today—with the grasses far in the lead. Examine a bit of dried grass. Note its hard, glassy structure. Carefully burn out the woody parts, and notice the high per cent of stony ash that it contains.

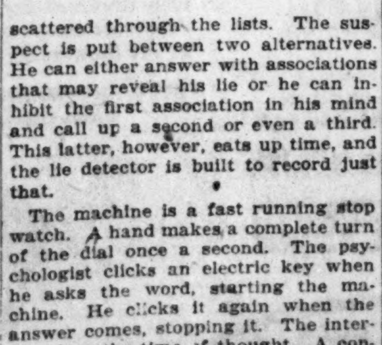
Psychology

DETECTING LIES BY MACHINE.

HERE is a sketch of a machine for detecting lies. It works so well that its enforced employment would come dangerously near compelling a man to testify against himself. It operates on the principle of memory association. Psychologists have found that lies are purposely substituted memories. A liar remembers one thing and deliberately says something else. A weighing of truth and untruth, taking the untruth, is a falsehood. A misinformed, confused, or imperfect memory does not produce lies, however much it may prompt the utterings of unrealities. A lie is a choice of thoughts, and the choice takes time. Herein lies the idea of the machine.

The subject is asked a large number of words and is requested to speak the first association that comes to mind. Words always call up associated memories at rates up to about sixteen per second. The subject answers rapidly on innocent words, such as bird cage, bison pen, dollar bill, ladder climb, chimney smoke, and so reveals his rate of thought.

Now suppose he has stolen something and is suspected of having hidden it. A number of words connected with the facts of his supposed crime as closely as they can be determined are scattered through the lists. The suspect is put between two alternatives. He can either answer with associations that may reveal his lie or he can inhibit the first association in his mind and call up a second or even a third. This latter, however, eats up time, and the lie detector is built to record just that.



Liars, Beware.

The machine is a fast running stop watch. A hand makes a complete turn of the dial once a second. The psychologist clicks an electric key when he asks the word, starting the machine. He clicks it again when the answer comes, stopping it. The interval gives the time of thought. A concealed or changed thought uses up from two to a dozen times as much interval as an innocent one.

There is only one way to beat this machine. You can answer all questions alike on the first thought and trust to the psychologist's dullness not to connect the incriminating answers.

MATHEMATICS

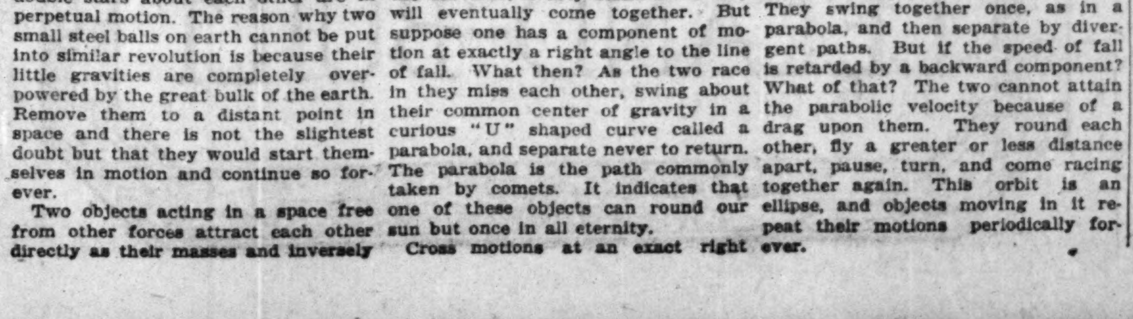
PERPETUAL MOTION NO FALLACY.

DID you ever try to make a perpetual motion machine? I did. The device didn't work. No such outfit ever has. I really hardly expected that it would—there was just the barest, vaguest chance that maybe—perhaps—it might. Who has not felt the thrill of watching one's ideas take life and do things? If it were not for this thrill and the hope that somewhere, beyond the portals of the known, however seemingly inaccessible, there lay new discoveries, the human race would still be living in savagery.

Your perpetual motion device probably differed from mine. You may have used wheels and cogs where I used molecules. The design is the least important thing in any plan. The big question is how to overcome friction.

A successful perpetual motion machine must start itself and run forever. It need not create energy; this thought is foreign to the true idea. It must only move with all forces eventually returning to a balance.

When I made my little device I firmly believed perpetual motion possible. I believe it stronger than ever now, for I have seen objects through my telescope performing cycles of motion which fulfill its every condition.



The Moons of Jupiter Are in Perpetual Motion.

Shapes in the sky, the planets about the sun, the moons about their respective planets, comets in their orbits, double stars about each other are in perpetual motion. The reason why two small steel balls on earth cannot be put into similar revolution is because their little gravities are completely overpowered by the great bulk of the earth. Remove them to a distant point in space and there is not the slightest doubt but that they would start themselves in motion and continue so forever.

Two objects acting in a space free from other forces attract each other directly as their masses and inversely as the square of the distance between them. If they are both at rest they will fall together on a line which joins their centers. It does not make any difference where they are placed in the universe; if they stand alone they will eventually come together. But suppose one has a component of motion at exactly a right angle to the line of fall. What then? As the two race in they miss each other, swing about their common center of gravity in a curious "U" shaped curve called a parabola, and separate never to return. The parabola is the path commonly taken by comets. It indicates that one of these objects can round our sun but once in all eternity.

Cross motions at an exact right angle are unusual, and theoretically are well nigh impossible. If the motion of the two has a little component in the direction of fall, their speeds will be a little increased, and they will move in a curve called a hyperbola. They swing together once, as in a parabola, and then separate by divergent paths. But if the speed of fall is retarded by a backward component? What of that? The two cannot attain the parabolic velocity because of a drag upon them. They round each other, fly a greater or less distance apart, pause, turn, and come racing together again. This orbit is an ellipse, and objects moving in it repeat their motions periodically forever.

MOTORDOM

New Timing Gear Is One Solution for Noisy Motor

When Teeth Become Worn Ordinary Repair Work Fails.

BY HIGH SPEED.

ONE of the greatest causes of engine noise and inefficiency results when the timing gear drive becomes worn. Every engine has at its front end a set of gears, or sprockets and chains, by means of which the turning crankshaft is able to turn the other parts, such as the camshaft, water pump, ignition unit, and generator. In some engines a set of ordinary straight tooth gears is used, in others the gears have helical teeth, in others a form of bevel gear drive and a vertical shaft is employed, while another class employs a silent chain. All methods have their advantages and disadvantages, so for a given set of results any one is a compromise.

The timing gears, commonly called the front end, if of correct design will produce little noise, but let the gearing be cheaply made, let misalignment or wear take place, and there is produced a gear noise of disagreeable pitch. The ordinary straight tooth gear, little used now except on the cheapest cars, is difficult to keep quiet. Even the best straight tooth gears will howl or growl or knock. On one make of car the name can be given without looking at the car, but simply by listening to the front end. It has a characteristic noise. In order to effect quieter running the hellical form of tooth was used, but even this, unless well made, also is noisy.

It is, however, used on most of the cars today. To further effect quiet running the gear material has been changed. Some years ago it was quite common to employ only cast iron gears, or perhaps two cast iron with a bronze gear between them. Today various materials are used for gears, including steel, usually for the crankshaft; cast iron, bronze, aluminum alloy, fabric, special nonresonant compounds, known by various trade names, such as condensite and fabroil. In some engines the center of the gear is of one material and the outside rim with the teeth of another, so that the wear taking part may be correct for its work and the center may be made so that the sound will not be magnified. Usually the center is of compressed cloth, which deadens sound.

The silent chain drive at one time had quite a vogue, then dropped out and now seems to be coming back again. The early troubles with this form of drive arose because the chain stretched and needed frequent adjustment. The chain life was short, running 8,000 to 10,000 miles at the very maximum. The chainmakers have learned how to produce parts that do not stretch so much, and, coupled with the fact that outside adjustments are provided, it makes the chain drive seem a great deal more desirable. We are in the habit of calling it a silent chain drive, but the silence is not the only reason for its existence. The chain constitutes a flexible unit in the drive, and therefore the shock on the camshaft is eased and bearing wear reduced. The chain adjustment must be kept correct, for if it is too tight the chain will howl, and if too loose it will slap against the housing.

CHICAGO motorists who plan trips this year to the Atlantic seaboard will discover completed highway systems that rank among the finest so far developed in the United States. Beginning at the Pennsylvania line and running eastward, practically every state road of any importance is paved without a break from state to state, and many departments are well along in permanent paving construction of secondary routes.

The map, sixth in THE TRIBUNE'S state highway series, shows Rhode Island arteries which bear about the same amount of freight and passenger traffic as do railroads and traction lines. As shown by the progress report, the system is practically complete and is maintained in excellent repair throughout the year.

SERVICE IN LONDON.

In England an automobile association furnishes pilots familiar with the metropolitan area o. London, to tourists on the outskirts of the city in order to guide them by the best route, avoiding traffic, etc. The service also is made available for shopping and sightseeing.

Engineers Submit Plans for Modern Highway Lighting

THE necessity for lighting main highways in the open country so impressed the technical committee of highway engineers and other experts who determined the specifications for the "ideal section" of the Lincoln Highway association that the problem of ideal illumination was passed on to the illuminating engineers of the General Electric company, headed by W. D'Arcy Ryan.

As a result of the experiments conducted in the laboratories of the company at Schenectady, the most advanced type of highway lighting unit that has yet made its appearance will be installed when the ideal section is constructed in Lake county, Ind., this summer.

The lighting unit developed is extremely simple in design and economical with regard to installation cost and operation, as well as maintenance. It embodies an entirely new principle for collecting the light rays and casting them only where needed. There is no need for lighting the vacant fields adjacent to a highway, and engineers have spent years studying methods of preventing such a waste of power. In the ideal section lighting unit, this is accomplished by a nest of reflectors—a series of three, one within the other. These reflectors serve to collect the light which would be reflected upward and outward over the adjoining fields, and cast it upon the surface of the road, at the same time preventing any possibility of glare, the danger and annoyance of which is appreciated by every motorist.

The efficiency of the nested reflectors is best appreciated when it is stated that 3,700 candle power is obtained from each end of the reflector, with only a 250 candle power lamp in the fixture. The bracket holding the lamp and reflector is affixed to an ornamental concrete pole, thirty-five feet high and is adjustable in both the horizontal and vertical positions, permitting the illumination of hillsides and curves in the road.

One of these units will be installed every 250 feet along the edge of the paving on the ideal section, alternate lighting standards being on opposite sides of the road. All power wires for lighting will be underground and the lights controlled by an entirely automatic oil time switch, which can be adjusted to turn them on and off at any determined hour in the evening and the morning.

One Cent Per Day.

One and one-tenths cents per day was the cost of the American highways to the individual man, woman, and child in this country last year, after deducting the amount paid by automobiles in license fees, according to Thos. H. MacDonald, chief of the U. S. bureau of public roads.

Just So.

It may not be generally known, but Germany has nearly 100 auto factories, employing 75,000 people and with a production in 1920 of nearly 20,000 cars.

With the present exchange rates it is impossible to literally compare prices with American cars but it can be assumed that with German labor as low as it is and with the proverbial German industriousness and sales ingenuity, it will not be to the advantage of this country to lose sight of Germany as a competitor in the foreign field.

MAPS BY THE ROAD.

The state road commission of Maryland is erecting road markers on highways that will not only inform the traveler where he is but give him a map to guide him on the way. The signs also call attention to dangerous places, as well as explain the Maryland traffic laws for the benefit of the stranger motorist.

Rated High all Over the World

Almost everywhere abroad—east or west—you will find a decided preference for the Hupmobile as representative of the best that America produces.

Why do foreign lands rate the Hupmobile so high? For precisely the same reasons it is rated high at home—its recognized value, its recognized ability, its low costs and its long life.

Most of all, perhaps, for its splendid self-reliance, which makes the Hupmobile a favorite for travel through wild and sparsely settled regions.

It is this quality of self-reliance which above all its other remarkable attributes, has won the lasting admiration of motor car buyers everywhere.

LINCOLN
MOTOR CARS

Beauty

LINCOLN MOTOR CARS are supremely beautiful to look upon.

Their beauty does not lose its charm, because it is the full embodiment of rare good taste and true refinement.

The charm does not grow less, because the beauty of the coachwork is not merely an embellishment for a mediocre mechanism.

Even were they outwardly less elegant, LINCOLN MOTOR CARS would still, in truth, be beautiful because of the infinite fineness of their mechanical structure.

But the fineness of the mechanism is not for beauty's sake. It is for the sake of how that fineness expresses itself in superlative performance, and in unremitting constancy.

The beauty which delights the eye and the beauty of the mechanism so unite and blend that the LINCOLN owner luxuriates in a mode of travel in which none but LINCOLN owners are privileged to participate.

And this superior mode of travel is persisting, in the LINCOLN, long beyond what motordom has been accustomed to experience.

Warn-O-Meter
The Sign of An Experienced Driver

The Warning Light Seen Day and Night

THE experienced driver is well acquainted with the disastrous effects of motor overheating, and appreciates the protection this beautiful, electrically operated instrument affords. You can't overlook it. Its brilliant electric signals are always perceptible. It is not necessary to turn a spotlight on it to read it after dark, as it is as easily seen at night as in the day.

The Warn-O-Meter registers motor temperature taken from the motor direct—not from the water in the radiator. It gives you facts.

The elegant finish and attractive design of this instrument make it a conspicuously beautiful accessory for your car. In the non-indicating side of the Warn-O-Meter, a special insignia may be substituted for the nameplate, illuminated by the lights within the instrument and attractively displayed day and night. Plates or special design are extra equipment, but may be secured at any Stewart Service Station.

DE LUXE MODEL, all nickel finish, $12.50.
STANDARD MODEL, black and nickel finish, $10.00.
FORD MODEL, similar in finish to the Standard. Furnished with special radiator cap, $10.00.

When used with the Stewart Pentagon Cap, the Warn-O-Meter is doubly attractive. Riveted on to prevent theft. Top of cap lifts up on a hinge to permit filling the radiator. Price of cap, $6.00.

Every Voter Should Read This Before Primary Day

To All Republican Voters in Cook County

THE ISSUE IN THE COMING PRIMARY ELECTION is one of "principle" more than "candidates."

We appeal to all patriotic Republicans to vote next Tuesday, April 11th, for those candidates who will demonstrate that principle.

Most Republicans have been disgusted with the factional fight in the party which has existed for some time past. You can never remedy that condition unless you go to the polls and vote --and vote right--when you have the opportunity.

HERE'S YOUR CHANCE.

Do you approve and do you want to endorse Governor Small's administration in public office? If you do not, then be sure that you "do not" vote for the candidates he is "for." You may be sure he is not "FOR" any candidate endorsed by Attorney General Brundage.

A vote "for" the Brundage candidates would be equivalent to a vote "against" Mr. Small.

Do you want to give Mayor Thompson a vote of approval and endorsement for his administration and the million dollar "expert fees?" If you do not, don't vote for the candidates he is "for." You may be sure he is not "FOR" any candidates endorsed by the Attorney General.

The Mayor in a recent vitriolic speech advised his hearers to "vote against every man on the Brundage slate," which is an "indirect" endorsement of the opposition candidates and showed conclusively that the Mayor believes his interest will be best served by electing those candidates who have not been endorsed by Mr. Brundage.

We submit that the Mayor is not in the habit of co-operating and helping any one unless he believes them to be HIS LOYAL, TRUE AND DEVOTED FRIENDS, with probably appropriate "secret pledges" fully binding, in the event of election. Voters may, therefore, be assured that a vote in favor of the candidates endorsed by Mr. Brundage will be a vote "against" Mr. Thompson and his ambitions.

Are you opposed to the present high taxes? If so, a vote in favor of the candidates endorsed by Mr. Brundage is a vote of protest against such taxes. Attorney General Brundage has stood pre-eminently in the foreground in opposition to malfeasance in office and has gone on record at every opportunity in opposition to graft, waste, extravagance and misappropriation of public funds.

One Other Important Consideration

This Primary will give citizens "their only chance" to have a voice in the management of the Republican Party, which must be taken from the hands of those now in control, and restored to the control of the Republican voters, by the election of loyal, patriotic Republicans upon the "Republican State Central Committee"

Every voter should be certain to inquire and ascertain whether the candidate for the State Committee, in his district, is opposed to the present control of that Committee by Governor Small.

The following candidates for STATE CENTRAL COMMITTEEMEN are pledged to redeem the Committee from the present Thompson-Small Control:

(Candidates for State Central Committeemen will be found in the Sixth place on your ballot.)

CUT THIS OUT FOR REFERENCE so you can mark your ballot after you find what "District" you vote in.

THE REAL ISSUE therefore before the Republican voters today is the wresting of the control of the Republican Party from those who have been misrepresenting and disrupting it—a matter of "principle" which appeals to all loyal Republicans more than a factional fight.

Mr. Brundage has always stood for a "union" of the best elements in the Republican Party and has always used his best endeavors to bring such a union about and preserve it. He did everything in his power to present a solid front against the City Hall organization at this primary, but other leaders failed to go along on such a program.

Sufficient progress was made, however, and its realization seemed so probable that the City Hall did not put up a county ticket. We, therefore appeal to all loyal Republican voters to stand by the men who "stuck to the end" for a united Republican Party, and the way for you to stand by such men is to vote for the candidates who have the endorsement of Mr. Brundage and Mr. Crowe.

Mr. Brundage has had the courage as Attorney General to enforce the law no matter how important the official's position happened to be, on the theory that "No man is above the Law."

Mr. Crowe is making a valiant and courageous fight against tremendous odds, as the chief law-enforcing officer of this county. The State's Attorney needs your support and co-operation in order to stamp out vice and corruption in this community.

Mr. Crowe says he split with the Mayor because he could not go along with him without violating his oath of office. Mr. Deneen seems to be unhappy about it.

It makes no difference whether people were with Mr. Thompson or not in the past. The great and important question in this Primary is where people stand "TODAY." ARE THEY FOR MR. THOMPSON OR IS MR. THOMPSON FOR THEM. Mr. Thompson cannot be defeated unless his associates leave him and join those who are uncompromisingly against the Mayor.

Let all good citizens seize this Primary Day as a "civic opportunity" to elect men to office who will substitute "business" for "bunk" and ultimately redeem the pledge made to the citizens of Chicago by Mayor Thompson, when first elected Mayor of Chicago, that he would make this City the safest place in the world in which to live. Let us relieve the United States Government of the necessity of having their mail wagons guarded by Federal soldiers so that mail can be "safely transported" through Chicago's "loop" district.

Your enthusiastic co-operation on Primary Day is most urgently requested.

Wayfarers Discover How State Mud Tax Is Levied.

Have you paid your mud tax?

You have and you will continue to pay day after day through the spring months if you have crops to move to market, goods to move to the farm, children to send to country school, or if you are in any way identified with the 90 per cent of people in Illinois who are directly affected by motor transportation. The toll is on. It amounts to millions each year without leaving a single improvement for the money expended. So long as the Illinois state highway system remains uncompleted this tax, double or triple the amount levied for road building, cannot be dodged by people of the state.

Here is a story of how the tax was paid last week in one instance. Thousands experienced the same mud battle in some measure:

BY J. L. JENKINS.

"HOP out" came the order in the midst of the last March drizzle, "on a flying trip to the Illinois coal mining centers for pictures and news of the mine strike. With all this road talk on tap, it might be well to check up on Illinois roads too early this spring."

"About noon The Lark was nosing through a sheet of cold rain out Ogden avenue, headed through Riverside and Lyons to Summit and the Illinois valley concrete road leading down to St. Louis. A fast ride over firm footing brought the car to Lockport and its writhing sea of mud that flows over the bumps of the main street toward Joliet. Lockport has very carefully paved its side streets, while the main artery remains a series of deep shell holes and yawning craters, filled to the brim with ooze in rainy weather.

Fair paving leads into Joliet and a rough mile or two over Railroad avenue links up the new paving again to the southwest. Then comes clear, if crooked, sailing through Morris and Seneca to another inland mud sea running through the town of Marseilles, which is buried deep in its ancient earth bed. Luck and plenty of power will bring most cars through Marseilles to the pavement leading to the eastern limits of Ottawa, where more mud welcomes the traveler to the town. A detour over a gravel road north of the river carries traffic to a point just above Utica, where the road turns south over two slippery, breakneck hills to connect with the pavement south of Starved Rock park and La Salle.

Two fairly large holes form obstacles in the detour road. At one a man in low shoes, his car standing on the edge of the rough, was slowly wading through the muck.

"Some of 'em haven't any bottom," he remarked, cheerfully, climbing back into his car. "Best to explore them before going ahead."

Pictures having been made at La Salle and Spring Valley mines, the latter almost hidden by deep clay on town roads, the expedition headed out again at 9:30 p. m. in a driving rain to attempt the long detour between concrete ends at Spring Valley and Bureau. A rough gravel and stone road winds west and north around the hills, dipping through Seatonville and climbing into Hollowayville. Here and there water banked up to the running boards, but the plowing was good to the west edge of the latter town, where famous Illinois 'sink holes' abound. The first, lurking in a seemingly safe gravel surface a mile out of town, swallowed all four wheels of the car.

Struggles proved useless, rear wheel chains only serving to dig deeper and deeper into the soft muck until the running boards alone rested on the road.

An hour's pounding on unfriendly doors to the accompaniment of a dog chorus at last roused a drowsy farmer, who consented to bring his team to the rescue. The team, however, failed to move the car an inch, and a second farmer with another team was called in. Four horses were no better than two. Shovels were brought into play, and the rear wheels jacked up to allow wide boards to be slipped under them. At 2 a. m., with the horses straining and motor roaring, the car backed out of the hole and into the graveled farm yard.

"This," remarked the mud caked farmer, "is a state road, No. 7. It's the most important road in this part of the county. I see Gov. Small has put off his trial so he can build roads, but we haven't seen anything but mud out here, nor don't expect to. Better come into the basement and thaw out."

The expedition lost no time accepting the invitation and surrounded the basement heater, also a pot of steaming coffee brewed by the local pilot and a measure of home made wine that appeared mysteriously from some dim corner. The last, the host said, was nonalcoholic, adding that a man can't be too careful these days in obeying the law and also that a man had died in Hollowayville from drinking moonshine that very day.

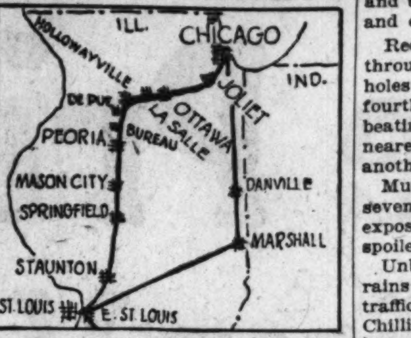
The first mud toll checked up: teams and labor, $10; three hours lost, wear and tear on car and waste of gasoline and oil, indeterminate.

Redirected, the Lark turned south through DePue, navigating three bad holes only to fall into an impossible fourth at 3 a. m. with hail and snow beating down from the north and the nearest house two miles away. At 6 another farmer was requisitioned.

Mud toll: $10 for team and labor, seven hours lost, one long night of exposure and wet feet, and a temper spoiled forever.

Unbroken concrete laughs at spring rains and carries countless tons of traffic south through Henry, Sparland, Chillicothe and Peoria to Springfield, but everywhere else in the state all main roads were completely out. The Corn Belt trail east from Peoria was impassable. The old Ocean to Ocean trail, linking Springfield with Decatur, Champaign and Danville was impassable. All cross state trails to Cairo were either washed out or bottomless and the only passable route back to Chicago lay south through St. Louis, north and east over the Old National pavement to Marshall and north through Danville over the Dixie pavement, a detour of some 300 miles.

LINES OF SAFETY



Here is the Illinois paved circle which was practically completed under Lowden construction contracts. Present gaps in the pavement between La Salle and Bureau make the continuous trip from Chicago to Peoria and Springfield practically impossible in wet weather.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Find the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions which are accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send in your name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." No questions will be returned. For today's question E. J. Heeren, 3325 7½ avenue, Rock Island, Ill., was awarded $5.

The Question.

Should Chicago use Detroit's method of reducing the number of automobile accidents?

Where Asked.

At Gould garage, 868 North Clark street.

The Answers.

Louis Peters, 857 North Clark street, auto supplies. — Anybody would say yes to that question. Everybody is in favor of anything that will cut down auto accidents. Our great trouble is, there are too many wild drivers on the street. Another thing, autoists are too lax in obeying the rules and laws we have here. Apparently, stringent laws and rigid enforcement of these laws are absolutely necessary.

George Gould, 868 North Clark street, garage owner.—If the system used in Detroit were put into force here, I believe it would materially reduce auto accidents. If motorists would only be more careful about observing the laws that are now on our books, we would have fewer fatalities. We have good laws on our books now, but they are not obeyed and they are not rigidly enforced.

Arthur S. Caruthers, 800 North Clark street, real estate. — The Detroit method of reducing auto accidents has been recommended by Chief Fitzmorris, I understand, and it is undoubtedly a good one. One of the ideas is to make the pedestrian walk with the whistle, thus preventing "jay" walk. This town is noted for people going contrary to the whistle whenever they feel like it. We must have system in our traffic movement, and violations must be severely penalized.

E. L. Gannon, 4502 North Artesian avenue, American Railway Express representative.—I certainly am in favor of the Detroit method, or any other method that will cut down our heavy auto accident toll. Anybody intoxicated caught driving a car, or driving reckless in any way, should be given the limit in punishment. Cars are valuable things, but human life is invaluable, and any one guilty of endangering human life—well, it is hard to say what should be done to them.

G. F. Buck, 837 North Harding avenue, pattern inspector.—Enforcement makes the laws of Detroit stand out. I believe that by the strong enforcement of our laws we can reduce auto accidents the same as Detroit has. It is merely a question of enforcing the laws, the same as is done in Detroit.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

AUTOMOBILE row has lost its dean of air cooled car distributors in the recent resignation of Frank H. Sanders from the Franklin distributorship. The Chicago district, under his direction, last year led the United States in sales, according to factory announcement, and was pointed out as a pattern in automobile merchandising. Mr. Sanders has handled the Franklin in Chicago for the last ten years. He has not yet announced his future plans.

The Durant "Daylight Prosperity Special," loaded with 180 new Durant fours for western distribution, arrived in Chicago Monday morning. It was transferred to the Santa Fé tracks here, under the direction of W. C. Auble, Chicago dealer, for the remainder of the run to Kansas City.

Another step in the displacement of horses in Chicago came last week with the purchase of fifty one and one-half ton Diamond T trucks by the Parmelee company. The consignment brings Parmelee motor equipment to eighty trucks.

Another indication of the healthy condition of the auto accessory business is seen in the announcement that the Bassick Manufacturing company, manufacturers of the Alemite lubricating system, has moved into a new and larger plant at 2650 North Crawford avenue. The company reports that 1,500,000 cars are now equipped with the Alemite system.

Continued loss of service batteries has resulted in the organization of the Illinois Battery Dealers' association, a dealers' body determined to stop the annual loss through coöperation and the use of battery serial numbers.

BIGGEST PURSE.

An automobile speedway race, scheduled for Armistice day, Nov. 11, 1922, over the Greater San Francisco Speedway, at San Carlos, Cal., offers a purse of $50,000 and lap prizes of $25,000. It is believed that this is the largest prize money ever listed for such a contest.

Get excited

Begin today to expect MORE from your car. You should.

THOUSANDS OF MOTORISTS are entirely too placid about the dollars they pay for unnecessary overhauling.

The right kind of excitement has opened millions of eyes to the importance of not asking merely for a "quart of oil."

What kind of lubricant is given to the man who simply asks for a "quart of oil?"

Everything from the best to the worst.

Sometimes poor quality oils. Sometimes oil that is too light. Sometimes oil that is too heavy. Usually some gasoline by-product. These vitally affect the results you can expect from your car.

9 out of 10 oils are made from crude oils chosen for their high yield of gasoline. After every possible drop of gasoline is secured, lubricating oil is made.

Gargoyle Mobiloil is made from crude oils specially chosen for their high lubricating properties. The crude oil is different. The method of manufacture is different. Its use will give you the better results you have a right to expect from your car.

Dealers who put good service first in their business handle and recommend Gargoyle Mobiloil. Remember this when you buy oil. Make the chart your guide.

Look up a Gargoyle Mobiloil dealer.

Let a 5-gallon can of Gargoyle Mobiloil introduce you to continued full benefits of correct lubrication. Let Gargoyle Mobiloil go to work for you today—begin today to save you money—begin today to protect your engine as no mere gasoline by-product possibly can.

FOR the transmission and differential of your car use Gargoyle Mobiloil "C" or "CC" or Mobilubricant—as specified in the complete Chart.

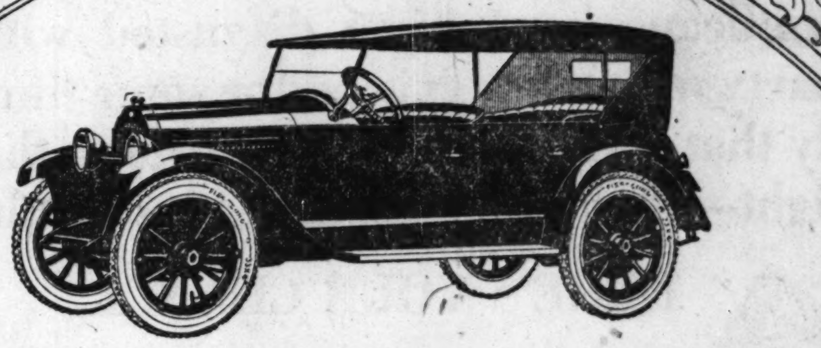
VACUUM OIL COMPANY



This is the car—and the price—that thousands have been waiting for. For years they've wanted a Knight sleeve-valve motor in a fine domestic car. But they have to have it in a car within their reach. That car is here now. Willys engineering, Willys quantity production, have given it to you, in the Willys-Knight, at $1375.

The Motor

The Knight sleeve-valve motor is the greatest advance yet made in engines for motor cars. Europe uses it in her most famous and expensive cars. The Willys-Knight is the highest development of the Knight sleeve-valve principle. It eliminates all valve and carbon trouble—builds up reserve power on the carbon that makes most engines a wreck. It has more power than any other engine of its size and weight, uses less gas, and lasts for years. It is smooth, flexible and silent.

The Car

The Willys-Knight car is built to match this amazing engine. It is especially stiff and sturdy in frame, as it must go through years and years without a squeak or rattle. Noises other engines smother with their click and rattle are exposed by the ceaseless quiet of the Willys-Knight motor. This sturdiness beats off the blows of the road from passengers as well, helped by alert, resilient springs. The car is graceful, refined, dignified, fleet, comfortable and a sound investment.

12 Months to Pay

If you do not find it convenient to pay cash, you can secure possession and use of your "Ranger" bicycle at once and pay for it in twelve small monthly payments. Our thousands of Cash Customers buy at rock bottom, factory-to-rider costs. The Easy Payment prices are only slightly more to cover added clerical work. Because you are dealing direct with the Makers, the Cash and Easy Payment prices are naturally lower than you can obtain elsewhere.

MEAD Ranger BICYCLES

44 Styles-Sizes & Colors

Ranger bicycles afford a choice for every taste and pocket book, Camel-Backs, Roadsters, Racers, Juveniles, Arch-Frames; Girls' and Ladies' models too. You can't equal the bicycles or the prices anywhere. For a generation we have devoted all our time to manufacturing bicycles. The enthusiastic "good will" earned by satisfactory service to over a million riders in all parts of the world is our best guaranty of service and value to you.

Come to the Factory

See the 44 styles, colors and sizes of Rangers at the Show Rooms of our Big Bicycle Factory, Canal and Washington Streets, Chicago. We have been established in Chicago 30 years and operate three large factories. We give you courteous, expert advice. It is a pleasure to show you samples and let you try them here.

Direct from our Factories

We also send Ranger bicycles all over the country by fast prepaid express, so there will be no delay in receiving the Ranger you select from the big, free catalog we will send you. Safe delivery in perfect condition absolutely guaranteed.

Big Free Catalog

Over a million customers in all parts of the world save money buying their bicycles and accessories direct by mail from our big Chicago factories. The beautiful Ranger Catalog (printed in six colors) shows all models in full colors and the small boy or girl can make selection and order, just as easily as the grown man or woman.

Tires lamps, horns, front or rear wheels, and bicycle equipment of all kinds are also illustrated and described in the catalog. We save you big money on tires and bicycle sundries. Use the coupon today and get this magnificent free catalog of Rangers and valuable information with Factory Cash Prices and Easy Payment terms.

Send No Money

If you cannot call at the Factory use the coupon or on a postal ask for the big illustrated Ranger Catalog, Special Factory Prices and Easy Payment plan. You run no risk as we allow 30 days free trial (actual riding test) on all Rangers ordered by mail. If not satisfied in every way, send it back and the trial will not cost you a cent.

HYDRO-UNITED TIRE CO.

Big as Cords Better than Cords Cost Less than Cords

How Mileage is Built into HYDRO-TORON TIRES

We Build Mileage Into Hydro-Toron Tires By Keeping Defects Out in Their Construction

Our mechanical process of vulcanizing by Internal Hydraulic Expansion with water under pressure heated to the proper vulcanizing temperature, prevents the unseen defects which are the real causes of Stone-Bruise, Rim-Cut and Blow-Out.

The scientific chemical process of treating fabric—the Toron (no-rot) treatment—proofs the tire against the damaging effects of moisture, decay, and oxidation in all its forms. This process increases the strength of the fabric and the holding power of the layers, and gives the fabric a greater affinity for rubber.

Besides these processes which build mileage into Hydro-Toron Tires—besides the fearless guarantee of 10,000 miles against Stone-Bruise, Rim-Cut and Blow-Out—these tires are as big as cords, yet cost less than cords. Ask any of the dealers listed below about the wonderful reputation that Hydro-Toron Tires have earned.

April Sale of Silks

Second Floor—State Street

Greater varieties, more extensive assortments, supreme values—three good reasons why our famous April Sale of silks is growing greater and better every day. Truly a Mecca for Easter shoppers with new spring clothes to plan.

Foulard silks are more popular than ever for spring gowns—pure, lustrous silk, soft and clinging, the silk that drapes so gracefully and gives such splendid wear. The designs are neater and color combinations are richer, including gold on navy, green on navy, henna on navy, tan on navy, Harding blue on navy, white on navy, sand on navy, tan, green, blue, orange, white on brown, in handsome floral patterns, scroll designs and allover effects; 36 inches wide; the $2.25 qualities ordinarily; at, yard, 1.39

36-inch chiffon taffeta for spring and summer wear, finest grades, soft glove finish, heavy quality, with rich, brilliant luster so much in demand this season—silks that give excellent wear; black, white, ivory, new changeable effects, rich color combinations, every new spring shade for street wear, delicate tints for evenings gowns and dancing frocks. Everywhere else $3.50 is asked; grouped for the April Sale Monday at, yard,

2.59, 2.29, 1.89 and 1.45

THE Wm LIDDELL & Co Importers 53 WHITE ST. NEW YORK—
WATER DAMAGED Linens FROM AUCTION at HALF

Second Floor—Center

In all New York there are no more famous linen importers than Wm. Liddell & Co. and so when some $150,000 worth of fine linens from their stock, damaged by water only, was offered at peremptory auction by the underwriters we secured the largest and best lots, many of the selfsame all linen table cloths and damasks, dress linens, towels, etc., etc., that Chicago knows so well, but at about half the usual prices. Damaged by water only in most cases, though the damage is very slight, the edges only showing the water mark, every piece will wear perfectly and practically every piece will wash as perfectly as any linens you have ever bought. Here are but a few of the many lots you'll find to choose from. Mail and phone orders cannot be filled.

Child's Low Shoes

Fourth Floor—State Street

Wise mothers are choosing Billiken low shoes for their children this Easter and spring. Young women are also choosing them, for they know that they are incomparable from the standpoint of shoe comfort and service and as smart as any footwear of the year.

Made over scientifically constructed lasts, that give the foot plenty of room to grow properly, avoiding deformation caused by so many poorly made grades.

Billiken shoes are fitted with the aid of our foot X-Ray machine which assures correct shape, width and length; the shoes illustrated are made of Bristol patent leather with flint stone leather soles.

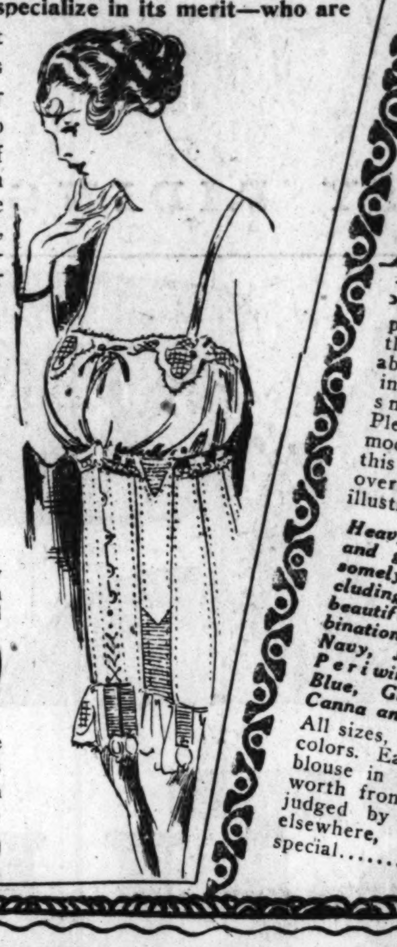
Binner Corsets: Assure Correct Lines

Third Floor—Dearborn Street

A famous make—presented by corsetieres who specialize in its merit—who are ready to help you choose a Binner Corset that is adapted to your particular type, thus giving you assurance that your Easter suit or dress will be correct of line. Women who know what a Binner means to them rarely, if ever, change to any other corset. Certain figure types that require an unusually long line below the waist and who have a large thigh, and who have trouble with their corset creeping up should most certainly choose a Binner Corset this Easter.

Let our corps of expert corsetieres, without question the best Chicago affords, demonstrate to you what real corset comfort means. They will advise you gladly and fit you perfectly from our complete stock of Binner models. For this service of course no charge is made.



Binner corsets for the tall woman who likes a very low bust, who has a large diaphragm, much flesh on the back above the waist line—the model illustrated takes splendid care of such a figure, giving slenderizing lines; it is scientifically constructed with the diagonal side steel that means a very straight hip; sizes to 36, at $9

Binner corsets for the woman who has fully developed thighs, but who wishes no control above the waist line; sizes to 36, at $6

Binner corsets for the tall woman who needs considerable diaphragm control and has large bulging thighs, sizes to 36, at........... $9

MOTORDOM

$400,000,000 Will Battle Mud This Season in South

Bixie Declares Itself In on National Road Race.

THE southern states are realizing more and more the necessity of keeping pace with other sections in highway development. This is shown by the fact that recent provisions of the legislatures of North Carolina, Mississippi and other commonwealths call for bond issues for road building, while Florida, Alabama, Georgia, Texas, Louisiana and South Carolina promise to develop big highway programs within the next year or two.

North Carolina has provided a bond issue of $50,000,000 and has secured the services of Charles M. Upham as chief highway engineer. Mr. Upham is known as one of the best road men in the country and he has already mapped out a comprehensive plan for the improvement of the roads of that state. Missouri has authorized a bond issue of $60,000,000 and is rapidly going ahead with a huge program of highway construction. South Carolina is contemplating an issue of $50,000,000 for roads, while New Mexico and Tennessee are falling in line and will probably let contracts for a large amount of new construction. Kentucky's good roads program hinges to a large extent on the bond issue which was submitted to the present session of the state legislature calling for an issue of $50,000,000, of which about $42,000,000 is set aside for highway development.

A survey of the reports which have been gathered from the state highway departments of sixteen southern and southwestern states shows that under their direction alone nearly $200,000,000 are available for highway work during the present year. These figures do not cover the work which the various counties will do, and it can be conservatively estimated that the county funds will match the state funds, so that it may be said that $400,000,000 will not overestimate the amount the south will have on hand for its 1922 highway improvements.

Alabama expects to improve some 300 miles of her roads during the present year with an expenditure of almost $5,000,000. Arkansas plans to improve 1,600 miles of highway at a cost of $12,000,000. The completed Arkansas program provides for 5,400 miles at a total estimated expenditure of $74,000,000. Kentucky will have on hand about $4,650,000 for road work, in addition to whatever funds are secured through the action of the present session of the legislature on the proposed $50,000,000 bond issue. Florida will spend $5,000,000 on her state highways during this year. Georgia spent $16,000,000 on roads during 1921 and built 185 miles of paved road, 500 miles of sand clay or top soil road, and thirty-five miles of graded road. About $10,000,000 will be spent this year.

The year 1921 was Louisiana's greatest road building year, but 1922 will exceed it, according to plans of the state highway department. During 1921 Louisiana constructed and completed approximately 300 miles of surfaced highways, including concrete drainage structures, culverts, and bridges, and, in addition, there are now under actual construction 500 miles of modern highway. Mississippi spent $3,000,000 on roads last year, and the same amount is on hand for 1922 construction. Maryland constructed 175 miles of highway during 1921, and approximately $5,000,000 will be spent this year.

The expenditure planned in Missouri this year is $15,000,000. South Carolina spent $5,000,000 last year and will spend about the same amount this year. North Carolina will carry out a tremendous program this year.

THE splendid performance of the New Series of the good Maxwell in every part of the country, emphasizes the value of this fine car.

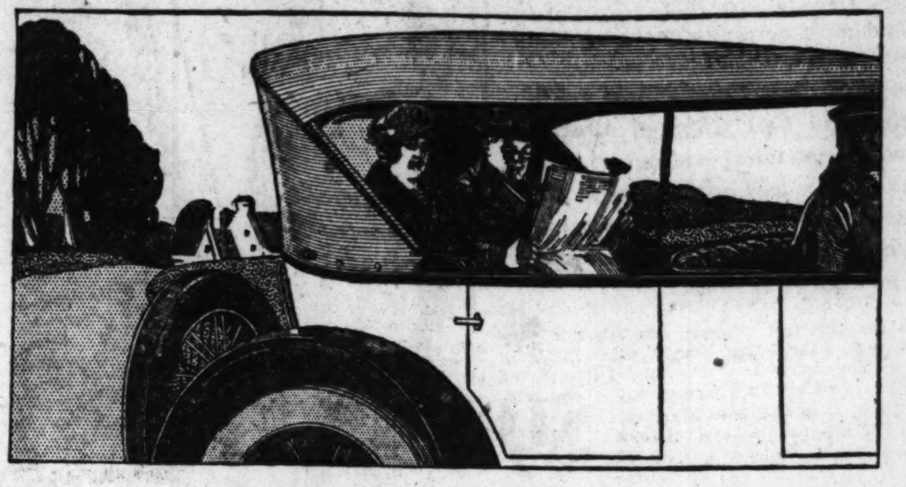
EASY RIDING COMFORT



STUTZ
With The New "D-H" Engine and Compensating Spring Suspension

THE CAR THAT MADE GOOD IN A DAY
STUTZ

Dwarfs All Former Conceptions of Motor Car Ability

The Stutz—with the "D-H" Engine and Compensating Spring Suspension—is a spectacular achievement. It introduces engineering discoveries which absolutely revise former automotive practice.

Here is the first American-made fine car to rely exclusively on refinement of design instead of multiplication of parts for its efficiency. It embodies every fine car attribute without any of the usual mechanical complications or service complexities.

All of the flexibility, absence of vibration, power and pick-up of intricate multi-cylinder motors is attained while preserving a rugged simplicity that is free from all hair-trigger adjustments and virtually independent of service attention.

Power is increased 60%. Torque is augmented 45%. Speed range is enlarged 40%. Acceleration from 10 to 60 m.p.h. is increased 90%. Fuel economy is 20% greater with maximum efficiency through 40% of the entire speed range of 5 to 90 m.p.h. It reaches its peak at from 20 to 40 m.p.h., the most frequently used driving speeds. Spring resiliency is increased 75%. Vibration is positively nullified.

A demonstration in the Stutz—with the "D-H" Engine and Compensating Spring Suspension—will prove a revelation. It will dwarf all former conceptions you may have had of what a motor car can be made to do.

All this has been accomplished without adding a single complication to the fundamental design of power plant or chassis, causing the Stutz—with the "D-H" Engine and Compensating Spring Suspension—to become the most accessible and easily serviced fine car on the market today.

Come in and see for yourself. We invite any test you may desire to make.

AVIATION

Aviation Season Opened; to Be Critical Year

Local Flyers Groom Ships and Motors.

BY MORROW KRUM.

THE 1922 flying season has been opened. Daily the drone of the famous OX-5 motor can be heard over two fields. The deeper roar of the Liberty fills the ears as one approaches another airdrome. Pilots and proprietors of two more airports are busy grooming motors and scraping the ground. Chicago's young aeronautical giant has awakened from his winter sleep.

What this figure in the city's multitude of industries will accomplish this summer can only be surmised. During the forthcoming ten months the city may win or lose the majority of aeronautical business of the nation. Aviation experts say this is the critical summer, that this season will really tell what America is going to do with and for flying.

If the men behind aviation in this city are given the proper support by the public Chicago will be to aviation what Detroit is to motor cars. If not—well, Chicago will jog along behind, a great distributing point perhaps, but that is all.

A survey of the present situation follows:

The Ralph C. Diggins School of Aviation is in operation at Ashburn field. Twenty students are learning to fly. Next month twenty more will start and finish. This school has several ships, good pilots, comfortable quarters and is forging ahead. Chicago should not lose this school.

On the same field—Ashburn airdrome—Elmer Partridge is preparing to give lessons in flight to fifteen young men. Partridge, a veteran of the Wright-Baldwin-Curtiss days, is one of the most capable pilots in the city. He has several ships.

David Behncke, proprietor of the Checkerboard airport, has one of his ships in flying condition and is getting under way with the others. Behncke plans big things this summer. Several flying meets will be held on his field and an admission fee will be charged to the grandstand seats. That is a new stunt in this city.

Nimmo Black has announced that his company has been incorporated at $15,000, that the Black airport is being enlarged, and that more Laird Swallows will be used. Black teaches flying, carries passengers, and does all other jobs possible to the airplane.

Price Hollingsworth, chief of the Lincoln tavern field, is also making plans for a busy year. Hollingsworth had much success last year. He hopes to duplicate the performance.

The Heath Airplane company, John Metzger, William Westlake, and many others, are going in for bigger and better programs. All are fighting for business, it is true, but none are forgetting that they must work in harmony for the future. All have promised that last year's record of no fatal crashes will be repeated. Not one person was killed in Chicago last year by any of the local companies. There were hundreds of hours of flying.

Several engineers and builders of airplanes have announced that they will move to Chicago and bring their factories and manufacturing plants with them—if they see that the local men are sufficiently successful to warrant such moves.

So it is up to Chicago.

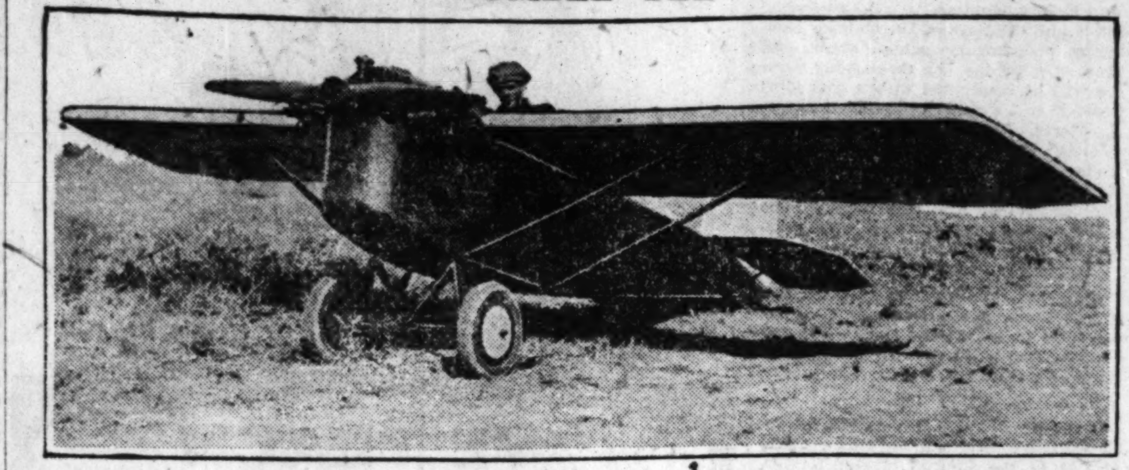
Will Test Stabilizer.

One of the JN-4D training planes at Mather field, Mills, Cal., was turned over to the aerial mail service for the purpose of making experimental flights to test the Converse stabilizer, a small device which its inventor, who has been working on it for many months, claims will hold the ship loggitudinally balanced, regardless of conditions. That part of the stabilier controlling the ship latitudinally has not been perfected.

Use Good Petrol

If you are barnstorming you may be forced to use low test gasoline, but it does foul your motor. The power plant will live longer and be more reliable if you keep to the better grade of fuel.

"BUMBLE BEE"



The "Bumble Bee," built at Venice, Cal., is the smallest successful flying monoplane in the world. The ship, which was designed and constructed by Otto Timm, has a wing spread of 18 feet and is 14 feet in length. Timm asserts that it makes a speed of ninety-five miles an hour.

Flying Service May Be Started at Great Parks

AN airplane service over America's great national parks—Glacier, Yellowstone, Yosemite, and the Grand cañon—is one of the possibilities hinted at in a report of the director of the national park system recently submitted to the secretary of the interior by Stephen T. Mather.

"The Grand Cañon park indicates a stronger need, and perhaps justification, for the use of airplanes than any other," says Mr. Mather in his report. "It is bisected by the mile-deep cañon, and to travel from the south rim to the less visited but highly scenic north rim requires a saddle horse trip of two days. A plane, of course, would take the visitor from one side to the other in a few minutes.

"Recently the army air service cooperated with our bureau in determining the feasibility of flying over the cañon and vicinity, as doubt existed as to whether or not air currents would make the undertaking unusually hazardous.

"Lieut. Alexander Pearson left Nogales, Ariz., by train, stopping at Phoenix, Prescott, Ashfork, and Williams to select landing fields, and then proceeded to the Grand cañon, where he investigated sites for landing places. While several were found near the cañon, he decided to make the base for his test flights at Williams.

"His flights lasted over a period of fourteen days. He found it no more difficult to handle his plane over the cañon than beyond it. As a result of his experience he is of the opinion that commercial flying across the cañon and its vicinity is feasible. While the air near the cañon walls was somewhat bumpy, this condition could be overcome by flying at a sufficiently high altitude with landing fields not closer than two miles from the rim."

AVIATION QUERIES

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions which are accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send in your name and address to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." No questions will be returned. Those designed for the Motordom section on Sunday should cover only motors and motoring.

Wing Curve.

"Where can I get the wing curve used on the Farman sport model?
"J. K."

Germans.

"When will the German be permitted to build airplanes with motors?
K. H. G."

On May 5, according to the latest ruling of the board of ambassadors.

Motors.

"How many engines are there in the all metal Junkers monoplane?
"T. W."

One. Originally the Mercedes motor was used.

Air Mail Service Greatly Improved, Says Will Hays

THE vast improvement in the operation of the air mail service is evident from the fact that, as stated by ex-Postmaster General Will H. Hays before the senate appropriations committee, there has been but one fatality in the last million miles flown, while in the last fiscal year there were seventeen fatalities in a total of 1,770,000 miles. Mr. Hays in urging upon the committee to restore the appropriation for the aerial mail which was eliminated by the house general appropriations committee stated that since the future of the country lies in aerial communication, the air mail service is of great value and of tremendous potential value as a defense reserve in case of necessity. He added that, while commercial air activities may ultimately develop in a way to provide for aerial mail service, this will not come in the next fiscal year, and by all means a reasonable effort consistent with proper expense and certain safety should be made to develop the air mail.

Mr. Hays stated that the amount of money expended for air mail service for the last fiscal year was $2,600,000. Of this amount $1,245,000 was expended from the railroad transportation appropriation. The air mail service appropriation for last year was $1,275,000. The appropriation for the current fiscal year is $1,425,000. No other appropriations are being used, and it is possible that the service may have to be curtailed to some extent before June 30, although an effort is being made to fly six times a week without a deficit.

The postoffice department now has fifty-three ships in flying condition and twenty undergoing repairs.

During the current fiscal year, from July 1 to Jan. 31, the total number of miles traveled was 1,029,056; the number of letters carried, 25,496,560; the percentage of performance (trips completed), 93.12 per cent; the number of ships in the air daily, 21; miles flown with mail daily, 5,360; estimated mileage for year, 1,800,000; number of fields, all fully equipped, 15; number of radio stations, 14; estimated value of equipment on hand, $1,500,000.

No fatal accidents have occurred in the current fiscal year on mail flights. More than 1,000,000 miles have been flown since the last fatal accident, which occurred on July 16 on a ferry ship.

To Use Oriole.

When Capt. R. Amundsen, the Arctic explorer, takes off for the much advertised flight to the north pole, he will be flying in a Curtiss Oriole, according to a telegram received from George W. Browne, general sales manager of the Curtiss Airplane and Motor corporation.

STEADFAST

Gray Goose shrouds himself in mystery, but this we know: He has but one air-lane from northern wilderness to Mexican Gulf. He goes direct to his objective. ¶ He mates but once in all his adventurous life. His haunts and habits have been set for centuries. Steadfast and unswerving is Gray Goose. ¶ The man who designed the Wills Sainte Claire did so because it was to him the one ambition worthy of his achievement, the driving urge of his career. ¶ We who build the Wills Sainte Claire are unswerving in our purpose to build as soundly as advanced engineering and commercialized accuracy alone make possible. ¶ You who drive the Wills Sainte Claire will find the car thrilling, steadfast and unfailing.

Have you ridden in a Wills Sainte Claire?

Money, Words and Effort

have for years been expended in unlimited amounts by scores of manufacturers of automobiles of the poppet-valve type in exploiting their products. Compared with this combined effort the Knight-type engine, because it is made by a comparatively few selected manufacturers, has never been able to command the same advertising support.

Nevertheless, in all the money, words and effort of the advertising of the poppet-valve automobiles can you find anything successfully meeting or disputing our claims that

The Knight-Type Engine is superior to Any Poppet-Valve Engine

In the following most important points:

1. That it grows better in performance with use as against deterioration in use of any other engine made.
2. That poppet-valve engines cannot be maintained during their life at less than four times the cost for Knight engines of same horsepower.
3. That because of the elements of design no poppet-valve engine can under the different conditions of use maintain uniform power development even for a limited time at all comparable with the Knight motor.
4. That Knight motors never require adjustments of valve mechanisms, grinding of valves or reboring of cylinders regardless of mileage run.
5. That the Knight motor in difficult situations of heavy power requirements will pull longer, stronger and smoother than any other type of internal combustion engine.
6. That the positive progressive actuation of the port mechanism of the Knight engine permits continued operation at high speeds without the strain, wear and consequent deterioration impossible to avoid with poppet-valve mechanisms.
7. That a challenge issued in 1913 when we started to build Knight engines offering $10,000 if any poppet-valve engine could be produced by any manufacturer to equal the 337-hour official performance of our Knight engine, stood for years unaccepted and that to this day no manufacturer has ever entered in official test to compete with our performance.

We believe ourselves that all our claims are proven in practice, not only by the adoption of our engines by companies using same commercially where cost of operation, including fuel economy, loss of time in use and uniform efficiency of operation are the controlling factors, but also by the fact that in the hands of individual owners the car gives such continued satisfaction that the original owner retains same in use for much longer time than with the ordinary car, a fact which is shown by the absence of our make car in the second hand market.

All of the above means that the value of our car is different and we believe much greater than that of any car without our special Knight engine.

The features of the Knight engine are clearly explained in our booklet, "Why We Believe in the Knight Motor," a copy of which will be mailed on request.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Evanston's First Baptist Church School Is Begun

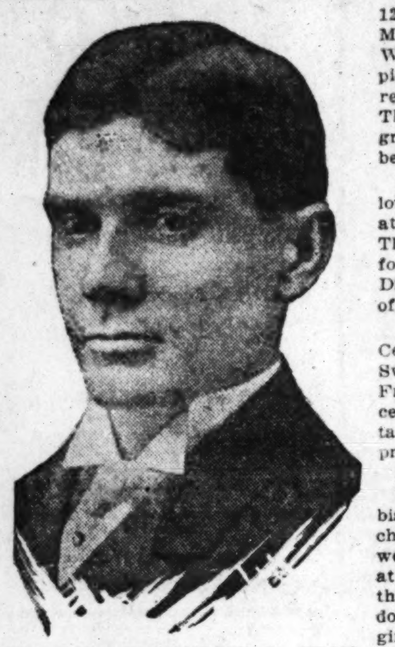
By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

A BOY 12 years old and two university presidents will be associated in the exercises connected with the laying of the cornerstone of the church school of the First Baptist church, Evanston, which takes place today at 3 o'clock. The location is Chicago avenue and Lake street.

Benjamin Greene Piersen, the grandson of the Rev. Benjamin Greene, D. D., former pastor of the church, is the 12 year old boy who will assist in the cornerstone laying. Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago, and Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, are the two presidents who will speak.

The ceremony will be in charge of the Rev. James Madison Stifler, D. D., the pastor, who will make the opening statement. The Rev. Arthur Rogers, D. D., rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Evanston, will offer prayer.

The new building is of Bedford stone, will cost nearly $200,000, and will contain an auditorium planned as a memorial to Lieut. Kenneth MacLeish, naval aviator killed in the war.



THE REV. FREDERICK F. SHANNON, D. D.

Dr. Shannon is the pastor of Central church, which meets Sunday mornings in Orchestra hall, 220 South Michigan avenue. He will speak each noon, 12:10-12:40, this week at the First Methodist Episcopal church, Clark and Washington streets, under the auspices of the Chicago Church federation, representing sixteen denominations. The meetings are a part of the program to win 30,000 new church members by Easter.

Dr. Shannon will speak on the following subjects: Tomorrow, "The Creative Christ"; Tuesday, "The Vision That Saves"; Wednesday, "The Creed for Today"; Thursday, "The Divine Disguises"; Friday, "The Holy Hill of Love."

Dr. Shannon's predecessors in the Central church pulpit were David Swing, Newell Dwight Hillis, and Frank W. Gunsaulus. Like his predecessors, Dr. Shannon has a wide reputation as a forceful and convincing preacher.

The Rt. Rev. Charles P. Anderson, bishop of Chicago, of the Episcopal church, will speak each noon this week, tomorrow to Friday inclusive, at Holy week services in the Garrick theater, 64 West Randolph street. The doors are open at 12 and the service begins at 12:10, closing at 12:30.

Bishop William Frazer McDowell of the Washington, D. C., area of the Methodist Episcopal church, formerly resident in Chicago, will speak at 8 p. m. at the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall on the subject, "The Sufficient Reason." Dr. Cleland B. McAfee will speak at 7 on "The Song of Palm Sunday."

The Jewish passover will begin next Wednesday evening and will continue for a week. The event commemorates the deliverance of the Israelites from Egypt at the time of the exodus and is used by present day Jews to stress liberty and redemption from bigotry, ignorance, and oppression.

Holy week services under Lutheran auspices will be held each noon this week in theaters within the loop. The Missouri synod churches meet in Woods theater, Randolph and Dearborn streets. Churches of the United Lutheran Church in America will meet in the La Salle theater, Madison street, between La Salle and Clark streets. Both services begin at 12:10. The Rev. C. P. Wiles, D.D., editor of Sunday school literature, will speak on the general theme, "The Way Home Is the Way of the Cross," at the La Salle theater.

The Most Rev. Archbishop G. W. Mundelein will officiate today at 11 o'clock at solemn pontifical mass at the cathedral of the Holy Name, North State and Superior streets, and also on next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. On Good Friday his grace will assist at the mass of the presantified at 9 o'clock. He will also celebrate mass at 9 o'clock on Holy Saturday. On Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings at 8 the cathedral choir and the boys of the Quigley seminary preparatory school choir will sing. On Friday the three hour service will be conducted at the cathedral from 12 to 3 o'clock by the Rev. James J. Mertz, S. J. "The Seven Last Words," by Dubois, will be rendered under the leadership of the Rev. J. Edgar Bourget. Catholic churches throughout the city will observe the week with special masses and services.

Capt. Wesley Westbrook will speak this evening at the Sunday Evening club of the First Congregational church, Maywood, the Rev. Jesse K. Kolmos, pastor.

A cantata, "From Olivet to Calvary," by Maunder, will be given this evening at 7:45 at the Church of Our Savior, 630 Fullerton parkway, the Rev. Frederick L. Gratiot, rector.

The spring meeting of the Chicago presbytery will be held at the Second Presbyterian church, 20th street and South Michigan avenue, next Tuesday, beginning at 10 o'clock. Commissioners will be elected to the Presbyterian general assembly, which meets in Des Moines, Ia., May 18-28.

WILL RADIUM AT LAST OPEN THE DOOR OF THE GREAT UNKNOWN?

If you are sick and want to Get Well and Keep Well, write for literature that tells How and Why this almost unknown and wonderful new element brings relief to so many sufferers from Constipation, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout, Neuritis, Neuralgia, Nervous Prostration, High Blood Pressure and Diseases of the Stomach, Heart, Lungs, Liver, Kidneys and other ailments. You wear Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad day and night, receiving the Radio-Active Rays continuously into your system, causing a healthy circulation, overcoming sluggishness, throwing off impurities and restoring the tissues and nerves to a normal condition—and the next thing you know you are getting well.

Sold on a test proposition. You are thoroughly satisfied it is helping you before the appliance is yours. Nothing to do but wear it. No trouble or expense, and the most wonderful fact about the appliance is that it is sold so reasonable that it is within the reach of all, both rich and poor.

No matter how bad your ailment, or how long standing, we will be pleased to have you try it at our risk. For full information write today—not tomorrow. Radium Appliance Co., 373 Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

Can You Answer This Movie Puzzle?

Big Booster Campaign Wallman Pen Company

On the Movie Screen above are the names of 10 Movie Stars rearranged. The Operator played a joke on the audience and you'll admit it is a good one.

To solve the puzzle rearrange the letters in the sentence shown on the screen so that they will spell each star's name. For example: No. 10 is Douglas Fairbanks. If you can name all 10 stars you can win the Hupmobile or $1,000.

Probably you know the names of the most popular Stars but just to refresh your mind we are listing below a few of the Famous Players' names: Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, John Barrymore, Agnes Ayres, Wallace Reid, Anita Stewart, Harold Lloyd, Blanche Sweet, Buster Keaton, Warner Oland, Douglas Fairbanks, Elsie Ferguson, Mabel Normand, Theodore Roberts, Irene Castle, and Hobart Bosworth.

Big Booster Campaign Wallman Pen Company

185 Points Wins First Prize

For each name you arrange correctly, you will receive 10 "Points" toward the Hupmobile Touring Car or the $1,000 or you will receive 100 "Points" if you arrange all 10 names correctly. You can gain 60 more "Points" by qualifying your answer. That is, by proving that you have explained the 10 "Superior Features" of our Wallman Self-Filling Fountain Pen to five people. The final 25 "Points" will be awarded by 3 Judges, not connected in any way with this concern, to the person making up the nearest correct list of words from the initials of the first and last name of each Movie Star. DO NOT send in your list now. Send us your answer to the Puzzle first and we will write and tell you how to get up your list.

60 Points Given for Qualifying

After you have gained 100 "Points" for solving the Movie Puzzle, you can easily add 60 more "Points" to your credit by qualifying your solution. Simply prove that you have shown the circular explaining the 10 "Superior Features" of the Wallman Self-Filling Fountain Pen (circular will be sent FREE as soon as your Solution reaches us) to five people.

Then you'll have 160 "Points" to your credit or only 25 "Points" less than necessary for the $1,000 Prize. These 25 "Points" will be awarded by the Final Judges, to the person sending in the nearest correct list of words made up from the initials of the first and last name of each Movie Star. DON'T send in your list now—send in your puzzle solution first and then we will tell you how to get up your word list.

$2,100 IN PRIZES

1st Prize—Hupmobile Touring Car (or $1,000 in cash)	$1,250.00
2d Prize—Diamond Ring	200.00
3d Prize—Diamond Ring	125.00
4th Prize—Phonograph	100.00
5th Prize—Gold Watch	50.00
6th to 10th Prizes—Gold Watch	25.00
11th to 20th Prizes—Community Silverware Chest	20.00
21st to 25th Prizes—Mahogany Clock	10.00

Costs Nothing to Try

You will not be asked to buy a Wallman Self-Filling Fountain Pen nor to spend a penny in order to win. Just write your answer to the Puzzle on one side of the sheet of paper and PRINT your name and address in the upper right hand corner. Don't send in your list of words now. Do your best and you can win. Answer the Puzzle NOW. Contest closes April 29, 1922.

You Can Easily Win

The answer gaining 185 "Points" (which is the maximum) will win the Hupmobile or the $1,000. There are 25 Big Prizes in all. In case of a tie, all tieing contestants will receive the same prize. As soon as your Puzzle Solution is received, we will send you a circular telling about the 10 "Superior Features" of the Wallman Self-Filling Fountain Pen, FREE, to assist you in qualifying.

FARM AND GARDEN

Memorial Tree Planting Arouses Wide Interest

By Frank Ridgway.

THE soldiers' memorial tree planting project which has been fostered by THE TRIBUNE for more than a year, is now being enthusiastically supported by clubs, schools, and civic and agricultural organizations in all parts of the country, particularly the middle west. For several months memorial tree planting has been one of the principal problems of the various organizations, and with the opening of spring programs are being drafted to carry the project to completion, which will mean trees along highways and on school grounds in honor of every soldier who took part in the world war.

Illinois is one of the leaders in this movement. Interest is so aroused that clubs and various organizations all over the state are receiving hundreds of inquiries daily from people who want to do their share in setting up these living monuments. Every conceivable question pertaining to the planting of soldier memorial trees is being asked. "How can we raise money to buy the trees and carry on this work?" "What kind of trees should be planted in this state?" "Where should the trees be planted?" "Where can we get trees?" "How can a tree be marked so it will be known as the 'Quentin Roosevelt Tree' or the tree of some other soldier?" "How should a tree be planted?" "How are the trees to be replaced, pruned, cultivated, and protected in the future, and who is to be held responsible for them after they have become established?"

Each Does His Share.

Soldier memorial tree planting is featured on the "Plan to Plant Another Tree" program that is being carried on by civic and agricultural organizations in this state, and little difficulty is being experienced in raising money. Each organization has a different method. Many are raising the money among their own members and planting the trees as clubs.

Deciding upon the kind of tree to plant is an important part of the plan. Farmers have made the mistake of setting soft wood trees on the highways bordering their farms. Soft maples, box elders, and poplars are trees that have surface roots which run into corn fields, taking up moisture and plant foods and spoiling a rod or two of land extending out each way from the tree along the fence line. Plant deep rooted trees such as the elm, ash, hard or sugar maple, and Norway maple. These are good memorial trees because they are the kind that endure. The American elm is probably the best for Illinois, but sugar and Norway maples, scarlet maples, green and white ash, Red Oak, American white elm, red and white oak, and American linden are all trees that can be safely planted as far north as Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Indiana, and Michigan.

Care in Transplanting.

Most of these can be bought through local nurserymen, who handle trees that have been especially grown to be transplanted, but if trees are not available at local nurseries they can often be dug from woodlots and nearby timbered land. Select trees that are not more than eight or ten feet high and about two and a half inches in diameter. Dig far enough away to get the fibrous roots, and avoid breaking or tearing the surface roots.

Trees that come from wood lots or along streams should be cut back severely; sometimes it is necessary to cut off all the branches close to the body of the tree. Cut the tree off seven or eight feet above the ground, leaving only a straight stick. Local nurserymen are able to give valuable advice on this, and are often willing to serve on the planting committees.

Assigning the Work.

It is necessary in all cases that some well organized plan be decided upon if the work is to be properly done. The Illinois idea is to have a central organization, such as the chamber of commerce, city administration or a leading club, take charge, and delegate different committees, groups, or individuals to do the work. The central organization will, of course, coöperate with all the other clubs and organizations in the town or community, and will assign certain parts of the highway or school ground for each club.

If trees are to be along a highway, they should not be set closer than sixty feet. Most farmers realize the value of good deep rooted trees along their farms, welcome them, and are usually willing to offer teams, spades, and tools to help in hauling and planting. They know that each day trees give off many gallons of water that goes into the air and comes down again in the form of rain, resulting in better crops. It is a well known fact that the flow of water in streams in timbered territory is much greater than where there are few or no trees growing.

The distance trees are from a fence depends upon the location of electric, telephone, and other public service lines. Plant the tree to the right or left of the lines so the wires will pass freely through the branches without injuring them. The present condition of roads and future building plans must be considered also. It would be useless to plant trees that would have to be removed later for paving or grading.

Trees planted along highways are not only of value to crops, but add value to the adjacent farm land. They also invite insect eating birds. Michigan has far more birds than Illinois or Indiana, because of the timber in that state.

Give Roots Moisture.

Spring is the best time to plant trees in this section of the country. If the work is done by organizations and plans have to be made in advance, it is not possible to select a cool, cloudy day to do the work. Therefore it will be necesary to take precautions to prevent the roots from drying or the tree may die later. Make the hole large enough for all the roots to spread out freely, and set the tree so deep that it will be about three inches deeper than it was in the nursery or wood lot. Pack the soil firmly around the roots. In filling in use good rich dirt, two-thirds loamy soil mixed with rotted manure. Big water tanks are often available in towns and can be used in hauling water to soak the soil in the excavation at planting time.

The markers for memorial trees are important. Individual markers may be attached directly to the tree by means of a spike. The markers, regardless of size, are usually made of bronze. The American Forestry association, Washington, D. C., will furnish them at a small cost. These give the date of the world war, name of soldier, name of organization planting the tree and the date of planting, and they are registered with the American Forestry association. Some organizations are using the individual bronze marker and mounting it on stone or concrete blocks near the tree. This is more expensive. Another way is to use a tablet. The names of several soldiers may be placed on a single tablet which is mounted on a rock or concrete block at some conspicuous place along the highway where trees are planted in memory of the soldiers from that community.

Planted and Forgotten.

One of the greatest mistakes made has been failure to plan for the care and protection of the trees after they are planted. Some of them die and should be replaced. They must be pruned each year and cultivated, and sometimes they need to be watered, at least during the first two or three seasons.

The central organization should first assume the responsibility. Various clubs must be assigned a definite number of trees, and it will be the duty of members to see that the trees are cared for according to instructions given out by the central organization.

In Illinois this information will be furnished by the civic and agricultural organizations which are fostering the movement, which is headed by J. A. Young, Aurora. Mr. Young will furnish all the information that will be needed in answering questions pertaining to memorial tree planting work. Individuals asking questions will direct their inquiries to the central organizations in their town or community.

Dobbin's Hotel Bill Is $90.59 Per Annum

Recent debates over the relative merits of the tractor and the horse have started more farmers figuring what it costs to keep horses. An investigation recently made where facts were gathered in a survey from farm to farm showed that most farmers guess the cost of keeping horses. There is a wide difference in the rough estimates made, ranging from $50 to $100 a year.

Until some practical method of determining the cost of feeding and caring for horses is accepted the business of farming cannot be studied properly. Interesting facts were brought out recently in records taken from twenty-three Michigan farms, representing 118 horses, which showed that the average cost of feed and bedding for one horse is $90.59 a year.

In commenting on these records, H. M. Eliot of the farm management section of the Michigan Agricultural college says the cost of horse keep is practically equal to the cost of feed and bedding. "By knowing the money value of the feed consumed and the bedding used, you have the total direct cost of keeping a horse for the year," he says. "This is the case because other costs, which include all except actual feed and bedding, are practically the same as the return from horse sales and manure sales."

Spur to Plague War.

Farmers in McHenry county have renewed their interest in the tuberculosis eradication campaign. Three carloads of Holstein cattle were recently brought into that county from Wisconsin, where they had been tested. "Upon retest every animal came through clean, which has given an additional incentive to the tuberculosis cleanup work," says the farm adviser of McHenry county in the Extension Messenger.

Fertilizer Problems Subject of Experiments

For several years it has been generally recognized that the manner in which fertilizer is placed in or on the soil has had much to do with the success of the crop. Experiments have been in progress for some time, but information on the results is just now becoming available.

Wisconsin and New Jersey stations have been working with fertilizer problems in connection with potatoes and corn.

At the New Jersey station 182 bushels of potatoes were produced on an acre when all of the fertilizer was applied in the row; 198 bushels when two-thirds was used along the row at planting time and the rest as a later side dressing, and 146 bushels when the same amount of fertilizer was broadcasted. Injuries that follow large applications of fertilizer, it was observed, may be due to the location of the fertilizer rather than to the amount.

The largest yields of corn in experiments at the Wisconsin station were secured by placing the fertilizer in the hill or along the row—in the case of drilled corn—slightly above the seed. The method of applying the fertilizer makes it possible to economize in the amount used for 120 pounds used in the hills or along the row gave better results than 400 pounds broadcasted.

They're Not on a Diet.

Pork raisers in Missouri are boasting over the big hogs they have been producing during the last few years. Henry Koch of Edina, Mo., has registered the biggest score of any of the boosters lately. Hats went up in the air and the crowd gave nine rah rahs for Henry at his recent brood sow sale when one of his elephant-like Poland China gilts, 533 days old, tipped the scales at 634 pounds.

FARM AND GARDEN NOTES

Animal nutrition experts at the Iowa station say a dairy cow requires seven pounds of feed for every pound of fat produced.

It pays the back yard gardener to use eggs in the spring because he can utilize the half egg shells in making seed pots in which to start cucumber seed.

Buds on lilac bushes on Chicago lawns have begun to swell, which means that early gardeners will soon be out making the dirt fly with hoes and rakes. Planting the hardy early vegetables when the lilac buds open is an old gardener's trick.

"Soil fertility is like a bank account; it can be drawn upon, but not without an occasional deposit," says a soil expert at the Kansas State Agricultural college.

If suburbanites owned a cow like Wisconsin Pride II., one would be enough to supply the whole neighborhood with milk and butter. Wisconsin Pride II., 3½ years old, classed as a senior 3 year old, now holds the world record in her class, having produced 29,502.9 pounds of milk and 1,327.9 pounds of butter in a single year. She is owned by John Erickson & Sons, Waupaca, Wis. Her record is official.

R. L. Madden, sheep feeding expert at the Missouri station, says the time to market lambs is while the bloom of their milk fat is on them and not one to three months after they are weaned.

The fact that only one-third of the chicks hatched in Kansas ever reach marketable age indicates that it would pay to give more attention to the care of chickens in early spring and summer. There are no doubt many other states with records similar to that of Kansas.

A Rainbow Garden OF Gladioli for $1.00—

RARELY are finest flowers the most easily grown and surest of success. But such is the case with the gladiolus. This flower seems peculiarly adapted to the middle west. Our hot, dry summers do not discourage it. If given reasonable care it is sure to reward you with wonderful blossoms. On our farms in Illinois and Michigan we grow hundreds of acres of gladioli, producing thousands of bulbs of the highest quality. Our prices are even lower than those asked by dealers who are not specialists. A planting of Vaughan quality bulbs, dug up and stored over winter, may be replanted next year and will constantly increase.

Our Rainbow mixture, all large bulbs, 1¼ to 1½ inches in diameter, prepaid to 600 miles from Chicago.

There's a Big Difference in SEEDS

Next to the pleasure in working and planting in the cool, moist earth, is the joy of the harvest—the time when the seeds keep their promise.

But blood will tell—invariably, in garden seeds. You should plant pure-bred seeds if you want the best crops. Rich soil is not enough. Rain and sunshine, fertilizers, all your work—these can help you only when quality and productiveness have been bred into the seeds.

Reason points to planting Ferry's Seeds. You will like the "pure-bred" ideal. It means that Ferry's Seeds are from plants whose parents met rigid garden tests for sturdiness, size, color, flavor and ability to reproduce abundantly and true to name. It means that hundreds of thousands of plants were discarded in the patient search for these most perfect parent plants.

Size or color is not enough; you want delicious flavor, crispness, melting tenderness. You get them every time when you select Ferry's pure-bred Seeds.

KALES Hindview MIRROR

Let's All Buy Kales "Hindview" Mirrors!

What a fine thing it would be if every driver in the Chicago territory would put a "Hindview" Mirror on his car or truck.

Fender bumping and rear end collisions would become largely a thing of the past and accidents of all kinds would be reduced to a surprising extent.

If you have never driven with a mirror you have no conception of what a wonderful convenience it is. You are always able to know whether or not any one is following you.

For safe driving in our congested city streets, the "hindview" is almost as necessary as the "frontview."

The importance of mirrors to safe driving is proven by the fact that in seventeen states they are now required by law.

Let's not wait to be legislated into doing something which will make driving safer, easier and more enjoyable for everyone.

The cost is trifling and it is an actual fact that the saving in fender and lamp breakage alone will usually pay the price of many mirrors—to say nothing of the protection against more serious accidents and fines.

Be sure to say Kales "Hindview" when you buy. Then you will be certain to get a mirror built by one of the oldest and strongest concerns in the parts industry—made of the finest glass, free from flaws, durably silvered and water-proofed.

A special Kales "Hindview" feature is the ball joint. No other mirror attachment compares with it. Once applied, there are no screws, nuts or bolts to bother with.

All you have to do is to take hold of the mirror and turn it to the exact position desired—universal adjustment, up or down, right or left. The ball being an accurately machined sphere, the mirror always moves smoothly and easily, yet it can't rattle, and vibrations cannot move it from the correct position, for it is held firmly by the spring tension of the clamping jaws. There are no springs to break, or washers to wear out and loosen.

Of great importance is the fact that your Kales "Hindview" Mirror will be properly fitted to your car.

A large variety of attachments to put your mirror in the proper location have been worked out so that you will get the most benefit from it, no matter what make or style of car you drive. In no other make can you get this large variety of attachments. The four styles of mirrors and all the attachments are interchangeable.

Furthermore, Kales "Hindview" dealers don't merely sell mirrors—they have studied mirrors and reflection angles and will advise you as to the correct position and attachments required.

Buy a Kales "Hindview" Mirror today. In a week's time you will wonder how you ever drove without one.

BIG MEN NEED A BIG SERVICE.

Last week we closed four at $10,000 and better, besides two or three entire selling organizations, and our order box is fine.

The bigness of our service is our big contact and we are just as happy to place the $15 to $25 clerk because it is a real service.

No Registration Fee. Our service means more. Why accept less or waste your time and energy? All interviews strictly confidential.

We can only use men of good appearance with clean records, and to you we need you badly. The orders for Salesmen, Clerks, and even Technical Men are pouring in.

Talk it over. Come in and see for yourself.

MILEAGE GUARANTEE ABOLISHED BY RUBBER MANUFACTURERS.

Sweeping action ends drain on tire industry.

Millions of tires have been replaced by the tire manufacturers every year on the adjustment system. These millions of tires must now be turned over to TIRE REPAIR SHOPS and every one entering this interesting and profitable business NOW will reap a golden harvest.

TIRE REPAIRING will boom—car owners will now be forced to guard every last mile in their tires, and SPOT PATCHING, SECTIONAL WORK, and RETREADING will take the place of factory adjustments.

This business will come from 9,700,000 cars, making approximately 50,000,000 tires to keep in repair.

We teach you this business ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE, pay as you learn, find you a good location, and furnish you with all necessary equipment.

IF YOU WANT MORE PAY— BECOME A DRAFTSMAN.

The draftsman's pay is excellent, ranging from $35 to $60 a week to start with opportunities for promotion to as high as $100 a week or more, according to ability displayed. If you are a man of ordinary intelligence and will follow my simple, practical instructions for a few months I can train you to qualify for a highly paid position in the drafting department of any of the large industrial concerns, machine shops, shipbuilding establishments, railroads, automobile companies, engineering or construction firms. I will give you this training by mail at your home in your spare time and will furnish you with a complete set of Mechanical Drawing Instruments. When you complete my course of instruction our Student Employment Bureau will help you to secure a desirable position at a substantial salary. Hundreds of my graduates are now holding responsible positions in every state from Maine to California. Men whom I have trained are always in demand—big concerns want them—with my training and endorsement your success as a draftsman will be assured. Write me today for a Free Copy of my new book "Your Future in Drafting" and full particulars. Write today. Roy C. Claflin, President, Columbia School of Drafting, Dept. 1758, Washington, D. C.

Wanted
Women Who Are Qualified to Earn $3,000 Per Year.

Our General Sales Manager will hire Monday and Tuesday of this week several women for the purpose of enlarging our present organization. Our regular organization is composed of over three hundred women who are averaging from $200 to $400 per month. Positions pay salary to start and all railroad fare. We want intelligent women. Business experience is unnecessary. Our free intensive training class in Chicago will supply in remarkably short time the equivalent of six months' experience. Applicants must be between 25 and 40, have the equivalent of a High School education, good health, and be free to travel extensively. Position must be filled at once.

Ask for Mr. S. J. Gillillan. F. E. COMPTON & CO., 58 E. Washington-st., Chicago.

TEACHERS,

You can spend a delightful summer traveling with congenial companions WITH ALL TRANSPORTATION PAID AND WEEKLY SALARY GUARANTEED, while learning our business, which offers unusual openings for Teachers during vacation, with opportunity to qualify for permanent position, if desired.

We will carefully train those selected and furnish everything needed for work without charge. No investment required. No experience necessary.

If you are between 27 and 40, in good health, willing to spend your whole vacation with us and work hard, you can earn at least $50 per week in high class educational work.

State age, teaching experience, when you can start, and how long you can work, in first letter. Address M C 219, Tribune.

YOU WILL LIKE DES PLAINES.

A DELIGHTFUL SUBURB IN WHICH TO MAKE YOUR HOME. Des Plaines is situated on the Wisconsin division of the Northwestern railway, 16 miles from Chicago loop, 52 trains daily. You can get into the loop in from 28 to 35 minutes. Hardly time enough to read your paper. Two fine paved boulevards to the city. It is still possible to secure a home where nature provides a beautiful environment, where one may have fresh air and a quiet home after a day of strife in the city.

You can purchase large homesites, 60 ft. wide, with sewer and water in, and only 3 blocks from schools, stores, and churches, for only $500, and you can buy these for only $75 cash down.

When you have your lot paid for, with a small additional payment, we will build you a home to suit your needs.

Investigate Des Plaines today. We will be glad to send you a beautiful illustrated booklet on request. Address S L 445, Tribune.

BETTER YOURSELF

Your future will depend largely on what you decide to make your life's work. Did you ever stop to think how independent most farm owners are? Farmers are assured of a good comfortable living. They work for themselves. They have no bosses or landlords. The best thing for the average wage earner to do in order to get away from the uncertainties of working for wages is to get a farm home. You have heard of towns where the population was made up largely of retired farmers, but you never heard of a town made up of retired carpenters, bricklayers, or other tradesmen.

Investigate the opportunity offered the homeseeker on our clay loam lands in Michigan; 20, 40, 80 acre tracts near hustling city, well suited for general farming, stock, dairying, poultry, truck, and fruit; on good roads, near schools, churches, beautiful lakes, and streams.

Prices now only $15 to $35 per acre. Terms are made easy to meet your circumstances. We have helped many to get farm homes of their own and can help you. The contract we give our customers is one of the most liberal ever offered. Some of the features are: Suspension of payments and privilege to borrow money in case of sickness, loss of work, or misfortune; loan to settlers on land; insurance benefit; privilege to exchange and many other features space does not permit our mentioning here.

Learn more about these lands, the liberal features of our contract, and the way we help earnest homeseekers. Write today for big booklet giving full information. IT'S FREE.

REAL ESTATE—COUNTRY.

Gentleman's Country Home.

A 20 room modern home, 1 hour from the loop by motor. The house lies in the middle of 30 rolling acres of white oak, approached by a half mile winding drive; has 5 bathrooms and 5 sleeping porches; stables, garage, tenant cottage and other outbuildings match the house, which is of old English design and arrangement.

The house is furnished as a gentleman's country home in an inviting, surprising and luxurious manner, each room being of different interest; heating system, hot and cold water, electric lights and big open fireplaces throughout.

The garage and carriage house will accommodate 8 cars and 6 carriages. The stables will house 15 horses in big, roomy, box stalls.

The grounds and gardens are naturally landscaped and have added several thousand dollars worth of bulbs and shrubbery, and horses and machinery necessary for their care and cultivation are there.

The entire estate of 70 acres is exceptionally situated among gently rolling hills; is completely equipped in every detail; ready for immediate occupancy; represents about $250,000, and is offered for immediate sale at less than one-half that figure and little more than a third. This is the most beautiful country place west of New York and is on the immediate market.

HORSES, HARNESS, CARRIAGES.

900 HORSES

900 horses to be sold at auction tomorrow, Monday, April 10th, and Tuesday, April 11th. Auction commences promptly each day at 9 a. m.

This lot includes the very best draft horses weighing from 1,500 to 1,900 lbs.; a great many good delivery horses weighing from 1,250 to 1,450, and a great many farm chunks. All horses consigned on commission and every horse sold for the high dollar regardless of what they bring.

I carry the largest stock of draft and delivery horses in the city, and remember every horse I sell out of my retail stable must be satisfactory or money refunded no matter whether you have them a week or month.

See my horses before buying, as I am sure I can save you money.

REBUILT

COLE AERO EIGHTS VERSUS "As Is"

Occasionally you will find Cole Aero Eights advertised in this and other papers at prices two and three hundred dollars less than we ask for them, and in most cases they are advertised as being from one to two year later models than they really are.

We will sell any Cole Aero Eight for from $350 to $500 less than our regular advertised price of $1,250 to $1,500

for REBUILT

before they are rebuilt in our shops. Furthermore, we are willing to them to perform equal with any car in their class offered in "as is" condition. In fact, we will inspect and tune them up in good shape to give service indefinitely, as it is not necessary to rebuild at once many cars turned in to us. Also, we will agree to rebuild them for you at any future date that suits your convenience, and install our 1922 improvements at equitable prices.

The above offer is subject to stock on hand, so make your selection early while there is a variety.

We allow no more for cars taken in trade than they are worth, and can sell them in equal condition, usually for less money than other dealers. The price is based on general condition, the year built, and in no case is it sold for a later model than it really is.

Our rebuilt cars represent more actual value than any car, new or rebuilt, of like price, and are actually big bargains, as the rebuilding charges are based on actual costs for labor and parts, and the work is done in the most efficient and best equipped plant in Chicago.

CADILLAC'S 11 Bargains

MERCER TOURING SEDAN, SERIES "5." This car will bear most rigid examination and will make a very quiet smooth demonstration such as you expect of a high grade car of this make. It cannot be classed as the ordinary used car. Has been carefully used here in the city. Has an excellent set of Silvertown cord tires, one extra tire. Paint and upholstery show practically no wear. The velour upholstery and coach condition are in excellent shape. If you are looking for a late model Mercer Sedan this is surely your one opportunity. Special for this sale, $2,000.

PACKARD TOURING, 1920, MODEL 3-35. If you are looking for what we consider a nearly new Packard that runs smoothly and quietly, which has the appearance of a new car and one that has not been used long enough to limber it up, we are sure this car will please you. This particular job today would cost new over $4,000. Paint is a special color Packard Blue with cream wheels and the cord tires look like new. Has many extras. We consider this by far the best Packard bargain we have ever offered. If you have been looking and waiting for a snap in a Packard car, where the first depreciation has been very great, and yet there is no particular damage done to car in the way of scratches or to the finish, we are sure this car will meet with your approval. Special for this sale, $2,000.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 57, TOWN LIMOUSINE. Mechanically this car is in good condition throughout. It runs smoothly and quietly and has the appearance and lines of a late model. The body, which is custombuilt, has a very exclusive design and special upholstery. Equipped with a special trunk and rack for the rear and 5 Rudge-Whitworth wire wheels, an excellent set of cord tires, bumper, clock, etc. Has been refinished in our shops. We are fortunate in being able to get this excellent car to offer at this price and it must be appreciated because the price is way below the market. We are offering this at a low figure to move it quickly. Special for this sale, $1,500.

HUDSON TOURING, MODEL 7-0. By people who know the Hudson car this particular model is conceded to be one of the most satisfactory ever built by this company. We consider ourselves very fortunate to be able to sell this car. The owner has taken a personal pride in this automobile and it has been turned in to us running smoothly and quietly and just the way a car should be. We have priced this car very low in order to move it quickly and if you are looking for a standard make car at a low bargain price, do not fail to see this one. The tires, paint, mechanical and coach condition will bear most rigid examination. Special for this sale, $800.

CHANDLER TOURING, 1920, 7 PASSENGER. Has an excellent set of Goodyear Cord tires, bumper, clock, etc. Runs smoothly and quietly. Offered at a very low price. If you are looking for a late model Chandler that has not been abused and that will give you wonderful service, this car will meet with your requirements. Price, $650.

PACKARD TOURING CAR, MODEL 1-35. This particular model is pronounced by many as the most successful car ever built by this company. The mileage on this car is very low. It runs quietly and smoothly and a car that will give the purchaser wonderful unlimited service. The cord tires are in most excellent condition. Has a bumper, clock, extra tire. Also equipped with winter sides as well as a standard summer top. We are offering this car below market price, so if you want to avail yourself of this bargain act quickly. Price, $500.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 55, SEDAN. This is the first opportunity we have had for some time to offer one of this model. It is probably one of the most popular models built by this company and if you are interested in a comfortable 5 passenger sedan with 2 auxiliary seats, that is in exceptionally fine shape, this car will surely please you. Customer has availed himself of our Service Department and you will find the car in fine mechanical shape. Has an excellent set of cord tires, seat covers, clock, extra tire, etc. Price is low. Special for this sale, $875.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 57, TOURING CAR. This is our standard 7 passenger touring. This car runs as quietly and smoothly as a new automobile. The cord tires now on the car are in fine shape. Has seat covers, bumper, clock, extra tire and also a winter body. If you are looking for a Cadillac car at way below the market price that is worthy of many more miles of service, this car will surely please you. Special for this sale, $1,000.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 55, CONVERTIBLE SEDAN. It is rarely that we have the opportunity of offering this model in an enclosed car at this price. Mechanically this car will bear most rigid examination. The motor is in good condition. The cord tires are in good condition. Has a bumper, clock, spare tire. If you are looking for a Cadillac SNAP this car is a special bargain. Price, $750.

CADILLAC 8, TYPE 59, VICTORIA COUPE. This is our popular 4 passenger Coupe of a late series. Just turned in to us by the original purchaser with an extra set of cord tires, bumper, and is in fine mechanical condition. It has not had large mileage and has had very careful usage. We are offering this car below market price to move it quickly. Special at $2,500.

WINTON TOURING CAR, 1920. This is a standard 7 passenger touring car that is just being turned in to us for one of our new sedans, and is by far one of the best of these models we have ever had. Cord tires on this car are in very fine condition, has 2 extras, a set of glass winter sides. The price is extremely low and your immediate action will be necessary. Special for this sale, $1,100.

SPORT TOURING

A LATE IMPORTATION—LIKE NEW.

We are offering one of the most desirable of imported cars, which, we believe, cannot be duplicated. At our price you make a saving of more than 50%, compared with the new car cost delivered in this country.

This is the larger 4 cylinder model, and formerly owned by the principal of a nationally known hardware concern located in Chicago. Imported in 1920 and driven by a thoroughly competent chauffeur at all times. The mileage is low—just enough to properly work in the motor.

LESS THAN HALF PRICE!

It is the low hung 4 passenger type, with very comfortable seats and cushions. Body is custom built and made in this country. A distinguished and tasteful creation. It is upholstered in special red leather and has mounted on it a full leather victoria top complete with curtains. In addition to the adjustable two piece wind shield, ventilators on cowl sides afford the ventilation in front compartment so desirable in the warmer climates.

Refinished in rich wine, with vermilion striping, and presents appearance of a new car. Equipment very complete, including spare [5th] wheel and tire, bumper, Klaxon, Waltham clock, Legalite lens, and rubber covered running boards.

This is an excellent equipage for shopping or touring use, very smart appearing, yet conservative; can be well handled in traffic, and should render service indefinitely. A demonstration will prove the excellence of this car both mechanically and otherwise. The price is attractive and, we believe, will interest the purchaser who is looking for a high grade car of foreign manufacture.

JORDAN

South Side Distributors.

Jordan, 7 pass., touring, current model. This car has been refinished a deep blue. Has two new Kelly Springfield cords and three Brunswicks. The motor has been thoroughly rebuilt. This car will run a long time without spending a cent on it. Specially priced at $1,350.

Franklin touring. The serial number of the chassis shows this car to be a late 1920 and the body is a 1921. The body, paint, tires, top and upholstering are in excellent condition. The mileage is very low. At $1,225 this car is a bargain.

Jordan, 1917, touring, 7 pass. This car is in good shape. It needs paint, however. The tires are new. It is an excellent buy for someone who can put a little time on it and tune it up. Price $525.

Sheridan sedan, 1921. This car has current units in it and the parts are guaranteed by General Motors for several years. It is in first class shape and has every extra on it possible. Looks fine. $1,175.

Jordan, 4 pass. sport. This current model chassis with the 4 pass. sport body has been repainted a Princess Pat blue. It has $600 worth of extras including 5 disteel wheels, plate glass winter sides, seat covers, etc. Looks like new and is mechanically good. A wonderful buy at $1,325.

Dodge sedan, 4 door, 5 wire wheels, excellent velour upholstering, 5 good tires. Just a darned good Dodge sedan and the price is only $1,050.

Oldsmobile, 8 and 6, both 1920 models, and we guarantee that each has cast iron pistons; new pins and rings. The tires are brand new Silvertown cords, oversized on the 8; paint, top, etc., first class. The eight is only $875 and the six, $675.

Chandler, 1921. The burned off paint job on this popular 7 passenger touring car makes it look like new. Tires, top, and curtains are first class. The motor has been thoroughly gone over. We will refer any one to the former owner for verification as to condition. Specially priced at $975.

Studebaker, 5 pass., with Rex winter top and practically new summer top. Mechanically very good, tires good, paint dull. An exceptional buy at $675.

We have several other cars in five and seven pass. models which can be bought at prices which are right.

Guarantee clear title for all cars. Used cars taken in trade. Terms if desired.

PACKARD

FRANKLIN ROADSTER, 1916. This car is in fair mechanical condition and needs a coat of paint. Tires are good and top first class. We believe this car will be sold to the first man who investigates it. $250.

STUTZ SPEEDSTER, 1919 MODEL. This popular car has been given exceptional care. The tires on the wheels are practically new. Paint is in excellent condition. Extra equipment includes 2 spare tires, 6 wire wheels, tire covers, rear vision mirror, spotlight, motometer, etc. No mechanical work is necessary. The car represents a sound value at $1,250.

VELIE SEDAN, 1920 MODEL. We are offering in this car a value very hard to duplicate. It is in excellent mechanical condition. Has been repainted in Rich Maroon with Purple Lake upper parts. The upholstery shows no signs of use—in fact, the car could be sold for new. The equipment is very complete. $1,250.

JORDAN 7 PASS. SEDAN, 1920. This is a handsome 7 passenger closed car. Body is of all aluminum and remarkably fine in appearance. The interior is perfect and shows no signs of wear. This car was received from our paint shop and has every appearance of new. Equipment is very complete and includes bumper, heater, clock, spare tire, etc. We do not believe you can duplicate this value anywhere at $1,500.

STEPHENS TOURING, 1920. This car is equipped with a practically new California top. Has been recently repainted and the mechanical condition is of the very best. The cord tires practically new and the car is very completely equipped with wire wheels, heater, bumper, etc. $1,250.

PACKARD LIMOUSINE, MODEL 3-38. This is the last large 6 cylinder model built by the Packard company. It was traded in to us by the original owner, who kept it in the pink of condition at all times. This car is a large, roomy full limousine and will render years of satisfactory service. Special at $1,000.

PACKARD SINGLE SIX TOURING. This car was used by our Wholesale Department for short demonstrations in Chicago only. It has had very little mileage and is like new in every respect. We are offering this car with the same service and warranty that goes with new Packard vehicles. The price is exceptionally low at $2,000.

PACKARD SINGLE SIX TOWN CAR. This car was constructed on special order for one of our officials at the factory in Detroit. The wheel base has been lengthened and a special Town Car body made for it by Fleetwood. The car has only been driven about 4,000 miles and cannot be distinguished from new in any way. Our price effects a very large saving.

Open Sunday.

Cadillac Coupe '21

MODEL 59 4 PASSENGER.

In its original finish this beautiful 4 passenger Cadillac Victoria coupe presents the appearance of new.

Never have we seen a car that evidences more intelligent care than this quiet running perfect car. There is not a dent or a scratch on it, and the upholstery is as the day it left the factory. The few thousand miles of running, if it has affected the car at all, has improved its silky action. Excellent set of cord tires with 1 spare, bumper, etc.

DELAGE

"FLOWER OF FRANCE"

Cabriolet Town Car

$14,500

BRAND NEW.

Direct from New York Automobile Salon exhibit, 1922.

This marvelous automobile was the official car of the French High Commission during the war, and used exclusively by Gen. Foch. Among its prominent Chicago patrons are Mesdames Harold Rockefeller McCormick and W. J. Chalmers; Messrs. H. A. and A. K. Foreman, Charles Weeghman, Ernest Byfield, K. L. Aimes, and John Burnham, and in New York Harry Payne Whitney, David Ingram, Mrs. Barbara Hatch, and Clarence Mackey.

"Production run" is an unknown thing at the Delage works, which are located at Courbevoie [just outside of Paris, France]—every part is hand cut and fitted with the most exacting care by the most scientific and skilled mechanics of France—the supreme achievement of the finest artisans.

The motor is a marvel of mechanical perfection—a view of it reminds one of the work of a sculptor. The crankshaft is chiseled out of a solid block of chrome vanadium nickel steel with counter weights. The crankcase is hand knurled. The double carburetion system permits of the finest and most accurate adjustment and highest fuel efficiency—15 miles per gallon. The braking system operates on all 4 wheels and insures instant action and a smooth, gentle stop at high speed.

Although the chassis weighs but 2,600 pounds, the car will accelerate up to 75 miles an hour without an apparent effort. Vibration is not perceptible.

The custom built cabriolet town car body—made by Locke—was conceived by M. Frank De Causse, motor coach designer of international fame. The blending of rich color with smart low line and luxurious appointments show the studied effort of an artist—"Le toute ensemble est tres chic."

This magnificent car will be placed on exhibit in our show window starting Saturday evening, and you are cordially invited to come in and view it. There's a real treat in store for you!

DEMI-SEDAN.

My own personal car in flawless condition and rather better than an unused car. It is 3 months old, has run less than 2,000 miles; has been tested and found "perfect" by the Franklin Co. every 500 miles; cords, and fine equipment. I bought this type of Franklin because I believe it to be the best all-year car there is. Unfortunately for me it has now become necessary to carry stuff in my car, and I will not subject this aristocrat to that treatment; $2,500 cash, no terms; no trade, and no argument about price. W. LINCOLN

1922 SPORT

The Improved "Eight."

With Custom Built Le Baron Body.

$4,250

LINCOLN—THE CAR OF THE HOUR!

Le Baron of New York, famous designer and specialist in smart custom made Sport Cars, built this wonderful creation that cost, only a few months ago, $7,375. Nothing like it has ever been seen in Chicago, and it's worth coming a long ways to see, especially if you are interested in a Lincoln and a car of exclusive style.

The body is of heavy guage, hand-hammered aluminum, and although it has low, narrow, sweeping lines, the doors are high and the seats, which are upholstered in soft, velvety hand tooled imported mottled gray Spanish leather, are luxuriously comfortable. The cleverly tailored top, with its mahogany and silver fittings, harmonize with the body lines. The head, side, parking, and tail lamps are made of silver and custom built by McCurdy and follow the design of the Lincoln emblem. Mounted on the rear is a small trunk of mahogany with silver bands and two spare tires with patent leather tire covers to match the finish, which is in the new London fog gray.

The entire car presents the appearance of new and is perfect mechanically. The few thousand miles of careful driving has served to improve its smooth running quality.

Insofar as we are able to ascertain, this is the first one of these wonderful "Leland built" Lincoln Sport Models that has ever been offered on the Chicago market, and we are advised that the earliest posible delivery on a Lincoln Touring Car is 60 days. We offer this one for immediate delivery with standard new car guarantee.

MARMON 34

7 PASSENGER TOURING.

$2,250

A Wonderful Bargain!

The car we are offering is the most popular and successful model in the entire Marmon line.

From an appearance standpoint it will appeal to one who prefers a car of distinctive and smart appearance and quiet refinement. Color scheme is in Burgundy wine with lighter red wheels, silver lamps, radiator, and windshield, with new Rookey tan seat presents the appearance of new. Excellent cord tires.

Mechanically the car runs with all the "pep" that it did when it left the factory and is unusually quiet and smooth in its action. There is no easier car to drive nor more economical among the high grade motors than a Marmon and it is famous for its superb riding qualities over country roads.

This is an unusual value and will not be here long at the very low figure we are offering it. We suggest prompt action. Standard new car guarantee.

National Racer

$1,500

75 miles per hour guaranteed!

Presents appearance of new and perfect mechanically.

If you are looking for a fast snappy road car this one will appeal to you strongly especially after you see it. It is built low and rakish with a torpedo deck. The body, bonnet and top side of the fenders are finished in Burgundy wine while the wire wheels, splash pan, frame, bumper and under side of the fenders are in bright vermillion red. The canopy top, which can be entirely removed and carried in the luggage compartment is of tan English burbank cloth. The upholstery is gray Spanish leather. Radiators, lamps and windshield are silver plated. Shock absorbers. Excellent set of cord tires, 1 spare extra wheel and cover, cutout, etc.

This car has only been driven 6,500 by an expert and is the biggest bargain you can imagine for only $1,500. See this "red streak" at our show-room Sunday. Standard new car guarantee.

NEW MACHINE A WINNER.

To a man who wants to go in business for himself. This machine makes a staple article of building material, used in every building, at a great saving in cost. The product has been approved by every contractor who has seen it and some of the largest builders say it will control the market.

We want live wire business men to handle this machine in every good city outside of Chicago of 75,000 population and over.

Needed $1,000 for equipment and material.

A good city will make a hustler independent financially, and we want only hustlers with unquestionable integrity. Address D 173, Tribune.

CITY MANAGERS

For national service, in big demand; accounting experience helpful; we will establish the right man in a legitimate permanent business through our proven plans and advertising, that brings immediate income, and when developed makes from $5,000 to $20,000 per year; cities over 10,000 population; applicant must have highest references and from $300 to $600 capital; replies confidential; give brief outline past experiences. L. R. HAWES, Vice Pres., 7 W. Madison, Chgo.

A REAL OPPORTUNITY.

If you have mfg. and selling experience, with $10,000, and can devote whole time, will give you an interest in the company; owners have spent considerable money perfecting staple article and securing patent; need funds to push the sales; would also consider selling outright. Address L K 172, Tribune.

$15,000.

This amount will secure control of a going company and patents manufacturing a highly profitable commodity which has already been sold to over 70 trades and professions; first year's net earnings should be three times the investment; will meet all tests from only responsible principals; press of bigger interests and a 2 years' European trip are selling reasons. Address L J 191, Tribune.

RAILROAD NOTES

The Wabash railway announced marked reduction in passenger fare rates between Chicago and New York on the round trip. The new price is $43, against the previous charge of $61.40, and becomes effective April 17. The tickets will have stop-over privileges at New York, Detroit, Buffalo, and Niagara Falls. The Chicago and Alton railroad will operate a low rate excursion from Illinois stations to Chicago next Saturday. Round trip fares will be $5 from all stations except Bloomington, where the fare will be $4.

Officials of railroads operating east from Chicago and St. Louis report a continued improvement in several lines. Total loadings show a further gain and the renewed activity in the demand for steel products is causing considerable increase in tonnage. Officials of southern railroads have been a little more optimistic in regard to traffic conditions, their lines showing moderate but well distributed gains in several departments.

New York, Lake Erie and Western coal and railroad proposes to extend for twenty years, until May 1, 1942, maturity of its first mortgage bonds totaling $3,000,000. The carrier also has asked for approval of the extension of the lease of its properties until June 1, 1945, by the Erie railroad. The Baltimore and Ohio asked permission to issue to its own treasury $1,840,000 in refunding mortgage bonds to repay it for money already spent on betterments and additions. The Carolina and Georgia railroad applied for permission to issue $415,000 in 6 per cent gold bonds for continuation of construction.

Idle employés of the New York Central locomotive repair shops at West Albany have accepted the proposition offered by the company to return to work on a piece work basis of 1917, plus 25 per cent. The vote was 384 to 37.

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, April 8.—Cotton was sold early on reports of fair weather and bought later by shorts on advices of a bad rain and wind storm at Dallas, Tex. It was largely a weather market, with good buying at the last by brokers who usually represent spinning interests. Closing sales were at gains of 8 to 24 points.

Radio Corporation of America.

Since the innovation of practical wireless telephony and the great public interest in radio, this department has been receiving numerous inquiries about the Radio Corporation of America and the value of its stock as an investment. A few words about this corporation should be of interest.

On Nov. 29, 1919, the Radio corporation of America was incorporated under Delaware laws, taking over the Marconi Wireless Telegraph of America by giving $10,000,000 (par $5) in preferred stock and 2,000,000 shares of no-par common stock of the Radio corporation in exchange for all stations and patents of the Marconi company, with the exception of the manufacturing plant at Aldens, N. J., which plant was acquired by the General Electric company. The Radio corporation has an authorized capitalization of $25,000,000 of 7 per cent preferred and 5,000,000 shares of common stock. As of Dec. 31, 1920 (the latest report available) there was outstanding $12,525,870 of preferred and about 4,530,000 shares of common, part of which was issued in exchange for patents to the American Marconi, the Western Electric, and the American Telephone and Telegraph companies and for a contract with the General Electric company for all its future patents and inventories up to 1945. The American Telephone and Telegraph company holds $2,500,000 preferred and 500,000 shares of common stock of the Radio corporation, which entitles the latter to all the inventions of the A. T. & T. and those of the Western Electric company for a period of ten years. Radio stock is also held by the General Electric, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing and the United Fruit companies. The General Electric has a larger interest than the A. T. & T.

The Radio corporation of America owns nearly ten square miles near Port Jefferson, Long Island, upon which a multiple station of five units is being constructed which will be the largest and most powerful radio station in the world. Direct communication has been established with five or more foreign countries and the Atlantic and Pacific oceans have been spanned. In addition to its business of transmitting messages via wireless to various parts of the world, the Radio corporation of America holds the basic patents and has the rights to new developments in the radio field and is the selling agent for all equipment either of a commercial or amateur type. The Western Electric, the General Electric and the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing companies, which are controlled by the American Telephone & Telegraph company, and which have an agreement to interchange inventions and developments in radio in order to avoid duplication of work, retain the manufacturing profit. The Radio corporation gets the sales profits.

The 1921 report of the Radio corporation probably will not be out until next month and there is no foretelling what it will show. The corporation has no bonded debt and has followed the policy of financing its expansion through the reinvestment of its earnings. While it does not seem likely that any dividends will be paid in the near future on either the preferred or common stocks, nevertheless such a policy of expansion should ultimately prove beneficial to the stockholders. The Western Union adopted a similar policy in the early days of its history. Whether or not there will be any similarity in results in this instance the future alone can tell. Radio corporation stock represents participation in a business.

Selling Bonds by SAFETY

FROM its experience of nearly a score of years this bank has drawn some interesting conclusions.

It has found in the investment field that as the rate of interest increases, the risk is usually increased proportionately.

That is why speculative securities promise such rosy profits. Even an extra 1% interest yield may mark the barrier between risk and safety.

This bank has confined its loaning to cases where the margin of safety was so large that the borrower was entitled to a rate of 6%.

The unquestionable safety of the various issues has always created an ample market. If safety of principal is your first consideration, you will be interested in a list of our offerings. Write, phone, or call at the bank. Open daily from 9 to 4:30. Saturdays until 9 p. m.

SHORT COVERING BRINGS A SHARP RALLY IN WHEAT

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bearish influences in the wheat market have seemingly been fully discounted by the recent decline and while the government report was construed as bearish and prices were lower early general short covering and buying by houses with eastern connections made a strong rally and a higher close with the finish at net gains of ⅝@1⅛c on wheat, ⅝@¾c on corn, ⅛@⅜c on oats and of ⅝@⅞c on rye.

Prices fluctuated in a most erratic manner throughout the week, and while liquidation was on at times, the offerings passed into strong hands and the rally which followed carried values too quickly and the close showed net gains on wheat for the week of ⅝@3⅝c. Coarse grains held within narrow limits, with corn gaining ⅞@1½c and oats ⅝@1⅛c, while rye was up 1¾@2¾c. Provisions showed a strong undertone, with lard gaining 52@60c and short ribs 50@70c.

Sentiment More Bullish.

A more bullish sentiment was noticeable among wheat traders, who had less favorable crop reports from the southwest in their favor, and private reports suggesting a decrease of 3,080,000 bu in supplies on ocean passage in the face of prospective world's shipments of around 14,500,000 bu. Smiley's comment on the Kansas wheat outlook was construed as very bullish and was a factor in inducing buying, as around 5,000,000 acres failed to germinate until this spring and the outcome is problematical.

Export demand showed no signs of increasing materially and the milling call is still slow, although southwestern markets showed fair strength with elevator interests at Kansas City buying May and selling July around 6c difference. The May-July spread here widened slightly.

Trade Broader in Coarse Grains.

A broader trade was on in coarse grains, and with further wet weather strength in wheat and short covering prices advanced readily and the close was firm, especially on oats. There were numerous reports received during the day suggesting a greater reduction in the oats acreage than recently, owing to the great delay in seeding. Domestic and export demand is slow.

Strength in other grains and reports of export demand had a bullish effect on rye and prices advanced readily, although trade was not large.

A fair trade was on in provisions with prices higher in sympathy with hogs. On the bulges there was some selling by commission houses, but offerings were readily absorbed. Shipments of lard and meats for the week were smaller than last year. Prices follow:

LIVERPOOL TO CLOSE EASTER HOLIDAY.

Liverpool markets will be closed from Thursday, April 13, until Tuesday, April 18, on account of the Easter holidays.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Demand for cash grain at the seaboard was slow, and business was mainly in small lots. The upturn in futures had some effect in preventing sales, although there was buying of wheat futures at Winnipeg for exporters and also for foreign account.

Domestic shipping sales of cash grain at Chicago Saturday were 30,000 bu corn and 10,000 bu oats, with 100,000 bu wheat sold to go to store.

A firmer undertone prevailed in cash wheat in the southwest. St. Louis 1@3c higher; Kansas City unchanged to 2c higher; Omaha unchanged to 1c higher. About 25 cars of wheat arrived at Chicago from Kansas City yesterday and will go through to Buffalo for Washburn-Crosby.

No change was noted in cash wheat prices at Chicago, with No. 2 red and hard winter salable at May price to 2c over. Receipts 8 cars.

Demand for cash corn fair, with sample values ¼@½c higher. The basis was firmer as compared with the May, with No. 2 mixed 1c under, yellow ¾@1c under, and white May price. Receipts 60 cars. Outside markets were unchanged to 1½c higher, with Milwaukee showing the most strength.

Offerings of cash oats were small. Sample values ¼c higher. No. 2 white 1½@2c over and No 3 white ½c over to ¾c under May. Receipts 41 cars.

Range of cash grain prices in leading markets follow:

COTTONSEED OIL

CHICAGO, April 8.—Cottonseed oil inactive at $10.75 for May.

NEW YORK.—Cottonseed oil closed unchanged to 3 points higher. Sales, 700 brls. Prime crude, $10.00 asked; prime summer yellow spot, $11.65; May, $11.53; July, $11.47; September, $11.45, all bid.

METAL MARKETS.

NEW YORK, April 8.—COPPER—Firmer during last week. Electrolytic still available around 12¾c level for spot or prompt shipment. TIN—Has held its recent ½c gain, but buyers are rather indifferent. LEAD—Very firm, with good general demand. Offerings for current month are light. ZINC—Firm and higher with a continued good demand. ANTIMONY—Firm; demand fair; offerings light.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

A general covering movement was on in wheat, and the other grains were not slow in following. It was said that the bearish news had been used up for the present without dislodging the leading holdings, which were said to have been increased on the breaks. A number of local operators who have been bearish and short assumed that the markets were heavily oversold and took the buying side with good success.

Crop reports from the southwest are not so favorable as a few men in the trade see it. There was a tornado in Oklahoma and in central Texas, with apprehensions of crop damage. These advices created uneasiness and a little buying.

There were sales of 100,000 bu wheat to go to store yesterday, making 700,000 bu for the week. This is the wheat that is to come from Missouri river markets, part of which is being loaded and part on the way to Chicago. A lot of 25 cars of hard winter from Kansas City is due here on Monday for reshipment by lake to the Washburne-Crosby mill at Buffalo.

Buying of corn by houses with eastern connections was one of the features yesterday. The slack was taken out of the market early by one of the large houses and the local operators became the best buyers later in the day. Cash corn is working closer to May and the week's movement showed an excess in receipts over shipments. The seaboard bid 7c over Chicago May, track Baltimore, whch was too low for Chcago holders to accept. Duluth is said to be offering corn lower than other markets.

Duluth was a good buyer of May rye to take off hedges and has sold cash rye at May price delivered at Buffalo. It has a big stock to sell.

Guy C. Shepard, vice president of the Cudahy Packing, has taken his family and started for Europe, to be gone three months, on business and pleasure.

Sales of 5,000 bu new wheat were made here yesterday from Illinois points at $1.18, shipment by July 20.

Flour prices in Liverpool have declined the last week owing to mild weather and slow consumptive demand and keen competition among port millers.

"The domestic and foreign trade in meats has shown improvement, and some European lard stocks have moved closer to the consumer," says W. K. Gregson. "There is no present evidence of an increase of movement and quite a probability of an improvement in the general demand at home and abroad."

NEWS OF THE CROPS

Le Count in his report to Stein, Alstrin & Co. from Hays, Kan., said wheat prospects in that territory were poor. Stand generally is very thin and some fields will be a total loss. All fields choked with weeds. With favorable weather one-third of a crop is probable.

The grain trade will probably be disappointed over the outcome of the Kansas wheat crop this year, according to Secretary E. J. Smiley of the Kansas Grain Dealers' association in a letter to P. S. Goodman of Clement, Curtis & Co. Approximately 3,000,000 acres sown last fall did not sprout, and 2,000,000 acres seeded did not come up in March and whether or not the 5,000,000 acres will make a crop is problematical.

Reports to the Moore, Lawless Grain Co. of Kansas City, covering Kansas, show very good conditions in the eastern part of the state. The central portion indicates up to 50 per cent abandoned acreage. The reports taken as a whole show a very spotted condition, with some counties giving the condition as high as 90.

STERLING BONDS

Will Sterling Go to Par in 1922?

THE British nation, it appears, has now buckled down to the solid business of doing things that will again make London a free Gold Market, as it automatically will when the rate of $4.86 is reached per the Pound Sterling. The British Government is not increasing taxes; it is reducing taxes. It is not spending more; it is spending less. It is not piling up the national debt; it is paying it off.

Great Britain, in short, is doing now and has been doing for months what an individual does to strengthen his credit and improve his general condition when he has been severely pressed—keeping outgo within income, discharging debts, reducing interest, and with these better resources doing more business, and money saved out of British taxes, British spendings and British income will be used by her for International Trade Banking and development. All of this will result in the near future, it is believed, in a London Free Gold Market as sure to reform the world wide activities as the sterling is to regain its parity.

Sterling Bonds which now yield 7% to 10% appear due for an advance.

These bonds, if you act quickly, can be bought to yield from 7% to 10%. As Sterling advances the yield increases, and in many cases it is possible to make a full 100% and more on the basis of maturity values at the normal rate of exchange.

The F. A. Brewer & Co. Review is a monthly publication devoted to Stocks, Bonds and Foreign Securities.

Every investor should read our Monthly Review. It covers a wide field, and is almost sure to contain items of interest and value to you. The last number, issued March 25th, said:

"At prevailing prices we consider Mexican Bonds one of Today's Foremost Opportunities in the Foreign Securities Market."

Mexican bonds have advanced more than ten points in the last fifteen days.

Coming—

The Opening of Our Ground Floor Loop Offices

ANNOUNCEMENT will soon be made of the opening of our offices on the ground floor of the National Life Building, 29 So. La Salle Street.

This event is of great importance to the investing public of Chicago because heretofore it has been necessary to go to the Madison & Kedzie State Bank Building on the West Side to buy INVESTORS BONDS. Now—

Thousands of INVESTORS BOND owners all over Chicago will be able to cash their interest coupons and take advantage of our complete service downtown.

Investors who are buying bonds from us on the partial payment plan can make their payments in the loop if they desire.

The large number of people who have wanted to become customers of The Investors Company but hesitated because we were located only on the West Side can now deal with us on La Salle Street.

Watch for announcement of formal opening. It will pay you, because we are going to bring out a number of exceptionally desirable 7% first mortgage bond issues. Besides, you will be interested in inspecting the comfortable, attractive offices we are fitting up to serve you, and in looking over our window displays (something different on La Salle Street).

While awaiting the opening, why not call at our temporary office, Room 940—or write—for our new booklet, "INVESTORS BONDS"? It's well worth reading.

First Mortgage 5% Bonds........................	$15,000,000
Convertible Bonds or equivalent Preferred Stock...	28,600,000
Common Stock, without par value, having on December 31, 1921, book value of..........	58,773,450

CONTROLLED, through ownership of practically all the Common stock, by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, the Western Electric Company is, according to the Report of the former company for 1921, "virtually a department of the Bell System exercising the function of manufacturer, purchasing agent and storekeeper," with its compensations "fixed on the basis of reasonable but steady return on investment." To other customers, throughout the United States and in most foreign countries, its sales in some years exceed those to the Bell Companies. It is the largest telephone manufacturing concern in the world and the largest electrical jobbing house. In 1921 the total sales were $189,765,000, with unfilled orders at the end of the year of $75,525,000.

THE PLANTS of the Company have cost $45,569,836, yet they now stand on the books at only $17,645,423. The ultra-conservative policy of the Company is further illustrated by the fact that during the last five years the additions to plant actually cost $24,727,014, whereas in that period depreciation reserves increased $14,604,270. Similarly, merchandise has been marked down to the lowest current prices, and a liberal reserve for contingencies has been provided. Yet the net assets of the Company, after depreciation and deduction of the First Mortgage bonds, are approximately three and a quarter times the outstanding Convertible bonds or the equivalent Preferred stock.

DIVIDENDS on the Common stock have been paid regularly for many decades—at not less than 8% since 1886 and from 1917 at 10%. The earnings applicable to dividends on the new Preferred stock were, in 1921 (and for many years prior), well over three times the required 7%.

THE INDEPENDENT financial strength of this Company and the advantages accruing from its relations with the American Telephone & Telegraph Company commend this Preferred stock to conservative investors.

We offer all or part of 10,000 shares at 109, returning 6.42%

Keep Your Profits

Don't give your profits away to partners or stockholders for outside capital, but instead turn your book account capital into cash capital and keep the profits yourself—that's the modern way.

A profit from two sources counts double

Simply sell your Active Accounts Receivable to us for cash just as you sell your merchandise to your Customers on credit. You accommodate your Customers with Credit and yet you get Cash at time of shipment.

Carrying your Customers is a Banking function—you are a Merchant, not a Banker. The capital in your Accounts Receivable contributes no further profit to your business until they are paid or sold. You can invest the cash therefor in more merchandise and make another selling profit with the help of our service.

Why not make a profit on our money for your Accounts as well as on your merchandise—a profit from either source means the same, and a profit from both sources counts double.

Will You Be Caught Napping?

ONCE before we have had a period parallel to the period 1914 to 1922. For eight years history has been repeating itself with amazing precision.

The panic when war was declared, the war boom, the reaction when peace was made, the post-war boom, followed by a violent depression—all these occured once before just as they did in 1914-1922.

Then came a 2-year period corresponding to the two years just ahead of us. If history continues to repeat itself, then next year and the year after will be very different from general expectations and thousands of business men will again be caught napping.

NOTICE OF RECEIVER'S SALE.

The undersigned, Receiver of the Dix Lumber Company, will offer for sale, to the highest bidder, on April 19, 1922, at 10 o'clock A. M., at the plant of the Company, North Second Street and Big Four tracks, Terre Haute, Indiana, the following property:

REAL ESTATE:—Approximately 65,000 square feet of ground located at Second Street and Big Four Railroad, in the heart of Terre Haute, Indiana, having thereon factory buildings, dry kilns, warehouses and etc., containing approximately 37,000 square feet of floor space. Also one four room house used as office.

MACHINERY:—This plant contains a quantity of machinery such as used in the manufacture of hardwood flooring, and in planing mill work. Also boilers, engines, electrical plant, blower system, and etc.

TIMBER TRACT:—Included in the assets of the Company is a tract of timber approximately 323 acres, and estimated to contain over one million feet of hardwood merchantable timber, largely oak. This tract located in Martin County, Indiana, and will be sold in fee simple.

MISCELLANEOUS:—One 5-ton Packard truck with trailer. One 2½-ton Mutual truck with trailer, and two Ford trucks. All ready for service.

NOTE:—The above described property is ideally located for the manufacture of furniture, hardwood flooring, millwork or for any woodworking operation. It is well located for shipping facilities, labor conditions and coal supply. An appraisal as made by Coats & Burchard under date of April 11, 1921, gave a valuation on this property of over $150,000.00. It will be worth your while to investigate.

The property may be sold as a whole or in parcels, and the Receiver reserves the right to reject any or all bids. For further information and detailed list of machinery, communicate with

CHARLES L. RUNYAN, Receiver,
Terre Haute, Indiana.

The New York Times.

New York, April 8.—[Special.]—An interesting week on the stock exchange closed today, with the trend of the five preceding days maintained. In both stock and bond markets the day's transactions were exceptionally large for a two hour Saturday market, and in both the forward movement of prices continued.

This was notably true of the investment bond market, which ended the week in its best form, with three of the Liberty bond issues at new high prices for the year and the fourth 4¼s passing all previous records, with half a dozen foreign government bonds, including the Czecho-Slovakian 8s and all the United Kingdom bonds at high record prices and with numerous advances of considerable scope among railway and industrial securities.

Bonds Make Striking Gains.

Comparing today's final prices with those of a week ago, the rise in bond market prices is striking, the net gains ranging from 2 to 5 points in a long list of bonds, among which are many of the most substantial on the market. A number of Liberty bonds have moved up ½ to 1 point during the week. The stock market, as was to be expected after the series of daily advances, shows even larger enhancement of values for the week.

Bank Loans Show Decline.

Despite the extraordinary activity in the stock market and the resultant demand for funds, clearing house loans and discounts showed an actual decrease of slightly more than $8,000,000 and a moderate gain in cash increased actual excess reserves to about $14,660,000, a gain of $1,352,000. Deposits decreased about $13,000,000. Government deposits are about $3,500,000 lower than last week. Details of the statement, with comparisons, follow:

BUSINESS NEWS IN BRIEF

[Copyright: 1922: By Fairchild News Service.]

NEW YORK.—Robert Mandel of Mandel Bros., Chicago, who has just returned from foreign markets, declares that French prices must come down to stimulate American buying. He says Paris prices are out of all proportion to those in other countries.

NEW YORK.—Flood of women's "heather" hosiery in market may doom many lines to the "surplus property" class before fall. Manufacturers are concerned over the large stocks. A brisk market suddenly has lost its snap.

NEW YORK.—Important dress houses, large importers of beaded robes, confirm a Paris report that they have cancelled some orders placed. They say that the United States market is flooded.

PARIS.—United States demand for fine beaded bags still is strong, according to large Paris export houses.

BELFAST.—All leading American department stores now are operating in the Belfast linen market. In particular they are asking for colored and white dress linens. Quick delivery is demanded. Shipments are being arranged for in April and May.

NEW YORK.—Eastern retailers report large sales of the new semi-soft collars. A good market is expected right up to hot weather. Two lines are featured. One retails at 50 cents; the other at 30 cents, and even 25 cents.

NEW YORK.—Glove manufacturers take notice of the retailers' demand for lower prices. They say, however, that dealers will be disappointed if they expect to offer mocha gloves for fall at under $4.

CHICAGO STOCK TRANSACTIONS

Heavy selling of Libby-McNeill and Swift International shares was the feature of trading in Chicago stocks in the week-end session yesterday. Dealings in these two issues represented more than half of the total turnover. Libby declined ⅜, although the recapitalization plan was not announced until after the close. Swift International declined ⅜ on reports that a reduction in the dividend rate is being considered. Ouside of these issues, the market generally was strong. Wrigley and Thompson advanced 3¼ and 1⅜ respectively, while Earl Motors and Stewart-Warner made fractional gains. Piggly-Wiggly was off a small fraction. On small sales United Light and Railways and Inland Steel advanced 2 points each, Vesta Battery, 1⅛, and Commonwealth Edison a point. Crane preferred was off 1⅛. In the New York market Peoples Gas gained a point. In bonds, Chicago City Railway first mortgage 5s and Chicago Railways first mortgage 5s advanced 1⅛ and a point respectively.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

The weekly review of F. M. Zeller & Co. follows:

While the local unlisted securities market was without special feature, there was a broad general demand, and fractionally higher prices were again recorded in a number of issues. Kellogg Switchboard and Supply was steady. Butler Brothers was slightly easier at 38 bid, offered at 38½. Goodyear Tire and Rubber preferred was strong, advancing to sales at 39, and closing at 36 bid, offered at 37½, being a net gain of approximately 8 points. The common improved one point to 12½ bid, offered at 13. Emerson-Brantingham preferred changed hands between 30 and 31. Bids of 19 were in evidence for Avery common. Moline Plow preferred sold between 7½ and 8. Bucyrus common was quoted 16 to 17 and the preferred 88 to 90.

United States Gypsum was rather quiet, with sales in the common taking place between 49½ and 51, while the preferred was unchanged at 99 to 100. Consumers was fractionally higher at 6 to 6¼, while 61½ was bid for the preferred with very light offerings. A good demand developed for Packard Motor common, sales being made as high as 9, but reacted slightly at the close with stock offered at that price and 8⅝ bid. McCord common changed hands around 5. Stearns improved about four points to sales at 22, closing at 20½ bid, offered at 23. Transactions were reported at 345 in Ford of Canada.

Shorn lambs sell about $2.00@2.50 per 100 lbs. below above quotations.

There was a continuous upturn in hog values last week, with Saturday's average 10c above the previous day and 45c higher than a week ago, at $10.50. Closing trade strong with some local and outside orders unfilled. Nearly half the 6,000 received were directs to packers purchased on outside markets. Top light sold at $10.85.

Last week's receipts of hogs at 121,600 were second smallest since last October, while the estimated average weight at 242 lbs stood heaviest in over five months against 240 lbs the previous week and a year ago and 232 lbs for the ten year average.

Cattle Trade Is Uneven.

Starting in on a steady to higher basis, last week's general cattle market closed weak to lower, being the reverse of conditions the previous week. Best yearling steers sold up to $9.35, against $9.30 previous week, with the general average of good beef steers $7.85, against $7.75 previous week.

Both sheep and lamb markets experienced the biggest break in some time last week, dropping 25@50c on Thursday, although closing values were on the same level as a week ago. Wooled lambs reached $6.50, the highest price in nearly two years, while shorn sold at $14.25 and wooled sheep at $11.00.

Monday's receipts are estimated at 17,000 cattle, 45,000 hogs, and 16,000 sheep, against 18,039 cattle, 48,924 hogs, and 26,161 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 48,000 cattle, 125,000 hogs, and 62,000 sheep, against 47,898 cattle, 141,220 hogs, and 98,987 sheep a year ago.

FINANCIAL NOTES

It has become a popular belief in the financial district, particularly among the speculative element, that the railroad stocks may be considered the steam gauge of the market, and that whenever the more volatile industrials show signs of tiredness, after too much activity, it is reasonable to expect a demonstration in the better class of railroad shares. This is just what happened yesterday. When the industrial stocks faltered, in the few minutes following the opening bell, railroad shares came along. Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Rock Island, New Haven, Chesapeake and Oho, Texas and Pacific, and the Erie issues were active and strong all day, with the traction stocks again keeping pace with them. Later in the day, when the industrial shares had recovered their second wind, they, too, firmed up, with particular strength reflected in Mexican Petroleum and stocks of similar caliber.

In answering the query which is heard on every hand in Wall street these days, one house made this comment today: "We are reminded that the previous market which most nearly corresponds with this one ran seven days short of nine months, whereas this market is just seven and one-half months old. Also the previous market has volume as high as 2,900,000 shares for a record and daily volumes well in excess of 2,000,000 shares. When it is realized that this was eighteen years ago and of the number of stocks that have since been admitted to trading, there is no cause for alarm in a trading volume of 1,700,000 shares."

While railroad, motor, equipment, electrical, steel, and other stocks are establishing new high records from day to day, the petroleum stocks, with the exception of one or two issues, are sliding off or just about holding their own. There are several factors responsible for this situation, according to opinion. The main one is the large amount of crude oil in storage at the present time, while production records continue to be broken from week to week. But to offset this, however, is the usual seasonal demand for oil products which has now been reached and which will speedily eat into the large supplies on hand. Another factor is that the present bull market originally started with a sensational rise in the oils.

State and municipal bond sales for the first quarter of 1922 have established a new high record, according to the Bond Buyer. For the fist thee months of the year the total sold, according to this authority, amounted to $283,928,622, as compared with $215,019,071 for the same period in 1921, $195,665,600 in 1920, and $102,965,223 in 1919. Sales in March were $120,926,170, as compared with $64,388,136 for the same month last year, $70,160,536 for March of 1920, and $57,125,023 for March of 1919. From present indications the supply of new state and city bonds in April will be considerably reduced.

An increase of 625,729 gross tons is reported in the production of steel ingots in March over February, according to the statement issued by the American Iron and Steel institute, covering the operations of thirty companies, which made 84.20 per cent of the steel ingot production in 1920. This is the largest gain reported in years. The output of ingots in March amounts to 2,370,751 gross tons, of which 1,918,579 gross tons were open hearth, 451,386 gross tons Bessemer, and 795 gross tons all other grades.

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank reports the weekly movement of credits as follows: Debits to individual deposit account reported for the week ending April 5 by 200 banks in twenty-four leading clearing house cities in the Seventh federal reserve district aggregate $1,074,479,000, compared with $942,580,000 a week ago. Aggregate debits to individual deposit account amounted to $1,074,479,000, compared with $838,518,000 for the corresponding week last year.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS

Chicago bank clearings last week totaled $534,700,000, an increase of $40,500,000 over the preceding week, and also a gain of $42,100,000 over the corresponding week in 1921. Balances last week totaled $35,600,000, a decline of $1,100,000 from the preceding week, but an increase of $4,500,000 over the corresponding week in 1921. The figures for the week, day by day, follow:

LIBBY-McNEILL TO SCALE STOCK TO MEET LOSSES

BY O. A. MATHER.

As the result of a loss last year of $22,428,768, which wiped out a surplus of $3,065,301 and impaired capital to the extent of $19,363,467, the directors of Libby, McNeill & Libby yesterday announced a recapitalization plan.

It is proposed to decrease the present capital stock from $27,000,000 to $6,750,000 and the number of shares from 2,700,000 to 675,000 of $10 par value by giving the stockholders one new share, which will be common stock of $10 par value, for each four shares now held.

Then it is proposed to increase the authorized capital stock of $31,750,000 by authorizing $25,000,000 of preferred stock of $100 par value, which will be offered pro rata at par to the stockholders. It is proposed to issue $18,000,000 of this new preferred stock immediately, and any stock not subscribed by the stockholders will be underwritten.

Stockholders Will Vote on Plan.

A special meeting of the stockholders to vote on the directors' proposal has been called for April 28 at Portland, Me.

"During the year 1921 the company went through the most serious depression and the most drastic decline in prices that it has ever experienced," the notification to the stockholders states. "As a result, the company has suffered heavy losses and its capital has become seriously impaired. Under the conditions that prevailed, losses were unavoidable. Outside of interest charges, the company had a small operating profit for the year, so that the loss came principally from heavy inventory declines.

"Our sales dropped to slightly over half the previous year's total. Since so many of our products are produced during only one season of the year, we necessarily have to prepare goods far in advance of their marketing. This explains why we had to carry heavy inventories during a prolonged period of price decline and industrial stagnation.

Need Additional Capital.

"In view of the resulting impairment of capital and our obligation under the terms of our mortgage to maintain net quick assets equal to at least one and one-half times our bond issue, it is obvious the company must have additional permanent capital to carry on its business.

"The directors deeply regret this has become necessary, but after careful consideration they have concluded this can best be accomplished by an issue of preferred stock. In order to market this preferred stock it is necessary to reduce the present outstanding stock, thus eliminating the capital deficit and permitting the use of future earnings for payment of dividends on the necessary preferred stock.

"The proceeds from the preferred stock will merely take the place of bank loans on which the company would have to pay interest. Dividends on preferred, therefore, will not militate against the payment of dividends on the new common stock, which will receive dividends as soon as the position of the company justifies."

Entitled to Cumulative Dividends.

The new preferred stock will be entitled to cumulative dividends, payable from surplus or net profits, at the rate of 7 per cent annually after July 15, payable semi-annually. The stock is callable at 105 on sixty days' notice. It will have full voting power in the event of dividends being in arrears for one year, in which case each share will have ten times the voting power of a share of $10 par common stock. Stockholders of record May 9 will have the right to subscribe to the preferred stock.

After giving effect to the proposed recapitalization and financing, the company's balance sheet will be as follows as at March 4: [The balance sheet on March 5, 1921, is shown for comparative purposes.]

ASSETS.	Mar. 4, 1922.	Mar. 5, 1921.

Total assets	$49,194,251	$76,052,900

The current surplus is arrived at by adding the contributed surplus of $20,250,000 resulting from the scaling down of the present capital stock, being 2,025,000 shares canceled, to the previous cash surplus of $3,065,301, and then deducting the 1921 loss of $22,428,768.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Business in South Water street was fair on Saturday. Supplies of general produce were ample and prices for butter, eggs, and poultry were without change, although the tone was firmer.

8% Very Unusual Profit-Sharing Non-Callable SECURITY

Earnings for Past 6 Years Over 72% a Year on Net Worth of Business

This new form of security assures you a perpetual income of 8% a year and in addition shares equally in the profits of this big profit earning business.

Our average yearly earnings for past six years have been over 72% on the net worth of the business. These large profits are possible because we virtually dictate prices of our product as a result of our firm control of the field.

The Company has practically no competition, due to the demonstrated merit of its product, which is fully protected by strong basic patents. Davis Boring Tools are used exclusively as standard equipment by 98% of the railroads of the U. S. and Canada and by 60% of those of foreign countries. The enormous waiting business in the automobile and general industrial field will increase our volume many times.

The Davis Boring Tool Company started 18 years ago with $1,000 capital. Today it is the largest concern of its kind, with an uninterrupted growth that has resulted almost entirely from earnings.

Each year plant has been enlarged from profits, but demand has grown so rapidly that it is now desirable to take on new capital to care for the large number of orders that have heretofore been declined.

Investors seeking safety and large earning power should carefully investigate this very unusual issue.

Are You the Man?

We desire a very high-grade salesman to originate and carry on business with large manufacturing concerns. He need not be at present interested in the gray iron casting business, although such would be preferable. We want a man who is capable of earning $8,000 to $10,000 a year, is willing to work and can handle responsibility.
